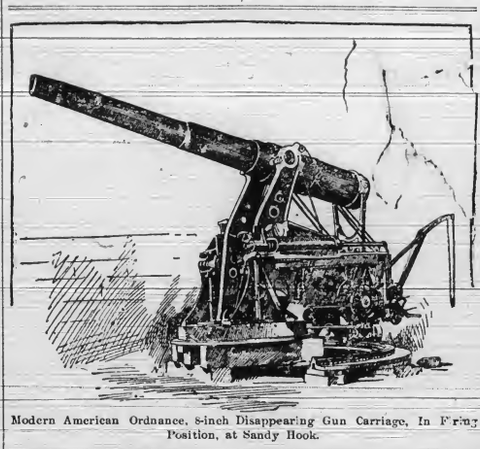
CHARLESTON, S. C., March 7.—The tug Underwriter, towing the Merritt Wrecking Co.'s Derriek Chief, came into Charleston harbor Sunday morning after a very rough passage off Hatteras. The tug and her tow were in the heavy storm of Thursday night, and while there was not much damage, the waves tossed them about like feathers and made the crews very busy. The gale raged for 24 hours and the deckload of coal on the Underwriter was washed overboard. The Derrick was stripped of its copper bottom. Mate J. Frank Hammond and Fireman Charles Bellamy were so much used up by the trip that they were sent to the Marine hospital upon arrival. It is claimed that these men are not injured, but it is known, however, that Capt. Wiley will complete his crew here Monday and probably sail for Havana at noon.

PUSHING THE WORK.

Sunday Was a Busy Day at the League Navy Yard.



PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—Sunday was a repetition of last Sunday in the general activity at League Island navy yard. Workmen were busily engaged upon the cruiser Minneapolis, the monitor Miantonomah and the ram Katahdin. In addition work was going on in the mold loft and several forges were in operation in the blacksmith shop. The utmost reticence prevailed among the officers, sailors and workmen at the yard and it was impossible to obtain any official information as to the detail of the work going on. It was evident, however, that all work was being pushed as rapidly as possible.

UNCLE SAM

Can Buy All the Ships Needed Abr ad—Eight Men-of-War Have Already Been Offered by Foreign Builders.

NEW YORK, March 7.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: Fully realizing the importance of preparations for any emergency, the president has directed the navy department to open negotiations looking to the purchase abroad of warships. This fact is now for the first time made public. It probably would not have transpired at this juncture, but for the excitement caused by the statement published that Spain had purchased or was negotiating for warships being built by the Elswick company of England for Brazil and other ships under construction. With a view of ascertaining the facts, your correspondent called upon a high official of the administration and obtained an official admission—made for the first time—that while the president does not anticipate war, he recognizes that there is a possibility of hostilities growing out of the Cuban problem and the Maine disaster and that he proposes to be prepared for it. There has been ample evidence of this in the extensive preparations, pateat to everybody, which have been in progress for some time, but there has been no official admission to this effect until now.

Eight men-of-war, which are practically completed in foreign shipyards, have been offered for sale in the United States. The president has given consideration to the advisability of placing an option on them. The navy department has been carefully watching the construction of ships all abroad through the eyes of its naval attaches of London, Paris, St. Petersburg, Berlin, Vienna and Rome. This surveillance has been maintained for two months, but more especially since the Maine disaster. Through these naval attaches and from ship builders themselves the secretary of the navy has learned that he can now purchase two small-sized battleships, two armored cruisers and four torpedo boats, all at a comparatively low price. The builders have promised that they can deliver the ships to agents of this government at this time, complete in every respect, and all that will be necessary for the administration to do will be to order the necessary details of officers and men to proceed to the shipyard, go on board the vessels and take them to any points which may be desired.

The builders have urged that the purchases be made at once, as they say that a declaration of war between the United States and Spain would result in the enforcement of neutrality laws and prevent the sale of the ships. The battleships and armored cruisers have been built by English and German firms for governments which are now unable to pay for them, so that this government would have no difficulty in obtaining the vessels by simply putting down the necessary amount of cash. The four torpedo boats have been offered by the Thornycroft Ship Building Co., whose boats are recognized by experts to be among the best in the world.

While your correspondent was unable to learn the names of the ships which have been offered to this government, there is reason to believe that among them are three powerful ships under construction at the Vulcan works, Stettin, Germany, for the Chinese government. These three ships are of 8,000 tons displacement, contracted to make 19.5 knots, and will be able to carry not less than a thousand tons of coal in their bunkers. There is also reason to believe that in case of trouble this government could purchase from Japan the Kasagi and the Chiosa, which are nearing completion at Philadelphia, and the Union iron works. The official with whom your correspondent talked had no doubt that Japan would be willing to aid the United States by selling the warships before the commencement of war.

BARBADOS, March 7.—The German bark Cidade Do Porte, Capt. Kauffmann, last reported at Pernambuco, from Rio Janeiro, was abandoned at sea on fire and her crew have landed here.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE

Regular Session.

FRANKFORT, March 1.—SENATE—Bills introduced Monday: To provide for the operating expenses of the houses of reform. Appropriates $133 per capita for each inmate and $5,000 annually for other expenses; to set bounties to cure a more prompt administration and settlement of assigned and insolvent estates by assignees and receivers. The first thing after the reading of the journal in the senate Monday was a message from the governor announcing his veto of the McChord railroad freight-rate bill. The veto covers 15 typewritten pages, citing numerous authorities to show that the bill is unconstitutional.

HOUSE—At the afternoon session the house defeated the bill to amend the landlord and tenant law so that only five days' notice to vacate would be required, instead of 30 days, as now required. The bill to change the third appellate district was practically defeated by refusing to allow it to be reported by the committee on statutes. It can hardly be rushed through now in time to be passed over the governor's veto. The Goebel election bill and the Eighth district gerrymander bill were read and compared as enrolled; the Trimble bill to require all railroad companies in the state to permit the Postal Telegraph Co., as well as the Western Union to erect lines along their right of way was passed, yeas 62, nays 12; Mr. A. C. Brown presented a joint resolution calling on the adjutant general to inform the legislature as to how many available soldiers he has in case of war. Lies over. The senate bill to change the time of of holding courts in the Twenty-fourth judicial district was passed.

FRANKFORT, March 2.—SENATE—The entanglements over the various important party measures pending in the legislature are becoming more complicated every hour. The fates of the McChord railroad bill, the Bronson prison bill, and the Goebel election bill are all so interwoven that no one can tell the outcome. They may all be defeated or they may all be passed over the vetoes. It depends on the action of the caucuses that are being called on the two first named bills. The resolution providing for paying idiot claims for the time elapsing between the expiration of the last inquest period and the time the new inquest was held was adopted. The bill to require assessors in cities of first and second classes to assess intangible property and franchises for taxation was passed.

HOUSE—The bill to appropriate $30,000 for building a sewerage system for the Lexington asylum was passed by a vote of 72 to 11. The bill to adopt Barbour and Carroll's edition of the Kentucky statutes was defeated by 51 yeas to 67 nays. The senate substitute for the Chinn school book bill was reported to the house Tuesday. The substitute is regarded as a nullifier of the original bill and the big victory for the American Book Concern. By a vote of 64 to 35 the house refused to concur in the substitute. This virtually destroys all hope of passing any school book bill to cheapen the price of books this session.

FRANKFORT, March 3—SENATE—In the senate Wednesday Mr. Clark, the patriotic senator from Jackson county, presented the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted: "That from and after this date there shall be displayed from the dome of the capitol the national ... For over 100 years, in war and peace, in sunshine and storm, by land and sea, its shield has been our protection and its stars our inspiration. The latter have increased from 13 to 45, moving undimmed and undismembered in their orbs of light and grandeur, and not a stripe is trailing on the ground. In times of threatened disaster we look to its eagle, grasping heaven's thunderbolts. Keatsky's muse could not find full share to these glories, and the people of no state feel greater pride and exultation as they look upon its waving folds. From the devotion of the heart let that feeling be expressed by placing the flag upon the Capitol."

HOUSE—The house adopted the resolution calling on the adjutant general to report the number of troops available for immediate war. The Tracy bill to strike out the clause in the present law which exempts from execution $40 in money for each member of a family, was defeated—yeas, 27; nays, 52. At the afternoon session the senate passed the bill repealing the Madisonville graded school act. Bill providing for republishing the Kentucky reports that are now out of print was defeated. Senate Bill No 188, providing for the condemnation of land and material for constructing, repairing and rebuilding turnpike and gravel roads and bridges, was passed. The house bill amending the code so that in asking for injunctions the plaintiff must go before the circuit court judge in his district for trial of the motion, and not to any circuit judge, was passed.

FRANKFORT, March 4.—SENATE—The following bills were passed Thursday: Allowing building associations to create an indebtedness by borrowing money to meet certain obligations; to authorize trustees of graded schools to levy an additional tax was amended on motion of Senator Voires so as to require the question to be submitted to a vote of the people, and passed as amended; allowing any 9 jurors that are sworn even if they do not serve a full day; requiring when cities of the fourth-class wish to extend their boundaries a petition must be filed and property owners in the new territories summoned to appear; appropriating $30,000 for new sewerage system at the Lexington asylum; to create a state dental board of examiners; bill repealing the act requiring notice to be given before suit on a lien is filed was passed, with an amendment allowing the law to still apply to Louisville.

HOUSE—Bills passed: A resolution providing for fixing 100 years on March 4 in memory of Robert Emmett, the Irish patriot; to transfer Madisonville from the fifth to fourth class cities; appropriating money to enlarge the dining room and the cooking room at the Frankfort penitentiary; senate bill changing the Third appellate district by cutting out Whitley county was passed, enrolled and sent to the governor; authorizing assessment of bonded warehouses to assess the contents.

FRANKFORT, March 5.—SENATE—Friday Senator McChord withdrew his appeal from the decision of the chair on the McChord bill, and reported the bill from the railroad committee with the explanation that while it ought to pass over the governor's veto. The question was then put, without debate, and the governor's veto was sustained by a vote of 21 to 17. Bills passed: To require trust companies to report to the secretary of state in the same way that banks now report; to prevent railroads from delivering freight to or from other railroads or common carrier freight at less charges than it charges or receives from other common carriers for like service, etc.; to regulate the practice of pharmacy in the state; to prohibit corporations from contributing in any way to campaign funds in election.

HOUSE—The house refused to have the bill prohibiting the reproduction of prize fights by pictures read a second time, thus killing it. The resolution indorsing the action of Miss Christine Bradley in refusing to christen the battleship Kentucky with whisky or champagne was adopted. The Williams bill to prohibit the running of excursion trains on Sunday was killed. Bills passed: allowing certain claims for supplies furnished state troops in 1861 to be litigated; to better secure a more speedy settlement of assigned estates and estates placed in the hands of receivers.

Spencer Smith and wife have been suffering with rheumatism for several weeks. Spencer came up one day last week and looked like he might have been on the Maine when she was blown up.

Pat Norman met with a serious accident Thursday morning by which he came very near losing an eye. Walking through the barn he was caught in the eye by a hook made of No. 9 wire. The point cut through the lid and upwards into the brow far enough to require five stitches in fastening it back. Dr. Crouch succeeded in fixing him up all right and he is getting along nicely.

Our village postmaster, W. H. Riley, put war paint on—sailed to Cuba—invaded the Island—captured several regiments of Spaniards, was in turn captured by the Cubans who mistook him for Senator Walcott and were about to give him a lesson in astronomy by looking through a noose on the end of a 15 foot rope, when the noise he made kicking the foot-board out of the bed awakened him.

Mr. William Crisler was stricken with paralysis as he was returning from Normansville, Monday evening of last week. He was taken to Perry Utz's until arrangements could be made to take him home. The most skilled medical assistance was rendered and everything possible done to relieve him, but he never rallied and remained unconscious to the time of his death, which occurred at 2 o'clock Thursday. It was only a few days before he was stricken down that we noticed Mr. Crisler driving his team through the streets of Union and looking as well as usual. For many years we have had reasons to know him as our friend because he never failed to say a kind word and give us a friendly pressure of the hand on all occasions. It is with the deepest feelings of regret we learn of his death.

Riggs Bros., of Erlanger, conducted the funeral of Mr. Crisler, and owing to the desperate condition of the roads taking the hearse out proved almost impossible, as one horse fell in the mud and the other mired down. They had a powerful team and yet we learn they had to hitch on another span.

Master Commissioner's Sale.

BOONE CIRCUIT COURT OF KENTUCKY.

BENJAMIN F. CRAIG ET ALS., Plaintiffs, against } In Equity.
CYRUS CRAIG ET ALS., Defendants.

By virtue of a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Boone Circuit Court of Kentucky, rendered at the December term thereof, 1897, in the above cause, I will offer for sale at the Court House door, in Burlington, Boone county, Ky., to the highest bidder, at public sale, on at one o'clock or thereabouts, it being County Court day, upon a credit of 6, 12, 18 and 24 months, the following described property, to-wit:

1st. 4,060 acres of land in Pike county, Ky., on the southwest side of the Levisa Fork of Big Sandy River, beginning at the lower side of the mouth of Crag's creek, on the bank of said fork at a poplar and ash; thence down said fork and binding thereon north 15 degrees, east 240 poles; north 85 degrees, west 100 poles; south 42 degrees, west 92 poles; south 60 degrees, west 52 poles; south 75 degrees, west 86 poles; north 20 degrees, west 280 poles; north 56 degrees, west 360 poles; north 45 degrees, west 180 poles; north 25 degrees, west 204 poles to two sugar trees; thence south 45 degrees, west 536 poles to a stake; thence south 45 degrees, east 1200 poles to two maples and a poplar; thence north 45 degrees, east 541 poles to the place of beginning.

2d. 5,940 acres of land in Pike county, Ky., on the southwest side of the Levisa Fork of Big Sandy river, beginning at the lower corner, on said fork, of the above described survey of 4,060 acres at two sugar trees; thence down said fork as it meanders north 35 degrees, east 114 poles; north 5 degrees, west 234 poles; north 25 degrees, west 160 poles; north 75 degrees, west 140 poles; north 40 degrees, west 212 poles to the mouth of Elkhorn; north 50 degrees, west 180 poles; north 65 degrees, west 170 poles; north 45 degrees, west 108 poles; north 60 degrees, west 80 poles to a walnut, sugar tree, hickory and lynn; thence south 45 degrees, west 672 poles to a white oak; thence south 45 degrees, east 1180 poles crossing Elkhorn to a stake corner to the above described survey of 4,060 acres; thence north 45 degrees, east with the line of said survey 536 poles to the place of beginning.

3d. 20,000 acres of land in Pike county, Ky., on the waters of Levisa Fork of Big Sandy, beginning at the west corner of the above described of 5,940 acres at a white oak; thence south 45 degrees, east 1180 poles with the back line of said survey to the above described 4,060 acre survey, and with the back line of said survey the same course 1200 poles to the south corner of said 4,060 acre survey to two maples and a poplar; thence south 45 degrees, west 1344 poles to a sugar tree, poplar and walnut; thence north 45 degrees, west 2380 poles to two red oaks; thence north 45 degrees, east 1344 poles to the place of beginning.

4th. 5,000 acres of land in Pike county, Ky., on the waters of Levisa Fork of Big Sandy, (and the head waters of Shelby Creek) beginning at two chestnut oaks, it being the west corner of 40,518 acres, now known as the survey of May & Ross, but called for in this original survey as "withdrawn from entry," thence south 45 degrees, east 1190 poles to a sugar tree; thence south 45 degrees, west 672 poles to a stake; thence north 45 degrees, west 1190 poles to two white oaks; thence north 45 degrees, east 672 poles to the place of beginning.

5th. 5,000 acres of land in Pike county, Ky., on the waters of Levisa Fork of Big Sandy, beginning at a sugar tree the east corner of said last described survey of 5,000 acres, and with the line of said survey south 45 degrees, west 672 poles to a stake; thence south 45 degrees, east 1,190 to two white oaks; thence north 45 degrees, east 672 poles to two sugar trees, a poplar and lynn; thence north 45 degrees, west 1,120 poles to a large "lick," continuing the same course, in all 1,190 poles to beginning.

By reference to the calls of a survey of 14,280 acres in the name of Robinson, Young & Co., at the mouth of Shelby creek, it will be found that the point of beginning from which all the foregoing surveys may be located is the northeast corner of said above described survey of 5,940 acres, designated in said 14,280 acre survey as John Craig's survey, and which point, by the calls of said 14,280 acre survey, is 412 poles south of the mouth of Shelby creek, on Levisa fork as the same meanders.

It will be further noted that the stream designated Elkhorn, as traversing said 5,940 acre survey from southwest to northeast, is a small stream of that name, as designated by the surveyors of one hundred years ago, whose mouth is 950 poles south of the mouth of Shelby creek, and not the stream noted on modern maps as flowing along the base of Pine mountains into Russell's fork, and whose mouth is 17 miles from the mouth of Shelby creek.

The title hereby offered for sale is the paramount title acquired by patent from the State of Virginia by John Craig as the assignee of Merry Walker, in February, 1790. This sale is made on a judgment of partition had in the Circuit Court of Boone county, Ky., where said John Craig lived and died and his estate was administered. His living decendents, 231 in number, are named as parties to this action.

The purchasers at this sale must execute bond with approved security or securities, bearing the legal rate of interest from day of sale until paid, and having the force and effect of a judgment with a lien therein retained until purchase money is all paid. Bidders will be prepared to comply with terms.

Local News.

Set your hens.

Saturday was a beautiful, springlike day.

A good many farmers have sowed plant beds.

Circuit Court is in session at Rising Sun, this week.

The snow that fell last week was needed by the ground.

The weather, Monday, was too nice for the farmers to attend court.

Remember the entertainment at the Court House next Saturday night.

The farmers want good weather now for a starter towards another crop.

The deepest snow of the winter fell on the 2d inst. It was 8 inches deep.

Kentucky will celebrate St. Patrick's day by adjourning her Legislature.

For Sale—Span of good work mules. F. P. WALTON, Utzinger, Ky.

The Dearborn county, Indiana, primary election will be held April 16.

It is said that Bellevue will have a cracker-jack base ball club this year.

For sale by Ed Clegg, of Gunpowder, two good shorthorn heifers—will weigh about 700 each.

The wheat and young grass was badly damaged by the recent freezes. Some of it was frozen cutirely out of the ground.

Oscar Ryle remarked as soon as he heard of the Maine disaster, "she struck a live wire," and he is still of that opinion.

The town's population was increased sixteen, last week, by parties moving in. There has been a demand for houses here all winter

A petition has been filed in the County Court and a vote ordered taken on the proposition to sell whisky in the town of Petersburg.

For Sale.—Good Jersey cow with second calf about three weeks old. Apply to GARRET CAYTON, on the John T. Craven farm near Florence.

Chickenthieves would better keep out of Constance hen houses. The people down there know what to do with them when they capture them.

Noah Barlow and W. L. B. Rouse have been trying to work up a land deal. It involves the farm on which Thomas Utz use to live in the Gunpowder neighborhood.

Examine the date following the address on your RECORDER and if it is not correct you will confer a favor by informing this office at once that the correction can be made.

The weather Saturday morning had a stimulating effect on our farmer friend, Noah Clore, that he could not overcome, says Billy Rice, and he shouldered a cross-cut saw, and was seen cutting across the fields towards the woods at an early hour.

On the 28th inst. B. L. Rice will sell at public sale on his farm near Union, all his livestock, of which there is considerable. This stock is in good condition, and is the result of much care on the part of Mr. Rice in its production. Read the advertisment in another column.

The boy, Von Gundy, who was captured in this county during the fair, last fall, and lodged in jail here charged with housebreaking, and was subsequently released on bail which was forfeited at the last term of the Circuit Court, is in jail in Covington, charged with carrying burglars tools.

Some of those who were in the Commercial Building Trust, of Louisville, have been sent blanks for the purpose of making proof of their claims. Some expect to recover as much as 75 per cent., while others are expecting to be fortunate if they escape without being assessed to pay the expenses of settling the business.

Mrs. Hallie E. Cochran, wife of Thos. J. Cochran, died at Inverness, Florida, after a short illness with flux, last Sunday night. The sad news came to her relatives and friends here Monday. Mrs. Cochran was 46 years of age, a daughter of the late Dr. Jno. T. Lewis, and an amiable and lovely woman.—Carrollton News.

Chas. White, John Berkshire and others in that neighborhood are great friends of the pole cat, and the huntsman who destroys a den of these animals on their farms, incurs their displeasure. They claim that pole cats are the greatest enemies to moles and ground mice that exist, and for that reason they protect them.

R. E. Moore, of the Beaver neighborhood, will, in all probability, cultivate more tobacco this year than any other farmer in the county. He is preparing to plant 60 acres of his farm on which there is as fine tobacco land as is in the county. Mr. Moore has been an extensive producer of the weed for many years, and knows how to handle it from start to finish.

Boone County S. S. Union.

At the last annual meeting of the Boone County Sunday School Union, Miss Ora Rouse, of Limaburg, was chosen Secretary. Later she removed to Columbus, Ohio, and tendered her resignation. Mrs. C. C. Hughes, of Burlington, was then appointed to fill the vacancy. The next annual meeting will be held with the Baptist church at Burlington for which an interesting program will be arranged.

W. W. Crisler, a brother of C. L. Crisler, of this place, died last Thursday, aged 70 years. He was a native of this county, being born and raised in the neighborhood where he died. His wife was a daughter of the late Chas. Haglish. The cause of Mr. Crisler's death was paralysis. Mr. Crisler went the day before to meet his son, Kirby, who had gone to mill at Normansville, and when near F. M. Howlett's, on their return, he was stricken and fell back in the wagon. He was brought on home but never regained consciousness, and died about 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Watty Rockwell, who lives with W. C. Goodridge, is the champion coon hunter of the county, and he cares very little about dog or ax to assist him. He goes into a woods, and seeing a tree that looks like a good abiding place for a coon, he investigates by climbing the tree and dislodging the coon if it is there. He has been known to capture as many as seven a day. Several went out from town to T. B. Rouse's woods, last Friday, to see him climb a large oak, in a limb of which, 75 feet from the ground, he found two coons which he punched out of their dens and threw them to the ground. No tree is too large nor too tall for Rockwell to climb if he thinks he will find a coon.

The Bank of Petersburg has gone into voluntary liquidation. This action was brought about by heavy losses sustained by the bank in Chattanooga. At a meeting of the stockholders on Monday of last week, it was deemed best to wind up the bank's affairs and quit business, and the cashier, Ernest L. Grant, was ordered to pay off all depositors in full, to receive no more deposits, to collect up the debts due the bank, and report to the stockholders' meetiug on the 19th inst. The RECORDER is sorry to see the bank quit business for two reasons: First—because it does not like to see a Boone county enterprise fall to remunerate its promoters. Second—the affable cashier, Mr. Ernest L. Grant, loses a position that suited him so well.

Mrs. Elizabeth Crisler, wife of H. P. Crisler, died last Sunday night, after a lingering illness with stomach trouble. Mrs. Crisler would have been 74 years old next July. She was a christian in word and deed, and no one knew her but to admire her. Her aim in life was to contribute all she could to the happiness of those with whom she came in contact. She leaves a husband and three sons, Dr. R. H. Crisler, of Ludlow, Benjamin Crisler, of Petersburg, and William Crisler, of Chicago, and two daughters, Mrs. John M. Rice, of Mexico, Mo., and Mrs. Joseph Snyder, of Delphi, Ind. The funeral services were conducted at Bullittsburg church yesterday by Rev. J. A. Kirtley and Elder Cornell. The aged and devoted husband and loving children have the sympathy of an extensive circle of friends in this sad bereavement.

One morning last week Ben Warner, who lives up on Dry Creek, heard a disturbance among his chickens, and he made haste to investigate. Upon arriving at his poultry house he discovered the noise was made by his fat hens which Will Bush was bagging as rapidly as he could. Warner put the clandestine poultry dealer under arrest, and after breakfast he started to Burlington with him, but the news of the capture had preceded him, and when he reached Constance he discovered the citizens were very much worked up over the affair, and in a condition of mind to do the prisoner violence, so Warner hastened through the town, thinking the excitement would subside as soon as the thief was out of sight. Not so, for Warner and Bush had gone but a short distance on the Minneola 'pike, when they were overtaken by a mob of angry citizens, each of whom wore a mask and carried a handful of well seasoned hickories which had long since been provided for just such an emergency, which had been unexpectedly delayed. The mob took charge of the prisoner, and, it seemingly had been previously decided how many lashes each member of the mob was to administer, the very interesting exercises began, and as Brush made the hills and valleys resound with his cries for mercy, the determined men let not up in their work until the last lash was delivered as agreed. Having cut the hide on Bush's back into shoestrings, the poor scamp was made to kneel down on the cold rocks in the middle of the 'pike, and pray, promising God that he will never again visit Constance. It said that Bush had to go to a hospital for repairs, it is, therefore, evident that a good job was done by those who handled the switches.

Bush has been about Constance for a long time, and has always been regarded as a petty thief.

AN EVENING OF COMEDY.

Miss Helen Mercl Schuster, assisted by Mr. Will L. Ranson, will give one of her Grand Entertainments at the Court House, March 12, '98, at 8 p. m. Miss Schuster, Elocutionist, and Mr. Will L. Ranson, in the one act plays, "The Mousetrap," and "A Pair of Lunatics;" also Dialect Recitations by Mr. Ranson, and Dramatic Recitations by Miss Schuster. Miss Schuster's success in giving these entertainments in Cincinnati, Covington and adjoining towns is too well known to need anything more than a mere mention that she will be in Burlington on the evening of March 12th, to insure her a large audience. Everyone wishing to spend both a pleasant and profitable evening may rest assured their wish will be granted if they come to hear Miss Schuster and Mr. Ranson. The Burlington Band will render some delightful music; So no one need fear being wearied for want of variety.

Doors open 7 o'clock, p. m. Admission, 25 cents, Children under 12 years, 15 cents.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. Annie Clore is quite sick of quiusy.

Tim Westbay made a business trip to the city, Saturday.

Lewis Rice, of Richwood, was in town, last Thursday.

Hon. John S. Gaunt, of Carrollton, was in town, Monday.

Chief of Police Pugh, of Covington, attended court here, Monday.

Attorney Tomlin, of Walton, attended Quarterly Court here Monday.

John Sandford has rented property in Bellevue, to which he will move.

Miss Katie Huey and Mrs. P. E. Cason have been quite sick for several days.

Rev. David Blyth, of West Liberty, Ohio, was visiting his father last Wednesday.

B. P. Rice was canvassing in Grant county, last week, in the interest of his patent farm gate.

Mrs. Judge Roberts returned home, last week, from a visit of several weeks with relatives at Walton.

R. E. and Geo. M. Moore and R. A. Conley, of Beaver, and R. O. Hughes, of Richwood, were in town yesterday.

Col. J. M. Moody, of Bellevue, was in town Thursday. The Colonel looks like he has wintered well, and was in fine spirits.

John Beutler and family have moved over from the Florence neighborhood, and occupy G. G. Hughes' house on Union Street.

At last accounts little Jonette Revill, who underwent a very delicate operation at a hospital in Cincinnati, week before last, was improving nicely.

Geo. Sleet and wife and Geo. Ossman and wife, of Beaver were guests, of county clerk Adams and wife Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Ossman remained over.

Lucien Clore has moved his stock and farming implements to the J. H. Walton farm in the Waterloo neighborhood, and he and his family will take up their residence there in a few days.

We noticed our young friend, Hubert Walton, in town one day last week. He was headed for the temple of justice, but we are sorry to report that his mission there was not what it should have been.

Geo. White, wife and two children, of Missouri, are visiting relations in this county. Mr. and Mrs. White have been living in Missouri for about seventeen years, and this is their first visit to Kentucky. Mr. White looks well and has changed very little.

Rev. Hixon occupied the pulpit at the Baptist church here, last Sunday morning and evening, for Rev. Hoover. Rev. Hoover has a call with a $1,000 per year salary attachment, from the Elizabethtown church, we hear, and it is more than probable that he will accept it.

The weather the past few days is calculated to get the fruit in jeopardy.

Spain demanded the recall of Consul Gen. Lee, but the President said, emphatically, "no," and Lee is at Havana yet.

Lost.—A pocket book near Hebron. Finder will please return to me or leave at postoffice and receive reward.

MRS. H. CLORE

Joseph Feely, who works for W. J Rice cut one of his ankles very badly with an ax, Monday. The blade of the ax reached the heel, and stuck in the bone. Dr. Furnish dressed the wound, and Joe is doing well.

Robert Rice, of Florence, called in Monday and contracted for space for a nice advertisement of Deering binders and Mowers which he will handle again this season. If you want one of those machines he will make it to your advantage to call on, or write to, him for particulars.

The County Court, Monday, ordered a vote taken on the local option question in the Bellevue voting precint on May 7th, 1898. The petitioners for a vote on the same question in the town of Petersburg, having failed to comply with the law the Court could not order the vote taken.

$50.00 REWARD.

I will pay $50 reward for the capture and return to the jail in Burlington, John Leopold and Mike Teeters, who escaped from Burlington jail last Friday evening:

DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON.

Some Day All of Life's Sorrows Will Be Explained,

And the Saviour of Men Will Tell Us, As We Are All Gathered Around the Throne, That He Only Chastened Because He Loved Us.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was: I Cor. xiii., 12: "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face."

The Bible is the most forcible and pungent of books. While it has the sweetness of a mother's hush for human trouble, it has all the keenness of a scimeter, and the crushing power of a lightning bolt. It portrays with more than a painter's power, at one stroke picturing a heavenly throne and a judgment conflagration. The strings of this great harp are fingered by all the splendors of the future, now sounding with the crackle of consuming world's, now thrilling with the joy of the everlasting emancipated. It tells how one forbidden tree in the garden blasted the earth with sickness and death, and how another tree, though leafless and bare, yet planted on Calvary, shall yield a fruit which shall more than antidote the poison of the other. It tells how the red-ripe clusters of God's wrath was brought to the wine press, and Jesus trod them out, and how, at last all the golden chalices of Heaven shall glow with the wine of that awful vintage. It dazzles the eye with an Ezekiel's vision of wheel, and wing, and whirlwind, and stoops down so low that it can put its lips to the ear of a dying child, and say, "Come up higher."

And yet Paul in my text, takes the responsibility of saying that it is only an indistinct mirror, and that its mission shall be suspended. I think there may be one Bible in Heaven fastened to the throne. Just as now, in a museum, we have a lamp exhumed from Herculaneum and Nineveh, and we look at it with great interest and say, "How poor a light it must have given compared with our modern lamps!" So I think that this Bible, which was a lamp to our feet in this world, may lie near the throne of God, exciting our interest to all eternity by the contrast between its comparatively feeble light and the illumination of Heaven. The Bible now is the scaffolding of the rising temple, but when the building is done, there will be no use for the scaffolding.

The idea I shall develop to-day is, that in this world our knowledge is comparatively dim and unsatisfactory, but nevertheless is introductory to grander and more complete vision. This is eminently true in regard to our view of God. We hear so much about God that we conclude that we understand Him. He is represented as having the tenderness of a father, the firmness of a judge, the majesty of a king and the love of a mother. We hear about Him, talk about Him, write about Him. We lisp His name in infancy, and it trembles on the tongue of the dying octogenarian. We think that we know very much about Him. Take the attribute of mercy.

The Bible blossoms all over with that word—mercy. It speaks again and again of the tender mercies of God; of the sure mercies; of the great mercies; of the mercy that endureth forever; of the multitude of His mercies. And yet I know that the views we have of this great being are most indefinite, one-sided, and incomplete. When, at death, the gates shall fly open, and we shall look directly upon Him, how new and surprising! We see upon canvas a picture of the morning. We study the cloud in the sky, the dew upon the grass and the husbandman on the way to the field. Beautiful picture of the morning! But we rise at daybreak and go up on a hill to see for ourselves that which was represented to us. While we look the mountains are transfigured. The burnished gates of Heaven swing open and shut to let past a host of fiery splendors. The clouds are abloom and hang pendent from arbors of alabaster and amethyst. The waters make a pathway of inlaid pearl for the light to walk upon, and there is morning on the sea.

The crags uncover their scarred visage, and there is morning among the mountains. Now you go home, and how tame your picture of the morning seems in contrast! Greater than that shall be the contrast between this Scriptural view of God and that which we shall have when standing face to face. This is a picture of the morning, that will be the morning itself.

Again: My text is true of the Saviour's excellency. By image and sweet rhythm of expression and startling antithesis Christ is set forth—His love, His compassion, His work, His life, His death, His resurrection. We are challenged to measure it, to compute it, to weigh it. In the hour of our broken enthrallment we mount up into high experience of his love, and about until the countenance glows and the blood bounds and the whole nature is exhilarated. "I have found Him!" And yet it is through a glass, darkly. We see not half of that compassionate face. We feel not half the warmth of that loving heart. We wait for death to let us rush into His outspread arms. Then we shall be face to face. Not shadow then, but the fulfilling of all prefigurement. That will be a magnificent unfolding. The rushing out in view of all hidden excellency, the coming again of a long-absent Jesus, to meet us—not in rags and in penury and death, but amidst all light and pomp and outbursting joy such as none but a glorified intelligence could experience. Oh! to gaze full upon the brow that was lacerated, upon the side that was pierced, upon the feet that were nailed; to stand close up in the presence of Him who prayed for us on the mountain, and thought of us by the sea, and agonized for us in the garden, and died for us in horrible crucifixion; to feel Him, to embrace Him, to kiss His hand, to kiss His feet, to run your fingers along the scars of ancient suffering; to say: "This is my Jesus! He gave Himself for me. I shall never leave His presence. I shall forever behold His glory. I shall eternally hear His voice. Lord Jesus, now I see thee! I beheld where the blood started, where the tears coursed, where the face was distorted. I have waited for this hour. I shall never turn by back on Thee. No more looking through imperfect glasses. No more studying Thee in the darkness. But, as long as the throne stands, and this old world, and river flows, and those gates open, and those arches of victory, so long as the great home Heaven's enthroned, so long I shall see Thee—Jesus of my choice; Jesus of my song; Jesus of my triumph—forever and forever—face to face."

The idea of the text is just as true when applied to God's providence. Who has not come to some pass in life thoroughly inexplicable? You say, "What does this mean? What is God going to do with me now? He tells me that all things work together for good. This does not look like it." You continue to study the dispensation, and after awhile guess about what God means. "He means to teach me this. I think he means to teach me that. Perhaps it is to humble my pride. Perhaps it is to make me feel more dependent. Perhaps it is to teach me the uncertainty of life." But after all, it is only a guess—a looking through the glass, darkly. The Bible assures us there shall be a satisfactory unfolding. "What I do thou knowest not now; but thou shalt know hereafter." You shall know why God took to himself that only child. Next door there was a household of seven children. Why not take one from that group, instead of your only one? Why single out the dwelling in which there was only one heart beating responsive to yours? Why did God give you a child at all, if He meant to take it away? Why fill the cup of you gladness brimming, if He meant to dash it down? Why allow all the tendrils of your heart to wind around that object, and then, when every fiber of your life seemed to be interlocked with the child's life, with strong hand to tear you apart, until you fall, bleeding and crushed, your dwelling desolate, your hopes blasted, your heart broken? Do you suppose that God will explain that? Yea. He will make it plainer than any mathematical problem—as plain as that two and two make four. In the light of the throne you will see that it was right—all right. "Just and true are all Thy ways, Thou King of saints!"

Here is a man who can not get on in the world. He always seems to buy at the wrong time, and to sell at the worst disadvantage. He tries this enterprise and fails; that business and is disappointed. The man next door to him has a lucrative trade, but he lacks customers. New prospect opens. His income is increased. But that year his family are sick, and his profits are expended in trying to cure his ailments. He gets a discouraged look. Becomes faithless as to success. Begins to expect disasters. Others wait for something to turn up; he waits for it to turn down. Others, with only half as much education and character, get on twice as well. He sometimes guesses as to what it all means. He says, "Perhaps riches will spoil me. Perhaps poverty is necessary to keep me humble. Perhaps I might, if things were otherwise, be tempted into dissipation." But there is no complete solution of the mystery. He sees through a glass darkly, and must wait for a higher unfolding. Will there be an explanation? Yes; God will take that man in the light of the throne and say, "Child immortal, hear the explanation! You remember the failing of that great enterprise—your misfortune in 1857; your disaster in 1867? This is the explanation." And you will answer, "It is all right."

I see, every day, profound mysteries of Providence. There is no question we ask oftener than Why? There are hundreds of graves in Oak Hill and Greenwood and Laurel Hill that need not be explained. Hospitals for the blind and lame, asylums for the idiotic and insane, almshouses for the destitute, and a world of pain and misfortune that demand more than human solution. Ah! God will clear it all up. In the light that pours from the throne no dark mystery can live. Things now utterly inscrutable will be illumined plainly as though the answer were written on the jasper wall, or sounded in the temple anthem. Bartimeus will thank God that he was blind; and Lazarus that he was covered with sores; and Joseph that he was cast into the pit; and Daniel that he was denned with lions; and Paul that he was humpbacked; and David that he was driven from Jerusalem; and that sewing woman that she could get only a few pence for making a garment; and that invalid that for 20 years he could not lift his head from the pillow; and that widow that she had such hard work to earn bread for her children. You know that in a song different voices carry different parts. The sweet and overwhelming part of the hallelujah of Heaven will not be carried by those who rode in high places, and gave sumptuous entertainments, but pauper children will sing it, beggars will sing it, redeemed hod carriers will sing it, those who were once the offscouring of earth will sing it. The hallelujah will be all the grander for earth's weeping eyes, and aching heads, and exhausted hands, and scourged backs, and martyred agonies.

Again: the thought of the text is just when applied to the enjoyments of the righteous in Heaven. I think we have but little idea of the number of the righteous in Heaven. Infidels say, "Your Heaven will be a very small place compared with the world of the lost; for, according to your teaching, the majority of men will be destroyed." I deny the charge. I suppose that the multitude of the finally lost, as compared with the multitude of the finally saved, will be a handful. I suppose that the few sick people in the hospital to-day, as compared with the hundreds of thousands of well people in the city, would not be smaller than the number of those who shall be cast out in suffering, compared with those who shall have upon them the health of Heaven. For we are to remember that we are living in comparatively the beginning of the Christian dispensation, and that this world is to be populated and redeemed, and that ages of light and love are to flow on. If this be so, the multitudes of the saved will be in vast majority.

Take all the congregations that have Sunday assembled for worship. Put them together and they would make but a small audience compared with the thousands and tens of thousands, and ten thousand times ten thousand, and the hundred and forty and four thousand that shall stand around the throne. Those flashed up to Heaven in martyr fires; those tossed for many years upon the invalid couch; those who fought in the armies of liberty, and rose as they fell; those tumbled from high scaffoldings, or slipped from the mast, or who were washed off into the sea. They came up from Corinth, from Loadicea, from the Red sea bank and the Gennesaret's wave, from Egypt's brickyards and Gideon's threshing floor. These, thousands of years ago, slept the last sleep, and these are this moment having their eyes closed and their limbs stretched out for the sepulcher.

A general expecting an attack from the enemy stands on a hill and looks through a field glass, and sees, in the great distance, multitudes approaching, but has no idea of the numbers. He says: "I can not tell anything about them. I merely know that there are a great number." And so John without attempting to count, says: "A great multitude that no man can number."

We are told that Heaven is a place of happiness, but what do we know about happiness? Happiness in this world is only a half-fledged thing; a flowery path with a serpent hissing across it; a broken pitcher, from which the water has dropped before we could drink it; a thrill of exhilaration, followed by disastrous reactions. To help us understand the joy of Heaven the Bible takes us to a river. We stand on the grassy bank. We see the waters flow on with ceaseless wave. But the filth of the cities is emptied into it; and the banks are torn; and unhealthy exhalations spring up from it; and we fail to get an idea of the River of Life in Heaven.

We get very imperfect ideas of the reunions of Heaven. We think of some festal day on earth, when father and mother were yet living, and the children came home. A good time that! But it had this drawback—all were not there. That brother went off to sea, and never was heard from. That sister—did we not lay her away in the freshness of her young life, never more in this world to look upon her?

Ah! there was a skeleton at the feast; and tears mingled with our laughter on that Christmas day. Not so with Heaven's reunions. It will be an uninterrupted gladness. Many a Christmas parent will look around and find all his children there. "Ah!" he says, "can it be possible that we are all here—life's perils over? The Jordan passed and not one wanting? Why even the prodigal is here. I almost gave him up. How long he despised my counsels! but grace has triumphed. All here! all here! Tell the mighty joy through the city. Let the bells ring, and the angels mention it in their song. Wave it from the top of the walls. All here!"

A WOMAN'S office building is to be erected in St. Louis. The offices will be rented to business women or to people having business with women. It will be the aim to attract dressmakers, milliners, hairdressers, women manicures, chiropodists, newspaper women, typewriters, as well as women physicians and lawyers.

THE placing of a tax upon unmarried persons of a marriageable age began some years ago when a new woman of Boston averred that the only way for men to remove female competition from the labor field was to marry them. Finding that the men would not voluntarily heed the advice given, compulsory measures were advocated. In Virginia, New Jersey and Georgia bills have been introduced into the legislatures levying a tax upon all bachelors.

A TRIAL out of the ordinary is in progress in New York. In 1896 a party of girls were playing on a lumber barge lying in North river. A dog attacked the girls, one of whom became so badly frightened that she ran into the river and was drowned. It was alleged that the captain of the barge was the dog's owner, and upon the assertion that he had set the dog on the children and was by that responsible for the girl's death, an indictment for manslaughter was returned against him. It is upon this indictment that the trial is being conducted.

A GIGANTIC electric light beacon of 90,000,000 candle power is being satisfactorily tested by the United States government at the lighthouse depot at Tompkinsville, S. I. It is powerful enough to throw its light 150 miles. The great light consists of two immense lenses, each nine feet in diameter, between which, in their focus, is placed a 9,000 candle power arc light. The entire mechanism, weighing several tons, floats in a bath of mercury, the friction thus being reduced to such a degree that the whole mass may be readily rotated by the pressing of a finger.

THE convention of the Colonial Dames of America which convenes in Washington in May will bring together some of the greatest social leaders of the country. In addition to the business of the convention there will be a most brilliant series of social functions. The New York dames will entertain their sister dames in royal style at the Arlington. One matter of importance to be considered is whether non-colonial states shall be entitled to vote in the convention. Each member is now limited to one signature a year and that signature must be from a member residing in the same state where the applicant lives.

REVIEW OF TRADE.

Sensational Stories Affect Speculation in Stocks—Industry and Trade, However, Has Not Been Disturbed.

NEW YORK, March 5.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade in its issue Saturday says:

Stories of the most reckless sort, disproved promptly, and many of them before they are told, affected speculation in stocks much last week and at times this week but they have not disturbed the industries and the trade of the country at all.

In grain, cotton, meat products and petroleum markets have been strong, with gradual increases in the demand for manufactured products.

Failures in February have been smaller than in any other month, except three of the previous 52 months, with remarkable decrease in the failures for $100,000 and over, though in number and amount the smaller failures show less change than might have been expected, indicating that in good times or bad a large proportion is due to causes apart from the general condition of business.

The best of evidence of general improvement is the fact that payments through clearing houses for the past week have been 28.0 per cent. larger than in 1892, and outside New York, with its speculative interests, 17.6 per cent. Compared with last year the gain has been 56.2 per cent. for the week, and 49.8 per cent. for February.

Production of pig iron is the greatest ever known, some furnaces having started in the past month, but Bessemer billets are so scarce at Chicago that some works are embarrassed, and heavy purchases at Pittsburgh, including one of 25,000 tons, have stiffened the price so that Bessemer pig and local coke at Chicago are stronger than since November 1, with grey forge unchanged at Pittsburgh. Foundry at the east is slightly lower, basic pig having been offered in a sharp competition at about $10, though southern makers in Alabama and Tennessee, excepting two, have agreed upon a plan of sales through a commission. The demand for finished products covers work far ahead in plates, structural forms, sheets, in pipe since the advance in oil, and in rails, with a Chicago sale for a Canada road to Alaska, but bar is weak with increasing use of steel.

GEN. WM. S. ROSECRANS

At the Point of Death on His Ranch Near San Diego, Cal.

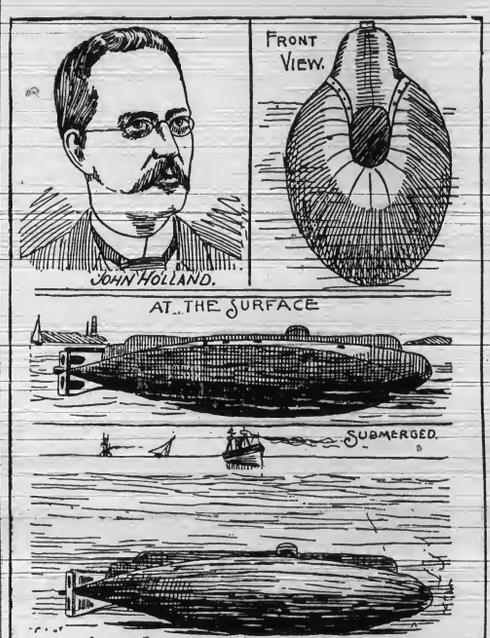
LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 5.—Gen. William Starke Rosecrans is at the point of death at his ranch a few miles from this city. Bishop Montgomery visited the general Friday and performed in part the last rites of the Catholic church.

The attending physicians say the general has a fighting chance for his life.

His son, Carl F. Rosecrans, and his family are at his bedside, and his daughter, Mrs. Toole, and ex-Gov. Toole, of Montana, are within convenient reach.

CYLINDER HEAD

Blew Off Wrecking the Factory—None of the Workmen Injured.



HUNTINGTON, Ind., March 5.—The interior of the Withington handle factory was wrecked Friday by an accident to the machinery. A cylinder head blew off the engine, and the force of the explosion snapped the eight-inch shaft to which the fly wheel was attached. The monster wheel, shaft and other pieces flew in all directions, tearing machinery and building to pieces. About seventy-five men were at work in the building at the time, but strange to say not one was injured. The damage is heavy.

A List of California Insects.

BERKELEY, Cal., March 5.—Assistant Prof. C. W. Woodworth, of the department of entomology at the state university, is preparing a complete list of all the California insects. No state has before essayed the task of collecting a complete list, except New Jersey, where over 6,000 species of insects were classified. Prof. Woodworth believes that California's list will far exceed in numbers that of New Jersey.

The Armstrongs Know Nothing About It.

LONDON, March 5.—In response to a telegraphic inquiry of the manager of the Armstrong-Elswick ship yards, asking whether the reported sale of the Brazilian and Chilian warships to Spain was true the following was received: "We have no authority to speak for any government, but so far as our knowledge goes the report is entirely without foundation and entirely untrue. "ELSWICK."

HOLLAND SUBMARINE BOAT, WHICH CAN PLAY HIDE AND SEEK WITH AN ENEMY.

The Holland is about 60 feet long and cigar-shaped. A single screw, propelled by a gas motor, enables it to make eight knots an hour, either on the surface or under water. Its rudders are on pivots. Under water they take a horizontal position and steer just as well as on the surface.

The ship is steered by a man in a little conning tower filled with plate-glass windows. Air is supplied from reservoirs. Mr. Holland says the boat can remain under water four hours at a time. It can go 70 feet below the surface, where a shell hurled at it could not reach it. The boat carries three dynamite guns, each with a range under water of 800 yards.

Benefit for the Widows and Orphans.

NEW YORK, March 5.—A concert for the benefit of the widows and orphans of the men killed in the Maine disaster, was held in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria Friday night. The attendance was large, many representative society people being present. One of the guests was Marquise Tiexera, a nephew of Dom Pedro, late emperor of Brazil, who gave a check for $100. The receipts amounted to about $2,500.

To Move on Twelve Hours' Notice.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., March 5.—The army and navy officers now representing the United States government at the Bethlehem Iron Co.'s ordinance works here, have received orders from headquarters to be ready on 12 hours' notice for service.

Burley Knocked Out by McCoy.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 5.—Kid McCoy knocked Burley out in the second round at Hot Springs at 1:45 o'clock Friday afternoon. The fighting was fast and furious. The knock-out blow was a left hook on the neck, which floored Burley and he was counted out.

Jumped to His Death.

ISHPEMING, Mich., March 5.—John F. Armstrong, a mining man of considerable note and well known throughout the Lake Superior region and western mining districts, while temporarily insane, brought on by illness, walked to one of the Lake Superior Mining Co.'s shafts Thursday evening about 6 o'clock, and jumped into the opening, falling 444 feet. His body was sent to Marquette Friday morning for interment. He was unmarried.

Tug Underwriter Reported Lost in a Storm.

NEW ORLEANS, March 5.—A special from Norfolk, Va., reports the loss of the powerful tug Underwriter, of Boston, in a storm off Hatteras. The Underwriter was on her way to Havana to work upon the wreck of the battleship Maine.

To Expedite the Work.

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash., March 5.—It is reported here Friday that both contractors now constructing fortifications for the government at Marrowstone Point, and Admiralty Head, have been offered bonuses to expedite the work.

A WORD OF ADVICE

To Those Coming to Alaska or the Klondike Gold Fields.

One thing should be impressed upon every miner, prospector or trader coming to Alaska, to the Klondike, or the Yukon country, and that is the necessity for providing an adequate and proper food supply. Whether procured in the States, in the Dominion, or at the supply stores here or further on, this must be his primary concern. Upon the manner in which the miner has observed or neglected this precaution more than upon any other one thing will his success or failure depend.

These supplies must be healthful and should be concentrated, but the most careful attention in the selection of foods that will keep unimpaired indefinitely under all the conditions which they will have to encounter is imperative. For instance, as bread raised with baking powder must be relied upon for the chief part of every meal, imagine the helplessness of a miner with a can of spoiled baking powder. Buy only the very best flour; it is the cheapest in the end. Experience has shown the Royal Baking Powder to be the most reliable and the trading companies now uniformly supply this brand, as others will not keep in this climate. Be sure that the bacon is sweet, sound and thoroughly cured. These are the absolute necessities upon which all must place a chief reliance, and can under no circumstances be neglected. They may, of course, be supplemented by as many comforts or delicacies as the prospector may be able to pack or desire to pay for.—Alaska Mining Journal.

A book of receipts for all kinds of cookery, which is specially valuable for use upon the trail or in the camp, is published by the Royal Baking Powder Company, of New York. The receipts are thoroughly practical, and the methods are carefully explained, so that the inexperienced may, with its aid, readily prepare everything requisite for a good, wholesome meal, or even dainties if he has the necessary materials. The matter is in compact though durable form, the whole book weighing but two ounces. Under a special arrangement, this book will be sent free to miners or others who may desire it. We would recommend that every one going to the Klondike procure a copy. Address the Royal Baking Powder Co., New York.

A PRETTY INCIDENT.

The Kindness of a Spanish Lady to a Lone Soldier Boy.

A recent traveler in Spain describes a touching scene witnessed at the departure of a regiment for Cuba. All day long there had been heard the measured tread of soldiers marching through the street; all day long gayly bedecked boats had been passing to and from the vessel that was to take them to Havana. The twilight began to deepen when the correspondent saw a "startling and pretty sight"—the impetuous action of a portly, good-looking and well-dressed lady, who noticed a young soldier walking dejectedly along down the pier in his traveling gray, with a knapsack strapped over his shoulders. All the rest of the men had friends, their novias, mothers, relatives, and made the usual gallant effort to look elated and full of hope. This lad had no one, and it might be divined that he was carrying a desolate heart over the seas. The handsome woman burst from her group of friends, took the boy's hand, and said: "My son has already gone to Cuba. He is in the regiment of Andalusia, and sailed two months ago. You may meet him, Pepe G.; take this kiss to him." She leaned and kissed his cheek."

An English boy would have shown awkwarness, but these graceful southerners are never at a loss for a pretty gesture and a prettier word. The boy blushed with pleasure, and still holding the lady's hand, said with quite natural gallantry, without smirk or silly smile: "And may I not take one for myself as well, senora?" The lady reddened, laughed a little nervously, and bent and kissed him again to the frantic applause of soldiers and civilians, while the boy walked on, braced and happy.—Blackwood's Magazine.

He Had Flung Up.

The superior court was in session and the little mountain town was crowded with people. Along about the middle of the day when the judge was worried with a tedious trial, Bill Williams, of the Lick Creek settlement, began galloping up and down the streets on his little red mule, firing off his pistol, whooping like a Sioux, and otherwise dispensing the energy which a liberal supply of corn liquor had inspired.

"Mr. Bailiff," commanded the judge, sternly, "go out and arrest that man and bring him into court."

The bailiff went timidly out of the courtroom and the judge attempted to proceed with business. But Williams' racket outside did not cease. It grew worse and the judge looked over the room for some one else to send out, and observed the bailiff sitting complacently on one of the back seats.

"Look here, Mr. Bailiff, why did you not arrest that disorderly man? Are you not an officer of the court?"

"Y-y-es," replied the bailiff, quaking with fear, "I wuz, but I've done flung up."—Atlanta Journal.

Her Gentle Reminder.

"Grace," he began, "between you and me—"

"Bob," she interrupted, "between you and me there should be nothing."

And what could he do, in face of this, but move up to her end of the sofa?—Ainslee's Magazine.

Geniality.

A quality often found in men whose whole mental and physical organizations are kept vigorous by diligence and temperance, and in simple minded men who love fun and comfort without falling into vice or folly.—Judge.

THE CHAIN OF MONOPOLY.

Productive Energies of the Country Hampered by Capitalists.

Arrangements were perfected in St. Louis a few days ago whereby the interests represented by J. Pierpont Morgan are to get control of the Kansas Pacific railroad. Of course, this latest acquisition will be merged into the gigantic transportation monopoly being formed swiftly and audaciously by Morgan. The Vanderbilts are furnishing the main part of the capital for the huge enterprise, which the genius of Morgan is vitalizing.

Whether or not the acquicition of the Kansas Pacific by the Morgan crowd will be of benefit to the producers of the country is questionable. Under the modern industrial system, production is so dependent upon distribution for profit that the strengthening of the latter factor of wealth-making is fraught with danger. If monopoly of production is not desirable—and all the theory of our legislation is based upon this assumption—then monopoly of distribution is equally undesirable. Monopolization of distribution is much easier of accomplishment than monopolization of production; and yet the strange spectacle is presented of efforts to prevent by legislation combinations between the forces of production, with little or no attention being paid to such a powerful combination as the business genius of Morgan is now forming with the aid of the almost unlimited capital of the Vanderbilts and their foreign associates.

The administration at Washington had power to check, if not permanently arrest, Morgan's transportation monopoly scheme. Without the Union Pacific as a feeder to their system between the Mississippi valley and the Atlantic seaboard, the Morgan crowd could not so easily have carried out their tremendous scheme of monopoly. For this reason the democratic press of the country, led by the Republic, earnestly advised against the main branch of the Union Pacific being sold to the Morgan people, even if by selling it to other interests the government should have lost on its investment in that property. But the administration was pledged to Morgan's scheme by an understanding, and the road was delivered over to him. The purchase of the Kansas Pacific will complete the deal and at the same time add strength to the railroad monopoly.

The productive energies of the country will not feel the burdens of the monopoly at first. The men in control of it are too shrewd to display either their power or intention until they are more thoroughly fortified by legislation. To this feature they may be expected to devote their attention for the next few years. It, therefore, behooves the people to make careful investigation into the character and affiliations of the men they send to congress for the next few years.—St. Louis Republic.

PATRIOT MARK HANNA.

Comes to the Front in the Maine Incident.

It is gratifying to learn from Senator Hanna that the destruction of the battle ship Maine was "purely accidental."

As Hanna has at last broken his silence on this important matter and has relieved the Spanish of all suspicion of treachery, the court of inquiry appointed by the administration should at once cease its labors. What is the use of having a court of inquiry when Hanna knows all the facts and has pronounced his verdict?

Of course Hanna, having discovered that the explosion which wrecked the Maine was "purely accidental," is fully justified in announcing to the anxious nation the further fact that "there will be no war."

"Conservative" newspapers and the "best business interests" of the United States are rejoicing over the words of wisdom spoken by their venerated and immaculate chief. Hanna is quite willing that the American flag shall go down in dishonor; he is quite satisfied to have the battle ship Maine go down in flames and wreck; he is quite content that 250 brave sailors, defenders of this nation, should go down to death—provided stocks do not go down in Wall street.

As the leader of the republican party, as the creator of McKinley, as the great statesman from Ohio, Mark Hanna has spoken.

Some wise and patriotic expression of sentiment has been expected of Hanna. His position demands that he shall speak for the republican party. He has risen to the occasion, and he has not disappointed the expectations of those who know him. In the meantime, two facts remain undoubtedly true: The destruction of the Maine is a great disaster to this country—so is the dictatorship of Mark Hanna.—Chicago Dispatch.

——No public-spirited, patriotic citizen can view the studied refusal of congress to make any adequate appropriation for the national defense without a keen feeling of impatience and indignation bordering on disgust. Since the present administration came into power the trouble seems to be that everything must be subordinated to Dingleyism. The enactment of a tariff law was the first concern of Mr. McKinley and the republican party—the more important and pressing need of financial reform being relegated to the background—and since its enactment there has been a disposition, or, rather, a determination, to sacrifice everything else to give it the appearance of success.—N. Y. Herald.

——In discussing Secretary Gage's financial plan to further enrich the multi-millionaires, Champ Clark says it's a waste of lard to grease a fat hog. But what's to be done so long as the hog has his snout in the lard bucket and insists upon personally attending to the greasing process? — St. Louis Republic.

THE PROTECTION FARCE.

Dingleyism Does Nothing for the Workingman.

The Philadelphia Inquirer is a protectionist paper that does not like the look of things just now. We rather fancy that the Dingley bill isn't showing up to suit it. The current brand of protection is away below the top notch, in its opinion, for it remarks: "We are on a protective basis, but protection to manufacturers cannot be defended—is indeed a farce—unless there is the same protection to laborers. The great object of protection, more important than revenue, is to build up mills and create new enterprises for the purpose of giving employment to our workingmen and paying them respectable wages."

It is unnecessary to say that the Dingley bill is short of protection for laborers. The way the knife has been jabbed into wages since that bill became a law is simply awful. There was a time, however, when a protectionist paper wouldn't think of saying such things as the Inquirer says here. Then, protection was all-pervading: the manufacturer couldn't keep it to himself; he had to share it with his employes. But after the protectionists were found out, a change came over the spirit of the organic dream. Now, labor must be protected, they say; meaning, of course, that Dingley forgot to protect labor. No matter where you turn these days you find the Dingley bill colliding with something that hurts it. Here is the Philadelphia Inquirer, a leading protectionist paper, practically characterizing that bill as a "farce."

This latest experiment with the principle of republican protection bids fair to leave that principle without a leg under it. It was set going with a great flourish of trumpets, an extraordinary session of congress being called in order that there might be no delay in putting it in operation. As the effect of it, or in spite of it, the awful deficit has been gaining ground and is still growing, and wages have been cut to the bone in various industries. No wonder protectionist organs are speculating in theories and offering suggestions as to what should be done to lift the "farce" of republican protection to the grade, at least, of a comedy that makes some pretensions to seriousness and sense!—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

WHAT IS THE MONEY POWER?

All Interests of the People Wait Upon Syndicate Greed.

We have had occasion in another article to refer to the exposure by the Review of Reviews of the bogus autonomy offered the Cubans by the Spaniards. In the same number of that able periodical we find a recognition of the force and influence of the money power.

The Constitution has explained on many occasions what the money power is, but there are, no doubt, many persons who regard the phrase askance, and take it for granted that it is merely a convenient term with which to round out a sentence or a paragraph on the money question. But the money power is a very real thing, and is very rapidly assuming control of the governments of the earth. The Review of Reviews describes this powerful combination as "the great bankers who are neither English, French nor German in their real allegiance, but must be regarded as a law unto themselves and a separate power, gradually but steadily strengthening their grip upon the destiny of nations."

The Review of Reviews calls attention to the fact that it is this huge, mysterious money power that plays the nations against each other like pawns on a chess board; that enables one or the other of these nations to place Japanese or Chinese loans; that decided the issues of the recent Turko-Greek war, gaining a better hold on the revenues both of Turkey and Greece, and clearing millions of profit out of the hideous conflict between Moslem and Christian; that caused the slaughter of the Armenians to go on undisturbed; and that has constantly shown its hand in the affairs of Spain and Cuba.

Its influence has been in the attitude of both Cleveland and McKinley toward the Cuban patriots, an attitude of real enmity in spite of the fact that the people of this country are all but unanimous in favor of Cuban independence. The people are forgotten and even the interests of party are risked by the republican leaders, so keen are they to do the bidding of the money power.

And it is this money power which the people of this country will have to vanquish at the polls or lose their own liberties.—Atlanta Constitution.

—Hanna has changed his policy since his election. He absolutely refuses to give anything away now.—Chicago Dispatch.

—The trouble with the republican party everywhere is the boss system, buttressed on the spoils system. So long as these systems shall endure it will pass the wit of man to "fix up some harmony" which will stay fixed.—Philadelphia Record.

—Secretary Gage appears to be doing the administration's currency orating, but brave old Nelse Dingley still does the tariff prevaricating and does it pretty well, considering. It takes a heart of oak to go on daily contradicting the official deficit figures of the treasury.—Kansas City Times.

—The republican party is uneasy under its burden of bossism, and almost any day now one can see it tug and strain in the effort to free itself. In New York, in Pennsylvania and in other states at this time we have the spectacle of the republican Sindbad trying with all his force to shake off the old man of the sea, whose tightening grip on his neck is becoming unbearable.—Binghamton (N. AN OVERWORKED BRAIN.

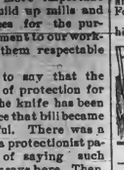
From the Record, Pierceton, Ind.

Determined to rise in his chosen profession as an educator, Ernest Kemper, of Pierceton, Ind., overtaxed himself mentally and physically. He was ambitious, his mind was always on his work. From early morn until late at night he continually pored over his books.



"Burned the candle at both ends."

Few persons, even with the strongest constitutions, can keep up under such a strain.

In addition to his studies, Mr. Kemper was teaching a school some three miles from his home. Finally, the excessive study and the exposure of going to and from school in all kinds of weather undermined his health.

He was taken to his bed with pneumonia and his overworked brain almost collapsed. For several weeks he was seriously ill.

Catarrh had taken root in his system and his mind was in a delicate condition. He was sent to Colorado where he spent three months without receiving any benefit. Then a noted specialist from Cleveland treated him without avail, and then a hospital in Chicago was tried, but all absolutely without benefit. Finally his physician recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and from the first box he began to improve. When he had taken nine boxes he was completely cured. This famous blood and nerve medicine had accomplished what all his former expensive treatment failed to accomplish. Mr. Kemper says his catarrh has entirely left him; he is strong again and weighs nine pounds more than he ever did. He gives the pills the entire credit. He is starting teaching again and feels abundantly able to do the work. To prove that the above is true in every respect, Mr. Kemper makes an affidavit as follows:

Subscribed and sworn to before me this the 10th day of September, 1897.

D. P. WYATT, Notary Public.

We doubt if these pills have an equal in all the range of medicine, for building up a run down and debilitated system.

AN EASY ONE.

Not the Way Husbands Laugh When with Their Wives.

A woman of fashion in a checked dress and a great dahlia-colored velvet hat, accompanied by a man in mostly garments, was tripping along Fifth avenue. She was chatting with marked animation, and he was laughing flatteringly. The attention of the passers-by was attracted by the happy couple.

Behind the pair chanced to walk a lassie—the one yet living at home with mamma—and an older woman, a friend of mamma. The lassie spied the mondaine in checks and dahlia velvet on ahead and puckered her brow, saying: "Oh, I know that woman—have seen her often at Sport—she is dreadfully rich—now I remember, she is Mrs. Morris Blankly."

The friend of mamma was interested. She asked:

"And is the attentive man with Mrs. Blankly her husband?"

The lassie shrugged her shoulders and scorned the very idea.

"Ridiculous," she replied. "You dear, old-fashioned thing, don't you know that women's husbands never laugh in that good-natured way when they are with their wives."—N. Y. Press.

MRS. PINKHAM CONQUERS BACKACHE.

Four Women Who Owe Their Present Happiness to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—When I wrote to you last June, I was not able to do anything. I suffered with backache, headache, bearing-down pains, pains in my lower limbs, and ached all through my body. Menstruations were very painful. I was almost a skeleton. I followed your advice and now am well and fleshy, and able to do all my own housework. I took medicine from a physician for over a year, and it did not do me a particle of good. I would advise all suffering women to write to Mrs. Pinkham. She will answer all letters promptly, and tell them how to cure those aches and pains so common to women.—Mrs. C. L. WINN, Marquez, Texas.

I think it is my duty to write and let you know what your medicine has done for me. For two years I suffered with female weakness, bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and too frequent occurrence of the menses. I was always complaining. My husband urged me to try your Vegetable Compound, and I finally did. I have taken three bottles and it has made me feel like a different woman. I advise every woman that suffers to take your medicine and be cured.—Mrs. GARRETT LICHTY, 612 S. Prince St., Lancaster, Pa.

I had suffered for over two years with backache, headache, dizziness, nervousness, falling and ulceration of the womb, leucorrhœa, and about every ill a woman could have. I had tried doctors, but with no success, and it seemed as though death was the only relief for me. After using five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and four packages of Sanative Wash, I am well. Have had no more pain, womb trouble, backache or headache.—Mrs. CLAUDIA HALPIN, Cream Ridge, N. J.

Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was afflicted with female complaints so that I could hardly walk. My back ached terribly, in fact, I ached all over. Was not able to raise myself up some of the time. I had no appetite and was so nervous that I could hardly sleep. I have taken but two bottles of your Compound and feel like another person, can now eat and sleep to perfection, in fact, am perfectly well.—Mrs. SUE MCCULLOUGH, Adlai, W. Va.

No Need for Grace.

A tiny girl of seven or thereabouts gave a dinner party the other day, for which 12 covers were laid, and that number of small maidens sat down to dine. It was a real little girl's dinner, and the little hostess herself presided, sitting at the head of the table. But she was anxious, in looking forward to it, to do everything as it should be done.

"Mamma," she asked, "shall we say grace?"

"No," said mamma, "it will be a very informal dinner, and I think you need not do that."

That meant one less ceremony to be gone through, and was a relief, but the little lady was anxious to have all her small guests understand it. So, as they were gathered about the table, she explained: "Mamma says that this is such an informal dinner that we need not have grace to-day."—N. Y. Times.

can be driven in or driven out. Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla drives disease out of the blood. Many medicines suppress disease—cover it but don't cure it. Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla cures all diseases originating in impure blood by purifying the blood itself. Foul blood makes a foul body. Make the blood pure and the body will be sound. Through the blood Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla cures eczema, tetter, boils, eruptions, humors, rheumatism, and all scrofulous diseases.

"Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me by my physician as a blood purifier. When I began taking it I had risings or boils all over my body, but one bottle cured me. I consider Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla the best blood medicine made."—BONNER CRAFT, Weston, Miss.

CROP AND STOCK.

At Danville lambs are being engaged at 4½ to 5½ cents.

Gen. Gentry, of Lexington, has received sixteen Kansas jack-rabbits with which he will stock his rabbit farm.

An Owen county stock firm has engaged lambs at 5 cents for first of June delivery, 4½ cents for 20th, and 4 cents for 1st of July.

Make it a point to pick up all the old bones you see lying about in the spring, and bury them near the grape vines, then watch for results.

The prospects for the strawberry crop around Chattanooga, are better than for many years, and it is estimated that 150,000 crates will be marketed.

The latest in fruits is a Maryland peach without a fuzz, and the grower says that in another year he will produce peaches with a skin that can be removed like the peel of an orange.

All efforts to induce the farmers of the dark tobacco belt to reduce the acreage this year have failed and the planters throughout Christian and adjoining counties in Kentucky and Tennessee are now busy making preparations for the largest crop in many years. This will still further reduce the price of tobacco, which is low already, it is claimed. The sales in the Hopkinsville market last year reached 20,000 hogsheads, worth $1,500,000. Tobacco men now predict that this year the sales will reach 30,000 hogsheads.

Latest rumors confirming the reports of a large '98 crop are to the effect that the greatest increase in acreage is to come practically from new territories in tobacco raising, such as Washington county and sections of Blue Grass that have not engaged extensively in raising the "weed" heretofore. Farmers in this section will raise tobacco that never did so before, and the trouble is, will not be experienced enough to properly prepare their crops for market, and as usual will fall out of the business after one year's experience. Experienced raisers in the old Burley counties of Owen, Carroll, Henry, Shelby, Franklin, Bath, Nicholas and the adjoining counties say it is their intention to plant an average crop, as they know it will pay them best.—The Weed.

The government has spent thousands of dollars to discover a remedy for hog cholera, and hundreds of recipes have been published as cures, but so far they have all failed in satisfactory results. The Herald has just heard of recent experiments, however, which demonstrates beyond doubt that a remedy that can be relied upon in every case has been discovered right here at home. Calomel administered dry or in slop, according to the size of the hog and severity of the symptoms, say one-fourth to one teaspoonful to the hog, will cure any case. Mrs. Jane Lacy, of Lacy Creek, had two hogs down with cholera and so bad they could not move. Thinking that one of them was as good as dead anyhow, she put a teaspoonful of calomel on its tongue one afternoon and left it to its fate. Next morning her patient was up and rooting with as much energy as any hog. She then administered the same dose to the other, which was by that time as bad or worse than the first, and it too got well. Mrs. Sebron Trimble, of the same neighborhood, used calomel with the same good results, and states that out of several sick hogs and shoats she did not lose a single one. She also used it for chicken cholera, by mixing it with corn meal dough, and effectually checked it. Mrs. Fred Day, of this place, also saved a shoat which had cholera by promptly administering calomel. These ladies are all reliable, and their experience shows that calomel properly administered is an infallible cure for hog cholera and a preventive and cure for cholera in chickens. The size of the hog and the stage of the disease will indicate the dose to be given, and chickens affected with cholera should be given a teaspoonful to the dozen, mixed in corn meal dough. The Herald is so thoroughly convinced that calomel is the long sought cure for hog cholera that we should like for every farmer in Kentucky to try it when occasion offers. —Hazel Green Herald.

THERE is quite a stir among members of the House over a report that Czar Reed intended to try to rush the rest of the appropriation bills through and force an adjournment of Congress, in order to prevent a declaration of war, or any other action on Cuba. A paper was at once circulated by Republicans among Republicans pledging the signers to vote against adjournment under any circumstances before satisfactory action had been taken on the Cuban question, and enough signers have alrcady been obtainod to block any adjournment scheme, with the aid of the Democratic and Populist votes, which have been promised.

THE indications are that there will be seven or eight entries in the Congressional derby in this district this fall, but it is very doubtful if there are more than two starteas—Berry and Gaunt.

TEXAS says she will furnish soldiers enough to whip Spain if the war is a go.

A Presbyterian of Toronto protests against the use of "Amen" in Presbyterian worship, on the ground that it is an Episcopal idea. Whereupon an Anglican remarks that the Episcopalians must have written the Bible, since the word is used in that book.

Rev. A. A. Fulton, originator of the 2 cents a week plan of giving for foreign missions, says its adoption by all the Christian Endeavor societies would support an army of 500 foreign missionaries and 20,000 native preachers, who would reach 25,000,000 heathens.

Some young men at Knob Noster, Mo., gave a hop and sent invitations to the various preachers in town, two of them attended and when the revelry was at its height they read a chapter in the bible and had prayer. The dance was broken up long before the program was completed.

Letters from the Rev. Geo. O. Barnes show that he is in very straitened circumstances, with a large mortgage debt hanging over his little possessions on Sanibel Island, Fla., says the Interior Journal. His tour last year was a failure financially to him, and he broke down before it was through, and had to go home almost pennyless.

At a church in Scotland where there was a popular call, two candidates offered to preach, of the names of Adam and Low. Mr. Low preached in the morning and took for his text, "Adam, where art thou?" He made a most excellent discourse and the congregation was much edified. In the evening Mr. Adams preached, and took for his text, "Lo, here I am!" The impromptu and his sermon gained him the church.

Cattle brought a fair price at auction on the street Monday.

Capt. John H. Davis has purchased 20,000 pounds of tobacco at prices ranging from 3½ to 10c.

The Owen Circuit Court convened Monday with Judge J. W. Green on the bench. The docket this term is the lightest known for several years. The juries were all sworn in Tuesday and every thing is moving off at a lively gait. There are eighteen divorce suits pending.

The revival at the Baptist church is still in progress, and much interest is being manifested. Pastor Anderson did the preaching until Tuesday night, when Rev. Sid Williams, of Texas, arrived and will conduct the meeting in the future. The church was in good condition and it is generally expected the revival will be of great benefit to the community at large.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16, 1898. NO. 21

THE President has finally caught up with the country.

THERE is a bill pending in the Ohio Legislature which provides for a board of examiners with authority to issue diplomas to the blacksmiths whom they find qualified to shoe horses.

DEMOCRATS are fighters from way back, and when they have no common enemy to pounce upon they fight each other. The Kentucky Legislature is cited as a proof of this assertion.

SENATOR BRONSTON says he is for Senator Goebel for Governor of Kentucky, and that is why he opposed the Goebel election bill, as it was forced upon him (Goebel) a set of political cut-throats who wanted him defeated for the nomination.

THE Providence, Rhode Island, board of trade has sent a circular letter to each Senator and Representative, urging the destruction of the Maine and the probable war with Spain as an argument for the gold legislation asked by the Indianapolis convention of bankers.

THE conduct of Representatives in the last few years, while discharging their duties in the halls of legislation at Frankfort, makes it apparent that it will not be long until a thorough knowledge of the science of the prize ring will be a necessary qualification of candidates for the Legislature.

LYONS, Senator Deboe's private secretary, has been sending garden seeds to Kentucky for distribution, each package being accompanied with a positive injunction that it is to be delivered only to a person friendly to Deboe. Is Lyons seeking to inaugurate a famine among the Republicans who are "agin" the Senator?

THE prison commissioners elected under the new law will not get possession of the State penitentiaries without a fight in the courts with the sinking fund commissioners who will refuse to surrender the institutions to them. The Governor contends that the new law is unconstitutional, and the court of appeals will be called on to pass upon that question.

GOV. BRADLEY'S veto messages are so prosy and uninteresting that during their reading the members of the House have to resort to something of the order unusual to keep them awake, and on one of those occasions, last week, two members entertained the other ninety-eight a la Corbett-Fitzsimmons. Uppercuts, hooks and right and left swing were delivered with such rapidity and astonishing science that business in the House was paralyzed for a time.

THE Pendletonian is the name of the new paper that has succeeded the Guide, at Falmouth, Pendleton county. It is a handsome six column, eight page sheet, and if the copy before us is a sample of what the paper is to be in the future, it will deserve a liberal patronage on the part of the Pendleton county people. J. R. Williams, until recently editor of the Blue Grass Clipper, is the editor of the new paper, and his connection on the rural press covers many years.

No convention to be held this year will be fraught with greater interest or importance than the great gathering of the Democratic hosts and all their bimetallic allies of Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, in Indianapolis on Wednesday and Thursday, April 6th and 7th, at the second annual convention of the League of Bimetallic clubs of the Ohio Valley. Every silver club, whether political, social, labor or class can send delegates to this convention and as W. J. Bryan has positively promised to attend, and George Fred Williams, A. N. Towne, H. F. Bartine, J. K. Jones, Joe Blackburn A. J. Warner, Marion Butler and others are also expected and a railroad rate of one fare for round trip has been given, there is no reason why Kentucky's delegation should not be large and representative. The movement has the cordial endorsement of State Chairman Johnston, Hon. Charles J. Bronston, Judge James P. Tarvin and others who are cooperating with the League to make the meeting an unqualified success. All requests for information from Kentucky should be sent to Ransey Washington, Newport, who will also send blanks for organizing clubs if desired. As only delegates are certain of seats, and each club is entitled to fifty delegates every one should come as delegate if possible.

THE adoption of the Cannon resolution by both Houses of the National Congress without a dissenting vote in either, shows that the hearts of Americans throb in unison when the matter of patriotism is involved. The resolution appropriated fifty millions of dollars for carrying on war with Spain and was passed without discussion, amidst scenes of wild excitement. The people of this country will engage in hot political strifes and parties are sometimes rent by factions, but when it comes to dealing with outsiders the people of the United States are united, and are ready to give their money and lives in the support of the cause the country espouses. Democrats, Republicans, Populists and Coxyites become members of one common band of patriots in time of war.

ANDREW VAN BIBBER, an old soldier of Cincinnati, says that the reason this country is so poorly prepared for a war is because Congress has been for many years, scaling down the naval appropriations and devoting the millions of dollars taken from the navy and coast defenses to paying pensions as an electioneering scheme. He believes in pensioning the men who bore the dangers and hardships of the war, but argues that enough money has been wasted on two classes of pensioners to have rendered the coast defenses impregnable, and at the same time given this country the most powerful navy afloat. The two classes of ex-soldiers upon which he claims politicians have wasted the money with which this country should have provided protection for occasions like the present are, to use his own language:

"First—Those who served only brief terms and were exposed to little or no danger or hardships. This class was amply paid at the time for all they ever did, and it is a very numerous class. Many of them were induced to enlist only by enormous bounties.

"Second—The class, and it is also a very large one, who are above the need of any charity and who are able to support themselves. Both these two classes bleed the nation and thrive on the misapplied taxes taken from our people simply because the law, as it now stands, permits it. If they were excluded from public charity, as they properly should be, it would result in a national saving of probably at least $90,000,000 annually. This amount which is worse than wasted, and which demoralizes the recipients, would place us in the very front rank of nations."

General Weyler assures the Queen of Spain that "until President McKinley publicly apologizes for his Cuban message the Spanish soldiers cannot wear their uniforms with honor.—Chicago Times Herald.

Perhaps Mr. Dingley's protracted silence is due to the fact that he is hunting for another railroad to sell to make up the constantly growing deficit which he averred would be a surplus.—Omaha World-Herald.

Justice Willie, of the Supreme Court of Texas, has just rendered a decision that a debt paid to the State of Texas in Confederate money during the war is void, and does not satisfy the debt.—Chicago Chronicle.

Why should Senator Elkins talk of restoring American shipping? Under the high tariff theory American ships should carry goods but one way, even supposing all European ports to be free to us.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Some of the stronger minded women are disposed to argue that a feather on the hat is no more cruel to the birds than a whole quail on toast, and insist that both are designed to tickle the fancy of weak men.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Senator Frye, of Maine, predicts war with Spain because he believes that it cannot be averted without dishonor to the United States. Mr. Frye is evidently a Senator who is keeping "in touch" with the masses.—Denver Republican.

A nation must be judged by its leaders, and we must be judged now and hereafter by the Hannas, Longs Reeds and others who misrepresent the country that has been so foolish and unfortunate as to put them in power.—N. Y. Evening Journal.

Ex-Senator Hill has no cause to remember with satisfaction some pungencies, pictorial and otherwise, indulged in by newspapers at his expense. But he is far too practical a politician to countenance an effort to suppress them.—Washington Post.

RELIGIOUS ITEMS.

Rev. Samuel Wesley Basham, aged 90, and a pioneer minister of the Christian Church is dead at Caneyville.

The revival at Versailles conducted by Rev. H. A. Northcutt, of Knox county, Mo., closed with 52 conversions.

Rev. David Morton, one of the best known and oldest Methodist ministers in Louisville, died of blood poison, last week.

The Senate at Washington passed the bill appropriating $288,000 for the relief of the Methodist Church, South, of Tennessee.

Bergen, Norway, boasts a paper church large enough to seat 1,000 persons. The building is rendered waterproof by a solution of quick lime, curdled milk and white of eggs.

Mrs. Powers, of Curdsville, Ky., who had been attending a protracted meeting professed santification. She afterwards lost her mind, and some of the woman friends were aboutto mob the minister.

The Christian people are trying hard to raise money to build a large and commodious tabernacle in the Park City. About $1,200 is already subscribed, and the money will doubtless be raised with ease. The Rev. Dwight L. Moody will hold a meeting there in the spring to try to raise the balance of the money.

The revival services are still in progress at the Baptist Church, but will probably close Thursday night. Bro. Williams is doing some earnest preaching, while Bro. Brown's sweet music adds much to its effectiveness. Much good has already been accomplished and doubtless the closing services will be the best of the meeting.—Owen Herald.

At Atlanta the other night Ingersoll delivered to an audience of 600 people his lecture being the well-worn "Liberty of Man, Woman and Child," the subject matter being an attack upon the Christian religion. A week later in the same hall Judge Brown, of Cincinnati lectured on the subject: "Agnosticism Answered; or God Is, Notwithstanding Ingersoll." He spoke to exactly thirty-nine people.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[News]

There will probably be much building in Owenton the coming season.

The smoke house and contents belonging to W. D. Harrison, near Poplar [illegible], was burned last week.

The grand jury closed last Saturday, much to the comfort of the boys, having returned twenty six indictments.

Allie Frazier, who shot Lew Malcomb at New Liberty last June, was fined $475 and costs in the circuit court. Malcomb has filed suit against Frazier for $5000.

Col. W. A Wallen, proprietor of the Owenton Marble works, received the largest stone last week ever seen in Owen county. It is Indiana limestone and weighed 10,000 pounds.

[Herald.]

Farmers are busy burning plant-beds and plowing.

While cutting briers last week, Mr. Thos. Arnold scratched his hand, blood-poison set up and he is now very low.

Hon. W. B. Lindsay, the venerable father of our townsman, Col. William Lindsay, died at his home, near Ghent, last Monday morning after a ten days' illness of pneumonia, aged 79 years.

The handsome new residence of W. P. Watson, at Harmony, was destroyed by fire last Sunday while all the family were absent. Nearly everything was burned, the loss amounting to over $3,000, and there was no insurance.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier]

The streets of Williamstown are in a horribly filthy condition.

The Court of Appeals has decided adversely to the town of Williamstown in the matter of annexing its immediate suburbs.

Will R. Elliston, one of the most devoted members of the Williamstown Baptist church preached his first sermon at the church on last Sunday.

Col. R. T. Dickerson has decided not to purchase any leaf tobacco this year. His profit $20,000 made on his purchase last year was sufficient to entitle him to several years rest. He intimates that he will put in the major part of his time this year in looking for a wife and if he is as successful as his friends hope he will be. he expects to spend a year or two in the old world traveling and sight seeing.

FROM CARROLL COUNTY.

[News]

Blackbirds, by the thousands, herald the opening of spring.

Everybody has about finished sowing, plant beds, and if the season is favorable and plants plentiful "a world" of tobacco will be set this season.

Several days ago the friends of Miss Katie Wayland, of White's Run vicinity, were surprised to learn that she and her cousin, Scott Wayland, had been married for three weeks.

A KENTUCKY authoress, who is engaged selling her book, is creating a sensation in the towns she visits by announcing, publicly, that if a certain number of her books are purchased and the cash paid for them, that she will kiss, publicly, on the main street the man whom the citizens designate as the homliest man in the town. She has not been required to comply with her agreement in many instances, as the citizens of towns she has visited are slow about selecting her victim.

KILLING OF STEPHEN.

One of the Sublimest Deaths of All History.

Like the Martyr Stoned By the Roman Mob, All of Us May See the Glories of Heaven if We But Embrace His Faith—Talmage's Sermon.

The discourse of Dr. Talmage which we send out is a vivid story of martyrdom, and a rapturous view of the world to come. Text, Acts vii., 56-60: "Behold, I see the heavens opened," etc.

Stephen had been preaching a rousing sermon, and the people could not stand it. They resolved to do as men sometimes would like to do in this day, if they dared, with some plain preacher of righteousness—kill him. The only way to silence this man was to knock the breath out of him. So they rushed Stephen out of the gates of the city, and with curse, and whoop, and bellow they brought him to the cliff, as was the custom when they wanted to take away life by stoning. Having brought him to the edge of the cliff they pushed him over. After he had fallen they came and looked down, and seeing that he was not yet dead, they began to drop stones upon him, stone after stone. Amid this horrible rain of missiles, Stephen clambers up on his knees and folds his hands, while the blood drips from his temples to his cheeks, from his cheeks to his garments, from his garments to the ground; and then, looking up, he makes two prayers—one for himself and one for his murderers.

"Lord Jesus, receive my spirit;" that was for himself. "Lord, lay not this sin to their charge;" that was for his assailants. Then, from pain and loss of blood, he swooned away and fell asleep.

I want to show you to-day five pictures—Stephen gazing into Heaven. Stephen looking at Christ. Stephen stoned. Stephen in his dying prayer. Stephen asleep.

First, look at Stephen gazing into Heaven. Before you take a leap you want to know where you are going to land. Before you climb a ladder you want to know to what point the ladder reaches. And it was right that Stephen, within a few moments of Heaven, should be gazing into it. We would all do well to be found in the same posture. There is enough in Heaven to keep us gazing. A man of large wealth may have statuary in the hall, and paintings in the sitting room, and works of art in all parts of the house, but he has the chief pictures in the art gallery and there hour after hour you walk with catalogue and glass and ever-increasing admiration. Well Heaven is the gallery where God has gathered the chief treasures of His realm. The whole universe is His palace. In this lower room where we stop there are many adornments; tessellated floor of amethyst, and on the winding cloud-stairs are stretched out canvases on which commingle azure, and purple, and saffron, and gold. But Heaven is the gallery in which the chief glories are gathered. There are the brightest robes. There are the richest crowns. John says of it: "The kings of the earth shall bring their honor and glory into it." And I see the procession forming, and in the line come all empires, and the stars spring up into an arch for the hosts to march under. The hosts keep step to the music of the earthquake and the pitch of avalanche from the mountains, and the flag they bear is the flame of a consuming world, and all Heaven turns out with harps and trumpets and myriad-voiced acclamation of angelic dominion to welcome them in, and so the kings of the earth bring their honor and glory into it. Do you wonder that good people often stand, like Stephen, looking into Heaven? We have many friends there.

There is not a man in this house today so isolated in life but there is some one in Heaven with whom he once shook hands. As a man gets older, the number of his celestial acquaintances very rapidly multiplies. We have not had one glimpse of them since the night we kissed them good-by, and they went away; but still we stand gazing at Heaven. As when some of our friends go across the sea we stand on the dock, or on the steamtug, and watch them, and after awhile the hulk of the vessel disappears, and then there is only a patch of sail on the sky, and soon that is gone, and they are all out of sight, and yet we stand looking in the same direction; so when our friends go away from us into the future world we keep looking down through the Narrows, and gazing and gazing, as though we expected that they would come out and stand on some cloud, and give us one glimpse of their blissful and transfigured faces.

While you long to join their companionship, and the years and the days go with such tedium that they break your heart, and the viper of pain and sorrow and bereavement keeps gnawing at our vitals, you stand still, like Stephen gazing into Heaven. You wonder if they would recognize your face now, so changed has it been with trouble. You wonder if, amid the myriad delights they have, they care as much for you as they used to when they gave you a helping hand and put their shoulder under your burdens. You wonder if they look any older; and sometimes in the evening-tide, when the house is all quiet, you wonder if you should call them by their first name if they would not answer; and perhaps sometimes you do make the experiment, and when no one but yourself and God are there you distinctly call their names and listen, and sit gazing into Heaven.

Pass on now, and see Stephen looking upon Christ. My text says he saw the Son of Man at the right hand of God. Just how Christ looked in this world, just how He looks in Heaven, we can not say. A writer in the time of Christ says, describing the Saviour's personal appearance, that he had blue eyes and light complexion, and a very graceful structure; but I suppose it was all guesswork. The painters of the different ages have tried to imagine the features of Christ and put them upon canvas; but we will have to wait until with our own eyes we see Him and with our own ears we can hear Him. And yet there is a way of seeing and hearing Him now. I have to tell you that unless you see and hear Christ on earth you will never see and hear Him in Heaven. Look! There He is. Behold the Lamb of God. Can you not see Him? Then pray to God to take the scales off your eyes. Look that way—try to look that way. His voice comes down to you this day—comes down to the blindest, to the deafest soul, saying: "Look unto me, all ye ends of the earth, and be ye saved, for I am God, and there is none else." Proclamation of universal emancipation for all slaves. Proclamation of universal amnesty for all rebels. Belshazzar gathered the Babylonish nobles to his table; George I. entertained the lords of England at a banquet; Napoleon III. welcomed the czar of Russia and the sultan of Turkey to keg to his feast; the emperor of Germany was glad to have our minister, George Bancroft, sit down with him at his table; but tell me, ye who know most of the world's history, what other king ever asked the abandoned and the forlorn and the wretched and the outcast to come and sit beside him?

Oh, wonderful invitation! You can take it to-day, and stand at the head of the dark alley in any city, and say: "Even cut-away coats, your rags, saved, ed lambs at 5 cents on for our etc. delivery, 44 ike that, and pard 4 cents for 1st t you wonder that Make a point looking at Him? I old bones you see him; I must look upon , and e once clouded with sin, but now ant with my pardon. I want to touch hat hand that knocked off my shackles. I want to hear that voice which pronounced my deliverance. You hold Him, little children, for if you or I go three score years and ten, you will see none so fair. Behold Him, ye aged ones, for He only can shine through the failing dimness of your failing eyesight. Behold Him, earth. Behold Him, Heaven. What a moment when all nations of the saved shall gather around Christ! All faces that way. All thrones that way, gazing on Jesus.

Sure the whole earth would love Him, too.

I pass on and look at Stephen stoned. The world has always wanted to get rid of good men. They very life is an assault upon wickedness. Out with Stephen through the gates of the city. Down with him over the precipices. Let every man come up and drop a stone upon his head. But these men did not so much kill Stephen as they killed themselves. Every stone rebounded upon them. While these murderers were transfixed by the scorne of all good men, Stephen lives in the admiration of all Christendom. Stephen stoned, but Stephen alive. So all good men must be pelted. All who will live Godly in Christ Jesus, must suffer persecution. It is no eulogy of a man to say that everybody likes him. Show me any one who is doing all his duty to state or church and I will show you men who utterly abhor him.

If all men speak well of you it is because you are either a laggard or a dolt. If a steamer makes rapid progress through the waves the water will boil and foam all around it. Brave soldiers of Jesus Christ will tear the earthwork and the pitch of avalanche from the mountains, and the flag they bear is the flame of a consuming world, and all Heaven turns out with harps and trumpets and myriad-voiced acclamation of angelic dominion to welcome them in, and so the kings of the earth bring their honor and glory into it. Do you wonder that good people often stand, like Stephen, looking into Heaven? We have many friends there.

A writer in the time of Christ says, describing the Saviour's personal appearance, that he had blue eyes and light complexion, and a very graceful structure; but I suppose it was your town or city. There is no doubt but that your obsequies will be decent and respectful, and you will be able to pillow your head under the maple, or the Norway spruce, or the cypress, or the blossoming fir; but this spirit about which Stephen prayed, what direction will that take? What guide will escort it? What gate will open to receive it? What cloud will be cleft for its pathway? After it has got beyond the light of our sun, will there be torches lighted for it the rest of the way? Will the soul have to travel through long deserts before it reaches the good land? If we should lose our pathway, will there be a castle at whose gate we may ask the way to the city? Oh, this mysterious spirit within us! A ca two wings, but it is in a cage ful to it is locked fast to keep it; but no door of this cage open the least and that soul is off. Eagle's wing could not catch it. The lightnings are not swift enough to take up with it. When the soul leaves the body it takes 50 worlds at a bound. And have I no anxiety about it? Have you no anxiety about it?

I do not care what you do with my body when my soul is gone, or whether you believe in cremation or inhumation. I shall sleep just as well in a wrapping of sackcloth as in satin lined with eagles down. But my soul—before this day passes, I will find out where it will land. Thank God for the intimation of my text, that when we die Jesus takes us. That answers all questions for me. What though there were massive bars between here and the city of light, Jesus could remove them. What though there were Saharas of darkness, Jesus could illume them. What though I get weary on the way, Christ could lift me on His omnipotent shoulder. What though there were chasms to cross, His hand could transport me. Then let Stephen's prayer be my dying litany: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." It may be that in that hour we will be too feeble to say a long prayer. It may be in that hour we will not be able to say the Lord's Prayer, for it has seven petitions. Perhaps we may be too feeble even to say the infant prayer our mothers taught us, which John Quincy Adams, 70 years of age, said every night when he put his head upon his pillow:

"Now I lay me down to sleep.
I pray the Lord my soul to keep.

We may be too feeble to employ either of these familiar forms; but this prayer of Stephen is so short, is so concise, is so earnest, is so comprehensive, we surely will be able to say that: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit." Oh, if that prayer is answered, how sweet it will be to die! This world is clever enough to us. Perhaps it has treated us a great deal better than we deserve to be treated; but if on the dying pillow there should break the light of that better world, we shall have no more regret about leaving a small, dark, damp house for one large, beautiful, capacious. That dying minister in Philadelphia, some years ago, beautifully depicted it, when in his last moment he threw up his hands and cried out: "I move into that light!"

Pass on now and I will show you one more picture, and that is Stephen asleep. With a pathos and simplicity peculiar to the Scriptures, the text says of Stephen: "He fell asleep." "Oh," you say, "what a place that was to sleep! A hard rock under him, the blood streaming, the mob howling. What a place it was to sleep!" And yet my text takes that symbol of slumber to describe his departure. So sweet was it, so contented was it, so peaceful was it, that it was the very laborious life; his chief work had been care for the poor. How many loaves of bread he distributed, how many hare feet he has saudaled, how many cots of sickness and distress he blessed with ministries of kindness and love, I do not know, but from the way he lived, and the way he preached, and the way he died, I know he was a laborious Christian. But that is all over now. He has pressed the cup to the last fainting lip. He has taken the last insult from his enemies. The last stone to whose crushing weight he is susceptible has been hurled. Stephen is dead! The disciples come. They take him up. They wash away the blood from the wounds. They straighten out the bruised limbs. They brush back the tangled hair from the brow, and then they pass around to look upon the calm countenance of him who had lived for the poor and died for the truth. Stephen asleep!

I have seen the sea driven with the hurricane until the tangled foam caught in the rigging, and wave rising above wave seemed as if about to storm the heavens, and then I have seen the tempest drop, and the waves crouch, and everything become smooth and burnished as though a camping place for the glories of Heaven. So I have seen a man, whose life has been tossed and driven, coming down at last to an infinite calm, in which there was the hush of Heaven's lullaby.

Stephen asleep! I saw such a one. He fought all his days against poverty and against abuse. They traduced his name. They rattled at the door when he was dying, with duns for debts he could not pay; yet the peace of God brooded over his pillow, and while the world faded, Heaven dawned, and the deepening twilight of earth's night was only the opening twilight of Heaven's morn. Not a sigh. Not a tear. Not a struggle. Hush! Stephen asleep!

I have not had the faculty to tell the weather. I can never tell by the setting of the sun whether there will be a rough night or not. I can not tell by the blowing of the wind whether it will be fair weather or foul on the morrow. But I can prophesy, and I will prophesy what weather it will be when you, the Christian, come to die. You may have it very rough now. It may be this week, one annoyance the next another annoyance. It may be this year one bereavement, the next year another bereavement. Before this year has passed you may have to beg for bread, or ask for a scuttle of coal or a pair of shoes; but at last the Christ will come in and darkness will go out.

IMPOVERISHES THE FARMER.

What the Gold Standard Does for the Producer.

While the cotton manufacturers of New England are facing hard times in spite of the protective tariff, the farmers of New York are in the same condition.

There is something radically wrong with the economic conditions of the country when all the branches of industry are suffering. The report of the New York commissioner of labor statistics contains a sad story as to the farmers of the Empire state.

In summing up this matter the commissioner says: "The farming industry in our state is in a most deplorable condition, with exceedingly poor prospects of recovery or improvement in the immediate future.

"Summed up, the correspondence shows that, as a general rule, no interest has been realized on farm investments during the years 1894, 1895 and 1896; that where there were no mortgages requiring interest payments, a farmer was considered almost miraculously fortunate if his income from products could be made to pay the cost of production.

"Even that degree of success was only attainable by stinted allowances for household expenses and by starving the soil; and when the farmer was hampered by mortgage indebtedness he ran behind and incurred the penalty of foreclosure."

Under a healthy condition of business the New York farmers ought to be prosperous. They have the advantages of an adjacent market, reasonably low freight rates, excellent soil, cheap, labor-saving machinery, low wages and the great demands of the largest city in the United States to supply.

Why should the farmers of New York be poor? Why should the nonproducers of the metropolis be rich? Why should the men who raise the food products he unable to pay expenses? Why is it that the value of farm lands has fallen from 50 to 75 per cent?

These questions have been answered by the royal commission on agriculture of Great Britain. The gold standard has impoverished the farmer; it is impoverishing the manufacturer, and it is beneficial to no one on the face of the globe except the men who deal in money.—Chicago Dispatch.

THIS IS PROSPERITY.

A Chance for the People to Learn a Lesson.

This is prosperity. Every corporation paper in the country is shouting prosperity and claiming that it is here. Stocks and bonds are up. Wheat is a dollar a bushel. This certainly is prosperity.

Now that prosperity is here, stand off and look at it. This is just the kind of prosperity that the contributors to the republican campaign corruption fund paid for, and they are getting their money back with interest. As a matter of fact, there are some signs that times are not quite so hard for common people this winter as those of a year ago. There are a few more men at work. True, wages have been reduced, and millions are yet une... The wheat boom fund has probably slightly increased. We are enjoying a boom. In a short time orators will be talking about the "good times of 1898."

Millions fondly believed that "prosperity" would bring to them increased wages and added comforts of life. They expected a demand for labor in excess of its supply. Such a time will never come under the present industrial system. These are the best times the century will witness. They will be followed by another panic and another period of depression. This is a dismal prediction, but it is as sure of fulfillment as the hazard that day will follow night. The factories are not running at their full capacity. They cannot. There is no market for their output. When the bubble of speculation is pricked, as it soon will be, thousands of feeble concerns will go down in the crash and be swallowed up by the trusts, syndicates and combines. This is the iron law of our development. The day of the small manufacturer and the small capitalist is ended.

"Prosperity" may last a few months, a year or perhaps a little longer. Study its characteristics closely. You will never fully realize that it was here until the reaction comes with its years of misery, poverty and violence. "Hard times" are gone. "Prosperity" is here. How do you like your share?—The New York Times.

Sectional Only.

We hear of western producers being prosperous now with great crops and fairer prices. Wait. If prices are better it will only require that much longer for our present tariff system, transportation charges and financial policy to gather in the wealth produced in the west, north and south. History tells us that in former ages of the world Venice and Genoa held such absolute monopoly on the commerce of Europe and India that "No one in western Europe could season a dish of meat or spice a cup of wine without adding something to the proofs of one of those cities." No American producer to-day can season a dish of meat or spice a cup of wine, or furnish to Europe a dish of meat to be seasoned or a cup of wine to be spiced, "without adding something to the profits of one of those cities" on our North Atlantic seaboard. Let the opposition stand together in correcting abuses and righting wrongs, remembering the glories of ancient Rome:

Then none was for a party;
Then all were for a state;
Then the great men helped the poor,
And the poor man loved the great.

—S. S. King's Produce Consumer.

—The money repaid to the government for its loan to the Kansas Pacific railroad will of course be counted in as Dingley tariff revenue, but it is the sort of an income that a needy man gets by selling his furniture.—Kansas City Times.

BLUNDERING ADMINISTRATION.

Subject to the Sway of Gold Bug Financiers.

Nobody has ever found out why the Maine was sent to Havana; but the sending of the vessel to the harbor was simply an incident, just as her destruction was an incident. These events have nothing whatever to do with the duty and responsibility that have been pressing on the people of the country since the Cuban patriots renewed their struggle for liberty.

The revolutionists had the example of the American people before them, and they have carried on the war even more successfully than the American patriots did during the first two or three years of their struggle. The Cubans have suffered as much and made fa... many sacrifices as the American people did.

The fact that our government has held aloof so long is a disgrace to humanity, and although it wilfully misrepresents the purpose and desire of the people, yet its attitude of indifference—indifference marked by a desire to aid Spain covertly—should be a source of humiliation to every patriotic American. Two years ago it had but to raise its hand to bring the struggle to a close, leaving Cuba free and independent. To-day it is pursuing a policy which is evidently intended to give Spain every opportunity to place her navy and her army on a war footing.

The administration cries "peace," and yet its agents are running hither and yonder preparing for war, and these preparations are in the nature of a warning to Spain to get ready for war. This she is doing by the purchase of warships, no doubt with money borrowed from the gold syndicate now managing American affairs.

Intervention two years ago would have saved thousands of lives and millions of property and treasure. Prompt intervention six months ago would have found Spain unprepared, and the whole affair would have been brought to a close without so much as creating a disturbance. But the high financiers willed it otherwise, and we now behold the result in Spain's rapid preparations for the war which the administration threatens, though it cries "peace."—Atlanta Constitution.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

—A revival of democratic enthusiasm follows wherever Mr. Bryan goes.—Atlanta Constitution.

—An administration newspaper says that when the time comes "McKinley will counter on Spain." Bargain counter?—Chicago Dispatch.

—Struggle as McKinleyism may, republicanism is doomed. War or no war, democracy will sweep the country this fall.—Chicago Chronicle.

—The apologists for the Dingley bill are having a hard time of it—so hard that they are compelled, as one was the other day, to add the internal revenue and land sales to the customs as the "revenue from the Dingley bill."—N. Y. World.

—This was the year in which President McKinley's administration ought to make a record, if ever. The scepter of power will pass out of the hands of his party with the congressional elections this fall, and then he will have a hostile congress to obstruct his plans. And this first year has been a year of lost opportunities.—Boston Post.

—McKinley's administration close its first full year. It has been a year which will shed no luster upon the republican party. In full and complete control of all the departments of the government, it is only recording a solemn fact known to all to say that the people are disappointed, and that they have reason to be.—Atlanta Journal.

—Export trade is what the nation needs more than a home market secured by paternalistic protection. Our resources and manufacturing capabilities are such that we can successfully hold the home market and make a good stand in foreign markets through open competition. This was fully demonstrated by the progress made under the last previous tariff.—Manchester (N. H.) Union.

—How much longer can the workingmen of New England or any other part of the country be deluded with the notion that a protective tariff is essential for prosperity, when they see, in less than six months after the passage of the Dingley law, 150,000 men striking against a reduction of wages in the industry supposed to have the most scientific tariff schedule of all?—Utica (N. Y.) Observer.

—There seems to be no doubt that many American citizens have succeeded in convincing themselves that war with Spain is a certainty, and this in spite of the fact that Mark Hanna distinctly said the other day there would be no war. The logical inference is, therefore, that there are American citizens who do not know who is running this nation.—Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

—Senator Mark Hanna is displaying unwonted versatility nowadays. He tells the newspaper interviewers that everything is lovely in Washington, and that there is no thought of war. At the same time, in private conversation, he is authoritatively quoted as saying that he sees no escape from hostilities. It would be interesting to know whom Hanna thinks he is fooling.—Boston Herald (Ind.).

—The Dingley tariff doubled the duty on hay, making it four dollars per ton, which is prohibitive. This leaves the field open for monopoly, and accordingly a trust, having its headquarters at Chicago and embracing the leading buyers and shippers in the middle west, has just been organized. The consolidation is known as the American Hay company and it is capitalized at $45,000,000, taking rank among the big trusts of the land. It will control the buying and selling prices, so that the farmers as well as the consumers within the scope of the operations of the combine will have occasion to appreciate the beauties of Dingleyism.—Illinois State Register.

THE PATERNAL CITY.

Many Ways in Which Life May Be Made More Healthful.

That the city of the future is to be a very different thing from the city of the present is as certain as that the human race is to advance. Nobody believes that our extravagant expenditures for light, for instance, are to be kept up, because a time is coming when the people will demand the same sort and amount of service for themselves in a mass as for themselves individually.

Nobody believes that the operations of the board of health will be so feeble as to allow barking dogs, braying donkeys, crowing cocks, jangling bells, shrieking steam whistles and smoking chimneys to be harbored in the quarters of a dense population, or watered milk to be sold, as it now is, or things intended to be used for food to be put on the sidewalks, exposed to the dust and filth of the streets, and the friendly attentions of every passing dog. Nobody believes that parts of things will be openly sold that only measures a pint, or liquids sold in bottles that have a big hump underneath that will crowd out a couple of gills, or coal be sold as a ton that weighs 1,500 pounds.

Nobody believes that in 50 years from now a whole street will have to be torn up whenever a drain is to be repaired, or water is to be put into a house, or a gas or sewer connection is to be made, or telephone wires to be introduced. Nobody believes that in 50 years hundreds of thousands of people will be living as families in single rooms, in our big cities, some of the rooms unlighted and none of them sufficiently ventilated. When it is shown, as it is by statisticians, that the death rate among people in the tenements is over 163 to the 1,000, as compared with a rate of less than 5½ in the 1,000 among the people who live in clean houses, it becomes a question of immediate importance whether the city is doing its duty by not at once closing these moral and political as well as social and material pest holes.

Americans are slow to accept any more government than is necessary, but once it is resolved upon, no people are more obedient to it. That many of the evils under which the cities suffer are capable of amending, and at slight expense, is clear enough. When it is realized that the neglect of obvious duty has a deterrent effect upon right, as in the case of the grocer or butcher and milk merchant, who are allowed to cheat or to offer soiled and tainted food; when it is shown that it has an ill effect upon health to confine children in overcrowded schoolrooms and unventilated factories; when it is shown that it operates against life itself to tolerate the tenement system and the sweating system, a free people will insist upon the strictest regulation of those things by law.

Reform is coming in many ways. Our principal streets are no longer made hideous with ragged poles and overhead wires. In a few years more we shall have the Paris system of tunnels beneath the streets for the accommodation of sewers, water pipes, steam pipes, gas pipes, telegraph, telephone and electric wires, so that repairs and extensions can be made without stopping travel or permanently marring the smoothness and neatness of streets. These are but examples and indications of many reforms that will soon be compulsory in all our American cities.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Marie Antoinette.

Marie Antoinette was the first person who broke the absurd fashion of dressing infant boys as droll miniatures of their fathers. She attired the unfortunate dauphin in a simple blue jacket and trousers, for which she was reviled as if little bag-wigs and tiny cocked hats and all the absurd paraphernalia of full dress had been points of moral obligation. Even at the juvenile parties given by George III. and Queen Charlotte, the little boys were frequently dressed after the models of their father's court costumes, with the powdered side curls, single-breasted coats, knee breeches and shoe buckles. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

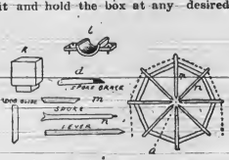
STORING VEHICLES.

How to Construct a Windlass of an Improved Pattern.



In the making of plans for a windlass to elevate box from wagons or sleighs, the first requisite is a building of proper dimensions and construction to make it practicable. Fig. 1 portrays one 24 by 20 feet, and allows for corn crib full length on one side. It requires three sills and two plates, three cross beams, nine posts eight feet long and double doors at each end seven feet wide; comfortable space is left to pass between two wagons side by side. A post set in the ground at center or where doors meet should be about eight or ten inches high, with groove at both sides to receive the end of board placed directly under the edge of door, which serves to keep out chickens or vermin. A groove also across the top of said post receives the door lock. A rope fastened to upper door frame and also to beam will keep the door from swinging too far back, so as not to damage hinges; foot of doors should be eight or ten inches from the ground in case of snow.

Now procure a straight stick or log (a) eight inches in diameter, to reach from first across middle beam, and placed on bearings mortised into beams as at k and braced. Eight spokes (f) mortised through near one end of log (a) and braced form the wheel (h). Spokes are notched at one end to receive chain (g), to make revolve. Notches are made near the bearing into which a dog (d) falls and serves to lock it and hold the box at any desired height. Holes are bored through windlass directly above ends of box through which runs a rope (b b) and falls down and is made forked; one end goes through a strip (e e) one by four inches, which is dovetailed at opposite end over which a loop end of forked rope passes. When strip is placed underneath the wagon box a tilting lever (e) hangs down with holes through it, which is placed on a spike driven into beam and holds aloft the dog while lowering the box. One end of dog is anchored to cross beam and passes through a slot in a strip one by three inches, which serves to guide it to place. Two pieces, one by five inches, are nailed securely to cross beam with large holes through them and placed directly under ends of spoke and serve to guide chain to place. In Fig. 1, h shows floor space overhead to store vehicles; i is space through which they are elevated. The best style of chain is such as is used on endless chain pumps. This also serves as a handy device to elevate a beef when one has occasion to butcher. The windlass should be on opposite side from crib.—R. Logan, in Farm and Home.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

Keep the chickens and their quarters clean.

Having high perches often causes bumble foot.

Supply raw bone, either crushed or in the form of meal.

With laying hens wheat may be the principal grain food.

So far as is possible the food should be varied every few days.

Push the hatching. The early hatched pullets make the best winter layers.

Tobacco stems or leaves placed in the nests will aid in keeping them free from vermin.

Observe which hens are the best layers and breed from them. Such traits are hereditary.

With large breeds one cock to every 12 hens is sufficient; with small breeds one to every 18 hens.

Give the fowls all the range and exercise that the weather will permit from this time on until spring.

When eggs from a distance are received for hatching, let them remain 24 hours before putting them under the hen.

Fowls that are closely confined and are fed largely on highly concentrated food, are often affected with cramp of the legs.

In selecting breeding turkeys, as a rule, broad-breasted, full breasted and large-boned fowls will give the best results.—St. Louis Republic.

Guessing Weights of Cattle.

To guess closely upon weights of cattle requires much the same talent that is required for a successful feeder of animals. It must be born with the man and grow with his growth, and be kept at its best by frequent exercise. It requires an eye quick to notice any variation in condition. The feeder needs to be all the time watching for such changes, as well as for any symptoms of illness. They must take his eye at a glance, and almost without thought upon his part, even as a discord strikes the ear of the musician, and he must be sufficiently acquainted with his business to know, or quickly detect, both the cause and the remedy, as well as to detect the fault.—American Cultivator.

THE POULTRY INDUSTRY.

It Gives Quick Returns in Winter as Well as in Summer.

Let every farmer carefully estimate the cost of the things he produces in the form of labor. He need not put down the sums he expends out of his pocket, but simply endeavor to place a value upon the labor he himself bestows on every department of the farm and for each crop. If he is a "business man," that is, if he knows what he is doing by keeping an account of his operations, as every man who is in business does, or should do, he will have no difficulty in classifying the receipts and expenses, and especially the cost of labor. Next let him estimate the space or number of acres of land he has given every one of the crops, as well as the plowing, harrowing, seeding, cultivating, harvesting, hauling, shipping, etc., and charge interest on the capital invested. After he has done this let him take up poultry, place a value upon the meat and eggs, the cost of the food, and the labor bestowed—the labor particularly—and then compare the result from the poultry with those from the larger stock and regular crops. He will find that if he had kept more hens, and given them only one-fourth of the care and labor bestowed on other sources of revenue on the farm, he would have had a larger balance in his favor. By looking over the statistics he will find that poultry produces more than sheep, and that our enormous wheat crop is not much greater in value, annually, than the products of fowls. With markets always ready and with cash returns every month in the year for poultry and eggs, the farmer uses the most profitable sources of income as a "side business," and expends his energies over large areas, being fortunate if he can clear as much as $10 or $20 an acre a year, while right under his eyes his fowls, on a few rods or acres, give him quick returns both summer and winter, which he does not recognize as belonging to "farming," but which source of revenue he could utilize to the best advantage if he would give poultry his attention as a business.—Farm and Fireside.

WINTER BEE DISEASE.

How to Manage Colonies Which May Be Afflicted with It.

One of the causes of dysentery, as the winter bee disease is usually termed, is disturbing them in cold weather. In fact, it is often the case that disturbing them in very cold weather is the most disastrous thing that could be done, as it causes dysentery to appear among the bees in its worst form. For this reason no one should be allowed to go among the hives in very cold weather any more than is strictly necessary to properly look after them. Nor should stock be allowed to run among them during the winter for fear of disturbing them.

The disease may also appear when the bees are closely confined for a long time, or when they are compelled to live upon impure honey. Many good bee keepers claim that honey from cider mills, decayed fruit and honey dew is not healthy food.

If the winter is an open one, so that the bees can fly out often, they will live on this kind of honey without injury. But if the weather is so cold and stormy that the bees are kept closely confined, the poor food tells, and dysentery is almost certain to make its appearance among them; and a colony badly afflicted will often be hard to cure.

One of the best things that can be done—in fact about the only thing that will be of any benefit—is to give them a purifying flight. Let them have a chance for a flight the first bright warm day that comes.

Feeding candy is, to some extent, beneficial. But the best and safest plan is to prevent. Give good winter food, good sealed honey. That gathered during the first of the season is always best. Bees will bear confinement on good honey and keep healthy much longer than on bad. It is easier to prevent the disease by supplying healthy conditions than to cure after the disease once makes its appearance.—St. Louis Republic.

VALUABLE ADDITION.

Barn Sheds That Afford Shelter to Poultry and Stock.

The cut shows an addition to the side of a barn covering a side door and affording a house for poultry and an open shed for the poultry to scratch in during the winter. It affords a chance also for cows to find protection during showers on summer nights when they are confined in the stable yard. If the horse stalls are adjacent to the side door, the horse manure can be thrown out into this open shed for the hens to scratch over, a little grain being thrown into it. The barnyard fence can be made fowl-tight as well as cow-tight, thus obviating the necessity for a separate poultry yard.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Prevention of Swarms.

L. A. Aspinwall found this year that his hives were too small to prevent swarming by means of perforated dummies, and expects next year to use hives a third larger. In four cases he secured the return of the swarm, queen and all, by vigorously smoking at the entrance as soon as the swarm began to issue. He thinks the swarm returned because they could not scent the queen.—Review.

Innocent Children Sacrificed.

The "slaughter of the innocents" continues, until it is estimated that fully one-fourth of the human race die before attaining their fifth birthday, owing in great measure to our rigorous and changeable climate. And there are thousands of adults, even in this land of plenty, that stomach, liver and bowel complaints are reducing to confirmed invalidism, whom Hostetter's Stomach Bitters would promptly relieve and invigorate. Malaria, rheumatism and kidney trouble yield to the Bitters.

America's Greatest Medicine

The following is a characteristic Hood's Sarsaparilla testimonial. Facts like these have made Hood's Sarsaparilla America's Greatest Medicine and endeared it to thousands of homes scattered all over this broad land.

"We like to tell what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for us. Our four children had diphtheria. From the very first our little boy Ralph, then seven years old, was very sick and for several days it seemed as if he would never be any better. After awhile he began to improve and in a few weeks was able to go out, although weak and miserable. Then, gradually gave out. The physicians told us it was paralysis, which sometimes follows an attack of diphtheria. We did everything for him, but he grew worse until he was in a pitiful condition. He suffered terribly at night and complained continually of his head, and in what little sleep he was able to get, moaned unceasingly. He lost all control of the muscles of his body and limbs. He had no appetite and complained of feeling sick at his stomach all the time. After we had tried many different remedies and had about given up all hope we commenced giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla. In a short time he ceased to complain, his appetite improved and at the end of three months he was able to attend school a part of the time. Now he is well and quite a strong and rugged boy. Youare at liberty to use this testimonial if you desire, as we feel we cannot say too much in praise of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a blood purifier and building up medicine." MRS. R. E. ANDERSON, Cumberland, Maine.

Economy is also a characteristic of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Every bottle contains 100 Doses, and hence there is a solid fact concisely stated in the familiar line, 100 Doses One Dollar.

A GRAVEYARD COLLOQUY.

Between Two Black Men on a Dark Night.

At rare intervals the moon peeped through the billows of a sea of fleecy clouds and cast sickly beams across the path of a form which was walking slowly and steadily in a country graveyard. The figure stole furtive glances about him as he crept to the grave of a man who had died on the gallows on Friday. Just as the clock was tolling the midnight hour the form fell prostrate on the grave, uttering not a sound. Almost in an instant the figure arose. Taking a knife from his pocket, he made a single, rapid cut, and turned to leave the place. A moonbeam revealed a look of ghoulish glee on his countenance.

"Halt!"

The figure stopped.

"Who goes there?"

"Jist a poah niggah."

The figures met and the lantern's flash discloses the identity of the men.

"Sam Johnsing!"

"Hiram Jackson!"

"Whatcher doin' heah, Hiram Jackson? Lookin 'fo' ghostes?"

"Naw. What yo' doin' heah yo'sef?"

"Come after dis rabbit's lef' hin' foot. Kotched him at 12 o'clock on a dahk night, on de grave ob a man hung on Friday. G'way, niggah! Wouldn't take a thousand dollahs fo' it. Yo' niggahs won't be in it wid me at cake-walks an' shootin' craps."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

WORKING WOMEN WHO SUFFER.

Should Get Mrs. Pinkham's Advice—The Whole Truth can be Told to her Because she is a Woman.

The suffering and pain endured by some working women is almost past belief. Here is a letter from one of the multitude of women who have been restored to health and usefulness by Mrs. Pinkham's advice and medicine:

DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel as though your advice had lifted me from the grave. I must have been very near it. I suffered terribly at time of menstruation, was constantly troubled with cold hands and feet, was extremely nervous, could not sleep well, was troubled with frightened dreams, had heart trouble and a feeling as though my breath was going to stop, also had leucorrhœa. I tried to get help but all remedies failed, until I wrote to you. I cannot thank you enough for your kind advice, and I wish to tell every one the great good your remedies have done me.—TAMMA C. HOOVER, Wolfsville, Md.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a quarter of a century has been helping women to be strong and well.

The following statement from Miss H. PATTERSON, of 2531 Lawrence St., Philadelphia, Pa., should interest all working women who are troubled with female complaints:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I must write and tell what your medicine has done for me. I am a working girl and have to stay at my work all day. I suffered greatly with bearing-down pains and backache. I was advised by a friend to try your Vegetable Compound. I did so and can say positively I am cured. I have recommended your medicine to all my lady friends, and would advise any of my sex suffering from female weakness to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound a trial, for I know it will cure."

Mrs. Pinkham invites all women troubled about their health to write to her at Lynn, Mass., and secure her advice free of all charge. All such letters are seen and answered by women only.

Walton.

March 14.—On last Wednesday Judge Botts' court was attended by a large crowd, no considerable part of which was attracted by curiosity, to witness the first effort of a home grown young attorney, Mr. F. E. Curley, in a contest with the veteran C. Y. Dyas. Mr. Curley's client endeavored to swear Judge Botts off the bench, alleging in his affidavit that the Judge was hostile either to himself or some member of his family. This was earnestly and ably resisted by Dyas, who contended that the affidavit must allege a specific cause before the Judge, who was inclined to vacate, could be substituted by any other person. The difficulty was obviated by Dyas demanding a jury, who after hearing the evidence returned a verdict for his client.

"Klondike" (a name given by Mr. Thos. Miller, of Florida), a locality in Kenton county, just over the Boone line on the Lexington pike about half a mile from the corporation of Walton, was the scene on last Saturday of one of those disturbances too common in places where liquor is sold to the public. The noisy and outrageous language was too plainly heard by residents this side of the bridge, some of whom came out and heard it. Some man came out of the much abusing some other inside, went away and returned continuing his vile language, went off and returned again and threw a stone against the house when a man came out and shot at him with a pistol, following him up shooting twice more until the man took refuge in Geo. Stanley's house.

This "klondike" institution was foisted on the community by the Hon. Polk Stephens when County Judge of Kenton county, and is away off from magisterial or constabulary supervision, and our informants, who are not opposed to well conducted, respectable saloons, say that disorderly sceues are quite common.

Revs. Harney and Bedinger will begin a revival meeting at the Methodist Church, here, on Thursday, March 24th. Rev. Harney is the great soul-awakening minister who held a protracted meeting here about two years ago.

FRANKFORT LETTER.

(Special to the Recorder.)

Frankfort, Ky., March 14, 1898.

The dying days of the legislative session have been marked by the most sensational episodes in the history of the rather unusul meeting of solons. The feeling aroused over the partisan bills has been the cause of three or four warm personal encounters in which serious hurt was only avoided by the intervention of friends of the combatants. The Wills-Depp fight, the Bronston-Elmore and Bronston-Chinn setto's, and the Farris-Clark spats were only the public outbursts growing out of the numerous private verbal sparring matches which were indulged in by the members during the discussion of the all important Goebel bill and the other legislation which was objectionable to one faction as it was praiseworthy to another. But I hope these exhibitions of a sanguinary nature are all the hostilities that will be reported from here during the now rather short life of the term, and that the session will pass away as peacefully and tranquilly as the "death of the dove."

The third district gerrymander bill, taking Cumberland and Monroe counties from the third Congressional district and placing them in that hot-bed of Republicanism, the eleventh, and taking Metcalfe county from the eleventh and putting it in the company of the third district counties, was passed over the Governor's veto Saturday in a jiffy. The eighth district bill was passed on Friday and the third appellate district gerrymander bill was passed over the veto today by a partisan Democratic vote. This makes Judge Lewis' district safely Democratic Five other vetoes were sent in by the Governor today with the third district gerrymander bill.

The caucus to nominate the three election commissioners provided for under the Goebel election law, has been called to meet tonight-Monday-at 8 o'clock in the Hall of the House. It is said by inside sources that the following slate has been cut and dried for selection, and that it will go through without a hitch at any point: Ex-Congressman Wm. T. Ellis, of Owensboro, Ky., L. D. Leach, of Princeton, Ky., Charles B. Poyntz, of Maysville, Ky. Mr. Leach is one of those rather unusual political curiosities developed during the last National campaign, a free-silver banker. He has been on the ground for a week looking after his interests.

The bills for the last two days of the session are scheduled to keep the members of both Houses at work until midnight tomorrow-night. As I write this every solon is up to his eyes in hard labor, sorting out the bills he wants to call up, or getting resolutions prepared for this afternoon's session, when much legislation will be enacted finally. The enrolling clerks will be kept busy until a late hour to-morrow night, and there will then be a long list of bills resting in the calendar. Fully one third of the five hundred bills introduced since the gavel fell on the opening day have been killed in committee, another third failed to pass both Houses and the remaining third are on the calendar or have passed. But less than one hundred measures have passed either house and not nearly so many have passed both. Probably not over forty bills will become laws as a result of the session.

Representative Sanders, of Union county, one of Lindsay-resolutions fame, is said to be slated for deputy Warden at the Eddyville pen under the new regime. Senator Ferguson, is said to have the wardenship at the same prison, nailed down. The Rev. Alvin Bertram is a tip for chaplain. Mr. H. H. Lackey seems a cinch for prison physician and South Trimble will be warden at Frankfort if the Democratic plans do not miscarry. Representative Bishop, of Newport, will be the deputy warden here, and Dr. Hugh Tobin will get the physician appointment. The. Rev. Elijah Petty, of Grant county, will be chaplain here, while Jarvis Stone is the best backed man for penitentiary clerk.

If there was any doubt of there being patriotism and to spare in this body of law-making statesmen up here it was removed on Saturday when the rumor went flying over the city that the United States cruiser Montgomery had met the fate of the Maine in the Havana Harbor. The legislature adjourned for five minutes to hear the news confirmed or denied. In the meantime the expressions I heard indicated the feeling that has prevailed. Republicans and Democrats forgot their differences as they scored the Spanish aud expressed themselves in no unmistakable language. Fortunately it was a canard, for if it had not been Kentucky might have been the scene of the first real war-like movement.

The local option bill which it had been expected would revolutionize liquor selling in the state and make many a county now reveling in the oily fluid, dry as the bone of an ossified man, is dead.

Representative Conner goes away from the capital of the state with the feeling that he has done all he could for the interest of his people and his state. He has scotched everything that looked an unnecessary increase in expenses and takes much satisfaction in the fact that almost all of the bills he marked with his disapproval and fought went to the committee to die or were killed by vote.

The grass is growing nicely.

The weather so far this month is calculated to encourage the farmers to believe that spring is about here, but before the roses bloom they will conclude that the weather in this part of the country is very unreliable.

Mrs. Henrietta Bailey, wife of James Bailey, was tried before Judge Roberts and a jury, last Thursday, and was adjudged of unsound mind. She was taken to the Asylum at Lakeland, Friday, by her husband and Jailer Adams.

The Recorder sees no reason for retracting its assertion of a few weeks rince, viz: There will be no war between the United States and Spain. It is now reported that President talks of peace in his sleep. He is not spoiling for a fight by any means, although two war ships have been purchased in the last week.

The Odd Fellows' lodge at Bellevue is still booming. Last Thursday night the second degree was conferred on two members while three were instructed in the third degree. The meeting last Thursday night was the beginning of the lodge's second 6 months. It now has 33 members, 12 of whom were initiated during the last six months. Every member takes great interest in the work, and is very punctual in attendance.

Just as we were ready to go to press we received an advertisement from the Grant County Building, Loan and Savings Association, at Williamstown. It loans money on long time, easy payments and reasonable rates of interest. Not less than $125 nor more than $10,000 loaned to one party. The Association is officered by the best business men in Grant county. See advertisement in next issue. For particulars address J. H. Weaver, Secretary, Williamstown, Grant county, Ky.

The following from the Kentucky Post gives some facts concerning the Covington and Cincinnati suspension bridge, that will interest our readers: It was begun in 1856 and finished in 1866; it cost $1,800,000; no repairs, except on the road way and an annual painting of the iron work were done until 1892, when the anchor walls were strengthened at a cost of $27,000; the improvements now finishing were begun in 1895, and will cost not far from $650,000. The old cables are each composed of 5,000 iron wires, with an ultimate strength of 8,400 tons; the new cables are each composed of 2,226 steel wires; the cables are 1,970 feet long, and the wires composing them, placed end to end, would cover a distance of 830 miles. They have an ultimate strength of 12,000 tons. The largest dividend ever paid by the bridge was 15¼ per cent. in 1888.

About 2 o'clock p. m., last Sunday, Mrs. C. L. Crisler discovered a dense volume of smoke coming from the L of W. F. McKim's residence. She at first thought the smoke came from the kitchen flue, but, after watching it a short time, saw that the smoke was caused by fire in the roof. The bucket brigade responded to the alarm, and what, at first appeared to be a very dangerous fire, was soon put out. Mr. McKim estimates the damages at about $300. There are two theories as to the origin of the fire. One is, a defective flue, the other, that a spark fell from the flue and set the shingles on fire, and whipped in under the roof instead of staying on top. As there had been no fire in the kitchen flue since morning, it is evident the flame had been smoldering in the wall or roof for several hours. The building is insured in the Fire Association, of Philadelphia.

Viewers appointed to view an outlet across G. L. and J. C. Miller's lands. James Taylor, J. S. Mason and M. E. Hauce, viewers.

P. E Cason qualified as notary public.

Glen Crisler discharged as administrator of W. B Adams.

In substance, I clip from the Corbin News the following:

"Miss Edna House, of Bromley, Ky., cast a bottle in the Ohio river in which she sealed the following note: 'The finder of this bottle will please correspond with me at once. I am lonely because the boys of Bromley are too slow.' This missive danced along the waves of the Ohio until John Eggleston, of North Bend, picked it up, they corresponded, and were married."

Now that story reads allright, and so is the Corbin News, but I am curious to know how such a thing could be possible. Bromley is ten miles from the Ohio river, and she could not throw the bottle that far, and, even if she did, will some one please tell me how that bottle could float 30 miles up stream? there's where North Bend is located. Like Pharaoh's daughter when she found Moses—"that's what she said." But, Bob, just ask her how she got acquainted with that fellow? I ain't satisfied. I know Cupid cuts many a caper, and this was surely a freak.—Carrollton News.

What's got you? Bromley is located on the bank of the Ohio river, just below Ludlow, Kenton county, Ky., and about 12 miles above North Bend. So you see your impossibilities are easy possibilities.

The people along the Burlington and Erlanger mail route were very much annoyed two or three days last week by the non-appearance of the usual puuctual and accommodating mail carrier, Jeff Eddins, on the wagou. His numerous patrons were growing nervous for fear he had gone to Cuba to join the patriots, or to the Klondike in search of gold, but they were agreeably disappointed when they learned he was only detained at home preparing his gardeu and arranging to supply the people at Florence, Erlanger and intermediate points with very early vegetables. He books are now open for orders for anything from a bean to an old fashioned yellow pumpkin.

Last county court day Master Commissioner Berkshire sold 133 acres of land on Mudlick creek, under the judgment in the suit of Dudly Rouse, &c., against James Dempsey, &c., for $1,550.

In the suit of Chas. Schramm against Pat Shannon, &c., he sold 16 acres of improved land on the Bullittsville and Dry Creek pike, about half way between Hebron and Constance, for $1,033 24.

Advertising is telling people about things. Telling them what things look like, what they are good for, who sells them and what they cost. Getting business is merely a question of advertising. It is merely a question of asking hard enough and long enough and often enough and in the right way. Sometimes it takes a good while to find out the right way, but there is a right way for everything.

DESPITE the fact that we have few ships on the high seas we managed to maintain our supremacy in Hawaiian shipping last year. Ships carrying the American flag entered at Hawaiian ports numbered 286, while the ships of all the other nationalities numbered only 141.

IMPRISONED miners can be supplied with food and air by a newly patented conduit system, consisting of a series of pipes, to be laid through the mine shafts, with branch pipes running around each section to be used if the main pipe should be crushed by a cave-in, flexible conveyors being run through the pipes to carry the food.

IN the royal family of England the order of precedence among men is thus: The sovereign, the prince of Wales, the other sons of the sovereign in the order of their age, the sovereign's grandsons, the brothers or sisters of the sovereign, the sovereign's uncle, and finally the sons of the brothers or sisters of the sovereign.

IT is asserted that the reason why Spain favors war is that if Cuba is permitted to depart in peace Spain will be compelled to foot the entire Cuban debt of $600,000,000, but if Cuba should be wrested from Spain in a war with the United States that obligation could not be held against Spain. In other words, Spain would make money by being whipped.

BOSTON is getting rid of its professional beggars by turning them over to the tender mercies of some special policemen appointed for this service. The beggars are given the choice of disappearing from the streets or going to jail. A majority chose the first alternative, and are working other cities which have not adopted the Boston plan, and the others are in jail, where they will be required to stay until they have served out their full sentences.

DR. S. J. ALLEN, of White River Junction, Vt., has a relic of the closing days of the rebellion, a testament in which a minie ball is imbedded. It was taken from the left breast pocket of a rebel soldier who was killed at Sailor's Creek, Va., April 8, 1865, and who was brought to the hospital of the Second division of the Sixth corps that day. The ball was flattened upon either side and stopped on the seventh verse of the eighth chapter of Corinthians.

AN ingenious machine for making sandwiches is used by many of the ocean line steamships. It cuts and butters 60 slices of bread a minute. One movement of the hand cuts and butters the bread, and the machine can be arranged so that the bread need not be buttered if the operator does not want it to be so. In making 1,000 sandwiches three hams and 11 pounds of butter are saved, it is said, on account of the accuracy with which both are cut.

MEMBERS of the New York police department are to be fitted out with new uniforms. New buttons form part of the equipment. What does this change mean? Including commissioned officers there are about 7,500 men on the force. It requires 78 buttons to fit out the two uniforms and overcoat. This means a total of 585,000 buttons. For one suit and overcoat the buttons weigh 18 ounces avoirdupois, so that the total weight will be 8437½ pounds, or 4371/4 pounds more than four tons.

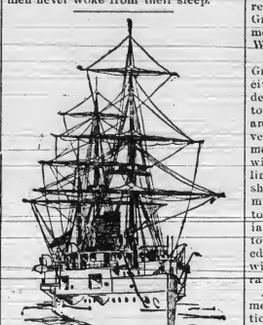
PRESIDENT KRUGER will thereby have the opportunity of unveiling a statue of Victoria a monument to himself. As a result of the national subscription raised for the purpose a native artist, Van Bouw by name, was commissioned nearly two years ago to execute the work, and has been exclusively engaged upon it at Rome ever since. The monument is designed to glorify the majesty of the Transvaal republic, and the statue of Oom Paul, in heroic size, crowns the structure, in itself some fifty feet high.

AS a result of Hubner's latest investigations, the population of the world is placed at 1,555,000,000, or 23,000,000 more than in 1890. Of this increase Europe is credited with 5,700,000; Asia, 6,200,000; Africa, 7,500,000; Americas, 3,300,000, and the United States 2,800,000. Europe, which in area is about as large as the United States, is credited with about one-fourth of the population of the world, or 378,600,000. The United States has 72,300,000 or 53 per cent of the combined population of North and South America.

A COMPARATIVELY small number of handkerchiefs are manufactured in this country, and those that are made here are mostly of the cotton and inferior silk variety. The finest silk goods are imported principally from Japan, which country sends us annually between 17,000,000 and 18,000,000 Japanese pongees. The best cambric article comes from France and Belgium, and linen handkerchiefs come from the north of Ireland and also from St. Galls, Switzerland. Japanese silk handkerchiefs are worth from $3 to $40 per dozen.

THE court of errors and appeals in the case of the North Hudson Railroad Co. vs. Anderson, reversed the decision of the Hudson circuit court, and decided that a dollar greenback with a corner one inch and a half by one inch torn off was not a legal tender. Anderson had sued the railroad for damages. He had offered the mutilated bill in payment of his fare, and the conductor would not accept the same. Anderson would offer no other money and was ejected from the company's car. He then sued for damages, and the Hudson circuit court held the bill to be legal tender

A MISSION BURNED.



Eleven Men Out of 165 Lodgers, Lost Their Lives in the Flames.

But Two Bodies Have Been Identified—The Fire Originated in the Lavatory on the Third Floor, Probably Started By a Lighted Cigarette.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Eleven men perished by burning at the Bowery mission, at 105 Bowery, this Sunday morning. The bodies were recovered, but so disfigured as to make identification in most cases impossible. The only body positively identified is that of John Foran, of Stapleton, Staten Island, a machinist, 28 years old, which was claimed by his two brothers. Another body is thought to be that of William McDermott, of Brooklyn, a painter, 25 years old. The register of the lodging-house does not aid in the investigation, for Bowery lodgers as often as not register under assumed names. Again, such lodgers are often friendless, and leave none to miss them and search for them.

John N. Wyburn, superintendent of the Bowery mission, under whose direction the lodging-house was conducted, said Sunday:

"When I arrived at the scene of the fire the firemen had it under control and the police were removing the dead bodies. I started at once to ascertain the cause and the exact place where the fire started. I found to my satisfaction that it originated in the lavatory on the third floor and probably was caused by a lighted cigarette thrown carelessly among a lot of papers. It is strictly against the rules of the house to smoke in the building, but it is known to be the habit of many of the lodgers to do so, and on account of this the night clerk is supposed to inspect the lavatory every hour, and he made an inspection shortly before the fire was discovered. There were 165 names on the hotel register Saturday night. Two-thirds of them were sleeping on the third and fifth floors. Nine of the bodies were found lying in the beds and it is supposed that some of the men never woke from their sleep."

THE STATEMENT

That the United States Had Entered Into an Alliance With England and Japan Is Absolutely Without Foundation.

LONDON, March 14.—The Sunday Special publishes from its Berlin correspondent an interview with United States Ambassador White on the attitude of the United States towards Spain and the Cuban situation. Ambassador White, according to this dispatch, declared the statement that the United States had entered into an alliance with England and Japan absolutely without foundation.

"The United States," Mr. White is reported to have said, "will never bind herself by such an alliance. President McKinley's administration can not act against the tradition which forbids all such complications in America's international relations. Least of all will it do for the sake of American interest in the far east.

"The fear of war with Spain must not be taken too seriously. The $50,000,000 credit is no proof that the United States intends going to war, since the government had long demanded such a credit for the purposes of harbor defense. This, however, had been postponed owing to the niggardly policy congress had hitherto pursued."

EMPHATICALLY DENIED

That Germany Will Aid Spain in Case of War With the United States.

BERLIN, March 14.—The Berlin foreign office has instructed the inspired press to deny emphatically that Germany will aid Spain in case of war with the United States, and has instructed these newspapers to point out that the United States is an excellent customer of Germany and that Spain since the Carolinas squabble has repeatedly shown unfriendliness to Germany.

Gen. Sherwood Volunteers.

COLUMBUS, O., March 14.—Gen. Isaac R. Sherwood, of Canton, called on Gov. Bushnell and Adjt. Gen. Axline and tendered his services in the event of war between the United States and Spain. The general is anxious to raise a regiment, and was assured by the governor that there would be a demand for men of his ability and experience if there should be a war.

PREPARING FOR WAR.

Great Activity at the Different Forts and Navy Yards.

The Miantonomah, Katahdin, Minneapolis and Columbia Almost Ready for Business—Pushing the Work on Big Guns and Steel Projectiles—Recruiting.

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 14.—Fort Pickens, which guards the entrance to the harbor on the east side is the scene of great activity just now. It is considered one of the strongest of the old style of forts in the country. New six and eight-inch rifle guns will be mounted on it and if a lot of vessels should succeed in passing the heavy batteries of disappearing guns and mortars on Santa Rosa island, the fort will be able to do effective work when they reach the channel. The big disappearing guns are now in position and it is learned that the troops at Fort Barrancas are under orders to prepare for practice with them, which is expected to begin within the next ten days. Large quantities of ammunition have been received at the fort and more is on the way. The Pensacola division of the naval militia have just received from the government a splendid Hotchkiss rapid-fire gun and a full outfit of cutlasses, ammunition, etc., and they are ready to begin practice.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., March 14.—From all reports coming into the adjutant general's office here and letters from commanders of companies, it is learned that the Florida state troops are now recruited up to the full legal standard, with offers of enough men to put 3,000 more in the field in a week. In Tampa and Jacksonville especially the war fever is strong and the commanders of companies there, both infantry and artillery, report offers of hundreds beyond their needs.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 14.—Light Battery K, First artillery, was Sunday recalled from the target range at Kerrville and ordered to Galveston. The battery had just reached the range after a march of three days, and without giving the men or horses more than a day's rest, has started on the return. The order was issued by Gen. Graham, commander of the department, on instructions received from Washington Sunday.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 14.—J. W. Greer, a mechanical engineer of this city, is now negotiating with the war department for the purchase of an automatic machine gun for fortifications and floating batteries which he has invented and patented. The department is now making a test with a gun constructed on the lines of Mr. Greer's patent which will shoot 300 three-inch projectiles per minute, the fastest machine gun heretofore invented throwing but 11 three-inch shots per minute. The Greer automatic machine gun can be constructed for still heavier ammunition and will shoot four-inch projectiles at the rate of 250 per minute.

A feature of the gun which recommends it at this time is that the invention can be employed on the guns now in use by the department and can be manufactured in a very short time.

READING, Pa., March 14.—The promise of a contract for projectiles amounting to $1,000,000 to the Carpenter steel works kept the entire plant in unusual activity Sunday. Work was pushed all along the line on projectiles in the main plant on the erection of the three new buildings begun Saturday, and in getting the Diamond Steel Co.'s works, (which have been re-leased) into running order. Masons, carpenters, machinists, steel melters and makers and a score of other classes of workmen were on duty and in two weeks the company will have an increased plant to double the present capacity and will probably employ 750 men. More shipments will be made Monday by order of government officials.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—There was a general absence at League Island navy yard Sunday of the unusual activity which prevailed last Sunday and the Sunday previous. A few workmen were busy about the yard and aboard the ships, but their work was of a finishing up character. The Miantonomah, Katahdin, Minneapolis and Columbia are now all but ready to sail within a day or two if so ordered, and whatever additional repairs may be necessary can be attended to en route. A few more men are needed for the Katahdin and Minneapolis, and a detachment of marines under Lieut. Fuller are expected shortly to complete the Columbia's complement. All the warships are now coaled and have most of their stores aboard, and about all that remains to be done now is to replenish their stock of ammunition. This will be done at the government magazine, a short distance below the navy yard, and all the vessels will then be ready for sailing at a moment's notice. The Columbia is anchored in the river and as soon as her marines arrive will steam to the magazine.

WILMINGTON, Del., March 14.—The powder works of the E. I. Dupont De Memours Co. is now working day and night on a government order for hexagonal powder for the big guns. Until a day or two ago only the day force was at work, but it is said that orders from Washington necessitated the employment of a night force. In addition some of the buildings are being enlarged and more machinery is being put in.

Co-Operate Commonwealth Colony.

TACOMA, Wash., March 14.—The co-operate commonwealth founded by Eugene V. Debs has located a colony of its followers four miles west of Bellfast, in Skagit county, this state. Eighty members have arrived, over half of whom are men whose families still remain in the east. They came to look the field over and select locations. They form an intelligent and thrifty looking company and do not appear to be afraid of toil. The party is made up of men from Chicago, St. Louis, Mal ne, Michigan and Washington, D. C. A town will be established surrounded by small-sized farms.

A FEW REQUISITES.

What Was Wanted of a Girl in One Household.

The hired girl out of a job cast her eagle eye over the want notices of the newspaper. "Wanted, Wanted, Wanted," she read in one or two-line ads, straight down the column, shaking her head at intervals as if disappointed in her search. Finally her face lightened as she saw a leaded notice in another column of more pretensions than its fellows.

She turned to it and read eagerly. Then she threw the paper from her.

"What's the matter?" asked the girl with her.

"Read that," and she gathered up the sheet and handed it over to the other one, who read this notice:

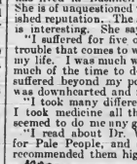
"Wanted—A young and strong woman of good disposition and habits, obedient and knowing her place, willing and ready, active and efficient, to cook, wash and iron, do general housework on Ohio City. People were lured along the miles of wonderful exhibits by the new marvels that met the gaze at every step, and did not realize their exhaustion until they dropped into a chair in some by-corner by the lake, and "cooled off." That's what began the trouble, in many cases. Of one such case, Mrs. L. W. Stevens, Fort Fairfield, Me., writes:

"My husband took a severe cold and cough two years ago last October—time of the World's Fair, which we attended. This cough lasted over two years, and was accompanied by spitting of blood, and nothing could be found to help him, although various remedies were tried. Several doctors were consulted, but their prescriptions afforded no relief. Finally, I saw an advertisement of Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my paper and prevailed upon my husband to get a bottle and try it. The very first dose helped him and he was completely cured in a short time. We feel very grateful for what Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has done for us, and shall keep it constantly on hand in the house."—Mrs. L. W. Stevens, Fort Fairfield, Me.

Two years of doctoring for a cough, two years of "remedies" that gave no help, of prescriptions that profited only the men who wrote them, and then a trial of Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, which helped from the very first dose and effected a complete cure in a short time. The difference between Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and all other cough medicines is that no other is or ever stated than in this comparison of results. It has cured the most stubborn and obstinate cases of chronic bronchitis and asthma. It is a specific for croup and whooping cough. It cures all coughs and colds and all affections of the throat and lungs promptly and effectively. In response to numerous demands Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is put up in half size bottles—sold at half price—50 cents. More about cures effected by Pectoral in Dr. Ayer's Curebook. Sent free, on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

WOMAN'S FATE.

From the Record, Bushnell, Ill.



No woman is better able to speak to others regarding "woman's fate" than Mrs. Jacob Weaver, of Bushnell, Ill., wife of ex-City Marshal Weaver. She had entirely recovered from the illness which kept her bedfast much of the time for five or six years past, and says her recovery is due to that well-known remedy Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Mrs. Weaver is fifty-six years old, and has lived in Bushnell nearly thirty years. She is of unquestioned veracity and unblemished reputation. The story of her recovery is interesting. She says:

"I suffered for five or six years with the trouble that comes to women at this time of my life. I was much weakened, was unable much of the time to do my own work, and suffered beyond my power to describe. I was downhearted and melancholy.

"I took many different medicines, in fact I took medicine all the time, but nothing seemed to do me any good.

"I read about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and some of my friends recommended them highly. I made up my mind to try them. I bought the first box in March, 1897, and was benefited from the start.

Bought the first box.

"A box and a half cured me completely, and I am now rugged and strong. I have not been bothered with my troubles since I began taking the pills.

"I have recommended the pills to many women who are suffering as I suffered. They are the only thing that helped me in the trial that comes to so many women at my age."—MRS. J. H. WEAVER.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 23d day of October, A. D., 1897.

O. C. HICKS, Notary Public.

When woman is passing beyond the age of motherhood, it is a crisis in her life. Then, if ever, proper attention to hygiene should be exercised. The attendant sufferings will disappear and buoyant health will follow if Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are used.

These pills exert a powerful influence in restoring the system to its proper condition. They contain in a condensed form all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

ARKANSAS LADIES DON'T LIE.

Mrs Martha A Johnson

Malvern, Ark., says: Have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 10 years, and find it a great deal better than "Zeilin's Regulator" and "Black Draught." It has been of great benefit to my Daughter and Niece during their monthly troubles for Obstructed Menstruation. There should be no home without it.

The Turn of Life.

The cessation of the menses usually occurs between the ages of forty and fifty. Great irregularity takes place in the periodic discharges for some time before the final cessation, the female usually experiencing sudden flashes of heat, fullness in the head, headache and other evidences of constitutional disturbance. The nervous system sympathetically responds, and there is great irritability and melancholy, the patient is discouraged and has a sense of fullness of suffocation.

At no time in her life does a woman need more constant care and watchful tenderness, nor has more need for a remedy to invigorate and strengthen her. The bowels should be kept regular with Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, and if Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine is used during the whole of this critical period, it will invigorate and enrich her blood, soothe and strengthen her nerves and thus relieve the suffering and enable her to pass safely through its dangers, prolong her life and afford her strength and joy in her declining years.

A.P. Ewton

Pine Bluff, Ark., writes: Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine has been a God send to myself and family for 20 years. It cures Chills and Fevers, Bilious Fevers, Sick Headache. I think there is no comparison between it and "Black Draught" and "Zeilin's Liver Regulator."

Fullness of Blood in Head.

Where there is great determination of blood to the head, the blood vessels of the brain become greatly congested, and there exists flushed face, giddiness, especially on stooping, and throbbing pain in the head, increased by movement. It may be caused by living too freely; too late rising in the morning, combined with an inactive life. Menstrual derangements in females will often occasion it. Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine is especially made for this, and it cures.

THE MAINE WRECK.

Every One in Havana Knows That the Vessel Was Blown Up.

Spaniards No Longer Deny It—They Hate Americans and Do Not Hesitate to Say So—Col. Parker Says if We Don't Have War it Will Be a Surprise.

HAVANA, March 11.—Capt. Converse, of the United States cruiser Montgomery, in company with Consul General Lee, called on Capt. Gen. Blanco Thursday, and was received cordially and courteously.

In a letter to the United States consul general, Dr. Congosta, the secretary general of Cuba, assures Lee that there will be no delay in the passage of relief supplies through the custom house. On account of the discovery of jewelry in such supplies, the authorities held up many consignments, and some perishable provisions were spoiled.

The United States naval court of inquiry into the loss of the battleship Maine is quietly continuing its work and its members are as secretive as usual. So far as can be judged there have been no important developments recently.

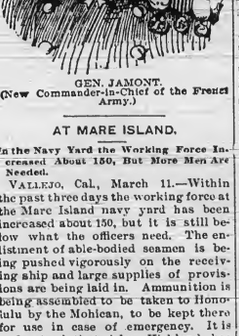
The officers of the Montgomery pay and receive the usual courtesies here, visiting the Spanish admiral and other Spanish officers, who return the visits of the American officers.

HAVANA, March 11.—Believing that its proceedings may be viewed by an international court of inquiry and arbitration, the present court of inquiry is proceeding with such care and deliberation as to give many the false impression that it is killing time.

It is certain that the court has come to a final decision in the matter, and that further delay is due to the great caution necessary and from a realization that the present investigation is unique in the naval history of the world.

NEW YORK, March 11.—A special to the Evening World from Key West, Fla., says:

Among the passengers on the Olivette from Havana Thursday was Senator Proctor, of Vermont, who has been making a study of Cuba and the Cubans. With him was Col. M. M. Parker, of Washington. As soon as Senator Proctor had registered he sent up his card to Adm. Sicard. He was shown to the admiral's room and was closeted with him for two hours. The object of the interview, presumably is to allay any excitement some message from Commander Converse, of the Montgomery.



Among other things Col. Parker said to the reporter:

"Every American in Cuba is watched as though he were a criminal. The Spaniards hate us and do not hesitate to say so.

"Every one in Havana now knows that the Maine was blown up. Spaniards no longer deny it. They do not seem to be very sad over it either.

"Are we going to have war? Well, if we don't I shall be surprised."

Col. Parker said all the American consuls in Cuba are doing their best in the distribution of relief supplies except Consul Magar at Cienfuegos, who, the colonel said, denied that there was much suffering and who seemed to be in sympath with the Spaniards.

AT MARE ISLAND.

In the Navy Yard the Working Force Increased About 150, But More Men Are Needed.

VALLEJO, Cal., March 11.—Within the past three days the working force at the Mare Island navy yard has been increased about 150, but it is still below what the officers need. The enlistment of able-bodied seamen is being pushed vigorously on the receiving ship and large supplies of provisions are being laid in. Ammunition is being assembled to be taken to Honolulu by the Mohican, to be kept there for use in case of emergency. It is understood that Adm. Kirkland has received orders to place the Yorktown and Philadelphia in readiness for sea.

Leprosy in Iowa.

DES MOINES, Ia., March 11.—Secretary J. F. Kennedy, of the state board of health, reported to the legislature Thursday that he found a young woman named Carrie Peterson, near Graettinger, seriously afflicted with genuine leprosy, and that she will not live 18 months. Her mother died in Sweden from the disease.

Bread Riot.

MADRID, March 11.—There has been a bread riot at the village of Pobaldera del Valle, in the province of Zamora. The gendarmes intervened, three of whom and two voters were wounded before the disturbance was suppressed.

Philippine Rebels Capture Bolinao.

LONDON, March 11.—The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail says it is reported there that the Philippine rebels have captured Bolinao, near Manila. According to the same correspondent the British cruiser Edgar will sail for Manila Friday morning.

CAPT. PERAL,

President of the Spanish Board of Inquiry, in an Unofficial Capacity, Says He Finds That the Maine Was Not Wrecked by a Torpedo.

HAVANA, March 12.—Friday Capt. Peral, president of the Spanish naval court of inquiry into the cause of the Maine disaster, granted an interview to a correspondent who he authorized to say that it was the first and only interview he had given to any newspaper on the subject of the inquiry. Capt. Peral said:

"Our divers are hard at work examining the hull of the Maine. Great difficulty is experienced owing to the deep mud in which the hull is buried and the condition of the wreck forward of amidships. The whole forward part of the ship is a mass of iron and steel debris. We have hoisted up much of it, but in the mud it is not always possible to tell what parts of the ship's armor, decks, beams or stanchions are found, the explosion so changed their position.

"We think we have located the ram or prow, but not in the position supposed. The forward turret, containing two large guns, was blown clear of the hull into the water on the starboard.

"We shall continue our work and try to examine the hull forward down to the keel. It is possible that we may propose to the American authorities to raise the hull by means of the floating dock brought from England and now in Havana harbor.

"We can not believe there was an external explosion of a torpedo for the following reasons:

"A torpedo, following the line of least resistance, must have blown a great hole in the mud at the bottom of the harbor. No such hole was found.

"A torpedo must have thrown a large mass of water into the air if exploded at a depth of only 30 feet or so, or at least have produced a wave reaching to the other ships and the mouth of the harbor. We have examined every one on shipboard or shore who saw the explosion, but no one can be found who remarked any upheaval of the water or a big wave. A torpedo explosion always kills fish in the vicinity. No fish were killed by the Maine disaster, as fishermen who have known the harbor for many years assert. To produce the effects found in the wreck a torpedo would have to be of enormous size, fully 130 or 220 kilos.

"I am therefore of opinion that the explosion occurred within the ship. I know and respect Capt. Sigsbee and I believe the American regulations affecting naval conduct, which I have read and found admirable, were carried fully observed. But some thing, which can not be foreseen are bound to happen in any navy."

It should be borne in mind that this is the first and only interview he has given any one. Capt. Peral requested in his conversation to make it known that he had granted the interview in his unofficial capacity and not as president of the Spanish court of inquiry, which the law forbids him to do.

PASSED AWAY.

Gen. W. S. Rosecrans Dies at His Home Near Redondo, Cal.—Brief Sketch of His Life.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 12.—Gen. W. S. Rosecrans died Friday morning at 7 o'clock at his home near Redondo.

The old warrior's death was peaceful in the extreme. For several days he has been between life and death, at times unconscious and again in a comatose state. His splendid vitality has kept him alive for days. When it was known that the end was near, all the watchers at the bedside were ready at any time to see the last.

At the bedside when the end came were a son and daughter of the general, Carl and Anna Rosecrans, and a number of immediate friends of the family, besides the attending physician, Dr. Hayes.

William Stark Rosecrans was born in Kingston, Delaware county, O., September 6, 1819. His parents were of old Dutch stock. He was raised on a farm and educated at the public schools. He clerked in a store and in 1837 applied to the secretary of war for appointment to the West Point military academy. He was appointed and graduated in 1842. He entered the engineer corps as second lieutenant and reported for duty at Fortress Monroe. In 1843 he went to West Point as assistant professor in the engineering department.

Lieut. Rosecrans resigned from the army in April, 1854, and went to Cincinnati to engage in the coal mining business.

At the beginning of the war Gen. Rosecrans was a private citizen. When it became evident that military operations must become necessary to crush the rebellion, he offered his services to Gen. Dennison, of Ohio, and he was requested to not as engineer and lay out Fort Dennison. He went to Washington later and was given the position of chief engineer of Ohio, with the rank of colonel. He was commissioned colonel of the Twenty-Third Ohio regiment later and entered the field and within three days was commissioned brigadier general. He took the field in West Virginia at once. His first important action was at Big Sewell mountain, which he won.

Gen. Rosecrans succeeded Gen. McClellan in the department of Ohio. He had commanded the national forces and defeated Gen. John B. Floyd at Carnifax Ferry, September 10, 1861, thwarting Lee's attempt to get a footing in Western Virginia. He participated in the battle of Corinth and afterward took command of the army of the Mississippi. He defeated Gen. Sterling Price and pursued him for 40 miles. He was made commander of the Department of the Cumberland, which position he held from October 27, 1862, to October 19, 1863. He commanded in the battle about Murfreesboro, one of the bloodiest and most decisive of the war. He drove Bragg out of middle Tennessee in 15 days.

Gen. Rosecrans was defeated at the great battle around Chattanooga and held Chattanooga, the objective point. The battle was a victory for the confederates. Gen. Rosecrans was relieved by Gen. Grant, and was assigned to the department of the Missouri. He was mustered out of the volunteer service in January, 1866, and resigned from the army in March, 1867. He had been elected minister to Mexico and was appointed minister to Mexico in July, 1868 and held the office until June, 1869. He arrived in Mexico and manufactured powder in San Francisco. He was elected to congress from California in 1881 and servered four years. He then settled on a ranch near Redondo, Los Angeles county, Cal., and spent the last years of his life quietly. His wife, the daughter of Judge Hegeman, of New York, died in 1878. Three children, Carl Rosecrans, Mrs. J. K. Toole, of Helena, Mont., and Miss Anna Rosecrans, survive him.

Shot Herself With a Revolver.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Mrs. John S. Boyd, daughter-in-law of Millionaire Francis Boyd, of Milwaukee, attempted suicide Friday by shooting herself with a revolver, because she thought her husband had been taken from her by his parents.

Retired Naval Officers Offer Their Services.

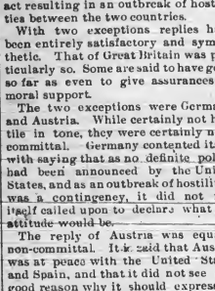
WASHINGTON, March 12.—In anticipation of a rupture between the United States and Spain many naval officers on the retired list have notified the secretary of the navy of their willingness and readiness to perform any duty in the line of their profession that he may deem suitable for them.

Charged With Cowardice.

PARIS, March 12.—Col. Picquart, declining to notice Comte Ferdinand Esterhazy's challenge to a duel, the latter has written a letter accusing him of cowardice and threatening to horsewhip him.

IN CASE OF WAR

Germany and Austria the Only Countries Unfriendly to the United States.



Some Countries, It is Thought, Will Give Moral Support—Austria Does Not See Any Good Reason Why it Should Express an Opinion at This Time.

NEW YORK, March 11.—The Tribune publishes a Washington dispatch, evidently inspired, which makes the announcement that the administration has, within the last few days, put itself in communication with other governments to ascertain what would be their attitude in case the United States should consider itself compelled to enter upon a policy of intervention in Cuba, or in case Spain committed some act resulting in an outbreak of hostilities between the two countries.

With two exceptions replies have been entirely satisfactory and sympathetic. That of Great Britain was particularly so. Some are said to have gone so far as even to give assurances of moral support.

The two exceptions were Germany and Austria. While certainly not hostile in tone, they were certainly noncommittal. Germany contented itself with saying that as no definite policy had been announced by the United States, and as an outbreak of hostilities was a contingency, it did not feel itself called upon to declare what its attitude would be.

The reply of Austria was equally non-committal. It is said that Austria was at peace with the United States and Spain, and that it did not see any good reason why it should express an opinion now.

SECRETARY ALGER.

AWAITING WAR.

Spanish Ports Practically Blockaded by American Warships—Ammunition Being Placed On the Warships at Tortugas.

NEW YORK, March 11.—A Washington correspondent has telegraphed that the European fleet will be increased this week by the assignment of one and perhaps three ships. The New York or the battleship Indiana will probably be sent. A Berlin dispatch declares that the Spanish minister complains that Spanish ports are practically blockaded by American warships. Half a dozen cruisers, he says, are lying off the coast waiting for War to be declared.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 11.—The Marblehead sailed at midnight for Tortugas, with ammunition for the Texas, Massachusetts and Indiana. After delivering it, she will proceed to Tampa to receive a large lot of ammunition, and bring it to the New York, Iowa, Detroit and Nashville here. The dispatch steamer Fern arrived from Havana Thursday. She will coal and take on provisions for Cuban reconcentrados, and will leave Friday for Matanzas. The Olivette arrived from New York Wednesday night with ammunition for the fleet and provisions for Cubans.

Representative Smith said to your correspondent: "We are going to Cuba to see and study the situation thoroughly. We have plenty of time, and will stay in Cuba till we get a thorough knowledge of affairs."

NEW YORK, March 11.—A cut is here it that McKinley has drafted a message conveying the recognition of Cuban independence, and that Great Britain will follow with a similar recognition. Were this true, Spain would have to submit or declare war against both England and the United States.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—It is stated upon the highest authority that intervention has been determined upon, and the announcement that the president has decided to put an end to Spain's farcical pretentions of governing Cuba may be expected in the next day or two.

Gen. Woodford will be instructed to make final declarations to the Madrid rulers that Cuban misrule and the anarchy existing in the island have become intolerable to the United States, which has patiently awaited the redemption of Spanish promises, until the whole civilized world has become satisfied that autonomy has failed and that the independence of the colony alone will prove remediable.

These reports will declare that American property is not as safe to-day as it was three months ago, and the lives of Americans are jeopardized.

Spain will be told that her entire colonial possessions could not satisfy the people of this country for the destruction of the Maine, which, if not actually commissioned by Spain, was only accomplished through the inadequacy of the protection Spain was compelled to extend to a friendly ship in her jurisdiction.

Will Contest Senator Hanna's Seat.

CLEVELAND, O., March 11.—Mayor Robert E. McKisson announced Thursday that he would contest the election of Senator Hanna when the latter attempted to take his seat for the long term. McKisson was the candidate of the opposition for senator at Columbus last January.

Alaskan Boundary.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—Representative Lewis, of Washington, introduced a resolution in the house asking that the Alaskan boundary question be settled. The secretary of state was asked for information.

NEW WAR VESSELS

To Be Built Out of the Naval Appropriation Bill—McKinley Will Acknowledge the Freedom of Cuba, it is Said.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The house naval committee late Friday afternoon voted to authorize the building of three new battleships in the naval appropriation bill to be reported to the house.

Most of the time of Friday's cabinet meeting was taken up in the discussion of measures which have been put into operation for the acquisition of naval vessels by the government. One member said after the meeting:

"It is not altogether probable that we will secure two vessels that are under construction for the Brazilian government. It is not possible at this time to say just how many ships in all the government will be able to secure. It has options on a number that have been offered, but nothing is likely to be definitely accomplished in the way of acquiring them until an examination is made into their condition, for which purpose a naval officer has been dispatched abroad. We do not want a lot of vessels that other nations contracted to be built and now find are not up to expectations. I should not be surprised but what the president would be able to get about five or six vessels in all. The fact is notorious that there are not a great many really good vessels to be had, but I should not be surprised if we could get a half dozen formidable ones at least. The $50,000,000 appropriation for war preparations will be expended in this country except such as may be used in the purchase of ships and in the acquisition of such munitions of war as are not obtainable here.

"Yes, I think the sympathy of the British government in this controversy is with the United States. At any rate she does not side with Spain. I do not mean by this statement to have you infer that the English will openly advocate our cause and extend us substantial help, but will give us their moral support."

Projects for the settlement of the Cuba question are numerous but most of them are regarded in official circles as unworthy of serious consideration. One plan, however, has been presented to the president which has received the approval in a general way of leading men whose counsels have weight with the administration and there is reason to believe is the subject of studious reflection in the cabinet. The proposed plan gives to Cuba all of the rights, privileges and immunities enjoyed by Canada, Spain reserving to herself only such rights as England exercises over her colonies.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—It is rumored everywhere that President McKinley has decided to recommend to congress the recognition of the Cuban republic as a sovereign nation. His message may be expected in 30 days, if not sooner. It is said that the recognition of the belligerency of the insurrection has been wholly abandoned, and that free Cuba is the idea of the administration now, whether with or without war.

It is semi-officially reported that a communication has been received by the navy department from President Sampson and Judge Advocate Marix, of the board of inquiry investigating the Maine disaster.

A forecast of the report to be made by the board, showing that the explosion was caused by a submarine mine placed by officers of the Spanish government and exploded by them, is said to have been submitted.

It is said that the Maine was purposely moored near the mine, which was exploded when the warship was directly over it. Traces of the mine, with shore connection, are reported to have been discovered.

Notwithstanding the refusal of the authorities to admit that they have for the past week or more known precisely what blew up the Maine, it is no longer possible to secure from them any authoritative denial of the assertion that the letters have been received from the members of the board, stating that the Spaniards planned and executed the destruction of the warship. Pressure is being brought to bear to have the president take the public at once into his confidence regarding the board's discoveries, and it is possible that any minute after the senate shall have reconvened on Monday he will inform congress of the facts.

The president has decided that the United States shall not declare war on Spain, but he will take such steps regarding Cuba as are in the interest of humanity, and he will act vigorously if need be, in the Maine disaster.

Then, Spain may take whatever course she shall desire. The United States will be prepared for the emergency. No definite policy will be given out until the board of inquiry shall report.

Premier Sagasta has said that a declaration of the independence of Cuba will amount to a declaration of war.

Political and financial circles in Spain realize the gravity of the hour, but the populace is inflamed with hatred toward Americans.

Extending Congressmen's Terms.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The house committee on the election of president, vice president and representatives in congress, favorably reported to the house Friday the joint resolution amending the constitution by providing for the election of members of the house of representatives for terms of four years.

Terrific Snow Storm in Michigan.

MENOMINEE, Mich., March 12.—A terrific snow storm is raging here. The wind is blowing a gale from the northeast and the snow is drifting badly, rendering the streets almost impassable. The weather is gradually growing colder and railway traffic will be greatly interfered with.

Entertaining the Archbishop.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., March 12.—Archbishop Ireland is paying a long promised visit to Notre Dame, and a especial programme was prepared and given Friday for his entertainment and reception.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—SENATE—Monday's session of the senate was devoted entirely to consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill. At the hour of adjournment the bill had not been disposed of and the discussion will be continued Tuesday. The present monopoly in the city of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. on account of high rates was severely criticised. Mr. Carter (Mont.) urged that the bill go over until Tuesday as he desired to offer an amendment relating to the gas supply of Washington.

HOUSE—The spirit of economy manifested in the house by almost unanimous vote the passage of the bill providing for two additional regiments of artillery, was passed under suspension of the rules. Not in effort made to obtruct action, but Mr. Bailey, the democratic leader, pleaded for more time than the forty minutes allowed under the rule, and because it was refused, after the bill had been passed he inaugurated a filibuster against District of Columbia legislation that continued all day.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—SENATE.—Tuesday's session of the senate was largely devoted to the consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill.——After an extended discussion the bill, containing a provision for the reduction of telephone rates in the present rates of telephone charges in the district, was passed. A bill to authorize the re-location and rebuilding of a pontoon bridge across the Mississippi river at Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin, was passed. The bill for the relief of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at Tennessee, appropriating $58,000, was then passed after a brief debate. At 4:50 p. m. a message was received from the house, conveying to the senate the bill appropriating $50,000,000 for national defense just passed by the house. The bill was laid before the senate and on motion of Mr. Allison (Ia.) referred to the committee on appropriations.

HOUSE—In a spirit of patriotism, with closed doors and cheers in their ears every member of the house of representatives Tuesday responded to the president's first call to meet the Spanish situation by passing his vote for a bill placing at the president McKinley's hands $50,000,000 to be expended at his discretion for the national defense. Party lines were swept away and with a unanimous voice congress voted its confidence in the administration. Many members who were paired with absent colleagues took the responsibility of breaking their pairs, an unprecedented thing in legislative annals, in order that they might go on record in support of this vast appropriation to maintain the dignity and honor of their country. Speaker Reed, who, as the presiding officer, seldom votes only in case of a tie, had his name called and voted in his capacity as a representative.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—SENATE—President McKinley's hands have been upheld by both branches of the American congress. With enthusiasm, fervor and promptness almost unparalleled in the senate, in time of peace, that body Wednesday passed the emergency appropriation bill, carrying $183,000 of deficiencies; and placing at the disposal of the president $50,000,000 for national defense. The vote by which the measure was passed was unanimous. Seventy-six short, sharp and emphatic speeches were delivered in favor of the bill, each one being simply a ringing "aye" during the roll call upon the passage of the measure. Not only did every senator present register his vote in favor of the bill, but for every absent member the announcement was made that if he were present he would vote aye.

HOUSE—The house devoted itself to routine business Wednesday. The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was put through its last stages in the adoption of the final conference report, and the remainder of the day was consumed in the consideration of the senate amendments to the Indian appropriation bill. The substitute for the senate provision regarding the opening of the Uncompahgre reservation was knocked out on a point of order, and the amendment goes back to conference. The desire of the conferees to non-concur in the senate free homestead clause encountered bitter opposition and an arrangement was made whereby four hours are to be devoted to debate, a proposition to concur submitted by Mr. Eddy (Minn.). Mr. Sherman, chairman of the Indian committee, declared that the free homestead provision would cost the government $55,000,000. He desires to eliminate it from the bill and has the support of the secretary of the interior.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—SENATE—No business of real importance was transacted by the senate in open session Thursday. The session lasted only an hour, the time being largely consumed in disposing of routine morning business. A bill of minor importance were passed, and the senate adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—After a debate in the house, which lasted more than five hours, the senate amendment to the Indian appropriation bill providing for the free entry of ceded Indian lands, was Thursday non-concurred in by a vote of 99 to 136. The friends of the free home clause made a gallant struggle, but they met the opposition of some of the prominent leaders on the republican side, Messrs. Dingley, Grosvenor, Dalzell and Payne, and they were further weakened by the fact that many friends of the proposition were alienated by the belief that, drawn, the amendment would work injury to the agricultural colleges of the country. The senate amendment for the ratification of the Seminole treaty was also concurred in after the substitute proposition offered by the conferees to ratify the Kiowa, Commanche and Apache treaty had fallen under a point of order. The action of the house Thursday sends the bill back to conference with non-concurrence on all the senate amendments.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—SENATE—Not in session.

HOUSE—The bill to pay the Bowman act claims, aggregating $1,200,000 for stores and supplies furnished the union army during the war was before the house until 5 o'clock, but no good progress was made, the opposing business of the session. Of the eight hundred odd claims in the bill all but a few come from the south and military tactics were resorted to, to prevent progress with the bill. During the filibustering the house was in an uproar. At 5 o'clock, after completing two pages of the bill, the house recessed until 8 o'clock, the evening session to be devoted to pension legislation. After the evening session the house adjourned over until Monday.

Terrible Result of Filling a Lighted Gasoline Stove.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 12—While filling a lighted gasoline stove Friday afternoon Mrs. Andrew C. Petersan was covered with flames. She was so horribly burned that she died four hours after. Her 20-month old son, Aubrey C., was terribly burned and has since died. Mrs. Petersan's 14-year-old sister, Nada Bechr, in attempting to extinguish the flames, had her clothes almost entirely burned off. She is expected to die.

Sheriff Martin Not Guilty.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 10.—The jury in the case of Sheriff Martin and his deputies for shooting of strikers at Lattimer on September 10, returned a verdict of not guilty.

To Elevate Railroad Tracks in Chicago.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Twenty miles of railroad tracks in this city will be elevated this summer. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $8,000,000 and will give employment to 25,000 men. By the elevation of the tracks some of the most dangerous grade crossings in the city will be done away with.

Rust Causes Death.

TIFFIN, O., March 12.—Mrs. John Hunt, residing near Melmore, fell a week ago and struck her elbow on a rusty hinge. Blood poisoning ensued and caused her death.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE

Regular Session.

FRANKFORT, March 8.—SENATE—The committee on rules in the senate offered an amendment to the rules, which give to said committee the power to report any bill for consideration at any time and limiting debate to 20 minutes on any bill. The resolution, which lies over one day, is intended to cut off filibustering to prevent the passage of important measures the last few days of the session. Bills passed: House bill abolishing the office of register of lands was passed by a vote of 26 to 7; to tax and operate the property of trusts and to protect the people from said trusts; authorizing assessors to examine county clerks' books in order to assess all credits and indebtedness that now escape taxation; providing separate elections in towns of the fifth and sixth classes for election of city officers; giving sheriffs a longer time to collect taxes by making them payable March 1; authorizing the attorneys at the bar to select a special judge in the absence of the city judge in Louisville; the senate resolution providing for a joint session on Thursday to elect the prison commissioners was adopted.

FRANKFORT, March 9.—Senator Alexander called up the resolution Tuesday morning appropriating $1,000 to be expended by the governor in properly observing the ceremonies attending the launching of the battleship Kentucky, and it was passed by a vote of 26 to 9. The Goebel bill to amend the law governing the state militia, so that the governor may employ an attorney to collect Kentucky's war claim against the United States government, was passed—yeas 21; nays 8. The Perry house bill requiring all railroads to carry bicycles as baggage was passed. The house bill providing for monthly terms of the quarterly courts and repealing all laws providing for the operating expenses of the state schools of reform and fixing the per capita of the inmates at $75 passed—yeas, 26; nays, 9.

HOUSE—Bills passed: Providing for the appointment of the police commissioners of Newport, Bellevue and Dayton by the circuit judge, instead of by the mayors of those cities; to repeal the act prohibiting the sale of liquor in less quantity than 10 gallons in Morgan county; repealing section 2225, Kentucky statutes, which provides that as soon as a minor woman marries her guardianship ceases. Bills defeated: Authorizing county judges of counties containing second-class cities to appoint transcript clerks; providing that the railroad commissioner should assess the franchise tax as well as the tangible property of all railroads.

FRANKFORT, March 10.—SENATE—Bills passed: To repeal the charter of the town of Bethlehem, in Henry county; to allow other telegraph companies than the Western Union the right to put up wires along all railroad lines by condemnation proceedings; house bill to prohibit the sale of cider or other intoxicating beverages in local option districts; to allow manufacturers of bottled goods to register their trade marks and prevent other people from using the same bottles.

HOUSE—The house adopted a resolution limiting speeches on any measure to 15 minutes, except by unanimous consent. The bill creating an extra circuit judge for Jefferson county was passed. Mr. Haswell arose to a question of privilege and asked what had caused the delay in printing the local option bill. No one could tell, and the friends of the measure are up in arms over the delay. The Humphreys bill fixing and prescribing that 2,000 pounds shall be a legal ton of hemp was passed. The North bill to abolish the office of assistant sergeant at the court of appeals passed—yeas 53 to 6. Other bills passed: Providing that the ballots shall be preserved instead of destroyed; to allow the children of slave marriages to inherit the property of their parents; appropriating $6,000 for the monument on the Chickamauga battlefield, instead of six small ones.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 11.—SENATE—The passage of the election bill by the senate Thursday over the governor's veto was a distinct and signal victory for Senator Goebel, the author of the bill, who has conducted the fight for its passage from the start. The senate will certainly take the bill Friday over the veto, and that will end the pretiest fight of the session. The senate met again at 3:30 Thursday afternoon and the Governor's veto of the bill transferring Jackson county from the Eighth congressional district to the Eleventh district was taken up and acted on without debate, and passed over the veto by a vote of 36 yeas to 1 nay. On motion of Senator Bronston the house bill prohibiting the use or sale of cigarettes in this state was called from the committee and put on its passage. The bill passed by a vote of 23 to 7, and it is said that the bill is so stringent that the sale of tobacco in any form will be prohibited by its provisions.

HOUSE—At 12 o'clock the senate appointed a committee to notify the house that it was ready to proceed to the election of three prison commissioners. A moment later the senate reappeared in the house of representatives to take the vote. The republican senators refused to go, as Senator Will Henry Jones said the whole thing was illegal. The republicans of the house also declined to take part in the election, and most of them left the hall during the joint session. The roll call showed 95 present, and the three nominees of Wednesday night's caucus, Henry George, James M. Richardson and Edward Finnell, were placed in nomination by Representative Trimble and all three were voted for at the same time, each receiving 95 votes, and each was declared elected.

FRANKFORT, March 12.—SENATE—Senator Elmore asked Friday that the conference committee on the school book bill make a report. In the debate that followed hot words passed between Bronston and Elmore, but peacemakers kept them apart. The governor's veto of the house bill repealing those sections of the anti-mob law that authorize the employment of guards to protect property was then taken up and, on motion to refer the veto it was postponed until Saturday. The house bill to appropriate $5,400 to buy 34 acres of land for Lakewood asylum passed. Yeas, 33; nays, 4. House bill requiring the appointment of one female physician at each asylum passed. Yeas, 26; nays, 11. The Tracy house bill defining what shall constitute embezzlement, was defeated. The house bill to require clerks to make actual copies of records before they can charge for a copy was defeated.

HOUSE—The house went into the senate order Friday and had a sure-enough hammer-and-tongs scrap, but it came up without any personalities. A regular fist fight took place between Depp, the populist from Barren county, and Jack Mills, of Clarke county. Mills came near using a knife on Depp. The senate local option bill that makes the county the unit in voting out whisky, instead of the precinct, was practically killed when, by a vote of 36 yeas to 51 nays, the house declined to recommit it to a committee with leave to report at any time. The bill now has to go into the orders of the day behind dozens of other bills and can not be reached except by a two-thirds vote, which it can never get. The Goebel election bill was reported by Senator Voiers as having passed the senate over the governor's veto, and it was taken up at once, debate shut off by the previous question being ordered, and a vote taken on the passage. It passed. Several men tried to explain their votes, but were howled down, and their voices drowned out by shouts and handclapping.

They Want the Drummers.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., March 13.—The commercial travelers of Louisville are trying to secure the national convention of the Travelers' Protective association for 1899 for Louisville. Post 8 will give a smoker Saturday night, at which plans will be devised.

Over the Veto.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 13.—The house passed the Desha bill repealing the substantial parts of the anti-mob law, the veto notwithstanding. The vote on the passage of the bill over the veto stood yeas 68, nays 32. This was a strictly party vote.

Horace Lane, aged 10, of Wickliff, weighs 240 pounds.

Mumps and whooping cough have got Robertson county.

The police are having trouble trying to enforce the curfew law in Paducah.

Toll-gate raiders opened up in Bath county again last week. Two gates were demolished.

Kentucky distillers are as far as ever from a consolidation, say distillers from Louisville.

Two little children of John Bruce and David McGowan, near Princeton, were roasted alive.

The Union County Fair Company, has given up the ghost and will sell its grounds in April.

M. C. Russell was drawn for jury duty at Louisville, but was found to be a woman and was excused.

Kentucky has been defined to be a state where the corn is full of kernels, and the colonels full of corn.

William Mackey, a Lawreneburg boy, was injured by the explosion of a railroad torpedo, and will probably die.

The little daughter of Forrest Adcock, of Carroll county, was fatally burned. Her clothing caught fire from the grate.

There is much excitement in Ohio county over the burning of 2 barns and the incendiary will probably be lynched if caught.

James Middleton, school teacher of Hardin, was handing his brother a pistol, when it was accidentally discharged, killing James.

Cecil Williams, 18, of Fulton, was snapping an old pistol he did not know was loaded, and shot Beda Norman, 12, through the head.

Alex Moore, colored, was arrested near Newcastle for stealing of Church Bro., liverymen, of Frankfort, a trotting horse, valued at $500.

Thomas Colley, a farmer, of Christian county, sustained a fall, fracturing both legs. Blood-poisoning set up, and both limbs had to be amputated.

A new trial was refused Amos Riggs, recently convicted at Maysville of murdering W. R. Boyd and son. Riggs is credited with having killed eight men.

Fannie Baker, a middle-aged woman prisoner in the Henderson jail for a minor offense, deliberately stuffed her skirts into a stove and burned herself to death.

Martin Stevens, of Henderson, is seventy years old and has never taken a drink of water that he remembers. His drink is beer and occasionally a little wine.

William Ledger, 83, charged with moonshining is confined in Covington jail. He was arrested in Johnson county, and is the oldest moonshiner in the history of Kentucky.

Waller Rodes, trustee of Mrs. Annie George, has purchased the Isaac P. Shelby homestead farm, near Lexington, with its improvements, consisting of 400 acres, at $75 an acre.

While engaged in splitting rails in Christian county, F. W. Fletcher accidentally killed the fourteen-year-old son of Thomas Dunning by striking him on the head with a maul.

Directors of the Mt. Sterling and Owingsville turnpike have offered $500 for information leading to the arrest of any of the men who attempted to blow up a part of the roadbed with dynamite.

A. B. Riggs, administrator of Harry L. Riggs, has filed suit in the Kenton Circuit Court against the C. & O. Railroad Company, John Devine, John Burns, L. D. Rich and J. H. Detter, employes of that company, for $25,000 for the death of Riggs.

A strange accident is reported from Logan county. Mrs. Lizzie Bowers, wife of a farmer near Lewisburg, went out to ring the bell for the farm hands to come to dinner, and the clapper from the bell fell out and struck her on the head. Her skull was fractured, and she fell to the ground insensible, where she lay until the men came to the house. She has suffered a great deal, but will probably recover.

Officers are stirring up the "spud" vendors at London. The Kentuckian says: "The whisky men are catching it hot. J. W. Goff was fined to the amount of $150, with 25 or 30 cases yet against him. J. N. Mitchell got a $50 fine for selling Jamaica ginger, and his wife $20 for selling cigarettes. Twenty-five cases were made against Mat Morgan for whisky selling, also five or six cases against different parties."

CROP AND STOCK.

The lamb crop in Woodford county will be [illegible] says the Midway Clipper.

Ed L. Robinson [illegible] to New York parties a span [illegible] scalding for $1,200.—Georgetown Times.

The Richmond Register reports a gray bronze turkey weighing forty-nine and a half pounds and says it could have been forced to fifty-five pounds.

Lucas Moore, Commissioner of Agriculture, says that the Kentucky wheat crop will be good this year, except in the Western part of the State. A large acreage of tobacco will be planted.

Two thousand colored farmers attended the seventh annual negro conference at Tuskegee, Ala. Resolutions were adopted urging training in agriculture along with the other education of the race. The purchase of lands is also urged.

A crop of tobacco, consisting of 33,220 pounds, belonging to Ferguson & Pedicord, of Centreville, was sold to Edward Blair, agent for Liggett & Myers at Cynthiana, at 14 cents from the ground up. This tobacco was raised on eighteen acres.—Winchester Democrat.

Men who are handling good cattle have not been complaining of the business. There is always profit in them. Whenever the cattle market is depressed it is the poor stuff which suffers; the profits are so slight that they are easily annihilated.—Farmers Home Journal.

The Post said of the Cincinnati tobacco market of last Wednesday: "Farmers cheerd and embraced each other over their good luck. There was a general shout when the Harris brothers, farmers, obtained $4300 at the Farmers and Shipping Warehouse for the product of 13 acres of land. Such a valuable agricultural yield had been equaled only once. It was during the Civil War. The Harris expenses did not exceed $300.

The analysis made of the crop movement by Secretary Hester, of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, confirms the estimates of an extraordinary yield. Already, with only six months of the cotton year gone, 141,000 bales more have been marketed than reported for the whole twelve months of 1894-95, the "ten million year." It is now reasonably certain that the whole crop will not fall under 11,000,000 bales, and it may go much higher.

The shortage of slop-feed cattle in Nelson and adjoining counties this season will be fully 60 per cent. Many of the large distilleries and nearly all the smaller ones are not in operation, and those that are operating are running at greatly reduced capacity; this naturally reduces the supply of slop, and consequently [illegible] cattle fed. These are now being fed at the distilleries in Anderson county, including Athertonville, about 2,000 head, where herctofore 5,000 or 6,000 cattle are fed each season.

GEN. ROSECRANS, one of the best fighting Generals of the federals in the rebellion, died at Los Angeles, California, on the 11th inst. He was the sole survivor of the Generals of the civil war.

GOV. BRADLEY has done considerable work with his veto ax this winter, and at one time he had as many as eight veto messages lying on his table, but with all this great dislike of the work being turned out by the Legislature, his association with it has been much pleasanter than it was with its Republican predecessor, which distinguished itself by making Bill Deboe UnitedStates Senator.

THE Covington Post says that John T. Hodge, present Circuit Judge of Campbell county and C. J. Helm his predecessor, will use their influence agianst the reelection of Congressman Berry, and that Judge Helm may be an opposing candidate. These two young men, who appear to think that the political world and all therein contained, belongs to them, have been very anxious, for several years, to enter as candidates for Congressional honors, but have received no encouragement from those whom they desire to represent, and they may as well haul down their lighting rods again for if the rural portion of the district does not furnish the next Democratic candidate for Congress, the Tall Poplar of the Licking will be renominated and reelected. He is the only candidate in Covington or Newport that has any hold on the country, where the voters will be unwilling to exchange him for Helm, Hodge or any one in their locality.

THE NEW WAY.

WOMEN used to think "female diseases" could only be treated after "local examinations" by physicians. Dread of such treatment kept thousands of modest women silent about their suffering. The introduction of Wine of Cardui has now demonstrated that nine-tenths of all the cases of menstrual disorders do not require a physician's attention at all. The simple, pure taken in the privacy of a woman's own home insures quick relief and speedy cure. Women need not hesitate now. Wine of Cardui requires no humiliating examinations for its adoption. It cures any disease that comes under the head of "female troubles"—disordered menses, falling of the womb, "whites," change of life. It makes women beautiful by making them well. It keeps them young by keeping them healthy. $1.00 at the drug store.

McELREE'S

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

W. I. ADDISON, M.D., Cary, Miss., says: "I use Wine of Cardui extensively in my practice and find it a most excellent preparation for female troubles."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 23, 1898. NO. 22.

CONGRESS declares war—not the President.

UNCLE SAM claims that he has 10,000,000 braves.

THE pool rooms are going to resume business in Covington again.

SOMEBODY will make a great big wad of money out of this war racket.

THE Governor's veto mill did not cease to grind for several days after the legislature adjourned.

SPAIN, like Aesop's frog, has inflated herself to a bigness that will undoubtedly prove suicidal.

THE effort to attach the lepers and their country to the United States is making headway very slowly.

IF Congress determines to declare war it should notify the Montgomery in time for her to clear the Havana harbor.

THE people of Japan propose entering upon a political reform that will reform, viz: put in office others than politicans.

THE benevolent people of Cincinnati, sent a car load, 24,000 pounds, of provisions to the starving Cubans, last week.

EMMET ORR, having distinguished himself as a law maker this winter has returned to the editorial tripod of the Owen News.

SINCE the adjournment of the Legislature many of those who were singing its praises early in the session, are cursing it fore and aft.

IT is said that Senator Goebel will make a swing around the State early in the spring to ascertain the condition of his political fences.

THE small pox is giving some of the towns in the mountains considerable trouble, and it is likely to be communicated to the interior towns.

SPAIN'S theory is that the Maine disaster was caused by a can of tomatoes, fermenting. Tomatoes were never before accused of anything of that kind.

SPAIN wants to know why the United States is buying so many war ships. If Spain is not careful how she conducts herself she will be given the desired information in a most forcible way.

CONSUL GEN. LEE, besides being a statesman, seems to have the qualifications as a soldier not far short of those of his illustrious uncle, Robert E. Lee, and he only needs an opportunity to prove his ability.

ACCORDING to the Williamstown Courier an old fashioned, yellow pumpkin is a very profitable thing to have about a rural printing establishment, and the RECORDER is contemplating investing in four or five as soon as it can collect money enough to make the purchase.

THE Gubernatorial campaign of ex-Postmaster General John Wanamaker was opened in Pennsylvania, one night last week. His speech was a red hot attack on Senator Quay, and political bossism in general. If Wanamaker expects to make a fight against bossism. he certainly has no hopes of being elected by Republicans.

UNDER the Goebel law we could carry the State overwhelmingly next time, but not desiring such a disaster to again overtake our party in Kentucky, we have employed the ablest legal talent the State affords to demonstrate that the law is unconstitutional, so saieth the Republicans. Indeed these Republicans be strange people, politically.

THE Goebel election law is entitled to a fair trial, although the Republicans claim they have not been guilty of the election irregularities charged against them and which the law seeks to remedy, and therefore, the law will redound to their political intcrest. Do they want to be undcrstood as occupying the anomolous position of trying to get rid of a good thing?

MISS BELLE BERRY, of Jeffersonville, Ind., is a Republican candidate for Mayor, and proposes to purchase the suffrage of her townsmen on the day of the election, by standing at the polls and kissing every one who votes for her. Such a mixed lot of mouths as will be presented for osculatory claims will be calculated to destroy the health of the most robust. The woman, who is a grass widow, evidently wants the office.

GOOD ROADS.

[M. J. Crouch, of Union.]

Another way to get good roads would be for the county to assist private enterprise by giving so much a mile toward the construction of turnpikes. With proper management this could be done without increasing the present road tax at all. This plan has been operated successfully in a number of counties, and, to my personal knowledge, in Gallatin county, where it gave entire satisfaction.

Now, wouldn't it be good business and good common sense to put the money we have at our disposal, year by year, to the best use possible? The times are too hard, and money too scarce to throw away nearly $7,000 each year, or to undertake any extreme plans. Let us rather be conservative and apply to the public business the same economy, care and good judgment that marks the private management of the honest, successful man of business.

Suppose we continue our present management of the roads for ten years Does any one suppose they will be any better then than now? Surely no one can be so easily deceived. We have been working them, practically, the same way we are now, for more than five times ten years, and they are no better—even worse. What right have we to think they will be better if we work them as we have, in ten years from now? None whatever. In that time we will spend $70,000. Think of it! To spend $70,000 and have nothing to show for all that money but mud roads, is ridiculous. It is difficult for me to believe that the people of Boone county will be guilty of such folly. We are going that far fast enough, however, and will soon have measured off half the distance. It is true we have been spending as much, if not more, on those same mud roads for more than half a century. But then it was measured as time lost and work. Now that it is measured in dollars, we ought to see it plain enough. We do see it plain enough. But seeing a mistake and correcting one are two very different things. We have both seen and felt the folly of our old road methods. What we want now is action. As far as I am individually concerned, any good, business like plan that will give Boone county good roads and value received for every dollar spent, will obtain my hearty cooperation.

So far as my present information goes, I consider the first plan I suggested the best solution of the good road question. I am not contending for any particular plan, however; but for good roads only.

Perhaps the best way for the people of this county to decide what would be the best plan to place in operation, would be for each voting precinct to send delegates to a county convention. Then after due consideration of all conditions involved, some conscrative, business-like plan could be decided on and proper action taken to put it into execution. Now, let those who are in favor of good roads, all over the county, take this matter up, and kcep it up, until a good road system is obtained for old Boone. Let me hear from those who are in favor of doing something.

THE people of Ripley county, Indiana, says the Versailles Republican, demand that the search for the members of the Levi mob, be stopped. It says the people of the county have donc nothing to interfere with the investigation, while they have been reviled by the Governor, decided by the Attorney-General and lied on by the Indianapolis dailies. The Republican is hot under the collar because of the treatment the county has experienced at the hands of the high officials. It says that further efforts on the part of the State to detect the lynchers, will only prove vcxatious to the people.

IF the Goebel election law is sure to turn the State over to the Republicans, as they claim it will, why have they gone to the expense of employing those they conceive to be the ablest attorneys in the State to defeat it by showing that it is unconstitutional? It is clear from their action that the brains of the Republican party do not believe that the Goebel law will prove such a disastrous measure to the party that is responsible for it.

GOV. BRADLEY found several of the bills passed by the Legislature were in violation of that section of the constitution forbidding special legislation, and he killed them with a dose of veto.

President McKinley made a startling admission yesterday. When a caller informed him that he had some "fool friends" he promptly acknowledged that such was the case, but did not furnish a schedule.—Washington Special to Chicago Record.

IN his answer to Congressman Colson's speech in the House, one day last week, Congressman Wheeler said, in reference to Colson's denial that there were frauds committed in the Eleventh Kentucky district in 1896:

"In 1894," said Mr. Wheeler, "Mr. Colson received 12,518 votes. At the same time Mr. Hendrick, my predecessor, was elected, receiving 13,912 votes. In 1896 Mr. Colson received 22,404 votes and I received 14,808 votes. In the Eleventh distriot an increase of 7,760 votes, and in the First an increase of but 806 votes. It occurs to me that nothing short of unblushing effrontery would nerve this man to call attention to the condition of affairs in his district in comparison with my own when confronted by figures that can not lic. But that is not all. In 1896 there were 29,166 Republican votes polled in the Eleventh district, and in 1897 there were 21,801 votes polled, a difference of 8,365. In 1892 the Democratic vote of Kentucky was 175,461 and the Republican vote 135,441. In 1896 the total Democratic vote was 217,840, and the total Republican vote 218,161, an increase in the Democratic vote of 42,000 and an increase in the Republican vote of 82,000; and yet the gentleman comes on the floor and complains of Democratic fraud in Kentucky State elections."

IT is a pity that Kentucky, out of her long array of very able attorneys, cannot select one who can handle the knotty legal problems that are constantly being prescnted at the law department of the State government. For many years it has been too often necessary for Kentucky to hire a lawyer to assist her Attorney-General in the duties of his office.

CROP AND STOCK.

Bath county has a fine prospect for a crop of wheat.

Clover [illegible] have come up nicely, but se[illegible]zes may injure it yet.

The number and area of tobacco beds sowed in Bath county are unprecedented.

George C. Graddy, wheat buyer of Versailles, is buying all the '98 crops he can at 65 cents a bushel. Last week he bought in Woodford and Fayette counties 1,645 acres at the price named.

The farmers of Adams county, Ohio, are elated over the good prices they are realizing on their '97 crop of tobacco, and are making preparations to set out the largest acreage in the history of the county.

W. C. Rogers shipped to George Gould, of Harper, Kansas, one day last week 86 head of short horn cattle for which he received $2,400. He sold to Shelby Harbeson, of Lexington, a horse for $220.—Lebanon Enterprise.

Mr. H. C. Buford, of Henry county, about a month ago, bought a crop of tobacco of 8,000 pounds at 6 cents round. This week he sold it at the Peoples House, Louisville, at an average of 10½ cents round.—Farmers Home Journal.

The fruit trees in this section are unusually advanced toward the blossom. Much fear is expressed that a freeze in the near future will injure our fruit prospects. Let us hope, however, that our fears will not be realized.—Owen News.

More tobacco will be put out in Adams county this year than ever before. The rise in the price of the weed has put new life in the growers, and they have begun preparing beds to grow plants.—West Union (Ohio) Defender.

Central Kentucky wheat millers met at Lexington, and discussed the wheat prospects. It was agreed that there is 20 per cent. increase in acreage over last year, and that the condition is as good. There was found to be plenty of old wheat still on hand.

Men who are handling good cattle have not been complaining of the business. There is always a profit in them. Whenever the cattle market is depressed it is the stuff which suffers; the profits are so slight that they are easily annihilated.—Farmers Home Journal.

BLANCHE K. BRUCE, colored, Register of the Treasury, died in Washington, D. C., on the 17th. He was born a slave, and commenced his political career in Mississippi, the first office to which he was elected being Sheriff. In 1865 he was elected U. S. Senator, and in 1881 President Garfield appointed him Register of the Treasury, and later Recorder of Deeds for the District of Columbia. He had held the Register's office under an appointment from President McKinley, about six months. As to ability Bruce was considered next after Fred Douglas. The death of Bruce makes another opening for W. A. Gaines, Covington's colored statesman, whom Bruce defeated for the place. Gaines has been in Washington practically ever since McKinley's inauguration, chasing offices, but, so far, has been unable to capture one. He will again ask to be appointed Register of the Treasury.

THE Boston Transcript has not forgotton the position some of the leading Republican journals of the country occupied on the Cuban question previous to the present administration taking charge. It says: "We could name a dozen Republican papers that were clamorous for the granting of belligerent rights to the insurgents a year and two years ago, when they were anxious to discredit Cleveland's courage and patriotism, and that are now exuding coolness like a refrigerator, panegyrizing President McKinley's 'prudence' and deploring the effect of the war scare upon the the market valuc of stock."

A public sale of the personal effects of the Mercer county Society Shakers was held at Pleasant Hill. Only about sixty members of the once flourishing community now survive, and they are advanced in years.

Doc Rice, of Bellevue, has been employed by a company to piliot a boat on the Youkon. He expects to leave for the northwest about the middle of next month.

The river was rising an inch an hour yesterday.

THE JOURNEY OF HAGAR,

With Ishmael, Through the Desert and the Lesson It Teaches.

Footsore, Weary and Thirsty Abraham's Servant Looked to Heaven for Nourishment and Found It—Interesting Sermon by Rev. Talmage, D. D.

Dr. Talmage's sermon Sunday was Gen., xxi., 19: "And God opened her eyes, and she saw a well of water; and she went and filled the bottle with water and gave the lad drink."

Morning breaks upon Beer-sheba. There is an early stir in the house of old Abraham. There has been trouble among the domestics. Hagar, an assistant in the household, and her son, a brisk lad of 16 years, have become impudent and insolent, and Sarah, the mistress of the household, puts her foot down very hard and says that they will have to leave the premises. They are packing up now. Abraham, knowing that the journey before his servant and her son will be very long and across desolate places, in the kindness of his heart sets about putting up some bread and a bottle with water in it. It is a very plain lunch that Abraham provides, but I warrant you there would have been enough of it had they not lost their way. "God be with you!" said old Abraham, as he gave the lunch to Hagar, and a good many charges as to how she should conduct the journey. Ishmael, the boy, I suppose, bounded away in the morning light. Boys always like a change. Poor Ishmael! He has no idea of the disasters that are ahead of him. Hagar gives one long, lingering look on the familiar place where she had spent so many happy days, each scene associated with the pride and joy of her heart, young Ishmael.

The scorching noon comes on. The air is stifling and moves across the desert with insufferable suffocation. Ishmael, the boy, begins to complain and lies down, but Hagar rouses him up, saying nothing about her own weariness or the sweltering heat; for mothers can endure anything. Trudge, trudge, trudge. Crossing the dead level of the desert, how wearily and slowly the miles slip! A tamarind that seemed hours ago to stand only just a little ahead, inviting travelers to come under its shadow, now is as far off as ever, or seemingly so. Night drops upon the desert, and the travelers are pillowless. Ishmael, very weary, I suppose, instantly falls asleep. Hagar, as the shadows of the night begin to lap over each other—Hagar hugs her weary boy to her bosom and thinks of the fact that it is her fault that they are in the desert. A star looks out, and ever falling tear is kissed with a sparkle. A wing of wind comes over the hot earth and lifts the locks from the fevered brow of the boy. Hagar sleeps fitfully and in her own dreams travels over the weary day, and half awakes her son by crying out in her sleep, "Ishmael! Ishmael!"

And so they go on day after day and night after night, for they have lost their way. No path in the shifting sands; no sign in the burning sky. The sack empty of flour; the water gone from the bottle. What shall she do? As she puts her fainting Ishmael under a stunted shrub of the arid plain, she sees the bloodshot eye, feels the hot hand, and watches the blood bursting from the cracked tongue, and there is a shriek in the desert of Beersheba, "We shall die! We shall die!" Now, no mother was ever made strong enough to hear her son cry in vain for a drink. Hagar, she had cheered her boy by promising a speedy end of the journey, and even smiled upon him when she felt desperately enough. Now there is nothing to do but place him under a shrub and let him die. She had thought that she would sit there and watch until the spirit of her boy would go away forever, and then she would breathe out her own life on his silent heart; but as the boy begins to claw his tongue in agony of thirst and struggle in distraction, and begs his mother to slay him, she can not endure the spectacle. She puts him under a shrub and goes off a bow-shot, and begins to weep until all the desert seems sobbing, and her cry strikes clear through the heavens; and an angel of God comes out on a cloud, and looks down upon the appalling grief and cries: "Hagar, what aileth thee?" She looks up and she sees the angel pointing to a well of water, where she fills the bottle for the lad. Thank God! Thank God!

I learn from this oriental scene, in the first place, what a sad thing it is when people do not know their place and get too proud for their business! Hagar was an assistant in that household, but she wanted to rule there. She ridiculed and jeered until her son, Ishmael, got the same tricks. She dashed out her own happiness and threw Sarah into a great fret, and if she had stayed much longer in that household she would have upset calm Abraham's equilibrium. My friends, one-half of the trouble in the world today comes from the fact that people do not know their place, or, finding their place, will not stay in it. When we come into the world there is always a place ready for us. A place for Abraham. A place for Sarah. A place for Hagar. A place for Ishmael. A place for you and a place for me.

Our first duty is to find our sphere; our second is to keep it. We may be born in a sphere far off from the one for which God finally intends us. Sixtus V. was born on the low ground and was a swineherd; God called him up to wave a scepter. Ferguson spent his early days in looking after sheep; God called him up to look after stars and be a shepherd watching the flocks of light on the hillsides of heaven. Hogarth began by engraving pewter pots; God raised him to stand in the enchanted realm of a painter. The shoemaker's bench held Bloomfield for a little while; but God raised him to sit in the chair of a philosopher and Christian scholar. The soap boiler of London could not keep his son in that business, for God had decided that Hawley was to be one of the greatest astronomers of England.

On the other hand we may be born in a sphere a little higher than that for which God intends us. We may be born in a castle, and play in a costly conservatory, and feed high-bred pointers, and angle for gold fish in artificial ponds, and be familiar with the princess; yet God may better have fitted us for a carpenter's shop, or dentist's forceps, or a weaver's shuttle, or a blacksmith's forge. The great thing to find just the sphere for which God intended us, and then to occupy that sphere, and occupy it forever. Here is a man God fashioned to make a plow. There is a man God fashioned to make a constitution. The man who makes the plow is just as honorable as the man who makes the constitution. There is a woman who was made to fashion a robe, and yonder is one intended to be a queen and wear it. It seems to me that in the one case as in the other, God appoints the sphere, and the needle is just as respectable in His sight as the scepter. I do not know but that the world would long ago have been saved if some of the men out of the ministry were in it, and some of those who are in there out of it. I really think that one-half the world may be divided into two quarters—those who have not found their sphere, and those who having found it, are not willing to stay there. How many are struggling for a position a little higher than that which God intended them. The bonnet woman wants to be mistress. Hagar keeps crowding Sarah. The small wheel of a watch beautifully work treading its golden pathway wants to be the balance-wheel, and the sparrow with chagrin drops into the brook because it can not, like the eagle, cut a circle under the sun.

In the Lord's army we all want to be brigadier generals! The sloop says: "More mast, more tonnage, more canvas. Oh, that I were a topsail schooner, or a full-rigged brig, or a Cunard steamer!" And so the world is filled with cries of discontent, because we are not willing to stay in the place where God put us and intended us to be. My friends, be not too proud to do anything God tells you to do; for the lack of a right disposition in this respect the world is strewn with wondering Hagars and Ishmaels. God has given each one of us a work to do.

You carry a scuttle of coal up that dark alley. You distribute that Christian tract. You give $10,000 to the missionary cause. You for 15 years sit with chronic rheumatism, displaying the beauty of Christian submission. Whatever God calls you to, whether it win hissing or huzza; whether to walk under triumphal arch or lift the sot out of the ditch; whether it be to preach on a Pentecost or tell some wanderer of the street of the mercy of the Christ of Mary Magdalene; whether it be to weave a garland for a laughing child on a spring morning and call her a Mary Queen, or to comb out the tangled locks of a waif of the street and cut up one of your old dresses to fit her out for the sanctuary—do it, and do it and do it right away. Whether it be a crown or yoke, do not fidget. Everlasting honors upon those who do their work, and do their whole work, and are contented in the sphere in which God has put them; while there is wandering, and exile, and desolation, and wilderness for discontented Hagar and Ishmael.

Again, I find in this Oriental scene a lesson of sympathy with woman when she goes forth trudging in the desert. What a great change it was for this Hagar! There was the tent, and all the surroundings of Abraham's house, beautiful and luxurious, no doubt. Now she is going out into the hot sands of the desert. Oh, what a change it was! And in our day we often see the wheel of fortune turn. Here is some one who lived in the very bright home of her father. She had everything possible to administer to her happiness—plenty at the table, music in the drawing room, welcome dress at the door. She is led forth to life by some one who can not appreciate her. A dissipated soul comes and takes her out in the desert. Cruelties blot out all the lights of that home circle. Harsh words wear out her spirits. The high hopes that shone out over the marriage altar while the ring was being set, and the vows given, and the benediction pronounced, have all faded with the orange blossoms, and there she is to-day broken hearted, thinking of past joys and present desolation and coming anguish. Hagar in the wilderness?

Here is beautiful home. You can not think of anything that can be added to it. For years there has not been the suggestion of a single trouble. Bright and happy children fill the house with laughter and song. Books to read. Pictures to look at. Lounges to rest on. Cup of domestic joy full and running over. Dark night drops. Pillow hot. Pulses flutter. Eyes close. And the foot whose well-known steps on the door sill brought the whole household out at eventide crying: "Father's coming!" will never sound on the door sill again. A long, deep grief plowed through all the brightness of domestic life. Paradise lost. Widowhood. Hagar in the wilderness.

How often is it we see the weak arm of woman conscripted for this battle with the rough world. Who is she, going down the street in the early light of the morning, pale with exhausting work, not half slept out with the slumbers of last night, tragedies of suffering written all over her face, her tuneless eyes looking far ahead, as though for the coming of some other trouble? Her parents call her Mary, or Bertha, or Agnes, on the day when they held her up to the font and the Christian minister sprinkled on the infant's face the washings of a holy baptism. Her name is changed now. I hear it in the shuffle of the worn out shoes. I see it in the figure of the faded calico. I find it in the lineaments of the woe-begone countenance. Not Mary, nor Bertha, nor Agnes, but Hagar in the wilderness. May God have mercy upon woman in her toils, her struggles, her hardships, her desolation, and may the great heart of divine sympathy inclose her forever!

Again, I find in this oriental scene the fact that every mother leads forth tremendous destinies.

You say: "That isn't an unusual scene, a mother leading her child by the hand." Who is it that she is leading? Ishmael, you say. Who is Ishmael?

A great nation is to be founded—a nation so strong that it stands for thousands of years against all the armies of the world. Egypt and Assyria thunder against it, but in vain. Gaulus brings up his army, and his army is smitten. Alexander decides on a campaign, brings up his [illegible] and dies.

For a long while that nation monopolizes the learning of the world. It is the nation of Arabs. Who founded it? Ishmael, the lad that Hagar led into the wilderness. She had no idea she was leading forth such destinies. Neither does any mother. You pass along the street and see and pass boys and girls who will yet make the earth quake with their influence.

Who is that boy at Sutton Pool, Plymouth, Eng., barefooted, wading down into the slush and slime, until his bare foot comes upon a piece of glass and he lifts it, bleeding and pain-struck? That wound in the foot decides that he be sedentary in his life, decides that he be a student. That wound by the glass in the foot decides that he shall be John Kitto, who shall provide the best religious encyclopedia the world has ever had provided, and, with his other writings as well, throwing a light upon the Word of God such as has come from no other man in this century. Oh, mother, mother, that little hand that wanders over your face may yet be lifted to hurl thunderbolts of war or drop benedictions! That little voice may blaspheme God in the grogshop or cry "Forward!" to the Lord's hosts as they go out for their last victory. My mind this morning leaps 30 years ahead, and I see a merchant prince of New York. One stroke of his pen brings a ship out of Canton. Another stroke of his pen brings a ship in Madras. He sits in all the money markets of the world. Who is he? He sits on Sabbaths beside you in church. My mind leaps 30 years forward from this time, and I find myself in a relief association. A great multitude of Christian women have met together for a generous purpose. There is one woman in that crowd who seems to have the confidence of all the others, and they all look up to her for counsel and for her prayers. Who is she? This afternoon you will find her in the Sabbath-school, while the teacher tells her that Christ, who clothed the naked, and fed the hungry, and healed the sick. My mind leaps forward 30 years from now, and I find myself in an African jungle, and there is a missionary of the cross addressing the natives, and their dusky countenances are irradiated with the glad tidings of great joy and salvation. Who is he? Did you not hear his voice to-day in the opening song of your church service? You can see mother reckless of her influence, rattling on toward destruction, garlanded for the sacrifice with unseemly mirth and godlessness, dancing on down to perdition, taking her children in the same direction, preparing them for a life of frivolity, I can not help but say: "There they go—there they go, Hagar and Ishmael!" I tell you there are wilder deserts than Beer-sheba in many of the fashionable circles of this day. Dissipated parents leading dissipated children. Worldly mothers leading ensnaring avaricious children. Prayerless parents leading prayerless children. They go through every street, up every dark alley, into every cellar, along every highway. Hagar and Ishmael! And while I pronounce their names it seems like the moaning of the desert wind: "Hagar and Ishmael!" I learn one more lesson from this Oriental scene, and that is that every wilderness has a well in it. Hagar and Ishmael gave up to die. Hagar's heart sank within her as she heard her child crying: "Water! Water! Water!" "Ah!" she says, "my darling, there is no water. This is a desert!" And then God's angel said from the cloud: "What aileth thee, Hagar?" And she looked up and saw Him pointing to a well of water, where she filled the bottle for the lad. Blessed be God, that there is in every wilderness a well, if you only know how to find it—fountains for all these thirsty souls. On that last day, on that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried: "If any man thirst, let him come to me and drink." All these other fountains you find are mere mirages of the desert. Paracelsus, you know, spent his time in trying to find out the elixir of life—a liquid, which, if taken, would keep one perpetually young in this world, and would change the aged back again to youth. Of course he was disappointed; he found not the elixir. But here I tell you of the elixir of everlasting life bursting from the throne of God, and of that drinking that water you shall never get old, and you will never be sick, and you will never die. "Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters." Ah, here is a man who says: "I believe all you say, but I have been trudging along in the wilderness, and can't find the fountain." Do you know the reason? I will tell you. You never looked in the right direction. "Oh," you say, "I have looked everywhere. I have looked north, south, east and west, and I haven't found the fountain." Why, you are not looking in the right direction at all.

HUMAN MONSTERS.

Monstrosities in Animal Life Produced by Japanese Ingenuity.

Perhaps the most remarkable interference with nature in animal life up to date has been accomplished by the Japanese, who produce their freaks in the way of goldfishes with two tails, telescope eyes and abnormal fins by practicing certain monkey tricks with the eggs of the fishes. The eggs are subjected to a process of shaking, the result being to disorganize the germs more or less and modify their cellular development. As a rule, the eggs thus treated are destroyed—that is to say, the germs are killed in them. But now and then one is hatched and yields a finny monstrosity. Such freaks are bred together, and thus are obtained new and queer varieties. It is in this way, indeed, that all of the double-tailed and telescopic-eyed goldfishes have been originated.

The living germ of any animal begins as a single cell, which grows by splitting up and multiplying. Viewed under the microscope, it is a very simple object, and the reason why it develops in one case into a chicken and in another case into a lion is hidden behind the veil which conceals from human gaze the mystery of creation. But if the germ is interfered with, so as to disturb the normal subdivision of its cells, there will result a monster, supposing that the injury has not been so great as to destroy the life. This is said to have been accomplished artificially with the eggs of hens. It is [illegible], owing to [illegible] accidents, of all monstrous births among human beings and animals. Some very curious experiments have been made with the eggs of sea urchins, which being cut in half hatch out little sea urchins that are perfect in all respects, but only about half size.

The famous Siamese twins were monsters, in the sense here referred to. Millie Christine, the two-headed nightingale, was a similar freak, but the joining of flesh was made larger. Some human monsters born into this world are much more extraordinary. No attempt will be made to discuss them because the subject is not pleasant. Abnormal calves, with two heads, six legs and various other deformities, are familiar enough. Cows sometimes develop horns on their shoulders. Landseer made studies of one or two such. Horns, being merely modified epidermis, are apt to occur where they do not belong. Even human beings are sometimes afflicted with growths of the sort. In a recent number of Science mention was made of a cock that had spurs on its head.

During the last few years Prof. F. E. L. Beal, of the department of agriculture, has bred cats with a view to the multiplication of their toes. Pussies with six toes and even seven toes on one or more of the feet are not rare, of course. The conclusion arrived at by Prof. Beal, as the result of experiments, was that there was hardly any limit to the number of toes that could be cultivated on a cat. Occasionally human beings have extra digits. They occur in various animals and in two ways, i. e., either by a splitting of the digit into two from its base, or by a budding-off from a finger or toe. It is a very curious deformity, and is to some extent hereditary. Darwin speaks of a six-fingered family, in which the peculiarity was transmitted through generation after generation. There is a family of two-legged cats, by the way, in Washington. Though their hind legs are aborted, they are very active, running about on their front legs.—Rene Bache, in Boston Transcript.

IODINE AS A DETECTIVE.

It Will Show If Paper Has Been Moistened or Rubbed.

Another use has been found for the vapor of iodine. This is the discovery of alterations in manuscripts. Prof. Bruylats, of Louvain, noticed that when a sheet of paper which had been sized and finished was moistened and, after being thoroughly dried, exposed to the vapor of iodine, the part which had been moistened became violet, while the unmoistened portion became brownish yellow.

It appears that when a manuscript has been altered, both the nature and extent of the alteration can be determined by the use of iodine vapor. Those parts which have been rubbed become brownish on exposure, and when the rubbed part is subsequently moistened it becomes blue, the depth of the color depending on the length of time that the exposure had been allowed to proceed.

The process is believed to be due to the well-known fact that when iodine is put on starch the starch becomes blue, and the difference in the tint is dependent on the fact that a portion of the starch which is contained in the size has been removed in the process of the alteration of the manuscript.

The same process will reveal the extent of pencil marks which have been erased by rubbing. The iodine vapor brings out the lines which have been traced by the pencil point disturbing the surface of the paper, even though the rubbing has been so carefully done that it has not removed any of the surface of the paper itself.—Odds and Ends.

Keeping Up Appearances.

Husband (suddenly waking up at dead of night)—What in the world was that noise?

Wife (calmly)—It's all right, dear. The guests of the Astor ball are just coming home, and I slipped down and gave our front door a slam, so the neighbors would think we were there. —N. Y. Weekly.

A Compensating Condition.

"I deceived you about one thing," murmured the new wife to her husband. "I am older than I told you."

"Don't mention it, my angel. I find that your fortune is fully twice as large as I had supposed."—Detroit Free Press.

BLAND TO THE FARMER.

How the Agriculturists Have Been Robbed by the Gold Standard.

It is admitted that all the prosperity depends upon the welfare of the agriculturists of the country. Conditions that will enable the agricultural people to prosper will bring prosperity to all. The Mississippi valley states are the backbone of our agricultural wealth. When they prosper the whole country will feel the impetus of prosperity. The valley states furnish the most of our agricultural products that are exported abroad and sold in foreign markets. These products are sold in foreign markets on the gold basis in competition with the world, and since gold has been going up from year to year, on account of the demonetization of silver in 1873, the average price of farm products, as measured in gold, has been going down. The gold standard advocates insist that we must have the gold standard here because Europe is on the gold standard. The farmers of this country export an enormous amount of farm products annually to be sold in Europe for gold. The price received there fixes the price here. The price received there in gold necessarily fixes the price to be received here in gold, and as long as we maintain the gold standard the price of our exports to gold standard countries will be fixed in those countries and not here. The low prices brought about by the gold standard is working a practical confiscation of all the surplus earnings of our agricultural people. After the payment of costs of production, they have nothing left to show for their labor and outlay. Europe is getting our farm products for nearly half the value they would be required to pay for them under the system of bimetallism. The value of our exports for 1897 was $1,099,743,554. Our imports were $742,631,350, leaving a balance of trade in our favor of $337,112,204. In 1896 our exports were $1,005,537,241; our imports were $631,579,556, leaving a balance of trade in our favor of $324,257,685. Thus in two years past, 1896 and 1897, our exports exceeded our imports $681,367,889. Under this bimetallic standard of valuation our balance of trade would have reached $1,000,000,000 in the last two years. Notwithstanding the balance of trade has been so largely in our favor, we have in those two years exported $34,334,771 more gold than we have imported. We have sold $100,000,000 of bonds during this period to maintain the gold standard at home. It will thus be seen that our interest account abroad more than absorbs the balance of trade in the most favorable years. From the best estimates obtainable, our debt abroad, in round numbers, is about $7,000,000,000. Interest on this at four per cent. amounts to $280,000,000. It is estimated that our people spend in travel in foreign countries not less than $100,000,000 every year; that the cost of our carrying trade, which we pay to foreigners, is not less than $100,000,000 more. These items added to the interest account before named would make our annual charges due to foreign countries $480,000,000, and this interest and other charges will increase instead of diminish. Under the bimetallic system, the balance of trade for the past two years would no doubt have liquidated these charges and left a good margin of balance of trade in our favor. These facts are alluded to to call attention to the difficulties under which our agricultural people labor as respects the prices of their products. They cannot prosper under falling prices, and prices will continue to fall with respect to our farm products as long as these prices are fixed and maintained upon the gold standard. The remedy for all this is the restoration of bimetallism in this country; the free coinage of silver at the rate of sixteen to one, and the free use of silver money, as well as gold, in the payment of all public and private debts. The restoration of the free coinage of silver in this issue would relieve the money market here and in Europe. The silver we would put in circulation would obviate the demand on our part for gold in proportion to the silver we coined and used as money. The strain upon European gold would be withdrawn. Every dollar we coined of silver would be the same as putting so much gold in circulation as money, for the reason that our country is a very large portion of the world; in fact, the dominant part; consequently, inasmuch as we are a part of the world, our money would be the money of the world. When we stopped our demand on the gold supply, thus draining the European countries of their gold, gold would remain there and flood those countries, thereby raising prices on everything we sold to them and increase the amount of gold our products would fetch in foreign markets. This increase in prices in foreign markets for our farm products would react so as to increase the prices at home. Our agricultural people and all others in this country would in that case do business on a rising market and not on a falling market. They would do a profitable business, whereas they are now doing a losing business.

R. P. BLAND.

——There is one thing about Senator Hanna which will have to be conceded. He didn't "beat about the bush" much when he was asked for his opinion about a war with Spain. He came right out and said there would be no war. He didn't hesitate to express his conviction that the disaster to the Maine was an accident. Of course, intelligent people understood from that the action and even the wishes of the administration depend on what the New York "financiers" want. He defies the people, and it would not be surprising to see him come out openly for the Cuban bond scheme. The troublesome thing for Mr. Hanna will be, though, to get a popular indorsement of his performance at the coming elections.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE MONEYED MEN.

They Are the Ones Who Profit Most When Times Grow Better.

Private advices from New England and New York indicate that prosperity is not present to any alarming extent, at least among the rank and file of the population. The factory hands have long had starvation wages, but in this year of republican prosperity even the small wage allowed them has been cut down by a tenth. And yet, the government reports show that New England, New York and Pennsylvania are the sections that have benefited most by the business operations of the last 20 years. There has been a steady flow of wealth from the west and south to these states on the eastern seaboard. The great railroad systems of the country are owned largely by capitalists living in these eastern sections, and the vast profits have been flowing eastward in a steady stream.

The New Engiander may put his thumbs into the armholes of his vest and proudly say: "See how rich we are growing. Why, sir, during the period from 1890 to 1895 our little state of Massachusetts gained in wealth to the extent of $317,000,000, while all of those great western states of Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, Utah, Arizona, Colorado, New Mexico, Texas, Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Missouri, Arkansas and Louisiana, combined, gained only a like sum." But if you ask him what part he has of this great prosperity he admits that he is as poor as ever, and that were it not for the statistics he would not know that his section of country had benefited by existing conditions. There are many people in New England as well as people in other sections of the country who would like to know where are the men with the money.

The fact is that no section of the country has benefited greatly by this accumulation of new millions, but the benefit has accrued to rich men residing in those most favored sections. The capitalists scattered through the east have reaped richly during the last 20 years. It is an error to suppose that the gold standard has benefited them only during the time of depression. It is a mistake to suppose that the gold standard robs the debtor only during the times that the sheriffs are active foreclosing the mortgages. The fact is that the gold standard is a robber standard during the whole term of its existence. The period from 1880 to 1890 was a period of great prosperity, or rather, of great business activity, and yet there was never a period when the wealth of the many passed more rapidly into the hands of the few. The general public mistook activity for prosperity. They believed because men were engaged in business that they were all making money.

But when, at the coming of the great crisis of 1893, men began to reread the records of the past decade, they found that business had been done at a loss and that the only commercial enterprises that had gained money were those founded and living by the loaning of money. Money alone had proved a good investment, because it had not shrunk in volume. The little army of money lenders in New York, Pennsylvania and New England clapped their hands on their pockets and declared that they had experienced unparalleled prosperity. They passed the word out to the multitude, and the latter, being unable to determine who had the money, were content to believe that the general public had been prosperous because they knew it must certainly have come into the community according to reports. Their votes at the last election proved their faith. The men with the money control the republican politics of the east. They control the newspapers of the east. They control to too great an extent the national administration. The question is forced upon us: "Shall the people rule or the men with the money?" It must be answered at the coming elections.

THE INGENIOUS MAN.

His Invention Was Forgotten in Time of Need.

He was a very ingenious man. He had made an invention which was of great value. He thought so, at least, if the world did not, and he had his invention patented. It was a combination camp-stool, cane and umbrella. The cane was the usual form of the invention. At a big parade nothing could be more convenient, and for an ordinary, unexpected rainstorm, what could be better? A man is sure to have his walking stick with him.

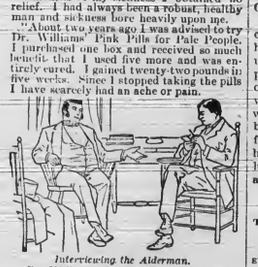
It was not so very long after the invention had been perfected that the man was out walking with his wife, and a sudden shower came up. There were no cars accessible, and the only thing to do was to run, and the umbrella was called into play with a vengeance, reaching the house hot, uncomfortable, and pretty wet.

"Well, we are here at last," said the man, drawing a long breath of relief.

"Yes," said the wife, disconsolately, "but I think I have ruined my new bonnet. And, John Smith," she added, suddenly, with a little scream, "what do you think you have done? You had that old invention of yours—cane-camp-stool-umbrella affair—in your hand all the time ready for an emergency, and forgot to use it."

The man tells the story, and thinks it is a great joke.—N. Y. Times.

GAINED 22 POUNDS IN 5 WEEKS



From the By-Stander, Macomb, Ill.

Alderman Louis W. Camp, of our city, has quite astonished his friends of late, by a remarkable gain in weight. He has gained 22 pounds in five weeks. Those of his friends who do not know the facts of his sickness will read with interest the following:

"I was broken down in health and utterly miserable," said Mr. Camp to our reporter. "I was unable to work much of the time and so badly afflicted with a form of stomach trouble that life was a veritable nightmare.

"I tried various remedies, but during the six months of my sickness I obtained no relief. I had always been a robust, healthy man and sickness bore heavily upon me.

"About two years ago I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I purchased one box and received so much benefit that I used five more and was entirely cured. I gained twenty-two pounds in five weeks. Since I stopped taking the pills I have scarcely had an ache or pain.

Interviewing the Alderman.

"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills restored me to health, and I most heartily recommend them.

AN UP-TO-DATE SAMSON.

As Exploited by the Dime Museum Barker.

"Ladies and gentlemen," began the brazen-lunged lecturer of the dime museum, "I have the honor to present to your kind attention Prof. Alonzo Biceps, the world-renowned strong man, whose prodigious performance has astounded and enraptured the various crowned heads of Europe, including the sultan of China and Koh-i-noor.

"The elegant gold plate which covers his entire breast is a decoration received from Queen Victoria, in grateful recognition of the professor's courage and presence of mind, when, during the recent jubilee celebration in London, the eight cream-colored horses attached to the royal carriage ran away and would inevitably have dumped her majesty into the River Thames had not the professor, with one blow of his powerful fist, broken the backs of the infuriated animals.

"Prof. Biceps will begin his performance by holding out at arm's length above his head a full-grown man, weighing 105 pounds, seated in a chair weighing 50 pounds, making a total of 205 pounds. This feat has never before been accomplished by one man simultaneously, and as it is a terrible strain upon the system cannot be encored unless everybody coughs up ten cents extra—which I trust you will all do.

"After that the professor will proceed to edify your understandings by an exact duplicate of the exhibition of physical impossibilities with which he took away the breaths of the kaiser of Germany and the emperor of Borneo.

"The modern Samson will then conclude his performance by supporting on his chest a platform bearing a harmonium and weights amounting to over 5,000 pounds. Right here I would like to observe in parenthesis that anybody who doubts the genuineness of these weights is at perfect liberty to do so, but I would earnestly advise him to refrain from giving audible expression to his misgivings unless he is desirous of having his thick head transformed into a calves' foot jelly."—N. SIMPLE BROTH.

The Proper Preparation of Nutritious Foods.

It is now known that beef tea and similar broths possess very little nutritive power. They are chiefly stimulants, and, though valuable for this purpose, they cannot be depended upon for food. The albuminous element of beef and mutton, like the albumen of white of egg, when placed in boiling water and violently boiled, merely toughens and does not dissolve in the water. Even when it simmers at the lowest temperature only a portion of the food value of the meat is imparted to the strained soup obtained from it. The most nutritious preparations are those broths in which the meat and vegetables are left in the soups to give body and substance to them. These broths must be made of lean, chopped beef or mutton, obtained from the leg or neck or some portion of the animal which is in constant use in life and through which the blood constantly flows to purify the muscle. Those portions of the animal are more wholesome than the tenderer but less nutritious portions, like the tenderloin and flank pieces, where the circulation is slow. Where an invalid is in too weak a condition to digest a broth thickened with the meat, and yet needs nutritious food, physicians now often order beef which is digested by certain chemical means so that all the nutritious portion of the muscle is left unimpaired.—N. Y. Tribune.

POPULARITY OF THE PETTICOAT

Materials That Are in Favor for This Garment.

The silk petticoat appears in all colors and every conceivable design. These luxuries are made in every grade of elegance, from the cheapest taffetas to the handsomest brocades. Taffetas are the most popular silks for the purpose, being more lively than heavier silks; besides, they are lighter and less expensive. The petticoat should be well cut, well hung and closely fitted across the front and hips, throwing the fullness directly in the back, and should have one or two flounces at the bottom to hold the dress skirt well out and in place. The fullness should be drawn from the hips to the back by means of a ribbon run through a casing.

While the silken petticoat is enjoying great popularity, the washable white skirt has lost none of its elegance, and has a dainty simplicity, even when ornately trimmed, of which the silk skirt cannot boast. White skirts are made of cambric, fine nainsook and Victoria lawn, trimmed in innumerable ways. For service the moreen petticoat is much worn, and is obtainable in all colors. It is not heavy, keeps its dressing well, and when trimmed with silk ruffles makes quite a dressy petticoat. For the stout woman the moreen should not be used across the abdomen and hips, but cotton sateen of the same shade substituted.—Katherine Howard, in Woman's Home Companion.

Hamburg Salad.

Beat one egg until well mixed, add three tablespoonfuls of water, three tablespoonfuls of tarragon vinegar, one-half a teaspoonful of white pepper and a quarter of a teaspoonful of dry mustard. Drop into this two tablespoonfuls of butter and stir over hot water until thick and smooth. Pour this while hot over one quart of shaved white cabbage and mix thoroughly. When cold sprinkle over it one teaspoonful of onion juice, one dessertspoonful of horseradish, one-half of a cupful of grated smoked beef and one cupful of cooked or canned shrimps, cut into small bits. Mix, stand away for an hour and serve.—Boston Herald.

Spring Medicine

These two words emphasize a necessity and indicate a remedy.

SPRING—the season when the blood is most impure as a result of the winter's closer confinement, higher living, slower action of the kidneys and liver; when humors of all kinds, boils, pimples and eruptions are most liable to appear; when the weak, languid condition of the whole bodily structure demands and welcomes help.

MEDICINE—that to which the millions turn at this season—Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The original and only preparation especially adapted to the present needs of the human family; that which makes the blood pure and clean, as shown by its thousands of wonderful cures of dreadful blood diseases; creates an appetite and cures dyspepsia, as shown by its "magic touch" in all stomach troubles; steadies and strengthens the nerves, as proved by people formerly nervous, now calm and self-possessed, thanks to

Hood's Sarsaparilla

America's Greatest Medicine, because it cures when all others fail. Be sure to get Hood's.

Only those who have been relieved of great suffering can fully appreciate the gratitude with which the testimonials overflow written in favor of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Just read this:

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—"My first experience with Hood's Sarsaparilla was when I used it as a tonic and spring medicine. It did me so much good my faith in its merits became very strong. About two years later I had a running sore on my foot. It developed into erysipelas and affected the entire limb. At that time I was Very Much Run Down,

as I had been troubled with dyspepsia. The drain on my system was so severe and my stomach was so weak I became a ready victim of malaria. I feared I could never regain my health. My stomach rebelled at the simplest food, and the medicines prescribed for me gave but little relief. I sent for a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I had taken this medicine but three days when I began to improve. Continuing with it, I am now better and stronger than I ever expected to be. It has purified my blood and given good circulation. I have had no return of my old troubles since." MRS. W. KANE, Media, Pa. Hood's Sarsaparilla is

LIVER MEDICINE CERTIFICATES.

Write us 1st How long you have known, used or sold Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine. 2nd State Diseases it cured. 3d Give names of those cured. 4th State the difference between its strength and action and the strength and action of J. H. Zeilin & Co.'s "Liver Regulator" and the Chattanooga Medicine Co.'s "Black Draught," both of which contain Wood y Bulbs of Roots and Stems of Herbs, and have sold at about 6 cents per package, and should not retail at over 10 cents if consumers are not imposed upon, while Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, made from the purest and most carefully selected Drugs, regardless of cost, with the Bulbs of Roots and Stems of the Herbs by our secret process extracted and thrown away, cannot be sold at less than 25 cents. The reason of the difference is this:

On June 30th, 1893, the Supreme Court enjoined J. H. Zeilin & Co. from manufacturing and selling a medicine under the name of "Dr. Simmons' Liver Medicine."

Zeilin's answer to our bill said, the medicine was designed as a cheap pecan medicine for the negroes of the Mississippi Valley." And Zeilin's manager testified in the case, and Zeilin's advertisements said "that all the Liver Medicine they make is made by the same formula." What more conclusive evidence could there be that all their Liver Medicine is "cheap negro medicine"?

Again, the United States Court, in the Zeilin case at Knoxville, Tenn., enjoined the old proprietors of the article now called "Black Draught" from perpetrating fraud by using the words constituting our trade name, and "Black Draught" was not known till after 1876; yet they falsely advertise that it was established in 1840, and filch our trade by allowing their customers to untruthfully represent it as the same as our genuine article, they giving color of truth to the deception by publishing the picture of a Dr. Simmons on their wrapper, thereby associating their article with our Dr. M. A. Simmons' Liver Medicine, which he established in 1840, and every package of which has borne his picture since 1869.

On receipt of letter enclosing a recently taken Photograph we will mail you a $1.00 Package Liver Medicine (FREE).

Mott Houston, your comrade of early days, wants you to tell him Mr. Ed., if Mr. McKinley should die would Mark Hanna still be President?—[Yes.—ED.]

An unusual number of wood sawings have helped the boys pass away the time lately. They have a jolly time—saw lots of wood and eat lots of dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tanner, of Gunpowder, will oblige several people in these parts if they will come over and beat Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Voshell playing euchre.

Larry Judge, of Jessamine county, was the guest of his brother, Tom, Thursday and Friday. He came to Boone for his supply of damson and cherry trees.

Necessity is said to be the mother of invention, and we were led to believe it after seeing some boys telling how long eggs had boiled by counting the pulse beats, allowing 70 to the minute.

Charley Cleek says, "between going to the pen and to Covington he would take the pen every time." We think if Charley means the pen at Frankfort, its more than likely when the saw the stripes and short hair loom up, his mind would undergo a change of grounds, and the cry would be ou to Covington.

Early arrivals at the capital Monday morniug were Messrs. Jas. Smith with a swelled jaw and two aching teeth; S. B.—John Rouse with a declaration of war posted on his countenance from having set up all night trying to make peace with the best thing out, "an aching tooth;" J. S. Mason with a wisdom tooth that was unwise enough to get ulcerated at the root. They interviewed Dr Adams about 9 o'clock and he sent them on their way rejoicing.

The "Union Blade" office was not the scene of a killing, but a war cloud hung over it one evening, last week, that looked dangerous. The E. in C. and the assistant E. in C. started a red hot argument about Spain and the Spaniards in general. The editor in chief said he did not know whether the Spaniards were white people or negroes then the assistant E. in C. said that it was a settled factin his mind that no white man would have blown up the Main(e) part of the U. S. Navy by slipping up at a time when everybody was a sleep and had no chance to offer any defense; then the E. in C. retorted by saying that no nigger, not even the blackest and unadulterated specimen that could be found this side of the Congo river would do such a cowardly thing. This would likely have ended the argument, but the Scientific Ed. spoke up and said that as the Spaniards had done something that neither a white or black man would do, they were likely Indians. The assistant E. in C. is proud of a strata of Indian blood that runs through his veins, so this observation he at once believed to be a slur upon him and proceeded to do up the Scientific editor, immediately if not sooner, with a 2 lb. weight and a discarded ink roller. After the Scientific editor had knocked him down four or five times with a copy of the new American Enclyopedia and finally wound the job up by throwing him out of the window on his head, he retreated in perfect order.

Bullittsville.

It has been some time since Bullittsville was represented in your columns. There is very little news to report this week. The sick have all recovered and the doctors have gone duck hunting.

Mr. Sam Houston, our village blacksmith, met with a very sad accident a few days since. He was in a buggy with Charles Robinson, who was trying to pass a buggy contaiulug Jim Day and James Masters, between Hebron and the toll gate. Near Harrison Clore's Robinsons horse became unmanageable, dashed into Day's buggy, wrecking both buggies and throwiug Mr. Houston violently to the ground. His face and head were severely lacerated, requiring thirteen stiches to close the wounds. He had a most miraculous escape from death. It is hardly credible that he could have received such wounds without fracturing his skull or breaking his neck.

Prosperity has shed its golden rays upou Mrs. Kirtley's school since the close of the common schools. Her roll has almost doubled. She is a splendid teacher and should be encouraged with a liberal patrouage. She has two grown daughters who have just closed two successful common schools, and the districts that secures these two young ladies this fall may consider themselves very fortunate. Miss Sadie, the oldest daughter, is conducting a very interesting private school near Petersburg.

Zayda Gaines has just completed a term of 20 weeks in the study of vocal music at the College of Music in Cincinnati. She has enlisted for 10 weeks more. She has a beautiful voice and is very ambitious to cultivate it to the highest degree of excelleuce. The most commeudable feature in her ambitious designs is the fact that she is defraying her own expenses out of the proceeds of a music class she has at home.

[The editor, not wanting to engage in a fight nor a foot race, during this muddy weather, and not having time to attend the funeral of a correspondent, rejected the item in regard to an old bachelor friend engaging in teaching new waltz steps.]

Miss Fleetie Hunt, of Indiana, was visiting Miss Mary Huey, last Sunday.

J. H. Lawell is having several strings of wire fence built. A. B. Corbin, builder.

Al Rogers and family were the guests o. his parents, last Saturday and Sunday.

Bernard Rogers was visiting his grand parents, at Erlanger, several days, last week.

Eld. Early, of Petersburg, occupied the pulpit in the Christian church, here, last Sunday.

R. B. Huey and family, of the Locust Grove neighborhood, were visiting W. B. Walton, last Sunday.

J. J. Walton shipped 38 fat hogs to Ciucinnati, one night last week. They were as nice a lot of hogs as has been shipped from here this season.

The people from several neighborhoods gathered in and stripped Andrew Acra's crop of tobacco. He extends his thanks to them for their kindness.

Richwood.

J. Robert Rouse has rented the W. H. Smith farm.

Martin Slat, who was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Covington, last week, died Sunday night. Mr. Slat was 54 years of age, and was well and favorably known in this neighborhood for a number of years.

The following young gentlemen have opened the fishing season: Masters Loyd Stephens, Eldridge Carpenter, Charlie Carpenter and Robert Robinson spent Friday night and Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. Willie Glackin, fishing all day in Mr. Glacken's pond. We are informed they caught several pounds of fine fish.

The Hon. Reuben Conner is home from Frankfort, having donned his "poetical suit and put on a rustic garb." He is now ready to meet his many friends and explain his reasons for every move he made for and against different legislation. He opposed the Goebel election bill because he thought it concentrated power, but has the kindest personal feeling for the Senator from Covington. He took a strong stand against the Chinn Book bill as he did not believe it was right that a commission should select a uniform system for the whole State; thinking it best to leave this to each county board as it now stands. The county board can select the text books for each county for a term of five years. They do not need to select from any particular Book Co. This gives home rule to the people of each county. If the Chinn bill passed, estimating the value of the books now in the hands of the children of the State at $1,000,000, as has been estimated by the Southern School, even at 50 per cent. off for introduction. To change the entire series of text books would cost the people of the State $500,000 for school books that might be very inferior to the books now in use. Among the prominent educators of the State who opposed the bill are Supt. M. A. Cassidy, of Lexington, formerly President of the Kentucky Educational Association; Supt. Burke, of Newport; Supt. Mark, of Louisville; Supt. Morris, of Covington, and many others. Mr. Conner is very sorry he could not have some local acts passed for his people, but being barred by the Constitution, of course it was impossible to do so.

Death has come and taken from our midst one of our oldest and most respected citizens, Michael Ryan. Mr. Ryan was born at Typperary near Doublin, Ireland, in 1820; came to America in 1851, making his home with Mr. Flinell for five years. In 1857 he married Mary Flannagan and they began housekeeping about one mile south of Beaver. Fortune seemed to favor them and there they accumulated a goodly store of this world's goods. Two years ago he built a beautiful residence and seemed ready to enjoy the fruits of his labor, but lagrippe took hold upon him and he never recovered. A few weeks ago he took worse and though all was done for him that the best physicians and loving friends could do, on Saturday afternoon he went peacefully to sleep to awake no more on earth. The wife, three sons and seven daughters survive him, one daughter having preceded him to the grave. Mr. Ryan was a devout Catholic and after appropriate services conducted by the Priest, the remains were luterred in the Carr burying grouud, Mouday.

It is claimed that the tobacco crop is more closely marketed this spring than it has been at this time of the year for a long time, and that the largest portion of the crop left in the county is in the hands of the speculators, a fact that is reducing the offerings on the breaks, and may result in a still further increase in prices.

The past week of warm weather and rain has advanced the fruit very much and it is said that in some locations in the county the peach trees will be in full bloom by the latter part of the week. Such a heavy bloom was never before known—a twig six or seven inches long having from seventy to one hundred well developed buds upon it. If they are not killed it means thousands upon thousands of dollars for Trimble county and many a mortgage lifted with ease.—Trimble Co. News.

A Church Entertainment and Supper will be given in Burlington on the evening of April 2d, 1898, for the benefit of the Methodist Church. Program for the entertainment will consist of Recitations, Music, and a Comedy in three acts, entitled, "The Donation Party." After the entertainment the supper will be served at the Crisler House. The menu as follows: Meats, Salads, Rolls, Coffee, Pickles, Ice Cream and Cake. Doors open at 6:30, performance begins at 7:30 prompt. Admission to entertainment and supper—Adults, 25 cents; children 15 years and under, 15 cents.

"How are your tobacco plants?" is the all-absorbing question among the farmers. O. J. Ryle says they are breaking up all the available land, for tobacco, in the Hathaway neighborhood, and he would not be surprised if they plowed up the grave yards.

SENATOR PROCTOR'S

Observations While on the Island of Cuba Given to the Senate.

The Condition of the Reconcentrados is Terrible—There Are About 60,000 Spanish Troops on the Island—The Insurgents Number About 30,000.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—Senator Proctor addressed the senate Thursday afternoon [illegible] his observations while on his recent visit to Cuba. Senator Proctor began by saying that more important and [illegible] essary, but he thought a public statement would be beneficial. The only thing, he said, that he had said about the matter to the president was that he was going and asked if there was any objection to it and was told that there was none. He had letters from Assistant Secretary of State Day and business men of the United States. He said that Gen. Lee and other United States representatives in Cuba afforded him opportunity to secure information.

He denied that he made the statement that the Maine was blown up from the outside, but might have said that was the opinion in Havana. The senator thought there was no definite information to be obtained upon this feature.

Outside of Havana there was desolation and misery. People were surrounded by trochas and controlled by forts or blockhouses.

His observations, he said, were in the four western provinces. Outside the trochas and forts there were no habitations or people living.

The Spaniards, he said, held in the four provinces only what their army sits on.

Senator Proctor described at some length the condition of the reconcentrados, saying one-half of them had died owing to the manner in which they had been kept in the small houses and bad sanitation. It was no wonder one-half had died, he added.

He went to Cuba, he said, thinking the condition of the people had been overdrawn, but found their situation terrible. What he saw he could not tell so others could see.

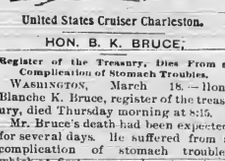
In one place in Havana the senator said he saw 400 emaciated people laying on stone floors with little clothing. The children had no clothing. American people may be assured, he continued, that their bounty will reach the destitute and he added: The condition of the reconcentrados will not be changed until peace comes.

Gen. Blanco's order of November 13 is of little practical use. No beneficial results had followed. For this he did not blame Gen. Blanco, as Blanco looked at the matter from a military point of view.

As to the military situation, he said there were about 60,000 Spanish troops. He thought they would fight well. There was no artillery. The troops live in barracks. The cavalry is mounted mostly on ponies.

He said the Cubans had about 30,000 men in the field and were very active. The Cubans were well armed but poorly supplied with ammunition.

About one-third of the Cuban army are Negroes. The cavalry men furnish their own horses.



The dividing lines between the parties is sharp. It is Cubans against Spaniards. The autonomists he did not consider as they were inconsiderable in number.

He inquired as to autonomy of men of wealth, business and professional men. Without exception their reply was that it was too late for autonomy.

Representative Wheeler of Alabama, introduced the following joint resolution Thursday:

"Resolved, that a joint committee, consisting of five members of the senate to be appointed by the vice president and five members of the house to be appointed by the speaker, be created to report without delay to the two houses an address to the government of Spain declaring in firm and diplomatic language that Americans and American interests in Cuba must be protected and that the atrocities now perpetrated in that island must cease.

"Resolved, That the executive be requested to immediately transmit this address to the government of Spain by such methods as he may deem most advisable, together with a letter of endorsement and approval of this action on the part of congress."

SENATE COMMITTEE

Reports in Favor of the Annexation of the Hawaiian Islands.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Secretary Alger sent to the house Wednesday an urgent request for an increase in the medical corps of the army which has become absolutely necessary through the additions of the artillery forces and by the garrisoning of the numerous small posts. At the present time, the secretary says, several of our military posts which are garrisoned by a full regiment or more and which should have three medical officers have but two.

The receipts from customs Wednesday amounted to $1,719,737. This is the highest point by nearly $365,000 that the customs reached since the new tariff went into effect about eight months ago. For some time the receipts from customs have been increasing with regularity, but only lately has the increase become noticeable from day to day. It is believed that importation of sugar is beginning to contribute materially to the receipts.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The house committee on naval affairs discussed the recommendations of the secretary of the navy Wednesday as to increases in some branches of the service, but took no important action. The secretary wants authority for the appointment of acting assistant surgeons by the president and the sentiment, it is stated, is favorable to granting that recommendation. The request for a large number of skilled machinists in the navy as well as the further augmentation of the engineer corps caused a vigorous discussion which, however, met with no [illegible] was made for the authorization of the construction of six torpedo boats and six torpedo boat destroyers. It was immediately challenged as involving a large expenditure and after some discussion action was deferred. It was agreed that the addition of 15 assistant paymasters should be allowed. Some dock details were also discussed.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The senate committee on foreign relations Wednesday agreed to recommend that the Hawaiian islands be annexed by legislation in open session and agreed upon a joint resolution for the accomplishment of this purpose, which Senator Davis was authorized to report to the senate.

Later in the senate chamber Senator Davis reported a joint resolution providing for the annexation of the Hawaiian islands.

The joint resolution went to the calendar. Senator Davis did not give any notice of calling it up.

Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, in the house Wednesday afternoon, denied emphatically that the president desired congress to adjourn in the immediate future.

NO WAR.

A Personal Friend of the President Makes the Assertion—Reports Greatly Exaggerated.

CLEVELAND, O., March 17.—Frank H. Morris, fourth auditor of the treasury, and a personal friend of President McKinley, who is present in Cleveland, speaking of the Cuban question, said:

"There will be no war. I find that the reports have been greatly exaggerated all over the country.

The war preparations are just what the country needed and has needed for 20 years. Many of our ports have been almost entirely defenseless, but this is being remedied in a rapid manner now. In a short time we will be comfortably fortified against any invasion from a foreign country.

"Whatever the agency was, the officials at Washington are positive that the Spanish government had nothing at all to do with the blowing up of the Maine. The president, when the time arrives, will demand an indemnity and it will be paid. There will be no war."

Mr. Morris' department has charge of the work of settling the claims of those of the Maine disaster. "We have found on investigation that out of 378 men who were on the boat, 63 were foreigners," said Mr. Morris, "and had given when they enlisted foreigners as their nearest of kin. Thirty-nine of those on the ship gave no next of kin when they answered the questions put to them on enlistment.

Of the 253 who were killed we have succeeded in getting into correspondence with 127 claimants. It will surprise you to know that less than ten per cent. of this number had families depending on them and many have no direct heirs. The balance of the number we have not, up to this time, been able to reach."

TORPEDO BOAT STRINGHAM.

An Additional Force of Men Employed on Her Construction—Dupont's Shipping Powder Daily.

WILMINGTON, Del., March 17.—The Harlan & Hollingsworth Co., of this city, has received instructions from Secretary Long to increase the force of workmen employed on the torpedo boat Stringham. An extra force of men is at work at the shops of the Betts Machine Co., which makes machinery to manufacture arms for the United States government. It is said that nearly two hundred of these machines are to be made for the Washington, Norfolk, San Francisco, Brooklyn and League Island navy yards.

The firm of E. I. Dupont & Co. are shipping powder daily to Fort Monroe for the big ten-inch guns.

Goes Down With All on Board.

LOWESTOFT, March 17.—The bark British Princess, from Leith for Liverpool, was towed in here Wednesday with her bows stove, having been in a collision at 3 o'clock Wednesday morning off Gibbard Lightship with an unknown steamer. The steamer, which collided with the British Princess sank within three minutes with all on board.

Perry Belmont, Wednesday, in a letter to the auxiliary cruisers board, placed at the disposal of the government his yacht Narcanella to be used in case of war.

NOT READY TO REPORT.

The Court of Inquiry Will Continue Its Work During the Week.

Preparations for War Continues With Unabated Vigor—Four of the Maine Survivors Had a Long Consultation With Secretary of Navy and President.

KEY WEST, March 21.—The court of inquiry, according to Rr. Adm. Sicard, will continue its work through the coming week, as it is not yet ready to make a report on the Maine disaster. The statement that Capt. Albert S. Barker carried the report to Washington is officially denied. The object of his flying visit to Key West was not ascertained outside official circles until Sunday. It can be authoritatively stated that Capt. Barker had nothing to do with the court of inquiry.

He came here on Friday from Tampa on a special mission to investigate the harbor defenses, following out some lines suggested by General Wilson, chief of engineers, in his recent inspection of land fortifications. Capt. Barker's plans, when he left here Saturday night, was to confer with Commander McCalla, of the Marblehead, who is now at Tampa, and he will probably remain there a day or so. Capt. Barker formerly commanded the Oregon.

It is impossible to say definitely whether any synopsis of the findings of the court up to date has been sent to Washington. The notion prevails here that this has been done, but no official confirmation is obtainable. That the final report has been sent to Washington can be definitely denied.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The keenest expectancy was apparent in all official quarters Saturday in anticipation of the early receipt of the report from the court of inquiry on the Maine disaster. Warlike preparations continued with unabated vigor at the war and navy departments, but the main interest of officials was centered in the forthcoming report. The interest was so intense that many reports gained circulation to the effect that the official document would be in the hands of the president within the next few hours, but on inquiry in authoritative sources were found to be inaccurate. Persons in position to know had little to add to the fact already made public that the report is expected within the next few days. A cabinet officer stated that it would be here early next week. Beyond this he could not go. It was also definitely that no advance intimation as to the character of the report had been made. The rumor had it that Lieut. Blow had brought to Washington an abstract of the conclusions, but this was dismissed after Lieut. Blow had been in conference with Secretary Long and other naval officials.

The chief development of the morning was the arrival of four of the survivors of the Maine disaster, who held a long conference with Secretary Long, and later was taken by the secretary to the white house for a talk with the president. These survivors are Lieut. G. F. W. Holman, navigator of the Maine; Lieut. George P. Blow, Lieut. A. B. Catlin, in command of the marines on the Maine, and Boatswain Larkin, one of the non-commissioned officers of the wrecked battleship. These men had passed through the fearful ordeal of the explosion and had been at Havana since it occurred. There had been no announcement of their being detached from Capt. Sigsbee's command at Havana, and their coming was a complete surprise except to a few officials. With them came Naval Constructor Hoover, who was sent by Secretary Long from Washington a few weeks ago to make a technical inspection of the wreck of the Maine. He was the naval constructor who for months was engaged in actual work on the Maine while she was on the stocks, so that he is in a position to know every plate and piece of constructural steel remaining of the ill-fated ship. The divers had found great difficulty in identifying some of the battered and twisted plates from the bottom of the Maine, and it was believed that Constructor Hoover's technical knowlenge would be able to make this identification complete.

The conference between Lieuts. Blow and Secretary Long lasted for some time, Capt. Crowninshield, of the bureau of navigation, and other officials being called in. It was stated authoritatively after the conference that the main subject of conversation was the explosion itself comprising a detailed narrative of the officers, and a harrowing description of the calamity. Whether the cause of the explosion was under discussion could not be learned. It was naturally inferred that these officers, with their complete personal information of the explosion, and their subsequent visits to the wreck, would give Secretary Long the benefit of their personal views on the cause of the disaster. At the same time with the court of inquiry, having complete jurisdiction of this subject, it was felt that the question of cause might be open to much reserve even as between these naval officers and the secretary of the navy.

LONDON, March 21.—The czar, according to a special dispatch from St. Petersburg, has ordered an increase in the ordinary naval expenditure of 8,000,000 roubles yearly for six years, in addition to the special grant of 90,000,000 roubles for naval purposes recently announced.

A DOCTOR'S DIRECTIONS.

They save a daughter from blindness.

When a father writes that yours "is the best medicine in the world," you can allow something for seeming extravagance in the statement if you know that the medicine so praised, cured a loved daughter of disease and restored to her the eyesight nearly lost. The best medicine in the world for you is the medicine that cures you. There can't be anything better. No medicine can do more than cure. That is why John S. Goode, of Orrick, Mo., writes in these strong terms:

"Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine in the world. My daughter had a relapse after the measles, due to taking cold. She was nearly blind, and was obliged to remain in a dark room all the time. The doctors could give her no relief; one of them directed me to give her Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Two bottles completely cured her."

The thousands of testimonials to the value of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla repeat over and over again, in one form or another the expression: "The doctors gave her no relief; one of them directed me to give her Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Two bottles completely cured her."

It is a common experience to try Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla as a last resort. It is a common experience to have Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla prescribed by a physician. It is a common experience to see a "complete cure" follow the use of a few bottles of this great blood purifying medicine.

Because, it is a specific for all forms of blood disease. If a disease has its origin in bad or impure blood, Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, acting directly on the blood, removing its impurities and giving to it vitalizing energy, will promptly eradicate the disease.

The great feature of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the radical cures that result from its use. Many medicines only suppress disease—they push the pimples down under the skin, they paint the complexion with subtle arsenical compounds, but the disease rages in the veins like a pent-up fire, and some day breaks out in a volcanic eruption that eats up the body. Ayer's Sarsaparilla goes to the root. It makes the fountain clean and the waters are clean. It makes the root good and the fruit is good. It gives Nature the elements she needs to build up the broken down constitution—not to brace it up with stimulants or patch it up on the surface. Send for Dr. Ayer's Curebook, and learn more about the cures effected by this remedy. It is sent free on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

A young gentleman, whose gallantry was largely in excess of his pecuniary means, sought to remedy this defect and save the money required for the purchase of expensive flowers by arranging with a gardener to let him have a bouquet from time to time in return for his cast-off clothes.

It thus happened one day that he received a bunch of the most beautiful roses, which he at once sent off to his lady love. In sura anticipation of a friendly welcome he called at the house of the lady the same evening and was not a little surprised at the frosty reception he met with.

"You sent me a note to-day," the young lady remarked, after a pause, in the most frigid tones.

"I—a note?" he inquired, in blank astonishment.

"Certainly; along with some flowers."

"To be sure I sent you some flowers."

OVER-WROUGHT NERVES OF WOMEN.

Extracts From Letters Received by Mrs. Pinkham.

"I am so nervous and wretched." "I feel as if I should fly." How familiar these expressions are. Little things annoy you and make you irritable. You can't sleep, you are unable to lift ordinary burdens, and are subject to dizziness.

That bearing-down sensation helps to make you feel miserable.

You have backache and pains low down in the side, pain in top of head, later on at base of the brain.

Such a condition points unerringly to serious uterine trouble.

If you had written to Mrs. Pinkham when you first experienced impaired vitality, you would have been spared these hours of awful suffering.

Happiness will be gone out of your life forever, my sister, unless you act promptly. Procure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and begin its use, then write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., if there is anything about your case you do not understand.

You need not be afraid to tell her the things you could not explain to the doctor, your letter is seen only by women and is absolutely confidential. Mrs. Pinkham's vast experience with such troubles enables her to tell you just what is best for you, and she will charge you nothing for her advice.

MRS. JENNIE BIERLY, Youngdale, Pa., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Will you kindly allow me the pleasure of expressing my gratitude for the wonderful relief I have experienced by taking your Vegetable Compound. I suffered for a long time with nervous prostration, backache, headache, loss of appetite, a heavy bearing-down feeling, also burning pains in the groins. I could not sleep, was tired all the time, had no ambition. Life was a burden to me. The pains I suffered at times of menstruation were something dreadful. I thought there was no cure for it. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and my husband advised me to try your medicine. I took five bottles, and now I am well and happy. Your medicine saved my life."

A NEW SQUADRON.

Naval Vessels Will Be Stationed at Hampton Roads.

The Big Monitor, the Puritan, the Most Powerful Ship Afloat in Smooth Water, Where Finished Will Be Sent to Key West From Norfolk, Virginia.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The event of the day in official circles was the issue of an order for the formation of a new squadron of naval vessels to be stationed at Hampton Roads. The squadron in the beginning will consist of five ships, all the best of their types. Two of them, the battleships Massachusetts and Texas are withdrawn from the present North Atlantic fleet at Key West and Tortugas.

In ordering this movement the navy department is not animated by any purpose of yielding to representations or intimations that may have come from the Spanish minister. On the contrary the formation of the new squadron was brought about by purely strategic considerations, although it appears from the nature of the force so far under orders to rendezvous at Hampton Roads, that this strategy is of the defensive nature. The new squadron can not be called a "flying squadron" because the association of heavy battleships with fleet cruisers like the Brooklyn, Columbia and Minneapolis reduces the available speed of the whole to the speed of the slowest vessel, and the squadron could not do much "flying" in the naval sense. The Indianola rather are that when reinforced by some smaller cruisers the squadron will constitute an ideal naval defense. For the past two months influences have been at work in the navy department about this change, and as a policy board, headed by Capt. Crowninshield, has been in frequent session of late at the department, it is believed that it has endorsed the plan at last. Although the other ships to be added to the squadron have not yet been definitely selected, it is surmised that they will include some of the other battleships at Key West and the armored cruiser New York, in which case Adm. Sicard, it is believed, will command the new force. In place of the cruiser New York the people of Key West will look upon the grim outlines of the big monitor, Puritan, supposedly the most powerful ship in smooth water in the world. She will have to assist her on guard the double-turreted monitor Miantonomah and the monitor Amphitrite. The Puritan is now at Norfolk almost ready for sea; the Miantonomah is at League Island quite ready, and so is the Amphitrite at Port Royal, S. C. So the order in the end will result in the gathering of the pick of the North Atlantic squadron at Hampton Roads. The point is said to be the best strategically on the Atlantic coast. It is almost centrally located and the ships from that point can reach any portion of the coast in short order, which is regarded as desirable since no one can tell just where a flotilla of torpedo destroyers or a fast cruiser may turn up with hostile intent to attack a town. Besides, the second best navy yard in the country is there to fall back upon for repairs to the ships, plenty of the best coal is at Newport News, there is easy water to navigate, and finally the forts at Hampton Roads may serve as a base of operations in case of need for protection. These are the considerations which animated the navy department in making this new order. It is announced that the commander of the new squadron has not yet been selected, and pending that selection or the arrival in port of Adm. Sicard it is expected that Capt. Higginson, the commander of the battleship Massachusetts, and the senior officer will hold the command of the squadron.

Remaining at Key West after the departure of the Massachusetts and the Texas, Adm. Sicard will still have a fleet of his own in numbers, when the spectacle will be presented of a fleet and a squadron on one station, something not seen since the civil war.

Gen. Blanco on the Spanish Flag.

HAVANA, March 18.—Gen. Blanco, at the banquet to the officers of the Vizcaya and the Almirante Oquendo, toasted "The king, the queen regent, the army and the navy of Spain." He said: "The present generation will never see another banner than that of Spain at the entrance to the Gulf of Mexico. That banner, representing civilization, progress, liberty, humanity and religion, will be eternal like that of the first American nation."

The Dry Dock Now Ready.

NEW YORK, March 18.—Dry dock No. 8, at the Brooklyn navy yard, the only dry dock in this country which is capable of accommodating the bigger vessels in the navy, is now ready for the reception of warships. A trial of the structure was made Thursday, and according to Naval Constructor Bowles it proved satisfactory.

Will Not Go to Havana.

MADRID, March 18.—Adm. Bermejo, the minister of marine, has wired the commander of the torpedo flotilla at the Canaries not to proceed to Havana.

SORRY LOOKING CREW.

English Sailors Starved, Beaten and Mistreated on Board Vessels.

Many of Them Covered With Wounds, Running Sores, and Some Showed Signs of Scurvy—One Man Died From Mistreatment—To Prefer Charges.

NEW YORK, March 21.—The sorriest looking crew that ever sailed into the harbor of New York came on the British bark Ancyra, 196 days from Hong Kong, bruised, blackened, weak from lack of food, some having broken bones and others touched by scurvy. They tell a story of hardship and brutality.

They charge even worse against the captain of the craft, I. B. Morris, and say that as soon as they reach land they will make affidavits of the facts to the British consul.

A reporter who went on board the vessel found several berths in the forecastle occupied by men who called piteously for a doctor. Most of them were covered with unhealed wounds and running sores, and several with the sailors signs of scurvy. The men will make charges against Capt Morris, the first mate, P. C. Robinson; the second mate, N. Cuno, and the boatswain, Edward Shellnur.

Alexander McCaust said: "From the day that we left Hong Kong we have been starved and beaten. I have, without provocation, been struck again and again by the captain and second mate. We have had no fresh vegetables, our daily rations being two sea biscuits and a little meat. If we asked for better food we were clubbed. I have seen every sailor on the ship struck by one officer or another.

"The implements used were a chain, a large bamboo, a club, an oak club, the handle of a mop or broom. I have seen as many as five men with black eyes at the same time. We did not dare to strike back lest we be shot."

Edward Simpson said:

"Peter Hansen was killed by brutality and starvation. The second mate seemed to have a particular grudge against him, and so did the captain. They used to take turns knocking him about. Then they would do it together."

Hansen finally got sick and feverish. He was covered with black and blue marks and was weakened from lack of food.

"The officers said that Hansen was shamming. They went to his bunk and called him, but he was too weak to get up. So the captain yanked him out of bed and dragged him out on deck in the presence of the second mate and boatswain. Then the captain picked him up.

"'You're sick, are you?' he said, calling him vile names. 'I'll make you sicker! When I speak to you move, and that quick.'

"Then the captain slammed him down on the deck again. This he repeated three times, cursing violently all the while. Hansen groaned, but made no answer. In half an hour he was dead. This was last Sunday."

The truthfulness of this narrative was vouched for by Sailors William Smith, Edward Thompson, Pierre Daniel, Fred Landstrom and Fritz Streyer, all of whom declared that they would swear to the facts as soon as they had an opportunity.

Fred Landstrom, who was also one of the forbidden men and whose right arm was in a splint, said: "I have got three broken ribs, I think, and my arm is useless. I have been to sea for years and I never saw officers so brutal as those on this ship. We have just been bullied and beaten and starved the entire voyage.

"I have seen scurvy before, and I know that Thompson has it. The Frenchman, Pierre Daniel, and McCaust have every symptom of it.

Firstmate Robinson, who was in charge of the bark, the captain being absent, when asked what he had to say about the charges made by the men, said it was true that he had been forced to strike the Frenchman and others, but never when they did not need it. No particular violence, he said, was done to the man who died. The crew were a quarrelsome lot and continually fighting among themselves.

The Fleet Off Key West.

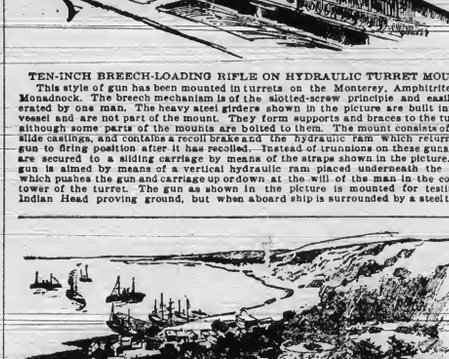
KEY WEST, Fla., March 21.—The fleet off Key West now consists of the Iowa, the New York, the Nashville, the Montgomery, the Detroit and the torpedo boats Dupont, Winslow, Foote and Cushing. The Indiana was added Monday.

CRUISER AMAZONAS

Transferred From the Brazilians to the United States.

GRAVESEND, Eng., March 19.—The cruiser Amazonas, built by the Armstrongs for Brazil and purchased by the United States was formally transferred from the Brazilian flag to the stars and stripes shortly after 11 o'clock Friday morning.

The ceremony was simple and dignified, and to the Brazilian officers it was somewhat pathetic.



Lieut. Commander Colwell, United States naval attache, Assistant Engineer McMorris and Consul General Osborne arrived on board shortly before 11 a. m. The chief officers of the coast guard and a number of customs officers, all Brazilians, were also on board. Lieut. Commander Colwell and his party were received at the gangway by Lieut. Santos and were escorted to the captain's cabin, where they were received by Commander Corres.

In reply to Lieut. Commander Colwell's inquiry, Commander Corres said he was ready to transfer the vessel forthwith and Messrs. Colwell, Roberts and McMorris donned their uniforms and proceeding on deck,

TEN-INCH BREECH-LOADING RIFLE ON HYDRAULIC TURRET MOUNT.

This style of gun has been mounted in turrets on the Monterey, Amphitrite and Monadnock. The force mechanism is of the slotted-screw principle and easily operated by one man. The heavy steel girders shown in the picture are built into the vessel and are not part of the mount. They form supports and braces to the turrets, although some parts of the mounts are bolted to them. The mount consists of large slide castings, and contains a recoil brake and the hydraulic ram which returns the gun to firing position after it has recoiled. Instead of trunnions on these guns, they are secured to a sliding carriage by means of the straps shown in the picture. The gun is aimed by means of a vertical hydraulic ram placed underneath the slide, which pushes the gun and carriage up or down at the will of the man in the conning tower of the turret. The gun as shown in the picture is mounted for testing at Indian Head proving ground, but when aboard ship is surrounded by a steel turret.

gathe red near the flagstaff from which the green flag of Brazil was flying.

Then Lieut. Commander Colwell, saluting Commander Corres said:

"Captain, I have here a contract of sale, to which you are a witness and whereby this vessel is to be transferred to me in behalf of the United States."

Commander Corres replied through an interpreter, saying:

"In handing over the ship I desire to say that it is done with the sincere friendship of Brazil."

Lieut. Commander Colwell, saluting, replied: "In behalf of the United States I thank you for the sentiment."

A Brazilian sailor then brought down Brazil's blue starred pennant from the top of the mainmast, carrying it in his teeth.

In the center of a circle of officers of both nations, Lieut. Commander Colwell then faced the Brazilian flag flying from the cruiser's stern and, as the officers bared their heads, the flag of Brazil was hauled down at 11:10 a. m., after which facing about with their heads still uncovered Old Glory was run up the main.

Lieut. Commander Colwell and the Brazilian officers thereupon shook hands.

The Amazonas will remain in charge of Ensign Roberts and Assistant Engineer McMorris until the United States cruiser San Francisco arrives here.

Great interest was taken in the ceremony, which is said to be unique in naval history, by which one power transferred a warship to another in the harbor of a third power.

Several American flags were hoisted at Gravesend after the stars and stripes were unfurled over the Amazonas.

GRAVESEND, Eng., March 19.—The United States cruiser San Francisco arrived here at 3:30 p. m. Friday passing the Amazonas, after saluting Tilbury fort. The band played "The Star Spangled Banner," with the crew standing "Attention."

Charged With Swindling.

ST. LOUIS, March 19.—A special to the Republic from Dallas, Tex., says: Officers at Terrell have three business men of Wills Point under arrest, charged with common swindling through bogus bills of lading. The prisoners are James Lybrand, a banker; J. L. Cheatham, a piano broker, and E. T. Matthews, Cheatham's assistant. The charges are brought by S. M. Bond, a cotton buyer of San Antonio, who says that the swindle was originated and operated by Lybrand. Lybrand is out on heavy bonds and the other two men are in jail at Terrell.

FAVORABLE REPORT

On the Amendment Changing the Time for the Expiration of the Terms of President, Vice President, Senators and Representatives.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The senate committee on privileges and elections Friday authorized a favorable report on the amendment to the constitution of the United States introduced by Senator Hoar, changing the time of year for the expiration of the terms of the president, vice-president, senators and representatives in congress from March 4 until the last Wednesday in April. The change is made to take effect in 1901, and if the amendment should be accepted by congress and be ratified by a sufficient number of states it would have the effect of extending the terms of President McKinley and Vice President Hobart for almost two months. The object of the amendment is to avoid the harsh weather which sometimes interferes with inauguration ceremonies when held on the fourth of March.

Senator Hawley (Ct.) said Friday that it was the intention to get through congress as speedily as possible the three battalion military bills which were introduced at the suggestion of the department in both houses Thursday for strengthening the military arm of the service and providing for its increase to 104,000 men if necessary. This bill, he said, carried a small appropriation and therefore would pass the house in advance of action by the senate. He supposed that Mr. Hull, who introduced the bill in the house and who is chairman of the military committee would get a report on it very soon and secure action by the house, but he did not know whether it would be treated as an emergency measure or be acted on more deliberately. The general desire was to secure the legislation as soon as possible, and the senate, he thought, would act very promptly after the house had passed the bill.

The house committee on public lands agreed Friday on the New Mexico bill allowing that territory to take immediately about half of the lands to which she would be entitled in event of admission as a state. The bill is designed to relieve the state from the result of other parties culling the best parts of the lands now available.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Nothing of special importance was developed at Friday's cabinet meeting beyond the fact that the report of the Maine court of inquiry is not expected before the early part of next week. As has been the case at every cabinet meetiug during the last month and more, almost the entire session was consumed in the discussion of the Cuban situation, and it can be stated on good authority that no plan of action will be definitely decided upon pending the arrival of the report on the Maine investigation. Every phase of the several questions involved is being carefully and thoroughly considered, and it is believed that very soon after the report is received the president, possibly in conjunction with congress, will announce a definite policy. Until then nothing of a decisive character will be done or decided upon.

Stars and Stripes Hoisted.

LONDON, March 19.—There was a picturesque ceremony here Friday when Mr. Alfred C. Harmsworth, proprietor of the Daily Mail, hoisted the stars and stripes over the Arctic steamer Windward, which is moored a few yards from the Amazonas. The Windward is here on her way to the United States, having been presented to Lieut. Peary, the American explorer. The stars and stripes was hoisted at 2 p.m., all on board saluting as old glory went up with three cheers and wishes for the success of the explorer. The Windward sailed from here at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—SENATE—During its session of three hours Monday the senate passed a considerable number of bills from the general calendar, among the number being one authorizing the construction of eight new revenue cutters not exceeding in aggregate cost the sum of $2,325,000. The national quarantine bill was made the regular order of business and will be taken up probably on Wednesday.

HOUSE—The district bill was concluded at 4:38 p. m. A senate bill was passed to change the name of the Suspension Bridge to Niagara Falls. A senate bill passed which grants the right of way through the Indian territory to the Dennison, Bonham & New Orleans railroad; also a senate bill granting a right of way through the Winnebago Indian reservation to the Omaha & Northern railroad.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—SENATE—After the passage Tuesday of numerous bills from the general calendar, the senate began the consideration of the measure providing for a national system of quarantine. Little beyond the reading of the bill was accomplished, some desultory discussion occurring on an amendment offered by the committee, but no progress being made on the general bill.

HOUSE—The house agreed Wednesday to consider the bill for the relief of the legal heirs of the soldiers and survivors of the Maine disaster as soon as the post office appropriation bill, which was taken up in the house Wednesday, is out of the way. During the general debate on the post office bill members eagerly took advantage of the latitude allowed in committee of the whole on the state of the union to discuss various political questions and the debate accordingly covered a wide range. Messrs. Griggs (dem., Ga.) and Walker (rep., Mass.) discussed the conditions of the cotton industry and Mr. Talbert (rep., Minn.), a member of the ways and means committee, replied to the speech of Mr. Johnson (rep., Ind.), made some time ago, as to the advisability of annexing the Hawaiian islands.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—SENATE—Business in the legislative session of the senate Wednesday was confined to the passage of a few bills, largely of a local character. The national quarantine bill was not considered.

HOUSE—The post office appropriation bill, which was technically the subject before the house, was almost lost track of in the debate Wednesday. As on Tuesday numerous topics were discussed, but Wednesday for the first time the Cuban-Spanish question which had been kept in the background heretofore forged to the front. Mr. Cochran (dem., Mo.) brought the question into the arena and in the course of the debate that followed Mr. Grosvenor (R.) took occasion to deny emphatically the stories afloat to the effect that the president desired an early adjournment of congress in order that he might effect a settlement with out congressional interference. The subject of Hawaiian annexation also came in for more attention. Mr. Williams (dem., Miss.) Mr. Adams (rep., Pa.) and Mr. Berry (dem., Ky.), all members of the foreign affairs committee, made speeches on the subject, the former in opposition and the two latter in favor of the proposition.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—SENATE—Bills introduced Thursday: To authorize the erection of a statue of the late President Lincoln at Gettysburg, Pa., to cost $50,000, the statue to be erected by a commission consisting of the secretary of war, the commander of the army, the governor of Pennsylvania and the commander of the G. A. R.; to prohibit railroad companies from charging more than five cents per mile for carrying passengers through the Indian territory; to authorize the construction of a gunboat on the great lakes to take the place of the United States ship Michigan, and to cost, exclusive of armament, not to exceed $230,000. At 2 o'clock the consideration of the national quarantine bill was resumed. The conference report on the agricultural bill was adopted. After a brief executive session the senate at 4:30 adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—No political questions were discussed in the house Thursday. The whole session was devoted strictly to the post office appropriation bill which was taken up for amendment under the five minute rule. The questions which consumed the major portion of the time related to the allowance for clerk hire at post offices and to rural free delivery. The house increased the allowance for rural free delivery from $60,000 to $80,000 and defeated the proposition for increased clerk hire.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—SENATE—Not in session.

HOUSE—The house spent another day on the post office appropriation bill, but only disposed of two pages of the bill. Most of the day was devoted to a debate on the merits of the pneumatic tube mail service in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, and the advisability of continuing the existing contract. An effort to strike out the appropriation of $25,000 for defense, but the opponents of the appropriation succeeded in securing the adoption of an amendment providing that no additional contracts should be made. An amendment was adopted making it a misdemeanor for any person to "pad" the mails during the period when the mails are being weighed to determine the compensation to be paid to the railroads for their transportation. The amendment was recommended by the department.

A DEFINITE POLICY.

The Sending of the Torpedo Flotilla to Havana Will Be Considered an Overt Act of War.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The policy of the United States has been definitely laid down, and it leads straight toward the independence of Cuba. On the very highest authority your correspondent is enabled to describe the systematic plans that underlie the apparently vacillating actions of the administration. It is not the intention of this government that Spain's naval strength in Cuban waters shall be further increased pending negotiations for her entire withdrawal from the island.

The torpedo flotilla, now at the Canaries, is not to be allowed to reach Cuba.

The transfer of the Massachusetts and Texas—soon to be followed by the New York—from Key West to Hampton Roads, will give the Spaniards a good excuse for refraining from sending their torpedo boats any further at this direction. If they persist in dispatching their flotilla, the proceeding will be taken as an overt act of war, and the flying squadron, containing the swift New York, Brooklyn, Minneapolis and Columbia, will drop down from Hampton Roads, which is a more convenient starting point than Key West for such a movement and intercept the Spanish craft in the neighborhood of Porto Rico.

Meanwhile the battleships would be available for the defense of any seaport threatened by a stray armor clad that might attempt a raid.

Oscar Neebe Sued for Divorce.

CHICAGO, March 19.—Oscar Neebe, one of the Haymarket anarchists, who served several years in prison for alleged participation in the bomb throwing, was Friday made the defendant in a divorce suit. His wife charges desertion. They were married in 1893.

Planning to Attack Americans.

NEW YORK, March 19.—A Key-West special to the Press asserts that a secret movement is organizing in Havana to attack the members of the American colony notwithstanding Gen. Blanco's statement that there is no danger.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE

Regular Session.

FRANKFORT, Ky., March 15.—SENATE—The resolution directing the auditor to report to the next legislature the amount of taxes collected on whisky up to September, 1891, and the value of whisky upon which taxes should be paid, cost of collection, and other information was adopted. The house bill creating an extra circuit judge for Louisville was killed by being refused its third reading. The house resolution to pay the expenses of the Bertram-Powers contest ($125 each) in the house was adopted. The Sargent house bill to enable children of slaves to inherit parents' property was passed. House bill 174, authorizing a county to issue turnpike bonds, if a majority instead of two-thirds of the voters authorize the issue, was defeated because the constitution says a two-thirds vote is necessary.

HOUSE—The senate bill known as the local option bill was killed Monday when a motion to take it up for consideration was defeated by a vote of 39 yeas to 48 nays. This is regarded as a test vote, even if the bill were put on its passage, but it will never reach a final vote now. The Goesel joint liability bill, which permits an aggrieved party to bring joint suit against both master and servant, was defeated by a vote of 40 yeas to 45 nays. The motion to take up the senate bill requiring telephone companies to charge the same rates in all cities of the same class was defeated. The senate bill providing that stockholders in newspapers shall not be liable for double the amount of their stock was passed. A resolution providing for a joint session of the senate and house Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock to elect the state election commission was adopted. The republicans and Senator Bronston tried to break a quorum, but failed. The remainder of the session was occupied with reading enrolled bills.

FRANKFORT, March 18.—The legislative session of 1898 is a thing of the past. The gavels were rapped for the last time and the legislators are returning to their constituents. At o'clock Tuesday night committees were appointed by the senate and house to notify the governor that they were ready to adjourn. The committees visited the governor and he informed them that he had no further communication to transmit. The house adjourned at 7:40, and at 7:45 o'clock Senator Bronston moved that the senate adjourn sine die, and when Chairman Goebel put the question everybody voted yea, except Doorkeeper Bob Tyler, who voted "No" in a loud voice, he said to emphasize his regret over the cutting off of his per diem. The legislature passed something like 60 bills, the larger number of which are still in the governor's hands, and he may approve or veto them at his leisure in the next ten days. The session's work can not be properly judged till the governor passes on the numerous bills still in his hands. A number of important bills have been passed.

THE AMAZONAS

To Be Transferred to the United States Government—She Will Join the North American Squadron.

LONDON, March 18.—The warship Amazonas, built for Brazil but purchased by the United States, will be formally transferred to the United States government Friday at Gravesend. Lieutenant Commander Colwell, the United States naval attache here, will receive the ship from her Brazilian commander. A crew from the San Francisco will then be marched on board, the Brazilian flag will be hauled down, and the Brazilian sailors will be landed.

The executive officer of the San Francisco will probably take command of the Amazonas and she will sail for the United States as speedily as possible, under sealed orders. It is supposed she is going to the North American station, where her crew can be reinforced.

The Amazonas had just been provisioned and coaled for her trip to Brazil. The United States government purchased all these supplies.

RAPID FIRE GUNS.

Twelve Ordered From the Armstrongs—Part Payment on the Brazilian War Vessels.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The first disbursement under the recent act of congress appropriating $50,000,000 for the national defense has been made by the treasury department on an executive order for 30,000 pounds sterling, or $145,995 to be cabled to London to the credit of Sir William G. Armstrong in part payment for 12 rapid fire guns, including mounts and ammuntion. The purchase price including mounts etc., is $21,000 for each gun, or $252,000 for the 12. In addition to this payment the treasury department Friday will cable Rothschilds at London $1,689,621 in full payment for the Brazilian cruiser Amazonas, and in part payment for the Abreuail. The 19 rapid-fire guns are for the use of the war department.

BROWN PRISMATIC POWDER.

Largest Single Order Ever Given by the Government on the Pacific Coast.

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., March 19.—The California powder works received orders from the navy department on Wednesday for 3,000,000 pounds of brown prismatic powder. Thursday the same concern received an order for 200,000 pounds of the same kind of powder for immediate delivery. These, together, make the largest single order for powder ever given by the United States government on this coast.

About six months will be required to fill these orders, even with the additional machinery now in course of construction. The previous orders for smokeless powder will keep the works running at their full capacity for a year.

The Lucania's Fast Run.

QUEENSTOWN, March 19.—The Cunard line steamer Lucania, Capt. McKay, which sailed from New York on March 19 for Liverpool via this port, arrived here at 3:38 o'clock. On March 15 she steamed 531 knots and on the following day she made 539 knots, beating her previous records on both days. Her previous best record for a day's run eastward was 526 knots, but she has made 562 knots in a day's run going westward.

Liabilities of $35,000.

HARRODSBURG, Ky., March 19.—J. F. Witherspoon, well known throughout Central Kentucky, assigned Friday morning to Attorney C. T. Corn. Liabilities $35,000. The assets, among which is a large quantity of whisky it is thought will largely exceed the indebtedness.

There is not an empty residence in the town and many persons who would locate in Williamstown are prevented from doing so because they can find no house in which to move.

Preparations are being made in Grant county to pitch the largest crop of tobacco and corn ever raised in the county. What little timber there is on the hills is going down before the woodman's ax and all old sod fields are being turned over. The last week has been very propitious for the sowing of tobacco beds and miles of canvass has been stretched, oats is being put in, and great quantities of grass seed is being sprinkled on the soil. Altogether there is a great deal of activity among the farmers and a more hopeful spirit abroad in the land than there has been for several years past. If tobacco and wheat keep up the farmers will have a very prosperous year.

Kentucky Ready for War.

The Maysville Ledger has secured a full inventory of Kentucky's armory and made it public for the enemies that may run down on the United States. The armory contains 1 Enfield rifle, muzzle loading; 1 Springfield rifle, muzzle loading [old style]; 1 long musket, muzzle loading [old style]; 123 bayonet scabbards in bad condition; 6 old sword bayonets; 1 box old wornout bayonet scabbards; 11 old catridge boxes in bad condition; 1 sword non-commissioned officer; 3 artillery batteries; 2 wheelbarrows, 1 steel square, 1 hatchet, 1 patent nail driver, 1 brace and 7 bits assorted sizes, 1 bunghole auger, 1 fore plane, 1 smoothing plane, 7 pair snips, 2 handsaws [good], 1 handsaw [broken], 2 monkey wrenches, 2 drawing knives, 1 hammer, 1 marking pots 3 step ladders, 3 old worn out canteens, 1 old four boxes knapsacks [useless], 32 drumbags [good], 54 drumsticks [good], 32 drums old and broken, 8 old brooms, 5 rakes, in good condition, 8 spades in bad condition, 1 long-handled shovel, 9 pick handles, 3 axes with handles and one without, 3 mauls without handles, 15 new grubbing hoes without handles, 15 pothooks, 1 cake lifter, 2 lemon squeezers, 2 augers, 1 scoop and 1 pepper box, 1 grindstone and 14 torchlights, 1 short handle shovel, 15 rolls oilcloth, 2 meat saws, 8 tar buckets and other things along this line galore; 6 blouses, worthless, 8 old helmets, 12 pair trousers worthless; 61 pair trousers, unmade and 31 pair trousers, light blue, out of date.

☞Pasture and attention given mares at $1.50 per month.

Premiums.—I will give two $10 premiums at the Florence fair in 1898—one for the best colt by Timothy Boy and one for the best mule by Mike—the produce of the present season.

J. C. BEDINGER,
RICHWOOD, KY.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1898. NO. 23.

THE report of Board of Inquiry investigating the Maine disaster was submitted to Congress, Monday, and the following is its substance:

The discipline on board the Maine was excellent.

Magazines were all right at eight o'clock the evening of the explosion.

The coalbunkers were all right.

There were two explosions, the latter that of the forward magazines.

The keel plates were forced above the surface of the water by the explosion.

The explosion not due to negligence of the Maine officers.

The opinion is expressed that it was caused by a submarine mine.

No responsibility was fixed.

No party can maintain an organization so long as the would be leaders refuse to submit when they are in the minority. If a party makes a mistake it should be magnanimous enough to correct it at the first opportunity, but no amount of abuse on the part of those who were originally opposed to the measure is calculated to hasten the correction of an error.

THE indebtedness of Owen county is $226,000. If Boone owed that amount her people would consider her overwhelmingly bankrupt. Owen's taxable property is nearly $4,000,000 while that of Boone is about $6,000,000. Boone is entirely out of debt, owing to the conservative management of her financial affairs in the past.

IT is late in the day for the United States to commence sending supplies to the starving Cubans. Uncle Sam has stood quietly by and seen 400,000 of these people starve, while thousands more are beyond human aid. It it is right to send provisions to the Cubans now, it was equally so many months since.

SENATOR DEBOE considers himself a bigger man than the President when it comes to fighting the confirmation by the Senate of a Kentucky appointment that he does not endorse, and expects to defeat the confirmation of Leslie Combs as Pension Agent for Kentucky.

THE launching of the battle ship Kentucky was a towering success in every particular, even though her nose was bathed in pure Kentucky spring water instead of a like quantity of "Kentucky's best."

WHILE acting Governor, Lieutenant Governor Worthingon writes pardons with as much alacrity as Gov. Bradley prepares his vetoes. He granted three the other day before breakfast.

UNCLE SAM will have no trouble in organizing an army of officers if he will give out no commission below that of Colonel, but there may be a dearth of privates.

ONE thing has been made very public since the Maine disaster, and that is the that country at that time, was in an extremely poor condition to undertake a war.

J. D. MACKEY, of Evansville, Indiana, who, at one time, was worth $5,000,000 is now homeless and pennyless, and is on the road looking for a job.

PETITIONS asking Gov. Brown to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor are still pouring in upon him.

JULE PLUMMER was at the launching, last Thursday. It would have been a humiliating failure without Jule's august presence.

CONGRESSMAN BERRY has not abondoned the hope of getting an appropriation for the improvement of the Big Sandy river.

IT has been plain for some time that Spain was trying to conquer the Cubans by starving them rather than by whipping.

ALL who write on the subject advise the farmers to curtail their contemplated crop of tobacco at least one half.

THE Chicago sky-scrapers can not exceed ten stories under the law recently adopted by the city council.

AFTER all the Maine disaster is to be regarded as a small occurrence by the powers that be at Washington.

W. A. GAINES, colored, has failed, again, to make connection with the office of Register of the Treasury.

THE toll-gate muddle in Bath county is no nearer a settlement than the Cuban question.

IT is claimed that ex-Governor Brown favors Goebel for Goverhor.

As a result of a conference of delegates at Nashville, it was decided to hold a Tennessee industrial convention at Nashville May 11. One vote will be allowed for each one thousand population.

SOME of the Kentuckians present at the launching of the battle ship Kentucky, could not resist the temptation to burst a few bottles of old bourbon on her sides, and as she slid into the water they sacrificed their private flasks.

GOV. MCCREARY out of public life is like a fish out of water. He has been absent from Congress for one term, but unless there is nothing in present indications, he will be returned to Congress by those who have realized, some time since, the mistake they made by defeating him.

A MINISTER at Richmond, this State, advocates the acquiring of Cuba, by the United States, to be laid off into forty acre farms, to be occupied by negroes of this country, to whom the farms should be sold on the most favorable terms. He evidently wants to remove both the Spanish and the natives and stock the Island with a new people.

THE report of the Inspector who investigated the killing of John H. Freeman, colored, who had been appointed postmaster at Ada, Georgia, but had not taken charge of the office, says politics cut no figure, whatever, in the murder, but that Freeman, who kept a store, was killed by an ex-convict, who had fallen out with him in regard to an account.

SENATOR THURSTON'S great speech on the Cuban question in the Senate, last week, was in obedience to the dying request of his wife, who departed this life a few weeks since, while she and her husband were in Cuba, where they had witnessed the terrible condition of those persons who the Spaniards term reconcentrados. Mrs. Thurston's request of her husband was that he lose no time, on account of her death to do his utmost to save and free Cuba and its people. It is believed that the misery Mrs. Thurston witnessed before she was taken sick contributed largely to her death. Senator Thurston began his speech by saying, "I am here by the command of silent lips," having reference to his wife's last request, and the masterly effort brought tears from the eyes of many.

THERE is a heap of trouble among the congregation of the fashionable First Congregational church, in Jersey City, over the presence of a pool table, which the pastor, who believes in fighting Satan with his own weapons, had placed in the basement of the church. The players have to pay only two and one-half cents a cue, which is half the price charged in the saloons, where they must buy a drink with every game. The pool table has proved to be a greater attraction than the prayers and hymns, and the decreased attendance caused a number of members of the church to protest against the pool table, alleging that as long as that attraction is held forth to the youug people the prayer meetings will suffer; but the pastor thinks otherwise, and he ordered another table. As the deacons are taking kindly to the game a congregational row may be averted.

FROM the office of the State Board of Health a "Warning Against Small Pox," has been issued. It says: "Our State is seriously threatened with an epidemic of small-pox. Grave conditions already exist in Bell, Whitley and Madison counties, and cases are reported in Knox and Mason counties. So far the disease has been almost exclusively confined to negroes, but this exemption of the white race cannot long be hoped for if it continues to spread. In spite of repeated and cantinued warnings from this and county and municipal boards, each community so far attacked was unprepared, a large per cent. of the population was unvaccinated, and dangerous and costly delays occurred before the character of the diease was recognized, and hospital and other provisions could be made for the sick and exposed. Under our laws this expense must be met by the counties and cities affected, and it can only be made small by proper preparation before a case appears. The Board advises that each town and city at once pass and enforce a compulsory vaccination ordiance, beginning with the colored race but reaching everybody."

Over 5,500,000 eggs were received in St. Louis, one day last week.

Notes for Sheep Raisers.

Sheep fertilize the pastures.

Sheep are death to wild mustard.

Eastern Australia has 100,000,000 sheep.

Don't keep a flock in unventilated quarters.

The Merino matures too slowly for a profitable mutton sheep.

The demand for stock sheep has been very strong this season.

Second growth clover is highly recommended for lambs after weaning.

When the price of wool is high buyers are very exacting as to quality.

Once in awhile the stables should have an extra and thorough cleaning.

If sheep accidentally get wet, take pains to dry them as soon as possible.

Dry feed and nothing else will likely cause sick sheep before spring. Oil meal is a remedy.

The ram is by no means a coward and we have seen one put up a successful fight against a dog.

To compel the ewe to raise a lamb and grow a big fleece the same year is too much work for her.

The breeding of lamb rams is a serious mistake to both breeder and customer, says a flockmaster.

THE following is a brief extract taken from the speech of Senator Thurston, of Nebraska.

"After three years of warfare and the use of 225,000 Spanish troops, Spain has lost control of every foot of Cuba not surrounded by an actual intrenchment and protected by a fortified picket line. She holds possession with her armies of the fortified seaboard towns, because they are under the virtual protection of Spanish warships, with which the revolutionists can not cope. The revolutionists are in absolute and almost peaceful possession of nearly one-half of the island, including the eastern provinces of Santiago de Cuba and Puerto Principe. In those provinces of Santiago they have an established form of government, levy and collect taxes, maintain armies and generally levy a tax or tribute upon the principal plantations in other provinces, and as is commonly believed, upon the entire railway system of the island. In the four so-called Spanish provinces there is neither cultivation nor railway operation except under strong Spanish military protection or by consent of the revolutionists in consideration of tribute."

IT is surprising how some men, who ought to be informed, will talk through their hats at times. Collector Comingore, of Covington, visited Louisville, last week, and the following is what he imposed upon the Commercill of that city, as regards the race for Congress in this district:

"I think the Republican nominee could win easily in the sixth if we had a fair count, but this is almost an impossibility. There is no doubt in my mind that Goebel was fairly beaten in his race for the senate last year, but he was counted in through corrupt political methods."

THE daily papers may not have known three weeks ago what the report on the Maine disaster would be, but the report proves that they were excellent guessers.

THE report of the Court of Inquiry has been consigned to a back seat, and will be considered only as an incident as regards the Cuban question.

THE Maine trouble turns out to be no trouble. It is strange how terrible badly even the knowing ones are disappointed sometimes.

THE United States and Spain have been playing a big game of bluff, and how long they will continue, remains to be seen.

ACCORDING TO TALENTS

All of Us Will Be Judged on the Last Day.

Our Environment at Birth and Evil Influences That May Have Surrounded Us Will Be Duly Considered—All Men Not Created Equal—Rev. Dr. Talmage's Sermon.

Dr. Talmage took for his text Matthew vii., 2: "With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again."

In the greatest sermon ever preached—a sermon about 15 minutes long, according to the ordinary rate of speech—a sermon on the Mount of Olives, the preacher sitting while He spoke, according to the ancient mode of oratory, the people were given to understand that the same yard-stick that they employed upon others would be employed upon themselves. Measure others by a harsh rule, and you will be measured by a harsh rule. Measure others by a charitable rule, and you will be measured by a charitable rule. Give no mercy to others and no mercy will be given to you. "With what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again."

There is a great deal of unfairness in criticism in human conduct. It was to smite that unfairness that Christ uttered the words of the text, and my sermon will be a re-echo of the divine sentiment. In estimating the misbehavior of others, we must take into consideration the pressure of circumstances. It is never right to do wrong, but there are degrees of culpability. When men misbehave or commit some atrocious wickedness we are disposed indiscriminately to tumble them all over the bank of condemnation. Suffer they ought, and suffer they must, but in difference of degree.

In the first place, in estimating the misdoing of others, we must take into calculation the hereditary tendency. There is such a thing as good blood, and there is such a thing as bad blood. There are families that have had a moral twist in them for a hundred years back. They have not been careful to keep the family record in that regard. There have been escapades, and marauding and scoundrelisms and moral deficits all the way back, whether you call it kleptomania, or pyromania or dipsomania, or whether it be in a milder form, and amount to no mania at all. The strong probability is that the present criminal started life with nerve, muscle and bone contaminated. As some start life with a natural tendency to nobility and generosity and kindness and truthfulness, there are others who start life with just the opposite tendency, and they are born liars, or born malcontents, or born outlaws, or born swindlers.

There is in England a school that is called the Princess Mary school. All the children in that school are the children of convicts. The school is under high patronage. I had the pleasure of being presented at one of their anniversaries, presided over by the earl of Kintore. By a wise law in England, after parents have committed a certain number of crimes, and thereby shown themselves incompetent rightly to bring up their children, the little ones are taken from under pernicious influences and put in reformatory schools, where all gracious and kindly influences shall be brought upon them. Of course the experiment is young, and it has got to be demonstrated how large a percentage of the children of convicts may be brought up to respectability and usefulness. But we all know that it is more difficult for children of bad parentage to do right than for children of good parentage.

In this country we are taught by the declaration of American independence that all people are born equal. There never was a greater misrepresentation put in one sentence than in that sentence which implies that we are born equal. You may as well say that flowers are born equal, or animals are born equal. Why does one horse cost $100 and another horse cost $5,000? Why does one sheep cost $10 and another sheep cost $500? Difference in blood. We are wise enough to recognize it in horses, in cattle, in sheep, but we are not wise enough to make allowances for the difference in the human blood. Now I demand by the law of eternal fairness that you be more lenient in your criticism of those who were born wrong, in whose ancestral line there was a hangman's knot, or who came from a tree the fruit of which for centuries has been gnarled and worm-eaten.

Dr. Harris, a reformer, gave some marvelous statistics in his story of a woman he called "Margaret, the mother of criminals." Ninety years ago she lived in a village in upper New York state. She was not only poor, but she was vicious. She was not well provided for. There were no alms houses there. The public however, somewhat looked after her, but chiefly scoffed at her, and derided her, and pushed her further down in crime. That was 90 years ago. There have been 628 persons in that ancestral line, 300 of them criminals. In one branch of that family there were 30, and nine of them have been in state prison, and nearly all of the others have turned out badly.

It is estimated that that family cost the county and state $100,000, to say nothing of the property they destroyed. Are you not willing, as sensible, fair people, to acknowledge that it is a fear ful disaster to be born in such an ancestral line? Does it not make a great difference whether one descends in Margaret, the mother of criminals, or from some mother in Israel? Whether you are the son of Ahab or the son of Joshua?

It is a very different thing to swim with the current from what it is to swim against the current, as some of you have no doubt found in your summer recreation. If a man finds himself in an ancestral current, where there is good blood flowing smoothly from generation to generation, it is not a great credit to him if he turn out good, honest, and pure, and noble. He could hardly help it. But suppose he is born in an ancestral line, in an hereditary line, where the influences have been bad, and there has been a coming down over a moral declivity, if the man surrenders to the influences he will go down under the overmastering gravitation unless some supernatural aid be afforded him. Now, such a person deserves not your execoriation, but your pity. Do not sit with the lip curled in scorn, and with an assumed air of angelic innocence looking down upon such moral precipitation. You had better get down on your knees and first pray Almighty God for your rescue, and next thank the Lord that you have not been thrown under the wheels of that juggernaut.

In Great Britain and in the United States, in every generation, there are tens of thousands of persons who are fully developed criminals and incarcerated, I say in every generation. Then I suppose there are tens of thousands of persons not found out in their criminality. In addition to these there are tens of thousands of persons who, not positively becoming criminals, nevertheless have a criminal tendency. Anyone of all these thousands, by the grace of God may become Christian, and resist the ancestral influence, and open a new chapter of behavior; but the vast majority of them will not, and it becomes all men, professional, ministers of religion, judges of courts, philanthropists and Christian workers, to recognize the fact that there are these Atlantic and Pacific surges of hereditary evil rolling on through the centuries. I say of course, a man can resist temptation, just as in the ancestral line mentioned in the first chapter of Matthew. You see in the same line in which there was a wicked Rehoboam and a desperate Manasseh there afterward came a pious Josiah and a glorious Christ. But my friends, you must recognize the fact that these influences go on from generation to generation. I am glad to know however, that a river which has produced nothing but miasma for a hundred miles, may after awhile turn the wheels of factories and help support industrious and virtuous populations; and there are family lines which were poisoned that are a benediction now. At the last day it will be found out that there are men who have gone clear over into all forms of iniquity and plunged into utter abandonment, who before they yielded to the first temptation resisted more evil than many a man who has been moral and upright all his life.

But, supposing now, that in this age, when there are so many good people, that it come down into this audience and select the very best man in it. I do not mean the man who would style himself the best, for probably he is a hypocrite; but I mean the man who before God is really the best. I will take you out from all your Christian surroundings. I will put you in a depraved home. I will put you in a cradle of iniquity. Who is bending over that cradle? An intoxicated mother. Who is that swearing in the next room? Your father. The neighbors come in to talk, and their jokes are unclean. There is not in the house a Bible or a moral treatise, but only a few scraps of an old pictorial.

After awhile you are old enough to get out of the cradle, and you are struck across the head for naughtiness, but never in any kindly manner reprimanded. After awhile you are old enough to go abroad, and you are sent out with a basket to steal. If you come home without any spoil you are whipped until the blood comes. At 15 years of age you go out to fight your own battles in this world, which seems to care no more for you than the dog that has died of a fit under the street. You are kicked and cuffed and buffeted. Some day, rallying your courage, you resent some wrong. A man says: "Who are you? I know who you are. Your father had free lodgings at Sing Sing. You mother, she was up for drunkenness at the criminal court. Get out of the way, you low-lived wretch!" My brother, suppose that had been the history of your advent, and the history of your earlier surroundings, would you have been the Christian man you are to-day, seated in this Christian assembly? I tell you nay. You would have been a vagabond, an outlaw, a murderer on the scaffold atoning for your crime. All these considerations ought to make us merciful in our dealings with the wandering and the lost.

Again, I have to remark, that in our estimation the misdoing of people who have fallen from high respectability and usefulness, we must take into consideration the conjunction of circumstances. In nine cases out of ten the man who goes astray does not intend any positive wrong. He has tried funds. He risks a part of these funds in investment. He says, "Now, if I should lose that investment I have of my own property five times as much, and if this investment should go wrong I could easily make it up: I could five times make it up." With that wrong reasoning he goes on and makes an investment, and it does not turn out quite as well as he expected, and he makes another investment, and strange to say at the same time all his other affairs get entangled, and all his other resources fail, and his hands are tied. Now he wants to extricate himself. He goes a little further on in the wrong investment. He takes a plunge further ahead, for he wants to save his wife and children, he wants to save his home, he wants to save his membership in the church. He takes one more plunge and all is lost.

Some morning at 10 o'clock the bank door is not opened, and there is a card on the door signed by an officer of the bank, indicating there is trouble, and the name of the defaulter or the defrauder heads the newspaper columns and hundreds of men say: "Good for him;" hundreds of other men say: "I'm glad he's found out at last;" hundreds of other men say: "Just as I told you." hundreds of other men say: "We couldn't possibly have been tempted to do that—no conjunction of circumstances could ever have overthrown me;" and there is a superabundance of indignation, but no pity. The heavens full of lightning but not one drop of dew. If God treated us as society treats that man we would all have been in hell long ago!

Wait for the alleviating circumstances. Perhaps he may have been the dupe of others. Before you let all the hounds out from their kennel to maul and tear that man, find out if he has not been brought up in a commercial establishment where there was a wrong system of ethics taught; find out whether that man has not an extravagant wife who is not satisfied with his honest earnings, and in the temptation to please her he has gone into that ruin into which enough men have fallen, and by the same temptation, to make a procession of many miles. Perhaps some sudden sickness may have touched his brain, and his judgment may be unbalanced. He is wrong, he is awfully wrong, and he must be condemned, but there may be mitigating circumstances. Perhaps under the same temptation you might have fallen. The reason some men do not steal $200,000 is because they do not get a chance! Have righteous indignation you must about that man's conduct, but temper it with mercy.

But you say: "I am sorry that the innocent should suffer." Yes, I am, too—sorry for the widows and the orphans who lost their all by that defalcation. I am sorry also for the business men, who have had their affairs all crippled by that defalcation. I am sorry for the venerable bank president to whom the credit of that bank was a matter of pride. Yes, I am sorry also for that man who brought all the distress; sorry that he sacrificed body, mind, soul, reputation, Heaven, and went into the blackness of darkness forever. You defiantly say: "I could not be tempted in that way." Perhaps you may be tested after awhile. God has a very good memory, and He sometimes seems to say: "This man feels so strong in his innate power and goodness he shall be tested; he is so full of bitter invective against that unfortunate it shall be shown now whether he has the power to stand."

Fifteen years go by. The wheel of fortune turns several times, and you are in a crisis that you never could have anticipated. Now, all the powers of darkness come around, and they chuckle and they chatter and they say: "Aha! here is the old fellow who was so proud of his integrity, and who bragged he couldn't be overthrown by temptation, and was so uproarious in his demonstrations of indignation at the defalcation 15 years ago. Let us see!"

God lets the man go. God, who had kept that man under His protecting care, lets the man go, and try for himself the majesty of his integrity. God letting the man go, the powers of darkness pounce upon him. I see you some day in your office in great excitement. One of two things you can do. Be honest, and be pauperized, and have your children brought home from school, your family dethroned in social influence.

The other thing is, you can step a little aside from that which is right, you can only just go half an inch out of the proper path, you can only take a little risk, and then you have all your finances fair and right. You will have a large property. You can leave a fortune for your children, and endow a college, and build a public library in your native town. You halt and wait, and halt and wath until your lips get white. You decide to risk it. Only a few strokes of the pen now. But, oh, how your hand trembles—how dreadfully it trembles! The die is cast. By the strangest and most awful conjunction of circumstance any one could have imaged you are prostrated. Bankruptcy, commercial annihilation, exposure, crime. Good men mourn and devils hold carnival, and you see your own name at the head of the newspaper column in a whole congress of exclamation points; and while you are reading the anathema in the reportorial and editorial paragraph it occurs to you how much this story is like that of the defalcation 15 years ago, and a clap of thunder shakes the window sill, saying: "With what measure ye mete it shall be measured to you again!" You look in another direction.

There is nothing like conditions of temper to put a man to disadvantage. You, a man with fine pulses and a fine digestion and perfect health, can not understand how any body should be capsized in temper by an infinitesimal annoyance. You say: "I couldn't be unbalanced in that way." Perhaps you smile at a provocation that makes an other man swear. You pride yourself on your imperturability. You say with your mustache, though you have too much good taste to say it with your words: "I have a great deal more sense than that man has; I have a great deal more equipoise of temper than that man has; I never could make such a purcile exhibition of myself as that man has made."

A REMARKABLE application has been made to the French government in the case of a man named Germain Cirasse, who was tried for murder and condemned to death as long ago as 1852. His three daughters have petitioned the authorities to review the trial and exonerate their father, although he was executed more than 40 years since. "The crime, even if committed, was partly political, but there are abundant reasons for believing that Cirasse was the victim of a judicial blunder." It is said in Paris that the petition of the daughters is so strongly supported by evidence that it will be granted.

SCIENTISTS have been extracting gold from the waters of the ocean. This gold is theoretically carried into the ocean by the streams leading from the gold regions in the finest form or particles known. It is, in the parlance of the mining camp, "flour gold," and in that shape manifests its presence in the sands of all the Rocky mountain plateaus.

A CABINET MEMBER'S GUESTS.

Country Cousins Are Not Always Welcome in Fashionable Homes.

"A Cabinet Member's Wife," records her trying and apparently vexatious ordeal at the hands of two country cousins, in her "Inner Experiences." She prefaces her plaint with the statement that if country people would only dress simply, as they do at home, when they come to town, they would look much better, and she describes her expected guests and their homely greetings: "Cousin Zeke had on an old 'stove-pipe' hat resurrected from the garret, I know, and dating from some time when I was a child, for I dimly remember seeing father with one on. His overcoat was comfortable and sensible, but when he took it off, he disclosed what looked like a second-hand dress suit several sizes too large for him. Imagine a dress suit to travel in! As he took off his coat he remarked: 'I heard tell that at the capital dress clothes was the fashion, an' so I just went to a man who keeps a tailorin' shop in our nearest town and told him to show me the cheapest dress clothes he had in his stock, and I was really s'prised when I got 'em hum to see 'em fit so tol'able well. We wanted to be 's well dressed as the best when we did visit the capital.'

"Polly had on a good black silk dress made in the style of 20 years ago, the skirt ruffled to the waist. Her dress was all right, but ye godd! her bonnet! It was made of dark purple velvet and trimmed with yellow ostrich feathers, two standing up straight on one side, while one plume fell down to her shoulder on the other. I never saw such a concoction in any country neighborhood—it was Polly, not the country, coming out in her. These were the only clothes they had with them, excepting a change of underwear in their bags, and we had to take them about for nearly a week in these things."—Ladies' Home Journal.

AN INTELLIGENT JUROR.

He Was Excused from Service in Wayne County.

A Wayne county jury was being empaneled to try a suit against a street railway company for personal damages, and an attorney was examining the panel as to competency to sit.

"What is your business?" he asked of a jolly German.

"Sausagemaker, but my name is not Luetgert," was the reply, that put everybody in good humor.

"Have you any prejudices against street railways?"

"No, I haf no prejudice against dem, but I don't like dem."

"Why? Have they ever done you any harm?"

"Oh, dey don't neffer vas run ofer me, but dey vas all der time reaching out so," and the juror extended his hands, and clutched about in the atmosphere with his fingers.

"Do you think that your feeling against railway companies is so strong that it might influence your verdict in this case?"

"Oh, no, I would do what is right."

"Would you believe the testimony of a motorman as soon as you would that of the plaintiff?"

"Vell, I wouldn't belief eder of dem unless somebody else said so, too."

"Suppose the testimony was evenly balanced; just as strong on one side as the other; would your verdict be for the plaintiff or the defendant?"

"In dot case I wouldn't give a verdict for neder of dem."

Even his honor joined in the laugh that followed, and the juror was excused for cause.—Detroit Journal.

Serving Celery.

Not many people know that a bunch of celery in the hands of a good housekeeper is one of the few things about which there is absolutely no waste. From an ordinary bunch of celery of five stalks pick off the large leaves, wash them, and place in a quart of water, letting the quantity boil down to about half a pint; when cold bottle this liquid and keep in a cool place to be used for flavoring gravies and soups. Next, the fine roots; wash and boil the same as potatoes, trying them with a fork to tell when done. Cut them into thin slices, add a finely cut onion, and make into a salad the same as the ordinary potato salad. The large and coarser stalks of celery cut into inch lengths, boil, cover with a cream sauce, and serve as a vegetable. The delicate stalks use as ordinarily for a relish, and the pretty yellow leaves will be found to make a pretty trimming for the meat dish. This uses every scrap of the celery itself. But the careful housekeeper will not even discard the string which ties the stalks together, but if it is long enough will roll it up for future use.—N. Y. Tribune.

A Garnish of Oranges.

A pretty garnish for sweet dishes is iced oranges. The oranges are peeled and pulled apart into sections, each piece being dipped into a soft icing until it is perfectly covered. They are then strung with a fine, sharp needle on a thrend and put in the warming oven to dry thoroughly. If the hot oven of the range is not too hot, they can be suspended there from the top grate, and the drying process is more quickly accomplished, but they must not be browned, only dried white. They are then laid around a mound of lemon jelly or of plain blanc-mange, or of any dessert whose flavor is not very positive.—N. Y. Post.

Chocolate Omelet.

For four eggs allow one tablet of chocolate, which should be pounded, and dissolve in as little cream as possible to accomplish the purpose. When the chocolate is cold, add the yolks of the four eggs, a tablespoon of cream, and the whites whipped to a snow. With this mixture proceed as for frying an ordinary omelet, working briskly over a good fire in well-heated fat; turn the omelet into a dish, glaze quickly with a little chocolate dissolved in water and a little gelatine, and serve promptly.—Boston Globe.

JONAH OF THE REPUBLICANS.

Secretary of the Treasury Gage Is the Great Jawsmith of His Party.

Hon. Lyman J. Gage is the bete noir of the republican party. He is the old man of the sea upon the necks of the McKinnaites. He is a great provoker of profanity among them. He is defeating them for reelection, and they know it. Hence the curses both loud and deep. They would like to kidnap him and throw him to the sharks. He is the worst hated man in Washington—which is saying a great deal. This hatred is confined exclusively to republicans, for they regard him as a tyro, a neophite, an interloper, an upstart. They would forgive him for this, if he'd only keep his mouth shut; but there's the rub. That's precisely what he will not do. As a jawsmith he ranks with Jim Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons. Like Tennyson's brook, his tongue goes on forever. Lyman thinks he has a message to deliver, and is delivering it every time he gets a chance; if he can't get an opportunity naturally, he makes one. Every time he opens his mouth he speaks the doom of the northwestern republican congressman or two—sometimes three or four. With his own jawbone he is doing nearly as much execution among the Philistines as Samson did with the jawbone of an ass. Indeed there is a wonderful similarity between the two deadly weapons. More power to Lyman's inferior maxillary!

The democrats are decidedly cheerfully regarding Lyman. They are inclined to regard him as a blessing in disguise. At first they bussed him for rating and treated him with contumely; but, now that he is avenging them upon his enemies, they are disposed to laugh at his antics and to bid him Godspeed in his self-appointed and laudable task of exterminating the republican party. What is the matter with Lyman! Why do western republican congressmen revile and despitefully use him, and continually consign him to Pluto's black realms? What sin has the secretary of the treasury committed? He has committed the sin unpardonable in republican eyes—he has told the truth—a habit he formed while a democrat. Lyman cast aside all subterfuges about international bimetallism and declares that this bill has for its purpose "to more thoroughly establish the gold standard in the United States." Thus he wrote the epitaph of republicanism on this continent. He tore the masks off the ashen faces of the trimmers, the double-dealers, the good Lord, good devil republican statesman and dragged them out into the light of day, exhibiting them to a heartless and cruel, jeering world as goldbugs of the yellowest kind. They can play double no longer. Gage has rendered that utterly impossible. The moment he declared in the room of the committee on banking and currency that the paramount object of his bill is "to more thoroughly establish the gold standard in the United States" he irrevocably fixed the issue for campaigns of 1898 and 1900. It's the money question—the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the ratio of sixteen to one without waiting for anybody's consent. No other question will be considered. All others will be held in abeyance. The truth is that the American mind is so rigged up that it can wrestle with only one great problem at one time—and until it is settled right, which means settled our way, finance will be the resounding theme of every tongue, the mediation of every brain. We thank Lyman for thus playing into our hands. He bullied more wisely than he knew. He so nailed the republican Artful Dodgers up in the market place that they are like Othello, for their occupation is gone. They can dodge no more. They were elected under false pretenses as bimetallists—not one in ten of them could have won in any other name. Now the world knows them for what they really are—goldbugs—and the halls of congress will know them no more forever. Verily, verily, God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform. In the 60 odd years which Lyman trained with us he did us little good. In the one year in which he has been in the enemy's camp he has been to us a tower of strength. If it had not been for Lyman's brutal performances the republicans would have gone on telling the same old lie—being all things to all men on the financial question, in the hope of winning some say. I say brutal deliberately, for it is a thing impossible to teach old dogs new tricks; and it will be tough on the old stagers who in 1896 swore they were better bimetallists than we were, to be forced now to hunt for some new lie that will hide them over. Why did Lyman do this wonderful thing for Syrianism? Why did he hamstring his own party? For this reason: He is a multimillionaire banker; by using his opportunities as a secretary of the treasury for all they are worth he is making money hand over fist; he becomes thoroughly intoxicated with his own success, and in his exuberance of feeling he let the cat out of the bag, exposed the rats in the meal tub and uncovered the nigger in the wood pile. Cussing will do the republicans no good. What's writ is writ; what's done is done, and it can't be undone. By reason of Lyman's linguistic performances the republican party lies sprawling in the dust.

"All the king's horses and all the king's men Can't set Humpty Dumpty up again."

Thank God for that. On its tombstone will be written: "Talked to death by Lyman J. Gage, a renegade free trader, who was hired to join the republican party by being made secretary of the treasury. Requiescat."

HON. CHAMP CLARK.

——"The decline of interest in the silver question," continues to be most vehemently manifested wherever Mr. Bryan goes. This "decline" is a bother to the "burial of the silver question."—Atlanta Constitution.

A DAY TO CELEBRATE.

Honor to the Great Champion of Democracy and Human Liberty.

The National Association of Democratic Clubs has issued the following address:

"The National Association of Democratic Clubs will celebrate the one hundredandfifty-fifth birthday anniversary of Thomas Jefferson at Washington, D. C., Wednesday, April 23, by a subscription dinner under the auspices of the executive committee of this association. The reverential service of Jefferson day has become a significant usage of the democratic clubs and of the democratic party. It furnishes a fitting occasion for renewed declarations of devotion to the fundamental principles of human liberty, for which the party was originally formed to uphold and defend; for the revision of our party doctrines as applied to the conflicts of the hour, and for a timely review of the centralizing, corrupting and oppressive measures of our federalist opponents, who, under one name or another, have from the foundation of the republic sought to revolutionize the constitution by false construction and false administration. It is believed that never since the issues between the contending forces—class, privilege and wealth on one side and the people on the other—were first clearly joined in 1776 or 1880, when the first great triumph of the people was achieved, has there been an hour when the bold reassertion of the sound traditional principles of the democratic party is more imperatively [illegible] than at this time. We therefore earnestly advise the democratic associates of the United States. Whether large or small, to join with the National Association of Democratic Clubs on the 23rd of April at such hour and in such manner as may best serve the wishes of each separate organization, in a common homage to the memory of the great apostle of American liberty, the author of the declaration of independence and the founder of the democratic party, in a fresh expression of our unalterable determination to preserve the heritage of freedom as it came to us from our forefathers and to resist by every lawful means in our power the encroachments of organized wealth and monopoly upon the constitutional rights of the people. We need not particularize here in what practical forms these encroachments appear to-day. They are seen and known of all men. If they are not met and defeated before the dawn of the twentieth century we must be content to see the republic of Washington and Jefferson replaced by the oligarchy of wealth, trusts and sordid conspiracies in many disguises, taxing for private purposes, safeguarding monopolies, devouring the profits of all our industries, 'taking from the mouth of labor the bread it has earned' and shutting the door of opportunity to all but the favored classes."

CHAUNCEY F. BLACK, President.
LAWRENCE GARDNER, Secretary.

Republican Frauds.

"Protection and Prosperity," "open the mills and not the mints," were emblazoned on the banners of the republican party in the campaign of 1896. The democrats claimed that this country owed its prosperity to the farmers and not to the mill owners, and recent events prove this. There was a special session of congress called to pass the Dingley bill, and what was the result? Mills all over New England have closed down for the first time in the history of milling in that section, and only for the scarcity of food products in foreign countries, providential to this country, innumerable other mills and manufactories would be closed. True, the steel interests are flourishing, but that is the result of a trust formation with $87,000,000 capital and the foreign demand for their goods. Wherein does protection help any western man, farmer or not? In no way does it affect him except to make the price of the goods he has to purchase a little higher. A foreign demand puts up the price of wheat and benefits us, but increasing the wealth of millionaires is of no benefit to the toilers. The syndicates escape taxation in every possible manner and leave the farmer and toiler, whose property is all visible, to bear the burdens of government. Is there a republican who can truthfully deny this?

People's Victory Not Wanted.

It grows plainer each day that a large part of the metropolitan press are railroad and monopoly organs. They are very much alarmed at the advice given by Senator Jones, the national chairman of the democratic party, and by Mr. Bryan, that all the opponents of the gold and monopoly syndicate should cooperate to restore good government. They are alarmed because they know that the suggestions made by Mr. Bryan and Mr. Jones, if carried out, would win a victory for the people. That is what the monopoly organs do not want. They are serving their masters; their masters are the overseers of J. Pierpont Morgan and the foreign gold syndicate. They want railroad legislation. Therefore they will exert every effort to divide the people, so that the old, corrupt Ransom machine may again get into power to betray the state into the hands of the Southern railroad and the other monopolies.

——The announcement by a funeral director that he did twice as much business last month as during the corresponding month of last year indicates that the Dingley prosperity breeder is at last getting in its work.—Indianapolis Sentinel.

——Speaking of white crows and hen's teeth, why not change the simile and make it republican victories in the spring elections?—Albany Argus.

——There's one comfort, the government won't have to buy any new revenue cutters as long as the Dingley bill is in force.—Chicago Dispatch.

WOMEN AND THE WHEEL.

From the Gazette, Delaware, Ohio.

The healthfulness of bicycle riding for women is still a disputed question between eminent physicians and health reformers.

Used in moderation it surely creates for women a means of out-door exercise, the benefit of which all physicians concede. Used to excess, like any other pastime, its effect is likely to be dangerous.

The experience of Miss Bertha Reed, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Mr. J. R. Reed, 335 Lake St., Delaware, Ohio, may point a moral for parents who, like Mr. and Mrs. Reed, have experienced some concern for their daughters who are fond of wheeling. In the fall of '96 Miss Bertha, who had ridden a great deal, began to fail in an alarming manner. She grew steadily paler and thinner, and it appeared she was going into consumption. Rest and quiet did her absolutely no good.

She Rides Well.

A physician took her pulse at 104—a very high rate. Thinking this may have been due to temporary nervousness when he examined her, he watched her closely, but her pulse continued at that rate for two weeks. He was satisfied then, from her high pulse and steadily wasting condition that she was suffering from anaemia or a bloodless condition of the body. She became extremely weak, and could not stand the least noise or excitement. In this condition of affairs they were recommended by an old friend to get some of that famous blood medicine Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They did so, and almost from the first dose Bertha began to improve. She continued to take the pills and was by means of those pills made entirely well, and more grateful people than parents cannot be found in the whole State of Ohio.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved a boon to womankind. Acting directly on the blood and nerves, they restore the requisite vitality to all parts of the body; creating functional regularity and perfect harmony throughout the nervous system. The pallor of the cheeks is changed to the delicate blush of health; the eyes brighten; the muscles grow elastic, ambition is created and good health returns.

SOMETHING HAPPENED.

A Bit of Excitement in the Nevada Desert.

The town of Galt, in the middle of the Nevada desert, contains 11 houses, and you step out of the First precinct of the First ward into boundless alkali-covered space. For two hours we had been lying on the main track waiting for the engineer to find out just what was the trouble with his locomotive and to remedy the disability, and there was little prospect of a resumption of the journey short of half a day of lingering. Every passenger had already investigated the half-acre of town at least six times, and the delay was becoming so monotonous that complaint rose and traveled in waves.

"For heaven's sake!" cried a stout wine dealer from California, "doesn't anything ever happen in such a town as this? Can't somebody think of something to do to pass the time? What interesting occurrences have you here, anyway?" The last question was addressed to a thin, lanky-looking young man, the only male adult resident in Galt who was visible among the 12 or 14 women and children gathered at the railroad tracks.

"Don't nothin' much ever happen here," said the local dweller. "Blame it all, every goin's on is up at Podiga, the county seat, where there's as many as 17 houses. They've got a trial up there this week, an all our men folks has been drawed on the jury. That's why I'm the only one here. I'd a gone, too, but I got a sore knee, an' the shurieff wouldn't take me. Always my luck. Never see nothin' nor have no ex-perience. Them six men that went from here'll come back an' talk for two years about bein' on that jury. Plagued shame. A man with a sore knee'd make as good a feller for a jury as anyone else."

"Well, can't we get up a fight or something diverting to pass time away?"

"I ain't agin fightin', but I don't light only with Ben Hackbarth, fer I can lick him easy. But Ben's on the jury. He'll come back an' blow about it, too. Dog him."

"I'll give a dollar if you'll wrestle or run a race or dance a jig or—or—or—by thunder, anything!"

"I never rassled with anybuddy but Ben Hackbarth, 'cause I can throw him; an' I don't care to run a race, either, unless with Ben, an' he's on the jury. Wisht I was up there havin' experiences, too."

"Well," desperately pursued the tired-out passenger, "isn't there something you can do without Ben Hackbarth? Anything? Anything, I say. I'll make up a purse of $10 for any—"

"Mister, did you say $10?" one of the younger of the lynxlanding women interrupted. The wine dealer said "Yes," and the girl called the disappointed youth aside and the two talked for a few moments. The proprietor of the lame knee then approached the knot of passengers and said:

"We've decided we'll let you run up, mister. That is, if there's any preacher with you."

"Preacher? You bet your life! We've got a bishop!" yelled the New York business man of both 7. And he rushed for the sleeper, for he understood the purport of the remark of the Galt man.

"The idy is this here," said the latter, "Ben Hackbarth an' me both been kind o' tryin' around fer this young lady to marry us, an' Ben bein' a kind o' traveled an' experienced man seemed like it'd be natcherl fer her to take him, as she told me in our talkin' just now."

"He'd been as far as Elko once," said the girl, succinctly.

"But when you spoke of givin' $10 fer anything, from gittin' married to shootin' at a mark, just so it was done right here and now, she took a notion—"

"Ten dollars is $10," said the girl, succinctly.

The bishop was not averse to uniting two loving hearts, and the whole train turned out to celebrate the occasion. The marriage took place on the rear platform of the sleeper, and some of the women passengers lent effects to deck the bride out regardless. The festivities continued up to the time when the engineer announced that he had patched the defect in the locomotive and was ready to proceed, and then the wine dealer took up a fund for the new family. The conductor even agreed to carry the couple on to the next station for a bridal tour and the Pullman conductor welcomed them to the fine furnishings of his domain. The two left the train at El Dodo, being in a sort of daze of delight. The last observation we heard from the bridegroom was this prophetic remark:

"I'll bet when them six fellers get back from Podiga they'll be sorry fer thinkin' that nothin' ever happens at home. They'll be sorry they was ever called on that jury." Specially," with a grim smile, "Ben Hackbarth."—Chicago Record.

He Didn't Want the Route.

"Senator Sulloway, of New Hampshire, tells a good one when he gets warmed on the civil service question," said one of the statesmen who came to help the Michigan club celebrate Washington's birthday. "Somewhere in the south a bright colored boy appeared before the commission to be examined for the position of letter carrier.

"'How far is it from the earth to the moon?' was the first question asked by those who were to determine the young man's fitness for the place he sought.

"'How fah am it from de earf to de moon?' echoed the applicant. 'My Lawd, boss, if you's gwine to put me on dat route I don't want de job.'

"With that the young man grabbed his hat and left as though he were chased."—Detroit Free Press.

A RED DINNER

It Is the Proper Thing, and Here Is How to Do It.

In giving the red dinner so distinctly in vogue at this season, the tomato is, by reason of its complexion, the belle amongst vegetables. When raw tomatoes are difficult to get or are too expensive the following recipe, if carefully carried out, simulates the whole tomato so perfectly in appearance, and is so delicious in flavor, as to make the salad the crowning glory of the feast.

Take one pine of stewed tomatoes, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoon of white pepper, one tablespoon of tarragon vinegar, one teaspoon of onion julce, one bay leaf, two sprigs of parsley, one-quarter cup of gelatine.

Put all the ingredients in a granite dish. Let soak for two or three hours; then bring to a boiling point, remove bay leaf and parsley; turn into small molds. When ready to serve dip the mold in hot water for a second only. Drop the jelly the rounded side up on a lettuce leaf. Surround this with a cream mayonnaise dressing, to which has been added finely chopped celery.

Points to be observed: Keep a revolving flour sieve expressly for straining tomatoes. Experience proves it to be more satisfactory than any other device.

Be sure to use the white pepper. It makes an enormous difference in the tint of the jelly. The ordinary sloping after-dinner coffee cup is the best dish to which to mold the form. The small blue stoneware baking cups also make a good form. Never use a tin mold with a recipe containing eggs or acids. This amount makes eight molds.

The following dessert for a red dinner is quite beyond praise:

Nut Cream.—One pint of cream unwhipped, one-half cup almonds, one-quarter cup gelatine, six tablespoons maraschino, or four tablespoons sherry, one-third cup granulated sugar, one teaspoon vanilla, one-half teaspoon rose water.

Have a large bowl on the ice. The cream must be ice cold. Have your egg beater also ice cold. Half the trouble experienced in whipping cream comes from non-observance of these two simple precautions. Whip your cream. Soak the gelatine in a pint of cold water for an hour. Be sure to cover it while it is soaking. Add the wine and flavorings to the sugar. Add these to the whipped cream, then the nuts chopped fine and salted a very little. Save out a few for the top.

Put the dish of gelatine in a dish of boiling water and stir until dissolved. Add quickly to the cream, stir rapidly a moment and put in ramikins. Sprinkle a few finely chopped nuts over the top and crown all with one or more crystallized cherries. This mount of cream fills 12 ramikins.

Having decided upon tomato for your salad, and not wanting to repeat the flavor in your soup, you may feel hard pressed for a properly tinted soup. In this case a cream soup, decorated with little red peppers, looks very pretty, and no one is obliged to eat the peppers.—Detroit Free Press.

FOR FLOWER GROWERS.

Care of House Plants in Cold Weather.

Examine the outdoor rose-beds occasionally to see that the wind has not removed the covering.

The plants stored for the winter in the cellar have now been in some time. Perhaps they need a little water or other attention.

Where plants are kept about the windows, cold drafts from the sides of the sash should be carefully guarded against during severe weather.

Frequent cleansing of the leaves of foliage plants, by using tepid water and a sponge, lends to their attractiveness, and is essential to the health of the plants.

Just at this time, when work with the flowers is very light, is a good time to consider what will be best to plant in the garden in the spring. When the proper time comes everything must be in readiness, so that no valuable time will be lost.

Cinders form a good material for covering the floors and paths of the conservatory.

To clean old flower-pots on which green moss and a sort of white mold has grown, scrub them vigorously with sand and water. Thus will make the pots look bright and new. Use porous vessels only to pot plants in. They will do better in such than in tin cans.—Woman's Home Companion.

Neatly Dressed.

There is an exquisite charm about a neatly-dressed woman. She does not wear her hair loose, as if it is just about to fall on her shoulders. Her gloves are not ripped at the seams, nor are any buttons missing from her boots. Her veil does not reveal a hole over her chin, nor does the binding of her skirt show ragged in places. Not many women show their tidiness in these details, but the well-groomed woman considers that neglect in these little things is full of shame to womankind. Note the well-dressed tailor-built woman. Her cloth gown fits her without a crease, and there is neither speck nor spot on it. Her linen collar and cuffs are snowy white and remain perfectly fixed in their places. Her gloves do not wrinkle, but button smoothly over her wrists; her shoes are dainty and polished. Her bonnet or hat is pinned on straight, and her hair is neatness itself. She is the picture of delicate finish and wholesome order. Would that we could come across her somewhat oftener!—N. Y. Ledger.

Chocolate Blanc Mange.

One quart of milk, half a box of gelatine soaked in one cup of water; four tablespoonfuls of grated chocolate, rubbed smooth in a little milk; three eggs, extract of vanilla to taste. Heat milk until boiling, then add other ingredients and boil five minutes. Pour into mold. Serve cold, with sugar and cream or custard.—N. Y. Ledger.

WASHINGTON WIDOWS.

They Persist in Bringing Number One to the Front on Every Occasion.

I like gratitude. I like to hear of grateful people, and an anecdote I heard recently of one Washington man has pleased me immensely. He has recently married the widow of a very wealthy gentleman, and on the proceeds of the transaction he has built a handsome house. When the house was finished and the moving into it was accomplished, the wife and her mother fell to discussing just where they should hang the portrait of the former husband. They had just decided to hang it in a small room on the second floor, when the new husband came in and heard of the matter.

"Hang him upstairs!" he said. "No, siree. No, siree. That man was my best factor. I owe everything I have to him, and I shall hang in the place of honor.

And husband No. 1 now smiles down from the mantel of the drawing room.

But that makes me think of another Washington widow who has recently bestowed herself and her belongings on a second husband.

"It's so fortunate," said she to me; "my first husband's last name began with a W, you know, and so does my second husband's first name. All Mr. W.'s handkerchiefs are just the thing for Willie, and I haven't even had to have the initial on them changed."—Washington Post.

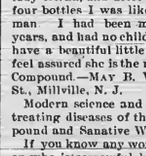
Hopeful Words to Childless Women.

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to a childless and desolate old age.

Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to some great lack of strength in the organs of generation. Such a condition is nearly always due to long continued neglect of the plainest warnings.

Frequent backache and distressing pains accompanied by offensive discharges and generally by irregular and scanty menstruation, indicate a nerve degeneration of the womb and surrounding organs, that unless speedily checked will result in barrenness.

Read Mrs. Wilson's letter:



DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Noone could have suffered from female troubles more than I. I had tumors on the womb, my ovaries were diseased, and for fifteen years I was a burden to myself. I was operated upon three different times, with only temporary relief; also tried many doctors. Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me by a lady friend, and after taking four bottles I was like a new woman. I had been married nine years, and had no children. I now have a beautiful little girl, and we feel assured she is the result of my taking the Compound.—MAY B. WILSON, 323 Sassafras St., Millville, N. J.

Modern science and past experience have produced nothing so effective in treating diseases of the female organs as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash used according to special directions.

If you know any woman who is suffering and who is unable to secure relief, or who is sorrowful because she believes herself barren, tell her to write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and ask her advice. The thousands of Mrs. Pinkham's cures are all recorded for quick reference, and a reply will be promptly sent wholly without charge, that will direct her what to do.

Mrs. B. BLUHM, 4940 San Francisco Ave., St. Louis, Mo., writes:—"It has been my great desire to have a babe. Since taking your medicine my wish is fulfilled."

Bad Blood

is a good thing to be rid of, because bad blood is the breeding place of disfiguring and dangerous diseases. Is YOUR blood bad? You can have good blood, which is pure blood, if you want it. You can be rid of pimples, boils, blotches, sores and ulcers. How? By the use of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It is the radical remedy for all diseases originating in the blood.

"Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me by my physician as a blood purifier. When I began taking it I had boils all over my body. One bottle cured me."—BONNER CRAFT, Wesson, Miss.

HOMES IN NEBRASKA

If you think of changing your location remember this: Nebraska's soil is rich and easily tilled. No rocks and stumps. All grains and fruits that succeed in other states in same latitude flourish there. The climate is well-nigh perfect, the air being dry and free from malaria. An abundance of pure water is found. It is a great State for stock raising and feeding. There is no State in the Union where a hard-working farmer can do so well. Thousands of poor men have become rich in Nebraska. Farms can now be bought on easy terms. Prices are low. A handsome illustrated pamphlet describing Nebraska will be sent free on application to P. S. EUSTIS, General Passenger Agent, Chicago.

Neighborhood News.

Bellevue.

March 28.—Have been laid up for repairs, preparatory to cleaning house.

T. J. Clore visited his parents, here Sunday.

The wheat promises a large yield of straw, if nothing else.

Mrs. W. B. Adams is the guest of Tony Cook and family.

Some of the farmers are much behind with their sod plowing.

Mrs. Michael Clore has been considerably worse for several days.

Miss Sallie Craig, of Rising Sun, is the guest of Dan Lawell and wife.

T. Z. Roberts has just returned from a visit to his sister in the Hoosier State.

The high water is becoming distressing to some of our Indiana neighbors.

Doc Rice is pilot on the Louise, which makes daily trips from Florence, Ind., to Aurora.

Charles Maurer, who has been confined to his room for some time, is much better.

Bob Rouse and family, of Limaburg, were guests of your humble servant and family, Sunday.

James Setters has just returned from Campbell county, with 4,000 strawberry plants of different varieties.

Our old friend and veteran, J. T. Marshall, hallooed "Good bye, I am off for Spain," as he left the town with rifle on his shoulder.

A mad dog passed through our town on the night of the 26th inst., and went as far as Hubert Brady's, and after biting several dogs and some stock, was killed by Hubert.

While traveling down Woolper, the other day, whom should we meet but our old friend, J. C. Sebree, who was moving to the farm of his boyhood. May success attend him.

Success to you, my friend A. C., in your new departure. You will realize more than once, ere summer is gone, that injunction "By the sweat of thy face shalt thou earn thy bread."

Union.

The mud roads are said to be in fine order for boating.

"Uncle Cum" Wilson, of Richwood, was visiting here Friday.

Mrs. B. L. Rice, of Covington, was visiting Mrs. J. W. Conner, last week.

Lee Huey, of Big Bone, will plant 70 acres of tobacco, this year—so reports say.

James Bristow is an artist in the building of cutter plows and lettuce beds.

J. W. Kennedy has been receiving considerable tobacco during the damp weather.

Clay Baker, of Walton, delivered two loads of posts here, last week. Clay is a hustler.

A number of the members of Golden Grange will visit the Bullittsville grange next Saturday.

County Surveyor Vest was in our burg, last week, and did some work for L. W. Lassing and others.

B. L. Corbin and daughter, Miss Lillian, after an absence of several months, in Missouri, seem pleased to be in this old town again.

Miss Nannie Bristow and Miss Martin have excellent schools here, while Miss Manetta Riley has a flourishing school at Big Bone church.

L. W. Lassing bought five acres of land of Jas. A. Huey, and about one-half an acre of J. W. Conner, last week, for an outlet to Hamilton Place.

Saturday was a bad day for a sale, but the people went all the same and bought liberally at good round prices. Mr. Rice was pleased with the results.

Miss Lou Williams returned home, last week, after a delightful visit of several weeks in Cincinnati. She was accompanied by Miss Leighton, of that city.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Rachal entertained a number of the young people Friday eveuing. Krokonole and other games were indulged in during the evening.

This community learned of Nicholas Talbott's death at Erlanger, Friday, with feelings of deepest regret and sorrow. He was a gentleman of the old school, and beloved by all who knew him.

Ben Riley and Clinton Blankenbeker of Pleasant Ridge, are seen, often, going through Union in stylish rigs, wearing their best togs and broadest smiles, and we warrant they do not go as far as Beaver.

Geo. H. Stevenson is a Masou and a Granger in good standing, but he got into a deal of trouble, last week, as custodian of the goats, by letting them get mixed up. He could not tell one from the other, and had to call in some of the older members to decide t'other from which.

Dr. Crouch's recent article on good roads stirred up some street corner argument Friday evening that run into all sorts of extravagant statements. One man said the roads were good in the summer time and it was all nonsense to build pikes to gad around on in the winter. Another said if people living on mud roads wanted pikes they ought to build them, and so on.

Ben Crisler the tall sycamore of Gunpowder, has a Democratic jeans coat that he has worn through many campaigns, and we are told he proposes to wear it until the Hon. W. J. Bryan is elected President, even if it becomes the finest combination of rags, tatters and patches the people of Boone county ever saw. We hope Bro. Ben won't have to wait longer than 1900; and also hope every rag of that coat will be spun into threads of gold that may bind him closer and closer to the Democratic faith and that every tatter will be a silver lining to any dark clouds of doubt that may come to his mind, while the patches may be just so many inspirations of gladness to help fill his cup of delight to overflowing, when the hour of victory shall finally come.

Erlanger.

Henry C. Kohl was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John Westerman, of Elsmere.

L. Morelli was elected to represent the Erlanger Building Association at the annual meeting of the Kentucky League of Building Associations at Newport, April 20th.

The item of last week about Miss Susie Coe leaving for Parkersburg, Va., to take the position of foreladv of the milliner department, has been contradicted by her brother, who says she is not going.

Nicholas Talbott, aged 68 years, died suddenly of heart disease, last Friday afternoon. He was buried at Paris, Ky., by the Knights Templars, last Sunday. The family has the sympathy of the whole community.

Florence

March. 28.—Miss Mattie Whitson is teaching a private school at Erlanger.

Mr. and Mrs. Lum Carpenter's little son is quite ill.

Mr. Joe Scott has received his fine calf from Balaria, New York.

Miss Alice Cloud was the guest of friends in Erlanger, last week.

Mrs. Charles Tanner is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Henry Tanner.

Mrs. James Nead, who died in Covington, was buried here last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs Robert Pearson will move into the Corey residence some time next week.

Mrs. Edna Couner and Mr. Homer Armstrong, of Richwood, were the guests of Mrs. Bailey, Sunday.

Mrs. Noah Clore has returned from Catlettsburg, where she was called by the serious illness of her little grandson....

Gunpowder.

Mar. 28.—Quite a number of persons passed through here enroute to B. L. Rice's sale, last Saturday.

Woodswings closed out for the season with that at Spencer Smith's, last Monday.

War talk has become stale, and opinions are as varied as the news in the daily papers.

Busby & Kirkpatrick are as busy as bees farming, when the weather permits, otherwise they work at their trade.

Anyone wishing to tackle a wide-awake horse trader should call on Ollie Rouse, who is always ready for a trade.

William Surface had seven teeth and numerous old snags extracted, last Friday, and as a result he is nursing a very sore jaw.

Lambs are doing well. Wool buyers have been looking around, and some offers of 20 cents a pound have been made, but the producers are asking 25.

Quite a number have tobacco plants up. J. M. Utz claims to have enough plants to set 20 acres.—[And that will not be more than an average crop this year.—ED.]

John and Ben Surface, Lute Aylor, Ezra Rouse and Uucle Billie Tauner are building fence between showers, and John Aylor and Clarence Tanner grub between showers. Ben Tauuer is putting in the time dodging showers and feeding lambs, and converting a summer kitchen into a winter cooking department.

Hathaway.

March 28. — Miss Carrie Woods is very poorly.

Mrs. Sarah E. White was quite sick several days last week.

Riley & Hogan were in this neighborhood, last week, looking at tobacco.

James Rice and wife spent last week with his mother, in the Bellevue neighborhood.

Miss Marietta Riley, of Union, is teaching the spring school near the Big Bone church.

Hade Stephens says he don't know whether he plauted his potatoes in the moon or not.

Geo. L. Smith sold his lambs, 92 in number, to P. P. and M. W. Neal at $3 50 per head.

Claud Ryle and wife, of East Bend, were visiting in this neighborhood, last Saturday and Sunday.

Ben Ryle passed through our burg, last Tuesday, enroute home from Big Bone, where he had been holding court.

J. L. Henderson and Lewis Stephens purchased a nice drove of Green River cattle from Conner Bros., last week, which they expect to graze.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley filled his regular appointment at the Big Bone church, last Sunday. He left his buggy at Union, riding horse back from there to Big Bone.

Walton.

March 28.—When Mr. Sherwood arrived in this place a short time ago with a printing office complete enough for a four page, eight column daily, the citizens congratulated themselves on the prospects of having a paper that would boom the town to Olympian heights. Alas! for human expectations! Mr. S. was too old in the business. He did not go on to get out a paper with a hop, step and a jump; but quietly and considerately surveyed the situation and concluded that there was no prospects of a paper ever making expenses in a town like Walton. In fact he said that as soon as he saw the place he was disheartened and determined to get away as soon as possible. On Saturday he shipped his plant to Carthage, Ohio.

Mr. Geo. Casey, who knows as well as any man in the county the difficulty of establishing a newspaper, being asked why he thought it would not be a success, answered, "For the same reason that a Christian church would not succeed in the infernal regions—for the want of patronage.

A special session of the trustees was held on Saturday to take action on a communication from the State Board of Health warning the authorities to guard against the introduction of small pox which is creating intense excitement all over the southeastern part of the State. Our citizens will have to disinfect their premises and have guards at the depots to keep the dreaded disease from getting among us. In the mean time it is recommended that every one should be vaccinated. If the citizens should fail to heed this recommendation it will be made compulsory.

On motion it was unanimously resolved that the owners of cows and hogs must comply with the ordinance relating to the manner in which such animals are permitted to be kept in the city limits, and said owners must comply with the provisions of the ordinance or suffer the penalties for violation of the same.

It is rumored that Joseph Glen will bring a damage suit against G. M. Casey for the alienation of the affection of his thoroughbred English pointer dog, Charley.

James Holder has a very large and painful swelling on his neck, confining him to the house.

Mrs. Elijah Ballard is very sick.

Francesville.

March 28.—Rev. Utz will occupy the pulpit here next Saturday and Sunday.

Mike Muntz, jr., has plowed up his farm this spring.

Omer Henry came home from Woodward High school, last Friday.

No danger of the Spanish captains at Francesville while this mud lasts.

What is the use for lawyers to go to Klondyke? Why don't they come to Francesville.

Add Batterson has purchased a new mandolin. May the Lord pity his new neighbors in Hebron.

W. H. Hays came in on a flying trip some weeks ago to look after his interest in the estate of the late J. C. Beall.

This city is now cut off from that little town of Taylorsport by the backwater, and may the Lord let it remain so.

Col. Batterson packed up his dogs and gun and moved to Hebron, last Monday. The good wishes of his many friends here follow him.

I wonder why it is that our neighbors coming from the city notice the willows going up stream, when the same willows seemed all right as they went

Capt. Kilgour is cleaning off the ball [illegible] to receive applicants for a position on the team. He expects to make the team stronger than it has ever been.

Our friend, Edgar Graves, became very much attached to Hebron, while he attended school there. So much so in fact, that he loves to wander up and linger there on Sunday nights, and no amount of rain, snow or motherly advice can change him from his purpose. I wonder why! I wonder why!

Limaburg.

No Irish potatoes have been planted

Owen Aylor had a woodsawing, last Monday.

Miss Grace Russell's school, at this place, will begin next Monday.

The heavy frost on the 25th inst did not damage the fruit nor the tobacco plants hereabout.

There is less plowing done here than has been the case in the month of March for a long time.

The craw-fish in this part of the country have climbed to the top of their chimneys to avoid drowning.

Some of the farmers are losing their old sheep as well as their lambs. They attribute the loss to the continued wet weather.

Twenty men helped Eddie Farrell saw wood on the 25th, and they did certainly relish the excellent supper prepared for the occasion by Mrs. Farrell.

Samuel Conrad is puzzled in trying to account for his getting two more duck eggs each day than he has ducks. Surely prosperity has struck Sam's water fowls.

Robert Snyder had au old time cornhusking, last Saturday night. It was the revival of ante bellum social gathering that was quite fad a among the farmers in slave times.

Mr. Editor, can the United States draft a citizen to cross the ocean to fight?—[Yes; a man subject to military duty can be drafted and taken anywhere in the world his services are needed.—ED.]

Pt. Pleasant.

March 26.—Miss Maggie Youell and Mr. Harper Rucker are on the sick list.

Mr. Albert Riggs was visiting relatives in Lockland, O., last Thursday.

Mrs. J. M. Riggs was the guest of Mrs. Julia Stausifer, of Covington, last week.

Miss Grace Russell was the guest of Miss Lula Souther, of Ludlow, last week.

Mrs. Charles Roland, who has been the guest of Mrs. Charles Scott all winter, has returned to her home at Toledo, Ohio.

On the 15th inst., death entered this neighborhood and took from it Louie Henke, after an illness of several weeks. He died of consumption of the bowels. He had the destinction of being the youngest passenger and freight agent on the C. H. & D. Railroad. He had been a member of the Christian church since he was 16 years old, being almost 22 at the time of his death. He was the first young man to join the Christian Endeavor Society, and was a faithful member to the end. It seems very hard for so young a man, with so bright a future before him to be taken, but God knows what is best, for we "See as through a glass darkly." But after while, "We shall know as we are known."

Resolutions of respect from Christian Endeavor Society of Pt. Pleasant.

Whereas, In the death of brother Louis W. Henke, we have lost one of our most devoted and efficient members; the church and community have suffered equally with our society.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with the bereaved family in the loss of so kind and affectionate a son and brother.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of our Society, a copy sent to the family and another to the Boone County Recorder for publication.

Harper Rucker, Chm'n.
Ora E. Russell.
Mrs. Agnes Vickers.
Mrs. Nella Aylor.

We wish to thank our neighbors and friends for the kindness shown us during the recent illness and death of our son. Mr. and Mrs. John Henke.

For Mothers!

The discomforts and dangers of child-birth can be almost entirely avoided. Wine of Cardui relieves expectant mothers. It gives tone to the genital organs, and puts them in condition to do their work perfectly. That makes pregnancy less painful, shortens labor and hastens recovery after child-birth. It helps a woman bear strong healthy children.

Mc ELREE'S Wine of Cardui

has also brought happiness to thousands of homes barren for years. A few doses often brings joy to loving hearts that long for a darling baby. No woman should neglect to try it for this trouble. It cures nine cases out of ten. All druggists sell Wine of Cardui. $1.00 per bottle.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Mrs. LOUISA HALE, of Jefferson, Ga., says: "When I first took Wine of Cardui we had been married three years, but could not have any children. Nine months later I had a fine girl baby."

Last Wednesday was Francesville day in Burlington, a delegation of Francesvillians, led by Bruce Henry, with Chas Scothorn and Harry Kilgour as lieutenants, and Messrs. Cave and Muntz, as privates, were transacting business with Master Commissioner Berkshire.

The legislature, says Representative Orr, of Owen county, passed a bill permitting the fiscal court to levy a tax and warn in hands for the maintainance of roads. Heretofore the court had only a choice of either. The combination will materially assist in keeping up the roads.

Judge Roberts went out to Dr. Henderson's, one day last week, to try a writ of forcible detainer sworn out by Elbert Rouse against the Doctor. The trial was had without the intervention of a jury, and the Judge decided that the Doctor should vacate.

Nicholas Talbott, aged 68, died very suddenly at Erlanger, last Friday. He was a resident of the Union neighborhood, for many years, and moved from there to Covington then to Erlanger. The remains were shipped to Paris, for interment.

J. E. Rouse, of the Limaburg neighborhood, went to Central Kentucky, Monday, to buy a fine Jack, and will bring home with him the finest Jack ever handled in this part of the county and at very reasonable figurs.

Hostilities developed on one of the marble yards the other day. A misunderstanding between the races occasioned the preparations for the conflict, which was soon over.

The steamboat men claim that the new suspension bridge between Cincinnati and Covington is two feet lower than the old one, while the bridge company claims it is at least two feet higher.

Thos. F. Grant, of Bullittsville, was in town Monday. One place in the road he traveled so terrorized him that he dismounted in the deepest mud to prevent journeying to China.

Circuit Court was in session at Warsaw, last week. The docket was light, and most all the important cases were continued. D E. Castleman was in attendance a day or two.

The Lawrenceburg trocha is doing good service again this winter, and it ought to make W. H. O'Brien's election to the office of mayor, unanimous.

Considerable wheat along the low river bottoms was submerged, last week. Some say it will not injure the wheat, but that remains to be seen.

It is claimed that the light freeze, last week, did not hurt the fruit. The indications to date are favorable to a very large crop this season.

H. W. Smith, of Cincinnati, has purchased of Miss Jessie Gleu, of Cambridge, Massachusetts, the residence Dr. J. F. Smith occupies.

The rain clouds that have been hanging over this part of the country has done more damage than the Spanish war clouds ever will.

If the tobacco raisers could store some of the tobacco season that is going to waste it may be very convieut to have on hand later on.

Marce Riddell engineered a sale a few days since by which a Mt. Sterling man realized $600 for a horse sold to a Missouri party.

There is an old saying, "a fog in March is followed by a frost in May." We have had two heavy fogs this month.

Judge A. C. Downey, one of the most distinguished of Indiana jurists, died at his home in Rising Sun, last Friday afternoon. He was a native of Ohio, being borned in Hamilton, that State, 81 years ago. He was on the Indiana Supreme Bench from 1873 to 1879. He served his district as Judge of the Circuit Court several terms, his last one expiring only a few months since. Judge Downey was at one time a Professor in the Law Department of the Green Castle, Indiana, College, and in the winter of 1856-7 the late R. C. Green and F. Riddell, of this place, were among his students. The people had implicit confidence in Judge Downey's honesty and legal ability.

A man by the name of Samuel Hayden, was in town, last Saturday. He said he left this county 28 years ago, and is one of the heirs to the Hayden land, near Francesville, which was sold two or three years ago, and the proceeds divided among those who were understood to be the only heirs of the estate. Sam and another brother who is now living in California were supposed to be dead, and received nothing in the distribution. Sam says he knows d-n well that he is not dead, and that he has been living in the South all the time, and now is here to recover his distributable share of the money for which the land was sold. James L. Riley was the purchaser of the land.

FOREVER AT REST.

Earth to earth and dust to dust. Just one week ago today my brother, Geo. Tanner, with the peace of God brooding over his pillow, quietly passed away in the twilight of heaven's morn. Then there was grief and weeping and aching hearts in the home, for George
Lies like marble, as silent and cold.
His fair hands on his breast.
The love light gone from his saintly eyes,
His soul forever at rest.

Through all his suffering, he was patient and cheerful, loving and kind—thinking always of others before himself. Why he was called away we know not, yet God is His own interpreter, and He will make it plain" Change, not death, is stamped upon all things earthly. We are taught that the heavens and earth shall pass away. We soon run our race here, then change—put off mortality and put on immortality.

It is well, it is well—
God's ways are always right,
And love is o'er them all,
Though far above our sight.

How true, yet how hard, when the earth closes over our dearest and best loved friends, to realize, "It is well, God's ways are always right." What a consolation—in such an hour of grief is perfect faith, faith by which our spirit looks above the dark clouds, hanging low over our heads to the bright rays of God's love, looks above to the bright realm where reunion shall be and endure forever. The vision of a grave comes before my eyes, there all cold and white, lay the sweet, patient face of my darling brother, whose hands have toiled so hard and so long that his children might be glad.

But, oh, beyond the shadow land, where all is bright and fair,
I know full well these dear old hands
will palms of victory bear, where crystal streams, through endless years
Flow over golden sands,
And where the old grow young again,
I'll clasp my brother's hands.

O, what a comfort to meet him again beyond the shadow land, where all is bright and fair, and where he will be rewarded for his earthly toil and endurance! When such hopes are ours, well can we exclaim, "O, death, where is thy victory? O, grave, where is thy sting?" The grave no longer seems such a dark, ghastly abode. It is only the door through which we pass from a world of sorrow, sin and woe into a realm of eternal day and lasting happiness.

One by one the chairs stand vacant
That were filled with those we love.
One by one they are filling
In our Father's house above.

Thanking the many friends and neighbors for their kindness during brothers sickness. SISTER MAMIE.

DEATHS.

Mrs. J. F. Weaver died on the 22nd inst., after a long but patient suffering. After a brief funeral service at the residence by Rev. T. L. Utz, last Thursday, the remains were interred in the Tanner burying ground near by. Mrs. Weaver leaves a husband and a grown son, who have many friends to sympathize with them in their severe loss.

Mrs. Newtou Sullivan, after long suffering with that dreaded disease, consumptiou, departed this life at her home two miles out on the Petersburg 'pike, last Sunday night. The funeral was to have been preached at the residence Tuesday at eleven o'clock, but owing to the illness of Rev. T. L. Utz, he was not able to respond to the call. The remains were placed in the vault here to await final interment. Mrs. Sullivan was the daughter of James Jarrell, who lives down on Woolper. She leaves a devoted husband and three children to mourn the loss of a loving wife and an indulgent mother.

In memory of Missouri Weaver, who died March 23d:

We saw her sufferings, heard her sighs,
With throbbing hearts and weeping eyes,
But now she calmly sleeps at last,
All grief, all pain, all suffering past;
God loved her, too, and He thought best
To take her home to be at rest.
A FRIEND.

Those Republicans who are misrepresenting the Goebel election law by claiming that it requires all the election officers in a county to be of the same political faith, have not been as badly mistaken since they burnt their shirts. The law requires no such thing—it requires that they be divided exactly as the old law did.

Snow-ball winter is to come yet, and then the blackberry drizzle, a disagreeable period, comes still later on.

COMMODORE SCHLEY

Will Be the Commander of the Squadron at Hampton Roads.

These Fast Flying Vessels Will Be Transformed Into Formidable Fighting Machines—The Spanish Torpedo Boat Flotilla Will Likely Be Intercepted.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Commodore Winfield Scott Schley, at present connected with the light house board, has been ordered to command the flying squadron at Hampton Roads with the Brooklyn as his flag ship.

Commodore Schley received the news of his assignment at the Light House board where he was engaged in closing some of the work of the bureau. He expects that it will be a day or two before he finishes his work here and takes command of the squadron. His command at present comprises three vessels, the Brooklyn, Columbia and Minneapolis, all ocean greyhounds, but in a short time his squadron probably will be swelled to about a dozen ships. Commodore Schley refused to talk at all concerning rumors that the flying squadron might be sent out to intercept the Spanish torpedo boat flotilla. He said that was a matter concerning which he could say nothing at all.

UNITED STATES WARSHIPS COMPOSING THE SQUADRON AT HAMPTON ROADS.

Commodore Schley has a fine record for discretion, good judgment and fighting qualities. He was in command of the Baltimore during the Chilian troubles that threatened to end in war and that it had a peaceful termination it is believed was due largely to his tact and discretion. The three vessels at present under his command are all swift cruisers and among the others which probably will be added to his command are the St. Paul and the St. Louis of the American line, which were built so that they could be turned into efficient fighting machines at a few days' notice. These vessels have not been impressed as yet, but arrangements have been perfected between the government and President Griscom so that no delay will result as soon as the decision is reached that the outlook justifies the large expenditure of money necessary for their transfer to the navy department. Officers have been provisionally picked out to command these ships, Commander W. H. Emory and Commander Willard H. Brownson, at present in Europe on a special mission for the government being the officers who it is expected will be assigned to the command of the St. Paul and the St. Louis.

Two battle ships are on their way to add to the fighting strength of the flying squadron. They are the Texas and the Massachusetts. One of them may reach Hampton Roads Friday and the other should be there Saturday. The Massachusetts is a first-class battle ship of 10,228 tons displacement, while the Texas is a second-class battle ship of 6,315 tons. Both are heavily armed and will add immensely to the strength of the squadron. They are less speedy than the cruisers which naturally would do the scouting while the battle ships would bear the brunt of the hot work of battle.

Commodore Schley visited the navy department before noon, and after a talk with assistant Secretary Roosevelt, said he would assume command of the flying squadron Monday. The formal orders, posted at the department Friday, stating that Commodore W. S. Schley was detached from his present service with the Light House board, and was ordered to command the flying squadron, cruiser Brooklyn, flagship, was the first public admission of the navy department of the creation of a flying squadron. The fact that this squadron was contemplated has been well known, but not until Friday has the department defined its character. The designation of "flying" has a distinct meaning in naval parlance. It will give the ships a base at Hampton Roads, but they will be subject at all times to Commodore Schley's orders for immediate service at any point along the Atlantic coast, or indeed throughout the world.

At present the fine armored cruiser Brooklyn, which is to be Commodore Schley's flagship, and the battle ship Texas, which it was learned later, arrived Thursday night, are the only ships of the flying squadron at Hampton Roads. The battle ship Massachusetts is hourly expected and the crack cruisers Columbia and Minneapolis are outfitting at the League Island navy yard and will proceed to Hampton Roads at an early date as well. The cruiser Cincinnati and gunboat Wilmington probably will be added to this squadron, as will the Bancroft, now on their way across the Atlantic for Fortress Monroe. An official order was issued Friday detaching Capt. Chester, commander of the Cincinnati, from the South Atlantic squadron, and leaving him in command of the Cincinnati. The effect of this is to remove the Cincinnati from the South Atlantic service, and makes her available for the North Atlantic station, where her speed would make her a valuable adjunct to the quick manouvers of a flying squadron. Commodore Schley's orders in terms make him commander of a distinct squadron, so that the ships at Hampton Roads will be entirely apart from the North Atlantic squadron, of which Capt. Sampson is in command. This is an unusual expedient, as the North Atlantic vessels always herctofore have been intact.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Men speak in whispers to-day. A solemn stillness freights the air. It is the calm before the storm. Excitement, patriotic bursts of oratory and bragadocio have given way to sobriety, dispassionate speech and solmnity. The country is on the very verge of war now, for the first time, seems to fully realize it.

A most remarkable change has come over the spirit of the nation's capital. For the past two days the president has been summoning before him the great men and true hearted of senate and house, whether republican or democrat, or populist, and has been unbossoming himself to them as though he knew in this critical hour that he could call them all brothers. He has told them his hopes. He has told them his fears. His frankness has had a magical influence.

Exploded a Torpedo.

OHIO RIVER FLOOD.

At Cincinnati 59 Feet and 9 Inches Was Reached Monday.

In the Lowlands of the City Nearly One Thousand Houses Are Flooded With From One to Four Feet of Water—Railroad Traffic is Disturbed.

CINCINNATI, March 28.—Unless rain should come copiously and quickly, the present flood in the Ohio river will very soon pour the great flood into the Mississippi. From Portsmouth up it was falling Sunday night. At Portsmouth it is rising slowly. At all points below to Cairo it is rising.

Here at Cincinnati the current is unusually swift, which indicates that the access of water from its tributaries below has diminished greatly and given free course to the piled up waters above. Reports from various points of the Ohio valley agree in announcing warm temperature, cloudy skies and high winds with only one instance of drizzling rain.

At Cincinnati the mercury registers 68. In the lowlands of Cincinnati nearly 1,000 houses are flooded with from one to four feet of water. Some have been abandoned, which is the case with one story cottages. In two-story houses families remain in the upper stories. Of flooded houses 500 are in and about Cumminsville from back water in Mill creek where the inundation is more annoying than serious. In and about Columbia, the extreme up-river limit of the city, 400 houses are soaked with from one to four feet of water.

At Riverside, the extreme down-stream limit of the city, 100 houses are affected about as at Columbia. Those driven out find no difficulty in securing shelter with their more fortunate neighbors, though some occupy tents on high ground. Household effects damageable by water have either been saved by timely removal or by friendly boats. Nearly all affected are experienced flood fighters and are seldom caught napping when a great rise comes down the Ohio. On the Kentucky side the inhabitants of low lands near Dayton and Bellevue have been placed in the same unpleasant situation as their Cincinnati neighbors. But most of them have seen floods before and know how to make the best of them. No railroads in Cincinnati have been disturbed by the flood, except that some have been deprived of the use of the Grand Central depot.

Thus far no casualties have been reported. Interruption to street car travel has been almost nothing, as it was either near the end of a line or at a point where passengers could transfer by a short walk. The railroads are all in better condition. The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton is clear on all its lines, also the Pennsylvania. The Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern is still compelled to make detours east and west, but this will soon be over as repairs are pushed with all possible dispatch. The Cincinnati, Georgetown and Portsmouth were compelled to make transfers in the east end of Cincinnati Sunday. All other roads are practically intact. Of course there will be some loss and damage to people driven out of their homes, in the way of loss of time as well as of property, but it will be reduced to the minimum. Merchants and commission brokers in the bottoms removed their goods to dry spots without loss. Very few factories of consequence have been interrupted or stopped. Small boats continue to come and go and navigation will be fully resumed by Monday or Tuesday. At 10 o'clock Sunday night the stage here was 59 4-10 feet. Between 8 and 9 o'clock it has remained stationary.

It will probably stop at 59 feet and nine inches, and by Monday noon will be falling.

any information from reaching the press concerning Mr. Gladstone; but it is learned that his condition Saturday was most critical.

One Ray of Peace.

NEW YORK, March 28.—A special to the Herald from Washington says: The one ray of peace is that Spain at the last moment may offer a solution that will prevent war. This proposition which may be submitted, is that Spain will agree to set a definite near date before which she is to pacify the island by a form of autonomy, or failing, will withdraw her ships and troops and acknowledge the independence of the island.

Mrs. Della Tudor Parnell Dead.

LONDON, March 28.—Mrs. Delia Tudor Parnell, daughter of the celebrated American naval officer, Rr. Adm. Chas. Stewart, and mother of the late Chas. Stewart Parnell, died Saturday night at Avondale, Rathdrum, county Wicklow, Ireland, as the result of the burns received Friday from the igniting of her clothing while she was sitting before a fire.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 28.—The famous tug Dauntless has been offered by its owners to the government as a torpedo boat.

PEACE PROSPECTS.

Secret Cablegram From Madrid Gives Hope to the President.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Spain yields again. Each time that President McKinley has raised an issue that government has given way. The prospect for peaceable settlement of the Cuban problem is better than it was a week ago. This is what the president said Sunday.

The prospect has improved on the strength of a cablegram received from Madrid Saturday night. So much is admitted. But the exact contents of the message are guarded so carefully that even some of those persons in confidential relations with the administration have been given only the general purport. It is a noticeable fact that the president and all about him are feeling cheerful over this news from Madrid.

No ultimatum has been sent to Spain, but some very plain talk has been done on the side of this government since Friday.

On the part of the administration it is stated that the development of the situation will not require a great length of time, and hence there will be no extended delay. A policy has been fully determined upon by the president to bring the Cuban war to a close. This will be accomplished by pointed intervention if necessary, but it is considered far more preferable that the end should come as the result of peaceful negotiations than that it should be accomplished by hostile demonstrations on the part of the United States. Hence the disposition of the president is to give Spain a fair opportunity to secure an armistice with the Cubans and to allow her a reasonable time in which to come to an understanding with the hostiles.

It can be stated, upon high authority, that there has been no abatement of the president's intention to see that the war is terminated when it is closed upon terms that will render the Cubans practically a free people. It is not believed that they would accept anything else.

THE ATTITUDE

Of the United States Toward Spain Justified by the London News.

LONDON, March 28.—The Daily News, in an editorial justifying the attitude of the United States says:

"America has no spite against Spain to gratify and no selfish interest to serve. It is all very well to call Senator Thurston a fanatic because he invokes the principles of the Christian religion against the cruelties of a Christian power. But he speaks of what he sees and his testimony is not contradicted.

"Spain is entitled to govern the Cubans, but not to extirpate them. A weak despotism is the most cruel government in the world. President McKinley's calm and sober language does hon or to himself as a Christian and a statesman, and Spain will commit a grievous mistake if she interprets this as a confession of weakness.

"Senor Sagasta has a great opportunity. In President McKinley he has a high-minded and generous opponent, who will make things as easy for Spain as he can. It is curious how completely, at this critical time, Mr. Sherman has fallen into the background and Mr. McKinley came to the front."

THE SEVERE GALES

On the English Coast Continues—Over One Hundred Fishing Smacks Missing.

LONDON, March 28.—The severe gales, accompanied by intense cold, snow and sleet, are unabated all over England. The weather is especially severe over the southeast coast, and it is worse off the French coast. The trips of the channel steamers to the continent are still suspended, and telegraphic communication is seriously delayed. There have been numerous shipping disasters all round the English coasts and along the North sea to the Baltic.

There have been many heroic rescues. At Shields the crew of the Norwegian bark Diamant was landed by the rocket apparatus in the presence of thousands of spectators.

At Dover the gale was especially severe, the shore being strewn with wreckage, while at Lowestoff huge masses of the cliffs were washed away and the houses on their tops were endangered.

Over one hundred fishing smacks are missing.

THE WAR VESSELS

Will Be Painted a Drab Color Instead of Black.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 28.—The work of painting the ships of the fleet was commenced at daylight Monday morning. The navy department order to paint the ships black was received Saturday and the New York and Nashville had put on their war paint before a rescinded order came. Later another order was sent in to go on with the painting. Capt. Sampson's opinion is that a drab color would be better than a dark black. The department assented and Sunday a number of boards of paint of the standard color desired were distributed among the vessels of the fleet. The results of visual tests that have been made here show that the color selected for the vessels is better for war purposes than any other. The big guns will be painted to match the hulls and superstructure in order that their location will not show as targets for the rapid fire guns of the enemy.

Severe Storm in Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., March 28.—A severe storm, probably the worst of the winter prevailed in central and southeast Nebraska Sunday afternoon. The snow driven by a high wind was blinding and was followed by a drop in temperature in some localities of over 30 degrees. In Lincoln streetcar traffic was badly interfered with.

James Thompson and his aged wife were burned to death in a shanty in which they lived, south of Chinatown, near Fresno, Cal. The fire is supposed to have started from the explosion of a lamp.

WATER USED

By Christine Bradley to Christen the New Battle Ship Kentucky.

Mrs. Winslow Christens the Kearsarge With Champagne—First Time in History of Two Battle Ships Being Launched From the Same Yard in One Day.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., March 25.—Two more naval defenders of the national honor are proudly floating upon the mighty deep. The Kentucky—fit representative of the thoroughbred state whose name it bears—and the Kearsarge, which is to commemorate the name and fame of the stanch old ship which swept from the seas the Alabama.

This is the first time in the history of modern naval architecture that two immense battle ships of the first class have been launched from one yard on the same day, and the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. deserves credit for this striking illustration of the capability of American shipbuilders.

The bosom of the lordly James, opposite the immense plant of the company, was thickly dotted with crafts of every description from the humble and insignificant batteau up to the palatial yacht whose every line told of speed and whose every motion as it rose and fell on the swell from the passing steamers told of grace and symmetry.

All the ships in the harbor had also been decorated in honor of the event. Red, white and blue bunting swung in the breeze from every point of vantage.

The Kearsarge had been selected to go off the ways first.

Shortly before 9 o'clock long rows of workmen with immense hammers took their stand on either side of the huge mass of steel plates towering high above them. At a preconcerted signal each hammer was raised aloft and a moment later the dull, muffled sound of half a hundred sturdy strokes in unison was borne upon the morning air.

As the wedges were gradually driven home the huge vessel slowly rose to the proper position

Suddenly the sound of the hammers ceased, as if by magic. A hush fell over the vast throng who were pushing and jostling each other in their efforts to get a good view of the launching, and the sound of the solitary saw as it slowly severed the last bond that bound the vessel to terra firma was plainly heard.

MRS. HERBERT WINSLOW.

Who christened the Kearsarge. Commander Winslow, her husband, is a son of the commander of the old Kearsarge when she sank the Alabama.

As the last plank was sawed in two and a thrill of joyous freedom shot from the keel to the fighting tops of the marine monster, Mrs. Herbert Winslow, wife of the son of the commander of the famous old Kearsarge, reached forward and caught hold of the handsomely decorated bottle of champagne which hung at the bow of the vessel. Then as the namesake of Capt. Winslow's famous old ship slowly and gracefully began its first voyage, she dashed the bottle of sparkling wine against the steel prow and exclaimed in a distinct voice:

"I christen thee Kearsarge."

Amid breathless suspense among the throng of onlookers, the huge hull with streaming pennants and bunting flying in the morning breeze gently traversed the well-greased ways and leaped into the laughing ripples that were ready to welcome it.

Cheer after cheer arose from the patriotic Americans assembled.

Kentuckians, proud of the new battleship bearing their state's name, were here Thursday by the hundred. Gov. Bradley, the state's first republican governor, one of the leaders of his party in the south, an orator and of commanding presence, was next to the central figure at the launching and the luncheon given to 500 of the ship's builders after the ceremonies. The central figure was his daughter and only child. Miss Christine Bradley, a beautiful 18-year-old girl, who came with her mother and friends from Washington, where she attends school, to christen the vessel. The christening, which many officials thought should be done with wine or Kentucky's famous product, was done with pure water, Miss Bradley declining to use anything else, and winning her fight for it after a private and hard-fought battle with those who opposed her. Carrying out her sentiment in the matter, she had the water brought in a plain, wire-covered glass bottle from the famous crystal spring on the spot where Abraham Lincoln was born in Larue county, Kentucky. Miss Bradley was an attractive figure on the boat's bow, with an emblem of purity from its historic source in her uplifted hand, surrounded by her six pretty Kentucky maids of honor. She herself is a striking blonde, and despite her youth, has already attained unsought reputation in her native state as a literateur of great promise. Kentuckians, proud of her, cheered her act, and the states general assembly recently adopted resolutions commending her for her stand in behalf of pure water for the christening and a more deserved name for her state.

Her maids of honor, all representative Kentucky belles, were Misses Abbie Ballard, Alice Castlemon and Lillian Stege, of Lonisville, Miss Sallie Bronston, of Lexington, Miss Frances Collier, of Lancaster, and Miss Gatewood, of Mt. Sterling. Lieut. H. S. Whipple, Seventh regiment. United States cavalry, on detail duty in Kentucky, was master of ceremonies for the Kentucky contingent. Gov. Bradley was surrounded by his staff in brilliant uniforms, Adjt. Gen. Collier, chief of staff; Assistant Adjt. Gen. Forrester, Judge Advocate General Jas. M. Beatty, Surgeon General Geo. W. Griffiths, Commissary General T. J. Landram, Quartermaster General C. C. Mengel, Inspector General Frank Coles, Aides-de-camps Wright, Smith, Conway, Ahlering and Mulligan. Added to these were most of the state officials, Auditor S. H. Stone, Treasurer

[The bottle containing water from the favorite spring of Abraham Lincoln, at Hodgenville, Ky., which Miss Christine Bradley will break over the prow of the battle ship Kentucky, is an innocent looking affair. It cost five cents, and never has held anything but water.]

G. W. Long, Register Charles O. Reynolds and others. First among the prominent citizens were the members of the state commission appointed by the governor to arrange for Kentucky's part in the christening.

The christening of the Kentucky was an exact counterpart of the former, except that when the critical moment arrived Miss Christine Bradley broke a cut glass bottle of water from a spring on the old Lincoln farm, and said: "I christen thee Kentucky." Then, as the vessel started down the ways, several bottles of old Bourbon whisky were hurled against her sides by Kentuckians who were opposed to the water christening. Water from the spring on the Jefferson Davis farm in Kentucky was also smashed on the vessel's sides. Both launchings were successful in every particular.

The invited guests and distinguished visitors then boarded the steamer Newport News and proceeded to Old Point, where the ship yard officials tendered a magnificent banquet. Covers were laid for 600 persons. It was entirely informal. Among the toasts responded to were: "Kentucky," by Gov. Bradley, and "Virginia," by Gov. Taylor.

Gov. Bradley said:

Which Kentucky? Is it the Kentucky whose people with one acclaim return thanks to the distinguished secretary of the navy for the splendid compliment paid them to-day, and to the builders of the ship for their kind and generous hospitality?

Is it the Kentucky whose name is written indelibly upon every chapter of the nation's history, since her admission into the sisterhood of states?

Is it the Kentucky whose brave, bold pioneers rescued a wilderness from the savage and made it blossom as the rose?

BATTLE SHIP KENTUCKY.

Is it the Kentucky, the eloquence of whose Clay, Crittenden, Marshall and Breckinridge shook the halls of congress and stirred the hearts of the people on the hustings?

Is it the Kentucky of waving blue grass, of crystal stream, blended mountain top and sky, of chivalrous men and beautiful women?

Is it the Kentucky of whose gallant soldiers have ever been found in the forefront of battle, whose statesmen have won fame upon the ocean and christened heathen lands with their precious blood?

It is the Kentucky whose generous people sympathize with the oppressed and down-trodden of every land and who earnestly desire that the nation shall intervene to prevent further atrocities upon the suffering people of Cuba; and, if the investigation should justify, to avenge the death of our sailors, not by demanding an indemnity in money, but an indemnity in blood.

Of this Kentucky I can not fittingly speak in the short time allotted. But it is the other Kentucky that calls for speech and poetry and song—that Kentucky which to-day gave its first kiss to the sea.

There is no better ship; there could be no better name.

When fully manned and equipped she starts on her mission, we will all exclaim: "God bless Kentucky on the land! God speed and protect Kentucky on the sea!"

No ship has ever been christened as it has been. Not according to the custom of pirate Vikings clad with the skins of wild beasts, but with sparkling water from the spring which quenched the infant thirst of him who gave freedom to a race and saved our country from destruction.

MISS FRANCIS COLLIER.

Of Lancaster, Ky., the Daughter of Kentucky's Adjutant General. She was one of Miss Bradley's Maids of Honor.

And when the great ship majestically moves to the glorious destiny which is in store for it it will be sanctified by the prayers of more Christian women than all others that have ever moved on the face of the waters.

Whether under calm and cloudless skies, or struggling with tempest and wave, whether in peace or war, there shall hover over it, not the spirit of alcohol, which has destroyed so many lives, desolated so many homes, and caused the shedding of so much blood and so many tears; but the spirit of Kentucky's noblest son, the grandest man in all the tide of time, symbolized by God's gift to man, that which causes the earth to yield its fruits and harvest, which cleanses and purifies, which quenches the thirst of the living and relieves the parched lips of the wounded and dying.

Purity and patriotism have to-day been blended in the christening of the ship, which I predict will win more fame, gather more laurels and publish more good than any that has ever swept the seas.

And in parting with the majestic vessel, Kentuckians with one voice exclaim:

"In spite of rocks and tempest's roar,
In spite of false lights on the shore,
Sail on, nor fear, to breast the sea:
Our hearts, our hopes are all with thee;
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee—are all with thee."

COMMODORE SCHLEY

To Be Placed in Command of the Squadron at Hampton Roads.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—Commodore W. S. Schley will, in all probability, be placed in command of the squadron at Hampton Roads. This will consist of the battleships Massachusetts and Texas, the cruisers Brooklyn, Minneapolis and Columbia, and such other ships as may be assigned. It is commonly known as the flying squadron, the idea being to make Hampton Roads the base of operations, and yet to give Commodore Schley easy and effective cruising distance of the entire sweep of the Atlantic seaboard north of that point. The two commands under Commodore Sampson and Commodore Schley will be of equal dignity and will be entirely independent of each other, for the present at least.

ESTIMATED LOSS

To Indianapolis Railway Lines by the Storm Will Not Be Less Than $800,000.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 25.—Conservative railroad men estimate that the loss to the Indianapolis lines alone because of the storm will not be less than $800,000, including the loss of business, damage to the tracks, damage to equipment and personal injuries.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton got a train through to Cincinnati Wednesday evening and trains are again running regularly. The big Four got a train to Cincinnati at 9 o'clock Thursday morning. There are fears that the bridge at Valley Junction will go out. Trains on that division of the Big Four are run from here to Griffits and then over the Baltimore & Southwestern into Cincinnati. The Peoria & Eastern trains runs as far as Arcanum, O., on the east end. The west end is all right.

The Indianapolis division of the Pennsylvania is all right as far as Richmond, and by Friday it is hoped to get through to Columbus. The fast trains to the east are run over the Indianapolis division of the Big Four to Crestline, and then by way of the Fort Wayne division to Pittsburgh, the Big Four carrying the passengers for Columbus and Cincinnati. There will be no trains through on the Louisville division for a day or two, the trains from and to this city are run over the Vandalia, Monon and Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern. All trains on the Indianapolis and Vincennes have been abandoned and the passenger train at Martinsville can not be moved. By Saturday afternoon it is thought that trains will be running again. The other lines are in fairly good condition.

Sank an Unknown Vessel.

HARWICK, March 25.—The British steamer Seamew, on her way to Hamburg Wednesday evening, sank an unknown vessel off the Dutch coast.

INQUIRY REPORT.

A Mine Was Exploded Under the Battle Ship Maine on the Port Side.

Explosion Due to No Fault of Those on Board—First Explosion Lifted the Vessel—Court Declares It Can Find No Evidence to Fix Responsibility.

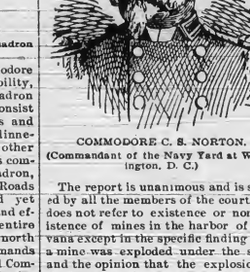
WASHINGTON, March 28.—Following is a complete abstract of the report of the court of inquiry which investigated the wrecking of the battle ship Maine. This abstract is made from the report itself, access to which was obtained Sunday despite official secrecy unparalleled in the handling of official papers

The report is made up of eight parts, as follows:

First: The court finds that at the time of the explosion the battle ship Maine was lying in five and one-half to six fathoms of water.

Second: The discipline aboard the ship was excellent; everything stored according to orders—ammunition, guns, stores, etc. The temperature of the magazines at 8 p. m. was normal, except in the after ten-inch magazine, and that did not explode.

Third: The explosion occurred at 9.40 o'clock on the evening of February 15. There were two explosions, with a very short interval between them. The ship lifted on the first explosion.



Fourth: The court can form no definite opinion of the condition of the wreck from the diver's evidence.

Fifth: Technical details of wreckage from which court deduces that a mine was exploded under the ship on the port side.

Sixth: The explosion was due to no fault of those on board.

Seventh: Opinion of the court stating that the explosion of the mine caused the explosion of two magazines.

Eighth: The court declares that it can not find evidence to fix responsibility.

COMMODORE C. S. NORTON.

(Commandant of the Navy Yard at Washington, D. C.)

The report is unanimous and is signed by all the members of the court. It does not refer to existence or non-existence of mines in the harbor of Havana except in the specific finding that a mine was exploded under the ship, and the opinion that the explosion of the two magazines was caused by the explosion of a mine.

The report as a whole is a formal dispassionate recital of facts and bears the stamp of that strict officialism which marks naval procedure. It is a brief, not exceeding 1,800 words, and among the eight parts goes to the greatest length under the second heading which deals with the discipline and order of the ship. This the court specifies with extreme minuteness, the least detail of the satisfactory condition of everything on board being given. The normal temperature of the large forward magazines at 8 o'clock, only an hour and 40 minutes before the explosion, disposes of the question of accidental combustion within these magazines. While the court holds that these magazines did not explode from internal causes, they, nevertheless, are of the opinion that the explosion of the mine under the port side of the ship caused the explosion of the two magazines. This will explain the remarkable destruction wrought, the explosion thus being shown to have combined the force of a mine without and two magazines within. The two explosions which the courts find to have occurred, with a very short interval between them, is an additional detail showing that two forces operated in causing the destruction. The finding that the ship lifted on the first explosion indicates an external source, and one of tremendous power to be able to lift a battle ship of thousands of tons. The character of the wreckage, technically described in the fifth part of the report, from which the court deduces that a mine was exploded under the ship on the port side, sustains the views taken by some experts shortly after the disaster that the force of the explosion was exerted from port to starboard.

The feature of the report of deepest interest to the navy is the complete exoneration of Capt. Sigsbee and all on board, contained in the second finding, setting forth the perfect order and discipline prevailing on the ship, and more directly stated in the sixth finding, which declares the disaster to be due to no fault of those on board.

The inability of the court to find evidence to fix responsibility, as stated in the eighth part, makes the report so guarded in expression of blame that neither Spain nor the Spanish are mentioned throughout.

Bomb or Mine.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 28.—The Swedish consul has received a letter from the captain of a Swedish vessel now at Santa Cruz, who was on a ferry boat at Havana the moment of the Maine explosion. He tells of the first and second explosions, and says it was a bomb or mine.

Relief Supplies Diverted.

TAMPA, Fla., March 28.—A letter has been received from a United States consul alleging that tons of food have been issued to the governor of Matanzas that have never been given to reconcentrados.

OUTSIDE EXPLOSION.

The Court of Inquiry Makes a Report to the President—The Court, However, is Unable to Fix the Responsibility.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The court of inquiry appointed to investigate the cause of the Maine disaster has reported that the loss of the battle ship was due to an outside explosion.

The state department, by the direction of the president, has cabled United States Minister Woodford at Madrid to notify the Spanish government of this conclusion. The president and his cabinet advisors held extended sessions Friday, one at 10 a. m. and another at 3:30 p. m., which report was considered in detail. Members of the cabinet stated after the meeting that the discussion was of grave character and that never since the wrecking of the Maine has the situation seemed so critical.

The Spanish government has cabled officially to Washington that the Spanish naval commission holds the disaster to the Maine to be of internal origin. The government of Spain, it can be stated positively, is not disposed to turn back the torpedo flotilla now proceeding from the Canaries, and would be disinclined to consider a suggestion from this government tending to interfere with the disposition by Spain of her own naval forces.

War preparation on an unprecedented scale is being hurried to completion by the war and navy departments, and the country practically is on a war footing.

The foregoing gives the record of one of the most eventful days the national capital has seen since the close of the civil war. It was a day of profoundly important action, of the deepest anxiety, coupled with naval and military activity, one step following another in rapid succession. Representative men of the administration, public men in all branches of official and congressional life, no less than the public in general, shared in the tension to which the situation has been wrought. There was no effort among the highest officials nor indeed was it possible from what was clearly apparent in the developments of the day to minimize the situation. Viewed in detail, the findings of the court of inquiry was the most vital feature. Commander Marix, judge advocate of the court of inquiry, delivered the report to Secretary Long early Friday morning, and shortly after it was carried to the white house and placed in the hands of the president. At 10:30 the cabinet assembled, half an hour earlier than usual, and began the consideration of the momentous document. Even the rigid rules of secrecy which prevailed at cabinet meetings were made doubly strict in this case, and no intimation of the results reached by the court were known until 2 o'clock, when a press bulletin gave the information to the country, as well as the eagerly waiting officials throughout Washington.

These results, briefly stated, are that the loss of the Maine was due to explosion from the outside, the court being unable to fix the responsibility for the explosion. The court does not express an opinion as to the character of the explosion, but the testimony goes to show that it was a powerful submarine mine, the exact character of which is not determined by the testimony, though the belief was expressed that it was a floating submarine mine. There were two explosions, the court finds; the first was from the outside, and that set off one of the smaller magazines. It was this result, expressed in detail and with the precision of a court deeply conscious of its responsibility, together with the evidence on which it was based, that occupied the attention of the cabinet throughout its extended sessions of the morning and afternoon. All other and lesser subjects gave way to this foremost question. There was no change in the plan of making the report public and transmitting it to congress early next week, accompanied by a brief message from the president.

While interest was thus centered at the white house, the navy and war departments were hurrying forward their work of preparations. The advance of the Spanish flotilla continued to receive the closest attention of naval officials, and while so far as could be ascertained no definite line of action was determined upon, the need of intercepting this fleet was urged by the highest naval authorities.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—No definite arrangements have been made by the department for the calling of the naval militiamen into service, but such arrangements will be made perhaps before Saturday night. It is not unlikely that the naval militia of New Jersey also will be called upon to assist in manning the old monitors. As to the rumored likelihood that the naval militia of Ohio, Illinois and Michigan would be called into service, navy department officials said that no steps to that end had yet been taken, but the intimation was broadly conveyed that they would be called upon to serve upon the monitors. The department is satisfied that not only the vessels themselves, but also the crews, inexperienced though they may be, will give a good account of themselves if any emergency should arise that would put them into action.

War Risks Advanced.

LONDON, March 26.—Lloyds regard the situation as being worse Friday and are asking 20 guineas per cent. on war risks.

Submarine Boat to Be Tested Before Officials.

NEW YORK, March 26.—The submarine boat Holland will be taken to Washington next week for a test before officials. The test will be speed, submarine and gun service. The boat will go to Washington through the canals.

The Command Not Yet Transferred.

KEY WEST, Fla., March 26.—The command of the fleet has not yet been transferred from Rr. Adm. Sicard to Capt. Sampson, as the necessary order from Washington has not arrived here.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—SENATE—After the transaction of some routine business Monday, Mr. Bacon (Ga.) introduced an amendment which he announced he would offer to the resolution providing for the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States. The amendment provides that the resolution shall not be effective until the question of annexation shall have been submitted to the qualified electors of Hawaii and passed upon affirmatively by them. The amendment is the same which Mr. Bacon offered to the Hawaiian treaty and which is still pending. Mr. Allen (Neb.) secured the passage of a resolution calling upon the secretary of the interior for information as to the number of all classes of pensioners, including the percentage of men and women and children, carried on the pension rolls. Several bills of minor importance were passed.

HOUSE—The house Monday passed the bill for the relief of the survivors and victims of the Maine disaster. The bill reimburses the surviving officers and men for the losses they sustained to an amount not to exceed a year's sea pay and directs the payment of a sum equal to a year's pay to the legal heirs of those who perished. There was quite a spirited debate over an amendment suggested by Mr. Cannon to give the survivors each a year's pay out of hand instead of attempting to reimburse them for actual losses. Some old alleged scandals in connection with the reimbursement of the survivors of the Samoan disaster was raked up, but the debate in the end was saved from a rather sordid tone by a beautiful tribute paid to the gallant dead by Mr. Cousins (Ia.) in a short but eloquent speech. He aroused the galleries to spontaneous applause when he said that while the vultures might be watching over the dark waters of Havana harbor for the belated dead, above all the eagle's piercing eye was watching for the truth. The remainder of the day was occupied in the consideration of the old claim of John Roach, the ship builder, for $391,000. No action was taken upon the claim.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—SENATE—Senator Cullom Tuesday introduced a bill which had been sent to him by the National Business Men's league. The purpose of the measure is to provide a gold income for the United States. A feature of the senate proceedings Tuesday was an extended speech by Mr. Caffery (La.) in support of the pending national quarantine bill. In the course of his argument Mr. Caffery said that he wanted the whole quarantine power in the hands of the United States government, the only authority which could make a quarantine effective. Among the bills passed was one to raise the age of protection for girls in the District of Columbia and in the territories to 18 years.

HOUSE—Representative Tawney (Minn), a member of the sub committee of the committee on ways and means, Tuesday submitted a substitute for the bill introduced by Mr. Pearce (Mo.), relating to adulterated flour. The substitute has been drawn to meet objections to the Pearce bill. The naval appropriation bill was reported to the house Tuesday, but as it had not been printed the contested election case of Thorpe vs. Eppes, from the Fourth Virginia district, was taken up and debated until 4 o'clock, when the house, owing to the illness of Mr. Shea, of Kentucky, who was to speak Tuesday afternoon, adjourned until Wednesday.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—SENATE—In the senate Wednesday Mr. Carter (Mont.) called up the bill making further provision for a civil government for Alaska, and resumed his speech, begun Tuesday, upon the measure. After a brief discussion of the bill by Mr. Carter, Mr. Perkins (Cal.) offered a long amendment to the measure, providing for the placing of a license upon almost every kind of business and for the taxing and regulation of the liquor traffic. The tax on a wholesale liquor establishment is fixed at $2,000 per year; upon a bar room or saloon in any town of more than 1,500 inhabitants, $1,500 a year, and upon any retail liquor saloon in communities of less than 1,500 inhabitants, $1,000 per year.

HOUSE—R. T. Thorpe was Wednesday given the seat from the Fourth Virginia district, Sydney E. Eppes, who obtained the certificate of election, was unseated by a party vote, Mr. Thorpe was given the seat by a vote of 151 to 131. The republicans without a break voted for Thorpe and the democrats and populists, with the exception of Mr. Howard (Ala.), a populist, voted for Eppes. Representative Berry Wednesday introduced a bill to pension, at $50 a month, Capt. J. W. Hardeman, of Covington, Ky., "sixty-third Regular volunteers." Capt. Hardeman was postmaster at Covington during the Harrison administration, and was an unsuccessful candidate when Reynold was appointed by President McKinley.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—SENATE—The senate Thursday passed a bill for the protection of song birds, providing that the importation into the United States of birds, feathers or parts of birds for ornamental purposes be prohibited, and prohibiting the trausportation or sale of such articles in any territory of the United States or the District of Columbia. At 2:30, in accordance with previous notice, Mr. Bate (Tenn.) presented resolutions in memory of the late Senator Isham G. Harris, of Tennessee. Eulogies were delivered by Mr. Bate, Mr. Morrill (Vt.), Mr. Morgan (Ala.), Mr. Hoar (Mass.), Mr. Hawley (Ct.), Mr. Cokrell (Mo.), Mr. Stewart (Nev.), Mr. Chilton (Tex.), and Mr. Turley (Tenn.). At 4.45 p. m., as a further mark of respect, the senate adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—The naval appropriation bill was taken up in the House Thursday, and after considerable difficulty an arrangement was made to close general debate at 1 o'clock Saturday. The debate Thursday was not on sensational lines, but every radical expression was cheered to the echo by the crowded galleries. The speeches of Messrs. Dayton, (W. Va.) and Heard (Pa.) both of whom took advanced positions in favor of aggressive action to stop the war in Cuba, aroused intense enthusiasm. As soon as the journal was read, on the motion of Mr. Boutelle, chairman of the naval committee, the house went into committee of the whole. Mr. Sherman (rep., N. Y.) in the chair, for the consideration of the bill.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—SENATE—Not in session.

HOUSE—The stirring scenes of the Fifty-first congress, when members of the minority were charging down the aisles protesting against the rulings of Speaker Reed, were recalled Friday in the turbulent protests made by the minority against the ruling of the chair during the consideration of the naval appropriation bill. The ruling in effect compelled members to confine their remarks under the five-minute rule to the floor before the house, and was made against Mr. Hartman (silver, rep. Mont.), who attempted to make a political speech. The ruling was declared to be unjust and unfair, and appeal after appeal was taken. When all else failed every expedient was resorted to block progress with the bill. As a result but four pages were disposed of. Before the bill was taken up for amendment Mr. Foss (rep. Ill.), a member of the naval committee, made a general speech in advocacy of the policy of building up a strong and powerful navy.

Fired on by State Troops.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 25.—Towboats Tornado and Fellie were fired on by state troops at Moundsville. Pilots and engineers had narrow escapes. The citizens feared the wash of the boats, which were tied up there.

Activity at the Mare Island Navy Yard.

VALLEJO, Cal., March 26.—Great activity prevails at the Mare Island navy yard. The cruiser Philadelphia has been hauled from the stream and lies alongside the quay wall, near the Charleston. The gunboat Yorktown has also been towed to the wall and all three ships fairly swarm with men at all hours. The Charleston is rapidly nearing completion and will be ready to go into commission in a comparatively short time. The Yorktown, too, is nearly ready for sea, and the purchase of supplies for both are now being made.

The Southern Pacific company paid $22,000 to the state treasury in settlement of its franchise taxes for four years.

The temperance people of Richmond have petitioned the County Court to hold a local option election June 11.

Albert Renfro, of Owen county, while out hunting, dropped his gun, when both barrels were discharged, killing him instantly.

Attorney General Taylor has filed suit against the Bank of Louisville for the payment of dividends claimed to be due the state, which is a stockholder.

It is rumored at Frankfort that Governor Bradley will call the legislature in extra session in case of war with Spain, to provide equipment and supplies for state troops.

At Nicholasville, John Stevenson pleaded guilty to waylaying and shooting Sheriff Logan Young nearly two years ago, and was given the limit, five years in the penitentiary.

The indebtedness of Breckinridge county, which amounts to about $12,000, has been funded at 4 per cent., a less rate of interest than has been had on the county's indebtedness for many years.

A grewsome story comes from Corbin. It is to the effect that a Mrs. Day died from the effect of burns, and her two children were in bed with her four days before the corpse was discovered.

The Maysville Bulletin says that according to last quarterly reports the banks of that city have about a million dollars on deposit and yet the assessor in making his rounds a few weeks ago found less than $70,000.

Tom Hayden was convicted of murder and sentenced to hang at Hartford, Ohio county, for the murder of Bena Logan, with whom he was in love. Because she bestowed her affections on another, he killed her.

The Mercer County Clerk received notice from the State Auditor to tax the Adams Express Company on its franchises in that county to the amount of $213,000 for four years past. Also to tax the Western Union Telegraph Company on $52,000 for the same period.

A freak in the nature of a cow, instead of having horns on the head has them on her front feet, growing where the hoots ought to be. The animal was the property of Hike Bender, of Calloway county. He says he raised the cow on his pasture and cannot account for the freakish growth of horns.

Gov. Bradley pardoned Walter Goins, under indictment for shooting without wounding with intent to kill. Goins is the only survivor of the participants in the election affray of the night preceding the election at Frankfort. Gov. Bradley states that no indictments have been returned except against this poor cripple boy, who was present as peacemaker and had nothing to do with the trouble.

Terror reigned in the county jail at Vanceburg one night last week. Sam May, who has broken jail three half a dozen times was imprisoned. Sam concluded one night he would get out. He got an iron bar and commenced fighting the other inmates nearly killing two during the fight. The stove was upset setting the jail on fire. The flames were extinguished after the inmates had nearly suffocated. All the prisoners came within an ace of escaping.

A letter has been receieved by State officers giving full details of the killing of James Robinson, a desperado and outlaw, of Laurel county, by Deputy Sheriff Wood Hopkins. Hopkins had arrested Robinson on a charge of kukluxing Hopkins started to London with his prisoner and the latter escaped and fled to a neighboring house, where he armed himself. Hopkins came on in hot pursuit and on reaching the house commanded Robinson to halt, where upon Robinson fired on the deputy, who returned the fire the ball taking effect in the heart, killing Robinson instantly.

A stranger, giving his name as W. L. White, and claiming to represent an insurance company of Millersburg, Ky., made his appearance in Georgetown several days ago. He at once went into the country on a soliciting tour. His plan was to collect a part of the money in advance, telling his customers that he would return to Georgetown, write out the policies and send them next day. Several parties from whom he obtained money came to town to get their policies, but White had left. He obtained at least $100, probably more. A woman was with White.—Georgetown Times.

CROP AND STOCK.

The Government is buying up horses for cavalry as fast as it can.

B. G. Fox & Rice, of Boyle county, sold fifteen work mules at $60 to $90.

G. W. Bramlett, of Nicholas county, sold a pair of geldings to a Cincinnati buyer, for $750.

Bright & Lillard, of Boyle county, sold to J. W. Jean & Sons, of Jefferson county, a fine jack for $500.

It is said that a hog fed exclusively upon corn will starve to death in about 120 days, but no wise farmer is in danger of proving the statement a fallacy.

This country is sending beef abroad to the value of $3,000,000 monthly, to say nothing of the enormous additional exports of canned and salted meats and dressed beef.

Old oxen and poor cows are in demand owing to the buying of this species of stock for canned beef to fill orders from the government for navy supplies. They are shipped to Chicago where they are made into canned beef.

About 600 cattle at Stanford on court day, but only about a third of them sold. A shade over 5c was the highest price realized, but 4½ to 4¾ were the ruling prices for young steers. Heifers sold at 3 to 4. Butcher stuff was not in very great demand, but some sold at 3c.

It is reported that a new pest called the screw worm is playing havoc with sheep and hogs in various parts of the State. It is produced by a little fly entering the ears and nose of the animal and depositing eggs which hatch in a few days and the animal is eaten up by the worms.

If coarse manure is spread on the potato ground just before plowing it will do hurt. It will remain dry under the furrow until midsummer. When it furments it will breed fungus, and the tubers will rot. If rotted and spread in the winter, the tertility will be incorporated in the soil, and there will be a vigorous growth and no excessive heating.

A few days ago the large peach orchard of Dean Bros. was sold by the sheriff, the Aetna Insurance Co., bidding it in. The price was $4,988. The orchard is located near Marble Hill, and comprises 461 acres and has over 100,000 trees. The owners got into financial straits by engaging extensively in the merchandizing business and being unable to collect on account of the hard times. —Aurora Independent.

H. F. Hillenmeyer, the Lexington nurseryman, writes: The opinion is confidently ventured that the coming year will be cornucopian in the largest fruits and disappointing in the smaller ones. Present weather conditions do not favor, and the fruit crop of 1894 was a total loss by reason of the severe frosts beginning on March 25th after three weeks of charming weather. Should present weather longcontinue many elements of danger are added, affecting fruits both large and small. In the spring of 1869 peach trees were in full bloom about March 20th and the crop that year was exceptionally fine, but an early spring is rarely advantageous to fruit in Kentucky.

Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the favorable outlook for farmers to breed good horses. While the country is not at present suffering on account of a scarcity of horses, the business is circumscibed, because of inferior quality. There is no profit in breeding a poor horse of any class, and the laws of heredity are so inexorable, that to produce a choice animal of any type, good sires and dams must be used. Too many farmers have followed the "penny wise and pound foolish" policy of using inferior sires because of low service fee; but absolutely no improvement can be achieved by this method. To use scrub sires and cast off dams for breeders is a suicidal experiment that brings sure disappointment and loss. It is the good horse that sells for the big price, and the low grade animals are a drug on the market. It is a good thing for the farmer, before the season opens, to examine the stallions in his county and secure the nearest ideal animal for use, regardless of the trifling additional cost. In this way he will soon raise horses that will attract buyers to his place, and he will have no difficulty in selling at an early age, all the horses he can raise.—Louisiana Farmer.

It is highly creditable to the Democrats and Populists in Congress that they almost to a man refused to support the proposition to allow Congress to adjourn before the settlement of the Cuban question, although they knew that it would be a great advantage to them in the Congressional campaign for the Republican majority to vote for adjournment without doing anything for Cuba. There are times when partisan advantage is a secondary consideration. Mr. McKinley quickly realized the damage that would be done to his personal reputation by connecting him with the early adjournment scheme, and had Gen. Grovenor, deny that he had any connection with it.

[Courier]

At the Baptist church on last Saturday afternoon Will R. Elliston was licensed to preach and will likely preach for the church at this place during the remainder of the year.

At the business meeting of the Baptist church last Saturday morning the two Shelton children Mary and Maggie, were recommended to the Baptist Orphans Home at Louisville for admittance into the home. These children, with their mother have been at the poor house for the last month. Mrs. Shelton has consented that they might be sent to the Home and just as soon as the proper order of commitment can be made they will be sent to that institution.

H. M. Kendall and several other Williamstown citizens are mourning the departure of W. A. Fravel a horse doctor, who was a big man in Williamstown for a week or more and who by his loquacity, good manners and bland smiles ingratiated himself into the good graces of Mr. Kendall and others, and on the strength of apparent good qualities borrowed small sums of money ranging from $2.00 up and down, all of which he forgot to return and left early one morning for Owenton and has not returned. Mr. Kendall says he never would have loaned him any money if he hadn't called him Colonel, but that he thought it worth $2 to get the title. He touched Mr. De Long for $3, paid it back and then tried to touch him for $10 but the insurance agent was too smart for him. It takes a cracker jack to beat an insurance agent. The Courier office mourns the departure of Mr. Fravel to the extent of $12.50, but as we have played the sucker to every skin game, bunko steerer, gold brick confidence man and have become the butt and ridicule of all the sharpers who ply their trade in these parts, we are taking the matter easy and hoping it will not happen again. It has only been a couple of months since a fellow-newspaper man traveled 300 miles to get us to cash a worthless check for $20 and the protest fees were only $2.50. However we are going to reform and the next fellow that plays this office for a sucker will get it "in the neck."

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[Herald,]

A dog that was supposed to be mad was killed in town Thursday.

The postoffice at Bromley, Owen county, has been re-established, with Mrs. A. T. Bromley as postmaster.

The storm Wednesday night did considerable damage to J. T. Gorvey's house; unroofed nearly all the brick part, besides completely demolishing a house he was having erected on his place.

Rev. M. W. Jones, pastor of the Owenton Colored Baptist church, has received a letter from Rev. Dr. D. A. Gaddie, the colored preacher in Louisville, who was accused of expressing sympathy for Spain in a recent sermon, and he gives an emphatic denial to the report. He said he had been misrepresented.

As everybody knows, Judge J. W. Greene lost a leg on a Southern battlefield. His newly appointed Master Commissioner, H. C. Vallandingham, has but one arm; the Assessor, D. A. Lilly, only one leg, and the lately retired Jailer, B. F. Snelson, is a one armed man. These are all first-class officers; however.

[News]

Rev. J. W. Lee, died at his residence near Glencoe, Gallatin county, March 15, and was interred near his residence next day. Bro. Lee was in his eighty-first year, and for nearly fifty years of his life one of the most active Baptist ministers in northern Kentucky. During the year 1851 he and Rev. P. H. Todd, of Owen county, were evangelists sent out by the general association of Kentucky and held successful revival meetings in Owen, Grant, Gallatin and Boone counties, adding more than 400 to the churches. For many years he was moderator of Ten Mile Association of Baptist, discharging the duties with honor. For many years he has been nearly blind and a suffering invalid. He now "rests from all his labors, and his good works do follow him."

On last Sunday a deplorable accident occurred near El Bethel, by which Albert Renfro, a young farmer lost his life. He was sitting on his porch handling a shot gun when it slipped from his grasp and slid off the edge of the porch, the hammer striking the end of the floor and discharging the gun. The shot took effect in his bowels. He lived about four hours. He leaves a wife and several small children.

News just reaches us that Mr. William Morris, now living at Sparta, attempted suicide Monday morning by taking an over dose of laudanum. He has been suffering many years with a cancer on his face, despondency from which is supposed to be the cause of the rash act. He made a similar attempt here about a year ago.

The present indebtedness of Owen county, $226,000, is not a happy state of affairs for the taxpayers to contemplate, and the management of county affairs will have no little work on their hands in looking to its reduction.

It is rumored that an Owenton man has already recommended the election commissioners for Owen county under the new law.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 6, 1898. NO. 24.

CONGRESS is driving the President into a war with Spain.

EACH day's delay has been to Spain's advantage, and she has made the most of it.

THE pugilist, James Corbett, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in Greater New York.

FOR diplomatic reasons it is said that a portion of the testimony that accompanied the report on the Maine disaster, was suppressed.

IT is no trouble for Democrats to elect their candidates in Cincinnati now. They elected a Judge of the Supreme Court in that city, Monday.

THE prospects for war with Spain are about the same as they have been for several weeks. The President is still trying to avoid a conflict.

IF Spain excels us in battle as she has in the preliminaries, the United States would better apologize to Spain and pay her an indemnity.

TO-DAY President McKinley, if he does not disappoint the country some more, will send a message to Congress recognizing Cuban independence.

IF the war news becomes any more exciting the daily papers will be set in job type: They have been terribly disfigured for several weeks by matter set in that style of type.

THE breaking of the levee at Shawneetown, Illinois, and the drowning of over 200 of the citizens is a disaster second to the Johnstown, Pennsylvania flood. A full account of the disaster is given on another page.

IT is said that Auditor Stone refuses to pay the bill allowed by the last Legislature for opening the House with prayer. If there is any efficacy in prayer the House needed its benign influence, and intercession to the Throne of Grace should have been made for it several times a day, even thought the bill therefor would have been immense.

WHEN Gov. Bradley reached home from the launching of the Kentucky, he was contronted by a large stack of applications for pardons, filed especially for Gov. Worthington's consideration. The applications were filed faster than Gov. Worthington could work them off, although he is very rapid at that character of work.

IF the President wants a fight with Spain he will have to amend his petition, as she has acceded to all his demands—the reconcentrados are to be released, $600,000 has been appropriated by Spain to feed them, and permission has been given the United States to assist in the feeding. These concessions remove all the causes for war with Spain the President has ever recognized as existing.

THE House by a vote of 132 to 91 decided that a claim of a loyal citizen of the U. S. against the government lost its valdity when willed to a member of the family of a man who fought on the Southern side in the civil war. The particular claim upon which this vote was taken was contained in a bill that has about 840 claims of loyal citizens of the South for various things supplied to the Union troops during the war. It was made by the heirs of the widow of Gen. R. E. Lee, who had inherited the claim from Mrs. W. H. Fitzhugh, a notoriously loyal woman, from whose farm in Fairfax County, Va., the Union troops had taken 108,000 cords of timber.

MR. MCKINLEY feels the need of a Secretary of State who knows more international law and diplomacy than does his friend Judge Day or himself. He tried to tempt Senator Davis, chairman on the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, into accepting the place, but it wouldn't work, and he is now working on ex-Senator Edmuns, of Vermont, who has been recently acting in an advisory capacity to him, with the same object in view. Edmuns has ability of the highest order, but he has been a corporation lawyer for so long that his patriotism may be a little trust-tainted, like that of others who are recognized as advisers by Mr. McKinley. These things point to the early exit of poor old John Sherman from public life, in which he has since the advent of this administration been compelled to play a dummy part.

The Kentucky Legislature passed 110 bills. About 30 became laws by the approval of the Governor, and several others, including the gerrymander bills, the Bronston Prison bill and the Goeble Election bill, became laws over the Governor's veto.

The only new laws of far reaching importance are the election act, the prison commission act and the gerrymanders of the Third and Eighth Congressional districts, and the Third and Seventh Appellate Court districts. From being extremely doubtful these four districts are made safely Democratic under any ordinary circumstances.

Among the important bills that failed were the Chinn School Book bill, the Bronston Pool-Room and Racing bill, the Chinn Pure Food bill, the Louisville Ripper bill and the Local Option bill.

Among the more important bills passed were the following:

An act fixing the hundredweight of hemp at 100 pounds and the ton at 2,000 pounds. Approved March 10, 1898.

An act providing that public roads may be worked both by taxation and by hands. At present only one or the other can be adopted. Approved March 15, 1898.

An act to prohibit the sale, barter or loan of any intoxicating beverage in local option districts. Approved March 15, 1898.

An act to create a Board of Penitentiary Commissioners and regulate the penal institutions of this Commonwealth. Passed over the veto of the Governor. Contains an emergency clause.

An act providing that Circuit Clerks shall make up the jury lists twenty days instead of ten days before court convenes. Approved March 14, 1898.

An act appropriating $30,000 to build a sewer at the Eastern Kentucky Insane Asylum. Contains an emergency clause. Approved March 9, 1898.

An act requiring all persons or companies employing the services of ten or more persons in any mining industry to pay said employes wages on or before the 16th day of each month. If unable to raise the money they shall issue due bills to said employes. Became a law without the approval of the Governor.

An act to abolish the office of Register of the Land Office and consolidate with the office of the Auditor. Approved March 11, 1898.

An act to prohibit school trustees from becoming interested, directly or indirectly, in any contract for building or repairing school houses in his or their district. Approved March 11, 1898.

Don't.

Don't drop insinuations. A bigger man may pick them up.

Don't pick out for your friend a man whose dog won't follow him.

Don't think all books are salable because they are bound to sell.

Don't sit in a draught unless you want the doctor to get the cash for it.

Don't break your word—unless you can do it so a hyphen will fit in nicely.

Don't think because a man possesses a shining intellect that he is lightheaded.

Don't think because time and tide wait for no man that no woman will wait for him.

Don't fail to keep an eye on the friend who offers you suggestions at the expense of another friend.

Don't underrate modesty. The needle has but one point, yet it would be almost impossible to get along without it.—Chicago News.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

The more I think about getting married the oftener I make up my mind not to.

A woman loves her husband for her children; a man loves his children for his wife.

When a woman isn't feeling sorry for somebody she is generally washing her hair.

A man always feels as if he had done wrong when a girl kisses him against his will.

If some folks were the devil on a visit to heaven they would get awfully homesick.

Probably no woman could ever explain why she trundles her baby carriage on the left side of the pavement.

A girl's idea of heaven is a place where her hair is always as wavy as it is when she first takes out her curl papers.

Some woman are kept so busy getting up new dishes with queer French names that they never get time to learn how to cook.—N. Y. Press.

Pith of the Press.

If all other things fail, the new baseball anti-rowdy rules might be sprung on Congress. — Louisville Commercial.

Hon. Tom Watson has declined to be a candidate for Governor of Georgia, but it is believed that Georgia will outgrow the blow.—Chicago News.

Perhaps Mr. Wanamaker might be able to do something with Pennsylvania public sentiment by giving it the massage treatment.—Washington Post.

McKinley has been thinking so hard that it spoiled his style. Nobody has yet referred to the message as the 'greatest state paper since Lincoln."—Minneapolis Journal.

The war spirit is rampant in Kansas. Earl Cannon, of Pinney county, married Miss Ethel Ball, of Lawrence, Monday. Think of Cannon-Ball nuptials!—Chicago Times-Herald.

General Miles is unfortunate in being so handsome. His beauty excites male jealousy and interferes with his promotion to the rank of Lieutenant General.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Mr. Hanna's friends should secure the services of an expert diver and endeavor to locate him. He seems to have been submerged by the sudden wave of real events.—Omaha World-Herald.

Speaking of stopping a hole with the bung-hole open, the most colossal example of it in history is President McKinley's proposition to feed the Cuban reconcentrados and at the same time not interfere with the Spanish butchers.—Chicago Tribune.

Wall street seems to regard Mark Hanna and Tom Reed as a greater power than public sentiment in the United States, and as long as these servants of Wall street are not for war they are betting their money on peace. The latest information is that Reed has lost his grip.—Louisville Dispatch.

The United States was justly shocked at the supineness of Europe in failing to intervene against the Armenian outrages. By the same standard how much greater is our own responsibility for a three-fold greater destruction of innocent life, inflicted within a day's sail of our coasts, and for the thousands of lives which every day's delay on our part necessarily adds to this awful death total?—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Is there a reincarnated James G. Blaine in the United States? The country needs such a master of diplomacy and statesmanship. Judge Day would do for a clerk in the State Department, and that is all. He is the smallest potato that was ever put forward to meet a great crisis. There are today men as great as was the dashing Blaine. By the way, what would be the matter with putting Foraker at the head of the State Department and of letting John Sherman retire with the honors of war?—Marion (O) Mirror.

What Wives Should Remember.

That Adam was made first.

That "he pays the freight."

That "blessed are the meek."

That all angels are not females.

That confidence begets confidence.

That nine men in ten detest gossip.

That men sometimes have "nerves."

That there should be no place like home.

That it takes two to prolong a family jar.

That the least said is the soonest mended.

That with all his faults you love him still.

That you should have no secrets from him.

That husbands have troubles of their own.

That he's "all right" when you know him.

That woman's best weapon is her weakness.

That he is just as anxious to get rich as you are.

That home is more than half what you make it.

That wives are unusually favored in this country.

That a man likes neatness in your attire at all times.

THE Erlanger military company was thought to be a thing of the past, but the members have been notified that they will be called upon to shoulder their muskets in case of war with Spain, and there is some little uneasiness on the part of some who were members of the company.

Report on the Maine Disaster.

New York Herald:—"Is it peace or war? Spain can not forget that we have been considerate, forbearing, patient."

Pittsburg Commercial-Gazette:—"The responsibility is not fixed, but it, from the most favorable view in her favor, is indirectly responsible."

Chicago Chronicle:—"The Court could find only the facts. Conclusions must be left to the intelligent judgment of the American public. There will be little difference of opinion on the subject."

Pittsburg Dispatch:—"The conclusion, therefore, is that there was an external explosion, which the board is convinced could only have been produced from a submarine mine, and that this caused the explosion of one of the smaller magazines."

New York Sun:—"The Maine Board of Inquiry thinks, and the public will think with them, that the ship was destroyed by a blow from without, and not by accident or neglect within. If anything of this world could bring peace to the Maine's dead, it will be the evidence that no shadow rests upon their mates left behind."

New York Journal:—"That is absolutely all the comment the President has to make upon an act of murderous treachery that stands alone in modern history. He has less to say about the destruction of an American battle ship and the murder of 266 American sailors than he would say about a proposition to fill the Potomac flats."

Chicago Journal:—"Through its representative in Congress the American people should act, and act at once. Delay may mean defeat. There is no justification for more inaction. The verdict is in. The Maine must be avenged, and the retribution has been too long postponed. Every other consideration should be ignored. Let Congress take the case out of the President's hands and do what it can to retrieve the losses of the last month's great mistake."

Philadelphia Ledger:—"The carefully, deliberately avowed finding of the court leaves now no room for doubt for cavil regarding the manner of the Maine's destruction. She did not perish by an accident. She was not destroyed by an explosion of either her magazines or boilers; she was not destroyed from within. She was blown up from without, by a sub-marine mine deliberately, with malice and deviltry prepense, exploded under her as she lay at her appointed moorings, at the bouy to which she had been taken by the authorities of Spain."

Some Pedal Points.

Never come from high heels to low heels at one jump.

Never wear a shoe that presses up into the hollow of the foot.

Never wear a shoe that will not allow the great toe to lie in a straight line.

Never wear leather sole linings to stand upon. White cotton drilling or linen is much better and more healthful.

Never wear a shoe with a sole narrower then the outline of the foot traced with a pencil close under the rounding edge.

Never wear a shoe or boot that has a depression in any part of the sole to drop and joint or bearing below the level plane.

Never wear a shoe that pinches in the heel. Never wear a shoe or boot so large in the heel that the foot is not kept in place.

Never wear a shoe with the sole turning up very much at the toe, as this causes the chords on the upper part of the foot to contract.

Never wear one pair of shoes all the time unless obliged to do so. Two pair of boots worn a day at a time alternately give more service and are much more healthful.

Georgia Philosophy.

The weather prophets are all at sea when they tackle the war clouds.

War gives even the humblest citizen a chance to come to the front.

When the office seeks the man it has to use a searchlight to find him.

If indemnity is accepted for the Maine it should go to the sinking fund.

The rumors in the political race say that these are times that try men's soles.

It is said that war is needed to thin out the population. And yet there is nothing slow about the doctors.

Some military titles seem to run in the blood—as fast as their original owners ran in the war.—Atlanta Constitution.

CURRENT TOPICS.

FIVE battle ships are now under construction.

A CAPTAIN in the navy ranks with a colonel in the army.

THE American navy has practically all been built since 1883.

IT cost $55,000 for coal to take the British cruiser Powerful out to China.

A YOUNG man in Lafayette, Ind., has been fined $14.75 for attempting to kiss a pretty girl.

GREAT BRITAIN has 294 torpedoes and torpedo boat destroyers; Uncle Sam has only eight.

FIVE hundred and forty-nine men and 40 officers are required to man the cruiser New York.

THE guns of a battle ship can carry from six to twelve miles, hurling a shot weighing half a ton.

A BIG battle ship has on board an electric plant capable of lighting a town of 5,000 inhabitants.

WINE skins, made of the hides of pigs, goats, calves or oxen, are still used in the rural districts of Spain.

WITHIN the next two months the great lakes and lake cities will furnish from 6,000 to 8,000 men for the navy.

THE little city of Rome, Ga., has five new cotton mills under construction, each with a capacity of 30,000 spindles.

SIXTY-ONE merchant vessels belong to the auxiliary navy. These ships are subsidized, and by contract must be given to the United States on demand.

THE biggest guns in the navy are 49 feet long, big enough for a man to crawl into; 4 feet in diameter at their largest part, and weigh 135,500 pounds or thereabouts.

ARMOR plates are tested by firing steel projectiles weighing from 100 to 1,500 pounds at them from guns charged with 500 pounds of powder and at a distance of about a city block.

TWO French women have patented a scrubbing brush which is to be attached to the shoe by straps and a heel plate, thus making it possible to clean floors while standing upright.

LORD CHARLES BERESFORD has dared the admiralty to give the Belleville boilers a real test by speeding the new cruiser Diadem across the Atlantic under its full steam of 12,500 horse power.

THE United States is the fifth naval power in the world. The navies of Great Britain, France, Russia and Italy rank ahead in the order named. Germany and the United States are about tied.

NATURALISTS declare the kestrel is possessed of such wonderful powers of sight that it is able to see a mouse when it is itself at such a height in the air that it is invisible to the naked human eye.

THE marquis of Salisbury, who is at present ill, has been in public life since 1854, when, at the age of 24, he first entered parliament. His lordship's full name is Robert Arthur Talbot Gascogne Cecil.

BRITISH purists regard with envy the Dutch village of Duxverloo, where hanging underclothes out to dry in places visible to the public is punished by a heavy fine for the first offense and by imprisonment for the second.

THE death penalty is rarely enforced in Germany, Austria, Denmark or Sweden. In New York 11 out of 12 murderers escape without any punishment; and in the United States only one murderer in 50 suffers capital punishment.

FREDERICK TENNYSON, brother of Lord Tennyson, and himself a poet of considerable merit, who has just died, was noted for his great gentleness and kindness, which he impartially bestowed upon all with whom he came in contact.

EMPEROR WILLIAM, referring to the colors of the German flag, said not long ago that the black represented work, the white represented rest and peace, and the red represented blood, which was necessary to cement the others together.

THE finest looking people of Europe are the Tziganes, or gypsies of Hungary. Physically they are splendid specimens of men and women, and are rarely ill. So pure is their blood that their wounds quickly heal without the application of medicaments.

THE subject of odd occupations in a big city would fill a book. A "southern lady in reduced circumstances supplies a growing clientele with old-fashioned corn bread. A tinker is building up a profitable house-to-house business in mending broken dolls.

MISS GRACE A. ADAMS, of Columbus, O., who was the first to benefit by the new law allowing women notaries, is to be brought into a test case on the ground that, as the constitution requires that all officers shall be electors, her appointment was unconstitutional.

THE oldest piece of wrought iron in existence is believed to be a roughly-fashioned sickle-blade found by Belzoni in Karnac, near Thebes. It was imbedded in mortar under the base of the Sphinx, and on that account is known as "the sickle of the Sphinx." It is now in the British museum and is believed to be nearly 4,000 years old.

A SERMON TO GAMBLERS

Withering Blight and Pernicious Influences of the Gaming Table.

No Other Vice So Insidious and Dangerous, and No Other Takes on So Many Alluring Forms—Discourse by Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage D. D.

The spirit of hazard in this sermon is reraigned by Dr. Talmage, and the downward path of the gamester is plainly pointed out. Text, Acts i., 19: "Aceldama, that is to say, the field of blood."

The money given Judas for surrendering Christ was used to purchase a graveyard. As the money was blood money, the ground bought by it was called in the Syrian tongue, "Aceldama," meaning "the field of blood." Well there is one word I want to write to-day over every race course where wagers are staked, and every pool room, and every gambling saloon, and every table, public or private, where men and women bet for sums of money, large or small, and that is a word incarnadined with life of innumerable victims—Aceldama.

The gambling spirit which is at all times a stupendous evil, ever and anon sweeps over the country like an epidemic, prostrating uncounted thousands. There has never been a worse attack than that from which all the states, towns and cities are now suffering.

While among my hearers and readers are those who have passed on into the afternoon of life and the shadows are lengthening, and the sky crimsons with the glow of the setting sun, a large number of them are in early life, and the morning is coming down out of the clear sky upon them, and the bright air is redolent with spring blossoms, and the stream of life, gleaming and dancing, rushes on between flowery banks, making music as it goes. Some of you are engaged in mercantile concerns, as clerks and bookkeepers, and your whole life is to be passed in the exciting world of traffic. The sound of busy life stirs you as the drum stirs the fiery war horse. Others are in the mechanical arts, to hammer and chisel your way through life, and success awaits you. Some are preparing for professional life, and grand opportunities are before you; nay, some of you already have buckled on the armor. But, whatever your age and calling, the subject of gambling about which I speak to-day is pertinent.

Some years ago, when an association for the suppression of gambling was organized, an agent of the association came to a prominent citizen and asked him to patronize the society. He says: "No, I can have no interest in such an organization. I am in no wise affected by the evil." At that very time his son, who was his partner in business, was one of the heaviest players in a famous gambling establishment. Another refused his patronage on the same ground, not knowing that his first bookkeeper, though receiving a salary of only $4,000, was losing from $50 to $100 per night. The president of a railroad company refused to patronize the institution, saying, "That society is good for the defense of merchants, but we railroad people are not injured by this evil," not knowing, at that very time, two of his conductors were spending three nights of each week at faro tables in New York. Directly or indirectly this evil strikes at the whole world.

Gambling is the risking of something more or less valuable in the hope of winning more than you hazard. The instruments of gambling may differ, but the principle is the same. The shuffling and dealing cards, however full of temptation, is not gambling unless stakes are put up, while, on the other hand, gambling may be carried on without cards, or dice, or billiards, or tenpin alley. The man who bets on horses, or elections, or battles, the man who deals in "fancy" stocks, or conducts a business which hazards extra capital, or goes into transactions without foundation, but dependent upon what men call "luck," is a gambler.

Whatever you expect to get from your neighbor without offering an equivalent in money, or time, or skill, is either the product of theft or gambling. Lottery tickets and lottery policies come into the same category. Bazars for the founding of hospitals, schools and churches, conducted on the raffling system, come under the same denomination. Do not, therefore, associate gambling necessarily with any instrument, or game, or time, or place, or think the principle depends upon whether you play for a glass of wine or 100 shares of railroad stock. Whether you patronize "auction pools," "French mutuals" or "book-making," whether you employ faro or billiards, rondo and keno, cards or bagatelle, the very idea of the thing is dishonest; for it professes to bestow upon you a good for which you can give no equivalent.

This crime is no newborn sprite, but a haggard transgression that comes staggering down under a mantle of curses through many centuries. All nations barbarous and civilized, have been addicted to it.

But now the laws of the whole civilized world denounce the system. Enactments have been passed, but only partially enforced, and at times not enforced at all. The men interested in gaming houses and in jockey clubs wield such influence by their numbers and affluence that the judge, the jury and the police officer must be bold indeed who would array themselves against these infamous establishments. The house of commons in England actually adjourns on Derby day that members may attend the races and in the best circles of society in this country to-day are many hundreds of professedly respectable men who are acknowledged gamblers.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars in this land are every day being won and lost through sheer gambling. Says a traveler through the west: "I have traveled a thousand miles at a time upon the western waters and seen gambling at every waking moment from the commencement to the termination of the journey." The southwest of this country reeks with this sin. In some of those cities every third or fourth house in many of the streets is a gambling place, and it may be truthfully averred that each of our cities is cursed with this evil.

Men wishing to gamble will find places just suited to their capacity, not only in the underground oyster cellar, or at the table back of the curtain, covered with greasy cards, or in the steamboat smoking cabin, where the bloated wretch with rings in his ears deals out his pack and winks in the unsuspecting traveler, providing free drinks all around, but in gilded parlors and grand and gorgeous surroundings. This sin works ruin, first, by providing an unhealthful stimniant. If element is pleasurable. Under every sky and in every age men have sought it. We must at times have excitement. A thousand voices in our nature demand it. It is right. It is healthful. It is inspiriting. It is a desire God-given. But anything that first gratifies this appetite and hurls it back in a terrific reaction is deplorable and wicked. Look out for the agitation that, like a rough musician, in bringing out the tune, plays so hard that he breaks down the instrument! God never made a man strong enough to endure the wear and tear of gambling excitements.

A young man having suddenly inherited a large property, sits at the hazard tables and takes up in a dice box the estate won by a father's life-time's sweat, and shakes it and tosses it away. Intemperance soon stigmatizes its victim, kicking him out, a slavering fool, into the ditch, or sending him with the drunkard's hiccough, staggering up the street where his family lives. But gambling does not in that way expose its victims. The gambler may be eaten up by the gambler's passion, yet you only discover it by the greed in his eyes, the hardness of its features, the nervous restlessness, the threadbare coat and his embarrassed business. Yet he is on the road to ruin, and no preacher's voice, or startling warning, or wife's entreaty, can make him stay for a moment his headlong career.

The infernal spell is on him: a giant is aroused within; and though you bind him with cables, they would part like thread, and though you fasten him seven times around with chains, they would snap like rusted wire; and though you piled up in his path Heaven-high Bibles, tracts and sermons, and on the top should set the cross of the son of God, over them all the gamblers would leap like a rose over the rocks on the way to perdition. "Aceldama, the field of blood!"

Again, this sin works ruin by killing industry. A man used to reaping scores or hundreds of dollars from the gaming table will not be content with slow work. He will say, "What is the use of trying to make these $30 in my store when I can make five times that amount in half an hour by the dice?" You never knew a confirmed gambler who was industrious. The men given to this vice spend their time, not actively employed in the game, in idleness or intoxication, or in sleep, or in corrupting new victims. This sin has dulled the carpenter's saw, and cut the band of the factory wheel, sunk the cargo, broke the teeth of the farmer's harrow, and sent a strange lightning to shatter the battery of the philosopher. The very first idea in gaming is at war with all the industries of society.

Any trade or occupation that is of use is ennobling. The street sweeper advances the interests of society by the cleanliness effected. The cat pays for the fragments it eats by clearing the house of vermin. The fly that takes the sweetness from the dregs of the cup compensates by purifying the air and keeping back the pestilence. But the gambler does not give anything for that which he takes. I recall that sentence. He does make a return, but it is disgrace to the man he fleeces, despair to his heart, ruin to his business, anguish to his wife, shame to his children, and eternal wasting away to his soul. He pays in tears and blood and agony and darkness and woe.

What dull work is plowing to the farmer when in the village saloon in one night he makes and loses the value of a summer's harvest! Who will want to sell tapes and measure nankeen and cut garments and weigh sugar, when in a night's game he makes and loses, and makes again and loses again, the profits of a season?

John Law was sent as a mercantile agent from Bremen to England and this country. After two years his employers mistrusted that all was not right. He was a defaulter for $87,000. It was found that he had lost in Lombard street, London, $29,000; in Fulton street, New York, $10,000, and in New Orleans $8,000. He was imprisoned, but afterward escaped, and went into the gambling profession. He died in a lunatic asylum. This crime is getting its lever under many a mercantile house in our cities, and before long down will come the great establishment, crushing reputation, home comfort and immortal souls. How it diverts and sinks capital may be inferred from some authentic statement before us. The ten gambling houses that once were authorized in Paris passed through the banks yearly 325,000,000 francs.

Furthermore, this sin is the source of dishonesty. The game of hazard itself is often a cheat. How many tricks and deceptions in the dealing of the cards! The opponent's hand is oftimes found out by fraud. Cards are marked so that they may be designated from the back. Expert gamesters have their accomplices, and one wink may decide the game. The dice have been found loaded with platina, so that doublets come up every time. These dice are introduced by the gamblers unobserved by the honest men who have come into the play, and this accounts for the fact that ninety-nine out of a hundred who gamble, however wealthy when they began, at the end are found to be poor, miserable, haggard wretches, that would not now be allowed to sit on the door step of the house that they once owned.

In a gambling house in San Francisco a young man having just come from the mines, deposited a large sum upon the ace and won $22,000. But the tide turns. Intense anxiety comes upon the countenances of all. Slowly the cards went forth. Every eye is fixed. Not a sound is heard until the ace is revealed favorable to the bank. There are shouts of "Foul! Foul!" but the keepers at the tables produce their pistols and the uproar is silenced and the bank has won $05.000. Do you call this a game of chance? There is no chance about it.

Notice also the effect of this crime upon domestic happiness. It has sent ruthless plowshare through hundreds of families, until the wife sat in the ashes, and the daughters were disgraced, and the sons grew up to the same infamous practices, or took a short cut to destruction across the murderers scaffold. Home has lost all charms for the gambler. How tame are the children caresses and a wife's devotion to the gambler! How drearily the fire burns on the domestic hearth! There must be louder laughter, and something to win and something to lose; an excitement to drive the heart faster, fillip the blood and fire the imagination. No home, however bright, can keep back the gamester. The sweet call of love bounds back from his iron soul, and all endearments are consumed in the fire of his passion. The family Bible will go after all other treasures and lost, and if his crown in Heaven were put in his hand he would cry: "Here, one more throw, and I—" On this one throw I stake my crown in Heaven."

A young man in London, on coming of age, received a fortune of $120,000, and through gambling in three years was thrown on his mother for support. An only son went to New Orleans. He was rich, intellectual and elegant in manners. His parents gave him on his departure from home their last blessing. The sharpers got hold of him. They flattered him. They lured him to the gaming table and let him win almost every time for a good while, and patted him on the back and said: "First-rate player." But fully in their grasp they fleeced him and his $30,000 were lost. Last of all he put up his watch and lost that. Then he began to think of his home, and of his old father and mother, and wrote thus:

"My beloved parents, you will doubtless feel a momentary joy at the reception of this letter from the child of your bosom, on whom you have lavished all the favors of your declining years. But should a feeling of joy for a moment spring up in your hearts when you should receive this from me cherish it not. I have fallen deep, never to rise. Those gray hairs that I should have honored and protected, I shall bring down in sorrow to the grave. I will not curse my destroyer; but, oh, may God avenge the wrongs and impositions practiced upon the unwary, in a way that shall best please him! This, my dear parents, is the last letter you will ever receive from me. I humbly pray your forgiveness. It is my dying prayer. Long before you will have received this from me, the cold grave will have closed upon me forever. Life to me is insupportable. I can not, nay, I will not suffer the shame of having ruined you. Forget and forgive is the dying prayer of your unfortunate son."

The old father came to the post office, got the letter, and fell to the floor. They thought he was dead at first, but they brushed back the white hair from his brow and fanned him. He had only fainted. "Aceldama, the field of blood!"

When things go wrong at a gaming table they shout: "Foul! foul!" Over all the gaming tables of the world I cry out: "Foul! foul! Infinitely foul!"

"Gift stores" are abundant throughout the country. With a book or knife, or sewing machine, or coat or carriage, there goes a prize. At these stores people get something thrown in with their purchase. It may be a gold watch, or a set of silver, a ring or a farm. Sharp way to get off unsalable goods. It has filled the land with fictitious articles, and covered up our population with brass finger rings, and despoiled the moral sense of the community, and is fast making us a nation of gamblers.

The Church of God has not seemed willing to allow the world to have all the advantages of these games of chance. A church bazaar opens, and toward the close it is found that some of the more valuable articles are unsalable. Forthwith, the conductors of the enterprise conclude that they will raffle for some of the valuable articles, and, under pretense of anxiety to make their ministers a present or please some popular member of the church, fascinating persons are dispatched through the room, pencil in hand, to "solicit shares," or perhaps each draws for his own advantage, and scores of people go home with their trophies, thinking that it is all right, for Christian ladies did the embroidery and Christian men did the raffling, and the proceeds went toward a new communion set. But you may depend on it, that as far as morality is concerned, you might as well have won by the crack of the billiard ball or the turn of the dice-box.

Do you wonder that churches built, light or upholstered by such processes as that come to great financial and spiritual decreptitude? The devil says: "I helped to build that house of worship, and I have as much right there as you have." And for once the devil is right. We do not read that they had a lottery for building the church at Corinth, or at Antioch, or for getting up an embroidered surplice for St. Paul. All this I style ecclesiastical gambling. More than one man who is destroyed can say that his first step on the wrong road was when he won something at a church fair.

Spring Medicine

A Good Blood Purifier a Necessity Now

Hood's Sarsaparilla Unequalled for Making Rich, Red Blood.

The necessity for taking a good Spring Medicine to purify the blood and build up the system is based upon natural and unavoidable causes. In cold weather there has been less perspiration and impurities have not passed out of the system as they should. Food has consisted largely of rich, fatty substances, and there has been less opportunity for outdoor exercise. The result is, the blood is loaded with impurities and these must be promptly expelled or health will be endangered. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best Spring Medicine because it is the best blood purifier and tonic. It thoroughly purifies the blood and gives vigor and vitality.

President's Message to Congress Does Not Mention Possibility of War.

Transmits the Report to Congress with No Startling Statement as to His Intention—Asks for Deliberate Consideration.

Washington, March 29.—The president Monday sent the following message to congress:

To the Congress of the United States:

For some time prior to the visit of the Maine in Havana harbor our consular representatives pointed out the advantages to flow from the visit of national ships to the Cuban waters, in accustoming the people to the presence of our flag as the symbol of good will and of our ships in the fulfillment of the mission of protection to American interests, even though no immediate need therefor might exist.

Accordingly, on the 24th of January last, after conference with the Spanish minister in which the renewal of visits of our war vessels to Spanish waters was discussed and accepted, the peninsular authorities at Madrid and Havana were advised of the purpose of this government to resume friendly naval visits at Cuban ports, and that in that view the Maine would forthwith call at the port of Havana.

The Maine at Havana.

This announcement was received by the Spanish government with appreciation of the friendly character of the visit of the Maine and with notification of intention to return the courtesy by sending Spanish ships to the principal ports of the United States. Meanwhile the Maine entered the port of Havana on the 25th of January, her arrival being marked with no special incident besides the exchange of customary salutes and ceremonial visits.

The Maine continued in the harbor of Havana during the three weeks following her arrival. No appreciable excitement attended her stay, on the contrary, a feeling of relief and confidence followed the resumption of the long interrupted friendly intercourse. So noticeable was this immediate effect of her visit that the consul-general strongly urged that the presence of our ships in Cuban waters should be kept up by retaining the Maine at Havana, or in the event of her recall by sending there a vessel to take her place.

The Fatal Evening.

At 40 minutes past nine on the evening of the 15th of February the Maine was destroyed by an explosion, by which the entire forward part of the ship was utterly wrecked. In this catastrophe two officers and 260 of her crew perished, those who were not killed outright by her explosion being penned between decks by the tangle of wreckage and drowned by the immediate sinking of the hull. Prompt assistance was rendered by the neighboring vessels anchored in the harbor, said being especially given by the boats of the Spanish cruiser Alphonso XII. and the Ward line steamer City of Washington, which lay not far distant. The wounded were generously cared for by the authorities of Havana, the hospitals being freely opened to them, while the earliest recovered bodies of the dead were interred by the municipality in a public cemetery in the city. Tributes of grief and sympathy were offered from all official quarters of the island.

Caused Intense Excitement.

The appalling calamity fell upon the people of our country with crushing force and for a brief time intense excitement prevailed, which in a community less just and self-controlled than ours might have led to hasty acts of blind resentment. This spirit, however, gave way to the calmer processes of reason and to the resolve to investigate the facts and await the material proof before forming a judgment as to the cause, the responsibility and, if the facts warranted, the remedy due. This course necessarily recommended itself from the outset to the executive, for only in the light of a dispassionately ascertained certainty could it determine the nature and measure of its full duty in the matter.

The usual procedure was followed, as in all cases of casualty or disaster to national vessels of any maritime state. A naval court of inquiry was at once organized, composed of officers well qualified by rank and practical experience to discharge the onerous duty imposed upon them.

Aided by a strong force of wreckers and divers the court proceeded to make a thorough investigation on the spot, employing every available means for the impartial and exact determination of the causes of the explosion. Its operations have been conducted with the utmost deliberation and judgment, and while independently pursued no source of information was neglected and the fullest opportunity was allowed for a simultaneous investigation by the Spanish authorities.

The Finding of the Court.

The finding of the court of inquiry was reached, after 23 days of continuous labor, on the 21st of March inst., and having been approved on the 22d by the commander-in-chief of the United States naval force of the North Atlantic station, was transmitted to the executive.

It is herewith laid before congress, together with the voluminous testimony taken before the court. Its purport is, in brief, as follows:

When the Maine arrived at Havana she was conducted by the regular government pilot to buoy No. 4, to which she was moored in from 5½ to 6 fathoms of water.

The state of discipline on board, and the condition of her magazines, boilers, coal bunkers and storage compartments, are passed in review, with the conclusion that excellent order prevailed and that no indication of any cause for an internal explosion existed in any quarter.

At eight o'clock in the evening of February 15, everything had been reported secure and all was quiet.

At 40 minutes past nine o'clock the vessel was suddenly destroyed.

Two Explosions.

There were two distinct explosions, with a brief interval between them. The first lifted the forward part of the ship very perceptibly; the second, which was more prolonged, is attributed by the court to the partial explosion of two or more of the forward magazines.

1. That the United States battleship Maine arrived in the harbor of Havana, Cuba, on the 25th day of January, 1898, and was taken to buoy No. 4, in from five and a half to six fathoms of water by the regular government pilot. The United States consul general at Havana had notified the authorities at that place the previous evening of the intended arrival of the Maine.

Discipline Was Excellent.

2. The state of discipline on board the Maine was excellent, and all orders and regulations in regard to the care and safety of the ship were strictly carried out.

All ammunition was stowed away in accordance with instructions, and proper care was taken whenever ammunition was handled.

Nothing was stowed in any one of the magazines or shell rooms which was not permitted to be stowed there.

The magazines and shell rooms were always locked after having been opened, and after the destruction of the Maine the keys were found in their proper place in the captain's cabin, everything having been reported secure that evening at eight p. m.

Temperature Was Normal.

The temperatures of the magazines and shellrooms were taken daily and reported. The only magazine which had an undue amount of heat was the after ten-inch magazine, and that did not explode at the time the Maine was destroyed.

The torpedo war heads were all stowed in the after part of the ship under the ward-room, and neither caused nor participated in the destruction of the Maine.

The dry gun cotton primers and detonators were stowed in the cabin aft and remote from the scene of the explosion.

The waste was carefully looked after on board the Maine to obviate danger. Special orders in regard to this had been given by the commanding officer.

Varnishes, drivers, alcohol and other combustibles of this nature were stowed on or above the Maine deck and could not use at the time of the disaster, but for auxiliary purposes only with a comparatively low pressure of steam, and being tended by a reliable watch. These boilers could not have caused the explosion of the ship. The four forward boilers have since been found by the divers, and are in a fair condition.

On the night of the destruction of the Maine everything had been reported secure for the night at eight p. m. by reliable persons, through the proper authorities, to the commanding officer. At the time the Maine was destroyed the ship was quiet, and therefore least liable to accident caused by movements from those on board.

Were Two Explosions.

3. The destruction of the Maine occurred at 9:40 p. m. on the 15th day of February, 1898, in the harbor of Havana, Cuba, being at the time moored on the same buoy to which she had been taken upon her arrival.

There were two explosions of a distinctly different character with a very short but perfect interval between them, and the forward part of the ship was lifted to a considerable degree at the time of the first explosion.

The first explosion was more in the nature of a report, like that of a gun, while the second explosion was more open, prolonged and of greater volume. This second explosion was, in the opinion of the court, caused by the partial explosion of two or more of the forward magazines of the Maine.

Condition of the Wreck.

4. The evidence bearing on this, being principally obtained from divers, did not enable the court to form a definite conclusion as to the condition of the wreck, although it was established that the after part of the ship was practically intact, and sank in that condition a very few minutes after the destruction of the forward part.

The following facts in regard to the forward part of the ship are, however, established by the testimony:

That portion of the port side of the protective deck which extends from about frame 30 to about frame 41 was blown up and over to port. The main deck from about frame 30 to about frame 41 was blown up aft and slightly over to starboard, folding the forward part of the middle superstructure over and on top of the after part.

This was, in the opinion of the court, caused by the partial explosion of two or more of the forward magazines of the Maine.

Plates Forced Up.

5. At frame 17, the outer shell of the ship, from a point 11½ feet from the middle line of the ship and 25 feet above the keel when in its normal position, has been forced up so as to be now about four feet above the surface of the water, therefore about 24 feet above where it would be had the ship sunk uninjured. The outside bottom plating is bent into a reversed V shape, the after wing of which, about 15 feet broad and 32 feet in length (from frame 17 to frame 23), is doubled back upon itself against the continuation of the same plating extending forward.

At frame 18 the vertical keel is broken in two, and the flat keel bent into an angle similar to the angle formed by the outside bottom plating. This break is now about six feet below the surface of the water, and about 30 feet above its normal position.

Caused by a Mine.

In the opinion of the court, this effect could have been produced only by the explosion of a mine situated under the bottom of the ship at about frame 18, and somewhat on the port side of the ship.

6. The court finds that the loss of the Maine, on the occasion named, was not in any respect due to fault or negligence on the part of any of the officers or members of the crew of said vessel.

7. In the opinion of the court the Maine was destroyed by the explosion of a submarine mine, which caused the partial explosion of two or more of her forward magazines.

8. The court has been unable to obtain evidence fixing the responsibility for the destruction of the Maine upon any person or persons.

TOLD BY WITNESSES.

Extract of Important Testimony Taken by the Court.

Lieut. Powelson's Story Told on the Third Day of the Session—Important Discoveries Made Up to That Time.

Washington, March 23.—The following are portions of the testimony:

Ensign W. V. N. Powelson was called the third day of the court. He testified that he had been present on the Maine every day from the arrival of the boat Fern and during a great deal of the diving.

In reply to a question to tell the court all about the condition of the wreck, he said the forward part of the ship forward of the after smokestack had been to all appearances completely destroyed. The conning tower lay in a position opposite the door leading to the superstructure aft and to starboard, inclined at about 110 degrees to the vertical with the top of the conning tower in board. Continuing, he described with close detail the condition under the main deck on the port side. The fixtures were completely wrecked, while fixtures in the same position on the starboard side were in some cases almost intact. The port bulkhead between the main and berth decks at the conning tower support had been blown aft on both sides, but a great deal more on the port than on the starboard side. The fireroom hatch immediately abaft of the conning tower had been blown in three directions—aft, to starboard and to port. The protective deck under the conning tower supports was bent in two directions—aft, to starboard side being bent up and on the larboard side bent down.

In reply to an inquiry as to whether he meant with reference to their original positions Ensign Powelson replied affirmatively. The beam supporting the protective deck a few inches abaft of the armored tube, to port of the midship line, was bent up to starboard of the midship line. Just forward of the conning tower, underneath the deck, two beams met at right angles; one beam was broken and pushed from port to starboard. A grating was found on the poop awning just forward of the after searchlight.

A piece of the side plating just abaft of the starboard turret was visible. This plate was bent outward and then the forward end bent upward and folded backward upon itself. "This plate was sheared from the rest of the plating below the water line. This plating below the water line has been pushed out to starboard."

The armored gratings of the engine room hatch were blown off. A composition strainer was picked up from the bottom on the starboard quarter at a point about opposite the poop capstan and about 70 feet from it. The chief engineer thought the strainer was from the firemen's washroom. It was not a strainer in the ship's side.

Near the piece of outside plating to which witness referred above he said there were pieces of red sheathed planks. On these planks was bolted a composition track two inches wide and an inch thick.

Ensign Powelson then asked if the court meant for him to say anything about what the divers reported or just what he saw.

The judge advocate replied that he would like to have him state any important discoveries which might lead the court to draw some conclusion as to the cause, and if a diver gave such information to state the diver's name. Before doing so the judge advocate asked witness to state if the forward and after part of the ship were in line. Ensign Powelson replied that as far as he could judge they were not. The end where the explosion occurred seemed to be pushed from port to starboard from five to ten degrees, he should judge, with the apex to the starboard. The divers reported to witness that at a point where the ten-inch shell room should be they discovered ten-inch shells regularly arranged, but the ship had sunk down so much that some of the shells were in the mud.

Gunner Morgan reported that in walking on the bottom he fell into a hole on the port side and went down in the mud. He also reported that as far as he could judge everything seemed to be bent upward in the vicinity of this hole. He also reported that the plates seemed to have been pushed over to the starboard and then bent down.

Ensign Powelson then said that a six-inch powder tank that he saw appeared to be an empty tank broken by the explosion, as it was not badly dented and merely ripped the length of the seam. A ten-inch tank was badly battered out of any concievable shape.

Continuing, the witness said the divers up to the night before he was then on the stand had not been on the outside of the ship. The mud was too deep for them to walk on the bottom.

"What is the condition of the starboard turret?" witness was asked.

"To my knowledge it has not been found, sir," was the reply.

He understood something had been found under the place where the turret formerly was, but its exact character had not been determined.

Impressions of Ensign Powelson.

"What impression is produced upon your mind by the reports, as far as you have quoted them?" Ensign Powelson was asked.

"From reports alone or from the appearance of the wreck?"

"Either from such reports or the conditions which you believe to exist."

"The impression produced upon me," replied the witness, "is that an explosion took place well to port of the midship line, and at a point in the length about opposite the conning tower."

Witness in reply to further questions said his opinion was based upon the observation of things above water. He gave no weight to Mr. Morgan's statement about falling into a hole on the port side because Morgan might have been mistaken about it. Referring to his notes made of things on the Maine, Ensign Powelson said that the arc of the engine room telegraph and the shaft of the steering gear coming down through the armored tube (turret) was bent from port to starboard. The port side of the protected deck was covered with a greasy deposit, the starboard side being comparatively free from it.

The forward smoke pipe, between the main and superstructure decks, did not show signs of the internal pressure of gases. On the main deck forward of the conning tower where the fore and after angle bulb beam was located the planking was blown off on the only remaining plate of the main deck on the port side while the wood was still attached to that part on the starboard side between the conning tower base and the turrets. What witness saw would indicate that the pressure lifted the protective deck up on the port side, and the protective deck on the starboard side held fast and bent that deck downward. Witness here exhibited two sketches to the court showing diagram of various parts of the sunken ship and explained them to the court.

The witness's evidence about the strip on the starboard side of the outside plating of the ship which was folded and rolled back was recalled to him, and Powelson said he could see plate underneath it was bent outward, where he could see it, as it was only two feet under water where the shear occurred.

Witness had taken soundings and had found five fathoms of water on both sides of the Maine down to the mud. Taking a 14-pound lead line and dragging with a wherry for obstructions on the port side, dragging close to where he thought the water ways would be found, he found no obstructions whatever. On the starboard side he found obstructions for 20 feet where he had reason to believe the waterways had originally been.

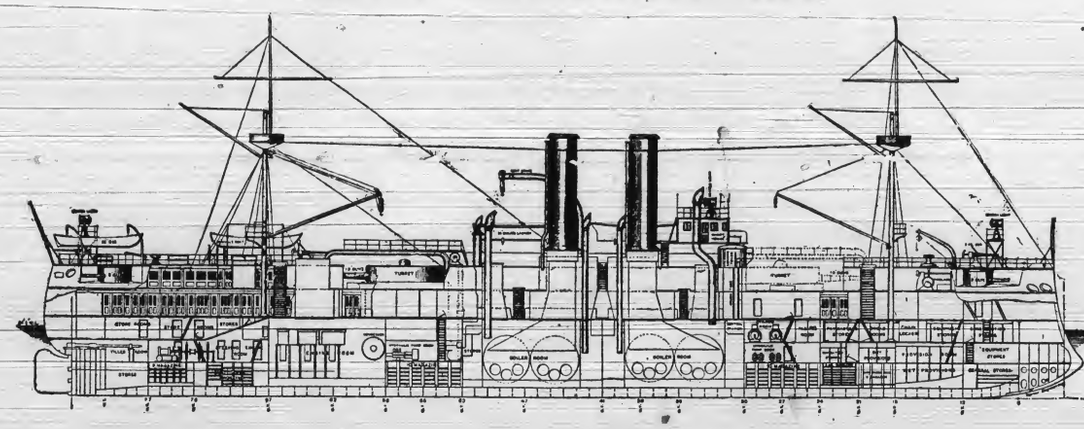
In answer to questions he said there was nothing left of the port plating at all. He dragged along the outside to see if anything had fallen out and found nothing. Witness thought the ship on the port side was entirely gone opposite a point indicated on a diagram handed the court. It was entirely blown out.

This concluded Ensign Powelson's testimony on the third day.

A Diver's Story.

Chief Gunner's Mate Olsen, of the United States steamer Iowa, told how he had been sent to Havana for the purpose of doing diving duty on the wreck. He had descended four times, making about eight or nine hours of total examination.

Olsen told how on his first descent he went over the forward part of the ship. To use his own expression, he said: "I found the wreck all blowed up. I found a lot of grate bars down there." The second time he went down further forward and there located a lot of ten-inch shells. Forward of these the plates were bent inboard over them.



Asked if he imagined himself looking forward he stated that he did. Going over the plates he struck into a lot of six-inch shells with the slings on them. Going to the right witness started to found a lot of wreckage. It seemed to have been blown over the starboard. Olsen stated that he put his hand into the cranks and brought out several six-pounder shells.

The next time he went down, Olsen testified he went outside the ship, forward of the crane on the port side. He followed the bottom along and found that the ship's side was blown outboard and along the crane it could be walked on.

"At the part where she is blown up completely," witness said, "part of her bottom plates are turned up. Then you follow the bottom from there up, and the plates are blown outboard. At the top and underneath the bottom they are blown inboard and bent in. About three feet forward of that spot there is a piece of iron laid along the bulkhead. The skin of the inside of the double bottoms is curled like a sheet of paper inboard from stem to stern.

"Amidships on the same place there is armor plate, one plate complete, the top of the plate standing up. The plate is inclined over the starboard completely. It stands up with the thick part of the plate down. It is inclined forward, and over to starboard."

THE COURT'S REPORT.

Statements of Capt. Sampson and His Associates Based on Testimony Taken.

The following is the full text of the report of the court of inquiry:

United States Steamship Iowa, First Rate.—Key West, Fla., Monday, March 21, 1898.—After full and mature consideration of all the testimony before it, the court finds as follows:

That the loss of the Maine was not in any respect due to fault or negligence on the part of any of the officers or members of her crew.

That the ship was destroyed by the explosion of a submarine mine, which caused the partial explosion of two or more of her forward magazines; and,

That no evidence has been obtainable fixing the responsibility for the destruction of the Maine upon any person or persons.

I have directed that the finding of the court of inquiry and the views of this government thereon be communicated to the government of her majesty, the queen, and I do not permit myself to doubt that the sense of justice of the Spanish nation will dictate a course of action suggested by honor and the friendly relations of the two governments.

It was the duty of the executive to advise the congress of the result, and in the meantime deliberate consideration is invoked.

(Signed) WILLIAM M'KINLEY.
Executive Mansion, March 28, 1898.

Coal Bunkers Inspected.

The coal bunkers were inspected. Of those bunkers adjoining the forward magazine and shell rooms four were empty, namely B 3, B 4, B 5 and B 6. A 15 had been in use that day, and A 16 was full of New River coal. This coal had been carefully inspected before receiving it on board. The bunker in which it was stowed was accessible on three sides at all times, and the fourth side at this time on account of bunkers B 4 and B 6 being empty. This bunker, A 16, had been inspected that day by the engineer officer on duty.

The fire alarms in the bunkers were in working order, and there had never been a case of spontaneous combustion of coal on board the Maine.

After Boilers Only in Use.

The two after boilers of the ship were in use at the time of the explosion, and these have had nothing to do with the destruction of the Maine.

The medical stores were stowed aft under the ward room and remote from the scene of the explosion.

No dangerous stores of any kind were stowed below in any of the other store rooms.

April 4.—Noah Delph has moved into the Wm. Rector house.

John Hartman, of Cincinnati, was visiting relatives here, last week.

Ben H. and Geo. R. Berkshire shipped a nice lot of hogs, last week.

Peaches and all other kinds of fruit all right up to this time and promise a very large yield

When the water subsides it will be a good time for the committee on Woolper bridge to view the crossing and see what those who travel the Petersburg and Bellevue road have to contend with.

Several hundred acres of fine wheat in the bottoms between Aurora and Rising Sun were covered with water during the late flood, and is greatly damaged by the deposits of mud and driftwood.

Another one of those neighborhood rows that this place is frequently afflicted with, broke out since my last communication. It involved several men and two ladies and raged with such fury that a committee of three was appointed to take testimony as to the facts in the case. After holding several meetings and adjourning from place to place, they reported that the trouble was all caused by a lie "infernally" applied to one of our old citizens. This caused the aforesaid old citizen to explode one of his forward magazines (the one in his head,) and hostilities would have broken then and there had not the party who applied the lie come forward and acknowledged he had lied and asked forgiveness, which was granted and peace and quiet now reign.

Richwood.

Mrs. Ben Norman is very sick.

Mrs. Henry Dixon is quite sick.

Mrs. John R. Carpenter and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Gaines Robinson.

Herbert Barnes is said to have excellent taste in selecting neckties.

George Odenwald had quite an experience with a member of the "Putorius Foetidus" family, last Saturday night.

Hon. Reuben Conner has received an invitation from Judge W. H. Holt and wife to be present at the weddiug of their daughter, Caroline Ventres and the Hon. George H. Alexander, of Louisville, April 12th.

Our genial friend, Will Carpeuter had quite an experience with a mouse, a few evenings since. He was calling on some youug lady friends and while in the midst of a pleasant conversation a mouse mistook Willie's pants' leg for his regular lidding place. The young ladies of course were too much frightened to assist him in his awkward predicament, but his old friend, Ed Wolfe, came to his assistance. Ed, after a few moments study, went to the coal bucket and commenced throwing lumps of coal at the mouse every one of which missed his mousership and took effect on Will. The poker finally did its deadly work and with the exception of a few bruises, our friend was relieved from his embarrassing situation.

Union.

Ryland Hedges is building a new house.

Mrs. Sam Hicks is visiting her sister at Cynthiana.

The gardeners have been bluffed out by the recent winter weather.

Rev. Davis preached at 2:30 o'clock, Sunday evening, at the Presbyterian church.

Uncle John Garrison takes no interest in war, but look out when it comes to baseball.

We noticed Deputy Sheriff Allphin passing through our village, Friday, enroute to Big Bone.

Rev. Moore preached at Sardis, Saturday and Sunday. The peach crop he said was all right when he left home, at Georgetown.

Mr. Kirkpatrick, of Gunpowder, says when one man washes his feet in another man's kraut barrel he ought to be killed. Lee Busby says, nit.

J. L. Frazier has telegraphed Uncle Sam to give him six months notice before sending his commission for war as he wants to finish clearing a piece of new ground.

Master Ben Cleek is in trouble over the loss of a cart eared $1. Ben had sold duck eggs until he had a big $1 treasured up, but when he got his purse down to count up he had lost it.

J. H. Aylor and O. B. Utz, of Gunpowder, attended lodge here Saturday. Mr. A. said he thought the time had come for war and he was ready to go if necessary. Owen did not say what he wanted to do.

If Sheriff Beall with two partners will make a date to play marbles on the Union grounds, Pat Norman will agree to take two assistants and beat them for the gate receipts—sorghum molasses or any old, good thing to eat.

In behalf of a certain 19 year old boy of Union and vicinity, we take pleasure in making another proposition to Burlington—our aforesaid 19 year old will agree to eat more grub at one sitting than any man or boy in B. for a wager to be decided on.

We had hoped if our lot was to go and do service in "de war" it would come off before the weather cleared up and time came to hang paper, &c., as it is, the busy time has come and we will have to decline any honors Uncle Sam may have laid away on the top shelf for us.

Your cor. was kindly entertained at dinner, one day last week, by John H. Corbin and family. After dinner Mr. Corbin and Ben showed us their improved poultry and poultry houses, also wind mill for grinding corn, cutting hay and shelling corn. They are nicely fixed now, but expect to make a number of improvements about the house Messrs. John and Ben Surface, Lute Aylor and Joe Scott keep their places in such nice order that Uncle John will be forced to fix up whether or no, and he will do it.

Verona.

Miss Anna Wolfe is teaching a spring school here.

L. J. Riley, of Unlon, was here, a few days since, attending to business.

Dr. Foster Wolfe, of Louisville Medical College, returned home one day week before last.

Those who failed to pay their school tax by April 2d, had to pay a five per cent. penalty for their failure.

A. W. Smith has an ewe that dropped two lambs, one ten days after the other. Both lambs are living and doing well at this writing.

Mrs. Burnice Hume, wife of Russell Hume, died March 26th, of that dreaded disease, consumption. She was buried in obedience to her request at Concord. Sister Burnice was much beloved by all who knew her. She was a member of Concord church, and was a consistent lover and follower of the Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ. She leaves a companion and a host of friends to mourn her death.

Rabbit Hash.

April 4.—Born, March 22nd, to Mr. and Mrs. Sidney J. Stephens, a boy.

Dr. Owen is on the sick list.

Mrs. Ellis is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Z. T Kelly, here.

The river is falling slowly and the merchants are all back have again.

Riley & Keegan had considerable tobacco in their warehouse, but the water did not reach it.

If any one wants to learn how to drive cows Wallace Stephens will give him lessons free of charge.

Last Sunday afternoon, Solon Stephens was shooting at a mark and Frank Scott was standing by his side and the ball grazed his temple. What caused the ball to strike him is a mystery.

Last Monday was a busy day in this place. Wilson & Riddell moved their dry goods, groceries, &c, to the K. of P hall; Ben Ryle moved his household goods and groceries into B. C. Galvert's warehouse; Smith Riggs gave up his blacksmith shop to Capt. Ben Wilson to store his boat horses in. The river was six inches above the floor in Wilson & Riddell's store, but did not reach Ben Ryle.

Hathaway.

April 4—The backwater is falling.

Hog-jole and greens, are on the bill of fare.

Thos. Stephens lost a calf and a valuable mule, one night last week.

Our postmaster, D. H. Ryle, is now boarding with Jas. Rice, of this place.

Master Willie Ryle has been the guest of master Ryle Prosser for the past week.

Mrs. Inez Conley has moved and is living with her daughter Mrs L. M. Stephens.

E. E. Utz rode all day, last Tuesday, trying to buy lambs, but did not make any purchase.

Miss Annie Woods, of Missouri, is at the bedside of her sister, Carrie, who is very low with consumption.

Jas. W. White and wife, of the Woolper neighborhood, were visiting his mother and father of this place last Wednesday.

About 100 people attended the sale here last Wednesday. Some things sold very cheap—sow and pigs, $13; cattle, $16 75; some other things did not sell.

There is quite an attraction for one of Hathaway's gallant young men over in the Bellevue neighborhood. He goes to see his best girl on Sunday and then stays the rest of the week.

Clay White happened to quite an accident, one day last week. While riding his horse across a bridge near his home the horse slipped, throwing him on a stone lying near, cutting an ugly gash about four inches long near the crown of his head. The doctor took 5 stiches to sew the wound up.

Hebron.

April 4.—Mr. Haun our school teacher, has been quite sick the past week.

John Aylor cut his foot very badly last Thursday

Willie Crigler cut his hand very severely while cutting wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Crisler spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock.

Miss Maggie Bullock left Saturday for Fairview to be gone several days

Mrs. Chas. Goodridge and Miss Hettie Quick spent Friday in Cincinnati.

There will be services at the Constance Christian church next Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Watkins entertained a number of friends at krokonole, last Friday night.

Miss Lulie Souther and Flora Youell were the guests of Mrs. Watkins, last Saturday afternoon.

Rev. G. W. Watkins will preach at the Bullittsville Christian church next Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

There were prayer meeting services at the Lutheran church, Sunday morning. The Sunday School was organized in the afternoon.

We hope that the mud roads will soon be in a condition for our neighbors living on them to accept the invitation to our prayer meeting.

Rev. Watkins spent several days, recently, at Ludlow attending the protracted meeting conducted at the Christian church by Rev. T. S. Tinsley.

Our little town is much grieved at the thoughts of losing our friends and neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Whitlock. They go to Fort City, Ohio, where they will join Mr. Whitlock's brother in keeping store. They have the best wishes of all Hebron.

Considering the weather the candy-pulling at the Hebron Hall was very encouraging. There were about 50 present. The members of the Society desire to extend especial thanks to the orchestra of Hebron, who made the evening pass pleasantly (as well as sweetly) with their music.

Constance.

April 4.—Tom Slayback is happy, it is a 12 pound boy.

There is some talk of organizing a K. of P. lodge here.

Alf Smith had several of his fingers badly cut in a cutting box.

The apron of the Bromley bridge floated away during the high water.

Mrs. J. Miller and son, of Newport, were visiting her sister, Mrs. Murat, last week.

Constance Building and Loan Association declared its semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent, last Saturday.

There is some talk of building several houses here in the spring. There is not an empty house in town and houses are in demand.

The public school closes this week and Mr. Richmond will give an entertainment on the evening of April 8th, consisting of recitations, music and a comedy, entitled "Uncle Josh."

North Bend.

April 4.—How many of you were fooled this April?

W. M. Balsly has pneumonia.

C. W. Riley visited these parts, last week.

Lee Pepper is selling patent lamp burners.

Peter McIntyre is visiting his sister, Mrs. Harrison.

Mr. Menter Graves was here on a visit, last week.

E. L. Riley was seen riding in at his father's gate, last Tuesday.

W. O. Kirtley, W. H. Harrison and T. W. Balsly and familes had to move out of their houses during the high water.

Those who are sick in our neighborhood now are Mrs. W. P. Cropper, Mrs. Julia Balsly, Mrs. W. O. Kirtley, Mrs. G. M. Riley, Miss Mary Riley, Master Elbert Coleman and Mrs. Dodge.

You "hill billies" can't begin to imagine what you miss by not living on the river. You miss the fun of jerking up carpets, taking down pictures and lugging furniture up stairs when you see the water creeping up, and then after it has gone down you miss the fun of shoveling mud out of your houses. Oh! you miss lots, I can tell you.

Beaver.

April 4—T. J. Hughes spent Thursday in Cincinnati.

Ed Moore marketed a large drove of fine hogs, recently.

We are glad to report Miss Katie Moore as improving in health.

Miss Katie Moore is confined to her home with inflammatory rheumatism.

John W. Sleet spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives in Grant county.

Dr. S. M. Adams filled his regular appointment here Saturday and Sunday.

Merit Jack sold a fine cow to J. C. Hughes, at a good round price, last week.

If you are "spilin" for a hog trade see John Taylor, he keeps a supply on hand.

Barnie Franks, of Mt. Zion, Grant county, is visiting his sister, Mrs. G. W Sleet.

Misses Sallie and Pearl Hughes were visiting relatives near Worthville, Carroll county, recently.

Mr. Mitchell, of Louisville, placed four elegant monuments in the Hughes Chapel cemetery, last week.

Miss Hattie Sleet and her brother, Barnett, were visiting their uncle, Ben Sleet, at Mt. Washington, O., last week.

News reached here yesterday evening of the killing of Dave T. Franks by Louis Sanders, at Crittenden, Saturday night. We could learn no particulars.

We were aroused from our slumbers one night last week, and the first impression was that war had begun with Spain, but on inquiry we found that some of our good citizens were trying to rid the town of some pestiferous cats.

What, to most people, would be a strange sight, may be witnessed on our streets every day. Mr. G. E. Carroll is the possessor of two pigs whose mother was not sufficiently well pleased with their appearance to own them, and it seemed that their days here were numbered, when one of the street cows took pity on them and now it is no uncommon sight to see two plump, little pigs standing on their hind feet working away as if they had been employed to do the milking.

Last Saturday morning Hamlin gave to jailer Adams three keys which John Leopold had made in an effort to get a key that would unlock the jail doors. Two of the keys were made out of a piece of an iron slat taken out of the cot frame. The third key was a blade out of an old pocket knife. It was badly nicked and came very near being a success. Hamlin claims that Leopold had one key that would unlock his cell door, but took it with him when he escaped.

A young lady whose sense of shame would not permit her to address a certain unmarried clerk in ordinary English, called for a pair of garters thus: "It is my desire to obtain a pair of circular elastic appendages and expanded by means of oscillating burnished steel appliances that grade like particles of gold leaf set with Alaska diamonds and which are utilized for keeping in position the habiliments of the lower extremities which inate delicacy forbids me to mention." The clerk fainted.

A fair sized audience witnessed the presentation of "The Donation Party," at the Court House, last Saturday night. Barring a few hitches the play was well rendered. The solo by Miss Ella Duncan, and Miss Birdie Martin's recitation, were also well received. At the conclusion of the entertainment a delightful spread was enjoyed at the Boone House. The proceeds, about $40, of the entertainment and supper will go for the benefit of the Burlington Methodist church. The ladies who had charge of the entertainment wish to thank all those who were so generous with donations, and assistance rendered.

A sextet of Union Grangers, on their way to Bullittsville, passed through town Saturday morning. They left their wagon here and hoofed it to Bullittsville, on account of the bad roads. The party was composed of Jas. Smith, John L. Rouse, Noah Tanner, Sumner Houston, Joseph Weaver and Ed Tanner. When they returned that evening they consulted among themselves, and decided that, as it was the unbroken custom of Mr. Smith not to reach home before low twelve when out on a pleasure trip, they would remain in Burlington until after the entertainment, when they would be able to land him at home at his hour.

Two dogs, one the property of a colored citizen, the other a white dog with black spots, and a stranger, created considerable excitement among the flock-masters in this vicinity, last Wednesday. One sheep belonging to R. S. Cowen was wounded, and a lamb in Noah Clore's flock was killed, while W. T. Smith's and C. C. Hughes' sheep were worried, the black dog doing the principal part of the business. The black dog resumed operations early Thursday morning at W. T. Smith's, who was soon in command of an armed squad of men, and in pursuit of the marauder, which was finally overtaken and given its passport in the shape of a leaden ball. When Mr. Smith led his column of armed men into town Thursday morning, some thought, at first, that he had mustered a company and was marching south to take part in the scrap with Spain.

April Fools.

O. J. Ryle, Ed McKim and Blufe Adams went fishing.

Sheriff Beall partook of his usual first of April cottou batter cakes.

Ye editor was sent on a fool's errand by Harry Blyth before breakfast.

Dr. Furnish ate freely of cottou batter cakes before it occurred to him that it was April 1st.

J. M. Lassing received a letter in regard to a lost dog, and after the truth dawned upon him, he went to drive some imaginary cows out of his pasture.

Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Furnish were badly fooled. The latter prepared cotton cakes and sent in for Blufe's supper. He was informed by his wife that Mrs. Furnish sent them into him, and about the time Blufe began on the cakes Mrs Furuish came to enjoy the joke, but Blufe devoured the cakes without a word, his modesty preventing him from mentioning the tenacious quality of the cakes which he discovered as soon as he attempted to cut them. By means of his excessive modesty Blufe innocently turned the joke, and doubtless he never would have known the material of which the cakes were made had the joke not been too good for the ladies to keep.

Several others were fooled but the returns have been held back.

Abe Rice, son of B. L. Rice, was in town Monday, in the interest of H. Eilerman & Sons, clothiers of Covington. He has charge of the overcoat department.

Thos. J. Stephens, of Buffalo, was in town last Thursday, making his settlement as road overseer. He says there is no honor and little pay in the office, but lots of cussings.

The Erlanger male quartett, J. G. Blauton, Warren Meeks, H. G. Blanton and S. L. Webb treated the Baptist congregation at this place to some excellent music, Sunday. The four gentleman named above and Mrs. J. G. Blauton, were entertained by Dr. and Mrs. Furnish.

A tall gentleman, with beard near four feet long, attracted attention at Paris depot. We said to him, "I know your face. I am Craddock." "I am Hughes," he replied, and talked of his Bourbon kin. Senator Bronston enquired who the man was, and called to him saying, "My first wife was his cousin." Hughes shows his mother's, nee Tucker, block as wellas his father's. He said, "I live near Paris, Ill. My wife, nee Winston, has two children." Mr. Hughes had been to Millersburg to see his sister, wife of Rev. Mr. Britt. They are children of Hon. Joe Hughes, in his life prominent as candidate for Congress and large farmer in Boone county. The son's given name is George.—Kentuckian-Citizen.

There was a good sized crowd in town Monday.

The numerous coutests for road overseer have been settled.

E. L. Grant, jr., of the Bellevue neighborhood, has a pair of good work mules, 3 years old, for sale.

Rev. J. B. Fosher, of Pendleton, Ind., will preach at the Universalist church this place, at 7 p. m., next Monday.

The Fiscal Court, with Judge Roberts presiding and all of the Justices of the Peace present, was in session yesterday.

Mother earth was robed in white Tuesday morning, and many declared the fruit crop was gone glimmering, but it is now believed that plenty has survived.

County Attorney Lassing's little boy—the younger—was badly bitten by a dog yesterday. The dog's tooth went through both of the child's lips and into one gum, loosening a tooth so that it had to be extracted. The dog was not permitted to live long after biting the child.

Six horses—two saddle and four harness animals—were exhibited on the streets Mouday, and they attracted attention, and especially did Gex, handled by Lee Huey. Charley Meyers' and Joseph Kennedy's horses each showed considerable speed. Ugo was shown by the bridle.

Harvey Sanders, of Crittenden, and Dave T. Franks, of Mt. Zion, both of Grant county, had a quarreled Saturday afternoon at Crittenden over some former trouble. Franks went to his home about three miles away, for his shotgun, and on his return met Sanders in Sechrist's saloon and renewed the quarrel. The barkeeper put them both out and shut the door, when four shots were heard, and going out he found Franks lying dead in the street with a bullet hole behind his left ear. Frank's shotgun and Sanders both disappeared. Franks leaves a wife and six children.

April 4—Invitations announcing the marriage of Katie Corwin and Chester A. Souther, have been issued

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Neal have removed to Mildale.

There will be services at the Methodist church, Easter Sunday.

The final interment of the remains of Mrs. Corey took place last Sunday at 8 p. m.

Miss Bessie Crigler entertained Wednesday evening with a card party in honor of the bride-elect, Miss Kate Corwin.

Died—On the 1st inst., Nellie, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Geo. Kyle. She was 3 years, 10 months and 29 days old. She was buried here last Saturday.

Miss Mae Carpenter, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. H. C. Fisk, has returned to her home in Chicago, where she will, in the near future, graduate from Prof. W. Seebock's school of music. She being a former resident of Boone, her friends will be glad to hear of her accomplishments in both vocal and instrumental music.

Bullittsville.

Mr. Editor, you did me a great injustice by rejecting that part of my last communication relating to an old bachelor friend engaged in teaching a new waltz step. You deprived me of a handsome fee I was to receive in case you published the item. I wrote it verbatim as related to me by my old friend. He approved its publication and was very much disappointed that you rejected it.

Lapole, the jail bird, passed through our town one night last week. Mr. J. T. Grant, our engertic law enforcer, spent three days in a still hunt for the distinguished gentleman. If Jim ever lays eyes on him Mr. Adams will have the pleasure of entertaining him again, and paying $25 for the privilege. If Lapole was cogulzant of the undercurrent of feeling against him he would steer clear of these parts.

Pleasant Grange held a delightful and very entertaining meeting, Saturday. Six visitiug brothers from Golden Grange met with us, and with their cheering speeches filled the dispoudent members in our Grange with enthusiasm and dispelled the gloom that was hovering over us as the pall of midnight. We had appointed the meeting to decide whether we would forfeit our charter and pin crape on our hall door, or like the Phoenix, rise from the ashes despondeucy, and with renewed zeal sall on until we achieved the grand and glorious results the future has in store for us. Thanks to brothers Rouse, Smith, Houston, Weaver and Tanners, the fourteen members present voted unanimously to continue the Grange. Resolutions were passed urging our derelict members to return and lend us their assistance in upholding our praiseworthy cause.

It is sad to relate that our young friend, Edwin Gaines, was conveyed in a hearse one day last week from Bullittsville to Gainesville He was not an actual corpse, but it is feared by his friends that unless he can concentrate his affections, it will devolve upon him to call to his assistance a certain doctor who has lately purchased a piano.

The young people in the neighborhood of the Bullittsburg church have organized themselves into a singing class, and they have had the good fortune to judge Miss Zayda Gaines to be their instructress The class meets at the church Saturday afternoons at 2 p m. All who wish to become members are invited to attend, otherwise the meetings are private.

AN EASTER SONG

EVERY face is beaming,
Every step is light,
All the world is beautiful
From merry morn till night.
The little streams are dancing
And flashing, just for fun,
And joyfully to meet the sea,
The mighty rivers run.

And twice ten thousand flowers,
And twice ten thousand mores,
Are waking in the lonesome woods
And by the cottage door.
To count the Easter lilies
Is more than you or I
Can hope to do the long day through
How hard soe'er we try.

Every face is beaming,
Every step is light,
For o'er the threshold Easter slipped
At waning of the night,
And little birds are singing
Like mad for joy of life,
And all the hours, in sun and showers,
With brimming joy are rife.

Uplift the songs of Easter,
Let none to-day be still,
And this great world shall overflow with cup
That flowers overfill.
When blossoms deck the orchard,
And boughs are pink and white,
And winds go by, like wings that fly,
From merry morn till night.

TWO EASTER BONNETS

"OH, HENRY," said Mr. Montague's wife, as she came from the dining-room and quietly removed the paper he was reading from his hands—"how long have you carried this letter in your pocket?"

"What letter?—that?—why, it only came yesterday. You can see the date that is stamped upon the envelope."

"Well, I didn't know. You are very careless—you know you are. That letter that came from aunty—"

"What about this other?" he skillfully interrupted. "It's from Jack, I see." He reached for his paper with a movement at once diplomatic and tentative.

"That's exactly what I came to tell you about. It's very thoughtful of him, I know, but—well, we'll see what you think. He writes," she said, consulting the letter, "'I met your one-time admirer—' No, that isn't the part. Here it is, 'Mumbly, dear, I've got a scheme that's top notch. I want you to let me get you an Easter bonnet, here in the city. Some stunners in the shops—knock the spots off anything you can get in Mayfield. It begins to look as if I won't be able to get away from the college, and I'd like to have some sort of a share in the festive season there at home. Leave it to me, won't you, Mumbly?—and I'll rig you out on time in a crystalized dream.'

"First, what does he mean by knocking off the spots?" she inquired. "I suppose that's just an expression of his, however. Now, what do you think?"

"I think it is," said Henry, who was looking furtively at his paper; "I guess that's it."

"Henry Montague, you haven't heard a word." She took the paper and put it behind her. "I meant what do you think of his plan?"

"Good scheme. Best I've heard of. Let him get the contraption there by all means. There—I refer to the bonnet, Fanny—don't feel hurt. I know they have some—well, some very unusual effects in the city. I think perhaps you'd avoid unpleasant complications, and have something new to Mayfield to wear. Yes, let him do it." And he reached for his paper—and failed to get it.

"I believe I will. Of course, I always like to select, but I said last year that I'd never, never trade at Miss Le Fevre's again. Just to think that her miserable mismanagement should have parted two such friends—but I was surprised at Helen—at Mrs. Kapulette—to think she'd wear a bonnet that she must have known was mine, or at least not the one she had ordered."

"Did—you—wear—hers?" said he, with an imitation yawn.

"Why, of course! Now, what a question! I had to wear something—I couldn't order another one then. Henry, you are positively foolish at times. I remember I said to Miss Le Fevre, when I picked it out—"

"Yes, I remember the story," interrupted her husband, consulting his watch and startiug to arise.

"Well," said she, as she pushed him back gently to his seat, "you always forget that lavender and pink are positively oldeous on me, and why in the world (fel—Mrs. Kapulette—couldn't have managed to send my bonnet home when she found the mistake had been made—"

"Did she know it was yours?" asked Henry, beginning to be rather more insidiously sarcastic than enthusiastic about this oft-repeated tale; "did she go along when you gave the order?"

"No; you know she didn't! I meant to give her a pleasant surprise—and that was her way of receiving my effort. Your questions are childish, Henry. She might have guessed that canary was exactly my color—precisely what anyone with my taste and complexion would be sure to select—and Miss Le Fevre's girl—"

"There—there's Billings out at the gate. Good-by, my dear. Give Jack my love when you write—sorry he can't be up for Easter. Good-by." Mr. Montague clapped his hat on his head, saluted his wife, made a grab for his cane and departed.

Mrs. Montague sat down to think of the trials of that time, a little less than a year before. There never had been in the world, she thought, such a long and beautiful friendship as that between herself and Helen Kapulette. To think that after having gone to the same identical school together—the best of chums—they were married the very same day—to travel in separate directions later, to be sure—and both had moved to Mayfield at last to live. Mrs. Montague recalled every detail of her order for that fatal Easter bonnet; exactly that delicate shade of yellow, and what the trimmings were—and everything. Then the changes she had ordered; the exasperating slowness and stupidity of Miss Le Fevre; the crazed despair, when, that Saturday night she returned so late from calling with Helen, to find that her bonnet had not yet arrived. And then that awful time on Easter morning, before the girl came weakly up the steps and handed in—the wrong bonnet—a bonnet she had never seen before—a horrid nightmare of a thing in lavender and pink, which she had to wear or stay at home—new blue silk and all.

She wouldn't have believed that Helen could have worn her own very bonnet—[illegible]—and then be so hateful. She wondered vaguely if they ever would speak to each other again. No, she didn't believe they would; she didn't believe that Helen was half so ready to forget and forgive as she. Well, she would just let Jack get the bonnet in the city this year, and let the people of Mayfield stare if they wished.

So at length she arose and went to her desk to write to her grown-up "boy."

In the course of time, and several days before Easter, the bonnet from the great metropolis arrived along with a note from Jack deploring the fact that he could not have carried it home in person. It was really a jewel, a dainty creation of airy, graceful feathers on a moss-green frame and subdued with violets that were poised with an exquisite grace, where they nodded and smiled and seemed to be tossing the sweetest of perfume kisses to all who were gracious enough to behold.

But Easter morning! Ah, how it brightly outjeweled all others of the year. The sun shone warmly from a flawless sky of turquoise hue; the trees wore freshest, fairest emerald leaves, or pearl and ruby blossoms; the grass was asparkle with diamond dew, and the birds were chorusing in anthems as clear and sweet as the crystal tinkle, tinkle rung from pebbles by the brook.

Mr. and Mrs. Montague not only were in harmony with all the scene, but were really a part and parcel of it, as, with faces gay with smiles, they slowly walked the way to church. The bells had never sounded half so musical and liquid bright—that is, except on one occasion, to which, indeed, Mr. Montague was moved now to allude.

"Just such a morning as this," said he, with a buoyancy in his voice, "that we went to the chapel—so many, and yet it seems so very few years ago. What a day that was! And what a lot of sunshine we have had ever since!"

"Oh, yes! And didn't the girls look pretty—and Helen—Mrs.—Mrs. Kapulette?"

"I'd call her Helen—wouldn't you, Fanny—to-day? Wasn't it odd that Helen should have been the one to introduce us? What a lively pair you used to make—you two!"

A glow had come in the cheek of Mrs. Montague and an extra brightness in her eyes. She felt a yearning toward the girl who had been her chum—the tall young lady who had found her mate—the matronly woman whom long she had loved.

"I wish I could see the way," she mused aloud; "but I know she wouldn't meet—"

"What way, my dear?" said her husband, when she paused. "What do you know—about whom? Who wouldn't meet what?"

"I was just thinking what a lovely bonnet that is on that lady ahead!" She chatted along admiringly—as well she might, having really the prettiest bonnet on parade—but her undercurrent of thought was still of Helen, though she parried the questions of her husband with the lightest digressions.

Up the steps of the miniature cathedral the brilliant throng of Mayfield was swarming, faces turned—amid the gayety of dancing plumes and blooms that courtesied from bonnet to bonnet—to note what their neighbors had found or created to grace the happy occasion.

Within, as Mr. and Mrs. Montague walked calmly up the aisle, the organ was pealing exultantly, pouring forth its thousaud voices of praise in an exuberant and swelling river of harmony, as if itself were the fountain of melodies divine.

They took their seats, and reached, like children, each for the hand of the other, to exchange a gentle pressure. No sooner had Mrs. Montague commenced a rapid survey of the congregation—in which her glance went flitting from one exotic to another, like a butterfly in clover—than she found herself, abruptly, looking full face and at the bonnet of Mrs. Kapulette. And Helen in return was looking at her and hers, and the gaze of each was suddenly held, transfixed.

Well might the old-time friends open eyes of amazement—their bonnets were counterparts—precise reproductions—each of the other; the same moss green, the same spray of feathers, airy and filmy, the same mass of violets, nodding and smiling and tossing their perfume kisses across the aisle and seats of the chancel.

Both in confusion at last were glad to [illegible] their eyes to the hymn [illegible] held below the pews; but neither was reading, nor praying, nor seeing a thing but the twin of her bonnet, and wondering with might and main how this singular duplication had been made possible.

Mrs. Kapulette was guilty of stealing a "peek" from the sides of her eyes. Mrs. Montague was timidly attempting a similar sortie. The glances met and fell again to the books. The service commenced, but nothing was heard or observed, except in a dim, uncertain, mechanical manner, by the two. They were quite enough engrossed with attempts to flank the enemy.

In the midst of the battle of glances, which had gone so far that each was now feeling singularly humorous and amused, their gaze was focused on a striking pair of tall young people gliding silently by and up the aisle side by side.

They were Julia Kapulette, the daughter of Helen, and John Henry Montague, the son of Fanny. And they sat in a pew together and sang from a single book.

Now began, in the breasts of two indulgent and admiring mothers, a conflict of emotions and a struggle so intense that music, sermon, songs and prayers, and all the people but themselves, were merged in a shadowy dream of unreality, to say no word of the puzzle in their brains. Then, to add to their fantasy of thought and to set them whirling in a wilder field of conjecture, those "youngsters," making a show of arranging the overcoat of Jack, in their seat, at the end of a hymn, turned coyly about and smiled the gayest, most knowing of smiles in the wondering faces of their parents, doing first the honor to one and then with utter impartiality to the other.

The mothers were more than ever amazed; but not to say that each began to entertain suspicions of something unusual between their "children" would certainly be to do no justice at all to that other sense in common, which is duly acknowledged under the explanation that all possess an intuitive faculty of "finding things out."

Slowly, very slowly, the face of Mrs. Montague came squarely around, unabashed, un-everything but quizzical. Likewise the countenance of Mrs. Kapulette, innocent of everything but dumb though eloquent inquiry, turned deliberately about to that of her friend. Their glances met without a quiver; they scanned each other's expression for light on the mystery; then, playing through the eyes of each, came gleams of old-time merriment and sparks of mischief, and over the face of each a flush of color from the heart. In a second they were smiling in spite of all they could do, while the blossoms on their bonnets insisted on nodding and bobbing across the space intervening in a way that was nothing short of the veriest fellowship and sweet familiarity.

For Helen and Fanny the Easter service was a dream of music, smiling faces and weddings of the past and the future, but the whole was far too long. They would fain awake and span the gulf between—and yet were vaguely in doubt to think of what they would say.

When at last, to the peals of a glorious postludium, the congregation turned to move to the door in calm procession, young Jack and the blushing Julia came tripping down the aisle in time to take their respective mothers by the arm and halt them face to face in the vestibule.

"We came from town to surprise you both," said Jack, "and—ahem—to ask you for each other. I want Julia and Julia wants me, and it was for that reason we sent the bonnets."

And the bonnets, being twins, resisting each other no longer, came nearer and nearer together, till at length the nodding violets on either one leaned forward and commingled lovingly with those upon the other.—Ella Stirling Cummins, in American Queen.

AN EASTER LESSON.

The Spirit of Love, Hope, Cheer and Faith.

It is ever the same, yet never the same. This Easter, as all the Easter days before, will set the bells a-swinging, and will pile all the altars high with blossoms.

Think for one moment of the chorus of praise that will go up on Easter morning from all the churches in all the lands of all the Christian world. And that thought alone is enough to make your own heart echo with the Easter joy and praise. Think again of the myriads and myriads of flowers about the church altars and in the homes of the high and the low. And remember, how all through this beautiful springtime they have been getting ready for this festal day.

Look at the Easter from the universal standpoint. Ask yourselves how much of all the great world's work and life are due to love and hope and cheer and faith.

We shall find leaning down upon these qualities all that spirit which makes our homes lovely. All that spirit which has built our hospitals and our churches. All that spirit which has made our nation worth living and dying for. And then let us remember that these blessed things, love and hope and faith, come to us through that triumphant life that swung wide the gates of Easter and let the King of Glory in.

If we begin by looking into the significance of all that Easter means universally we are far more apt to get what it means individually to every soul. Or, if individually, our hearts are not yet in perfect attune with Easter music and Easter praise, we have the better joy of being glad that upon all the rest of this weary world the Sun of Righteousness has risen. Whether to us it is or is not the holy day, our hearts cannot fail to respond joyfully to the fact that, since He is risen, it is the world's great holiday.—Washington Home Magazine.

THE DATE OF EASTER.

Why It Is Sometimes Early and at Other Times Late.

The date of Easter is determined by the ecclesiastical calendar of the Catholic church. It is a very complicated and laborious affair invented by Lilius, a Neapolitan astronomer and sage, under Pope Gregory XIII., at the close of the sixteenth century. It would be preposterous to tax the brains of modern readers with the abstruse calculations by which the date of Easter is determined, but a few general rules might be given for their enlightenment.

The regulations of the council of Nice are four: First, Easter must be celebrated on a Sunday; second, this Sunday must follow the fourteenth day of the paschal moon; third, the paschal moon is that moon whose fourteenth day falls on or next follows the day of the vernal equinox; fourth, the equinox is fixed invariably in the calendar on the 21st day of March.

This calendar moon, it should be remembered, is not the moon of the heavens nor yet the moon of the astronomers, but it is an imaginary moon created for ecclesiastical convenience. From these conditions it follows that Easter Sunday cannot happen earlier than the 22d of March or later than the 25th of April.—Detroit Free Press.

AFTERMATH.

Mrs. Cobwigger—I never think of visiting my milliner's for a month or so after Easter.

Mrs. Dorcas—Why so, my dear?

Mrs. Cobwigger—It really isn't a fit place for a woman, because the men are there swearing about their wives' bills.—N. Y. World.

A Mind Diseased.

"My wife gave me a terrible shock last night."

"What was it?"

"I offered her money for an Easter bonnet, and she said she believed she would spend it on a new saddle for her wheel."—Detroit Free Press.

THE LEVEE BROKE

And Shawneetown, Ill., is Under From Twenty or Thirty Feet of Water.

Over Two Hundred Lives Were Lost By the Sudden Onslaught of Waters—Houses Floating With Their Occupants Clinging to Their Roofs.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 4.—A special to the Courier Journal from Evansville, Ind., says:

At 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon the levee at Shawneetown, Ill., broke a mile above the town, and from all the information that can be secured here it is learned that a great part of the place has been destroyed and that perhaps a large number of citizens have been drowned.

Shawneetown is 75 miles below Evansville, on the Ohio river. It is situated in a valley of extremely low land, with hills skirting it in the rear and with a 25 foot levee in front running from hill to hill. The town is very much in the position of a fortified city, and when the levee gave way a mile above town under the pressure of the very high river the water shot through a 20 foot opening and struck the place like a hurricane, sweeping everything before it.

Houses were turned and tossed about like boxes. The people were not warned of the break, and for that reason so many were caught. Those at home sought refuge in second stories and on housetops. Those in the streets were carried before the avalanche of water and probably a majority were drowned.

Citizens came from the place by skiffs to a telephone several miles away and asked for aid from Evansville. They said that more than 200 people were drowned, and they had reason to believe it would reach 500, or even 1,000.

The water stands from 20 to 30 feet all over the town.

There are of course no fire or lights in the place, and darkness envelopes the desolate scene. Consequently it was impossible for them to have anything like definite information. The men quickly left the telephone and no communication has since been had with the place.

All telephone and telegraph wires are now down, and outside communication appears to be impossible.

At ten o'clock Sunday night two steamboats and a couple of tugs started for Shawneetown under full head of steam, and it is expected that some of them will arrive there by two o'clock in the morning. They carry large supplies of food and blankets quickly collected by the city officials.

CHICAGO, April 4.—A special to the Record from Cypress Junction, Ill., says: Two hundred and fifty persons were drowned Sunday by the inundation of Shawneetown, six miles from this place.

The north levee broke at 4:20 o'clock Sunday afternoon and the Ohio river flowed over the town many feet deep. Scores of houses were floating about Sunday night and many persons were clinging to the wreckage in the hope that rescuers would soon appear with boats to take them to places of safety.

All communication with the town is cut off. Trains can not reach there, and telephone and telegraph wires are down.

The first report that reached here was that the entire population had been drowned, but this is not confirmed.

The levee was built by the government and was regarded as impregnable, hence the people had taken no precautions against a possible flood. It is reported that the flood now extends four miles inland, and people are fleeing for their lives from the lowland hamlets.

EARLINGTON, Ky., April 4.—At 8:45 Sunday evening Superintendent W. S. Martin, of the Henderson & St. Louis division of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, stationed at Evansville, Ind., received a telephone message from Cypress Junction, Ill., saying that the levee surrounding Shawneetown, Ill., on the Ohio river, had broken and the waters had drowned every one in Shawneetown. There has been no railroad communication direct between Evansville and Shawneetown for over a week, on account of the high water in the Ohio river.

The levee was built by the government after the floods of 1884 and has been regarded as safe; people felt secure.

Cypress Junction is six miles from Shawneetown.

Our New Torpedo Boat.

BERLIN, April 4.—The torpedo boat purchased at Schichau for his government by Lieut. A. P. Niblack, the naval attache of the United States legation here, passed through the Baltic Saturday on its way to England, the government having granted permission for it to do so. Lieut. Niblack is negotiating at Pillau for two more torpedo boats.

Sioux Indians Tender Their Services.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., April 4.—Six hundred Sioux Indians under the leadership of Six Fighting Braves, from Pine Ridge agency, have tendered their services to Gov. Lee, to re-enforce the militia. They say they are only too willing to go to war if permitted to fight Spain. Most of these Indians were with Sitting Bull at the massacre of Gen. Custer and the Seventh cavalry.

Patriotic Printers.

MOBILE, Ala., April 4.—The local Typographical union, at its meeting Sunday, passed a resolution suggesting to members of other unions throughout the United States that they each contribute half a dollar toward a fund for building a battle ship.

Six Drowned in St. Francis River.

PIGGOTT, Ark., April 4.—M. Wehrendorf, his three children and sister and brother-in-law, were drowned in St. Francis river, near St. Francis, Sunday afternoon. Their boat capsized. None of the bodies have been recovered.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—SENATE—A scene of intense was presented in the senate Monday when the president's message transmitting the findings of the Maine court of inquiry was received. The galleries were packed to the doors and the attendance of senators was quite as large as it has been at any time during the present session. Eager to ascertain the fulfillings of the court, scores of members of the house, after the adjournment of that body, had hurried to the senate chamber and the floor was crowded with them. When the reading of the president's message was begun, a hush so marked fell over the chamber that one might have heard a pin fall. Throughout the reading of both the message and the findings of the court there was not the slightest demonstration. Following closely upon the message and findings came the speech of Mr. Money (Miss.) upon his recent observations in Cuba and the deduction from them which he had made. He spoke extemporaneously, and his vigorous and at time impassioned eloquence carried his auditors in full sympathy with him. Upon the announcement of Representative Simpkins' death the senate adjourned.

HOUSE—The reading of the president's message in the house Monday was listened to with breathless interest by the members and the spectators in the galleries who were crowded in like sardines in a box. Just one wave of applause swept from floor to ceiling and then the death of Representative Simpkins (Mass.) was announced and the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—SENATE—Cuban resolutions were offered in the senate immediately after convening Tuesday by Senators Allen, Rawlins, Walker and Frye. All were referred to committee on foreign relations. Seventy-four private pensions were passed before adjournment from 4:30 till 8 p. m. The consideration was then entered to consideration of private appropriation bills.

HOUSE—The house Tuesday quietly proceeded with the order of the day. The whole time was devoted to the consideration of the bill to pay $1,200,000 claims for stores and supplies furnished to the union by loyal citizens of the south during the war. There was a bitter contest over a claim of $17,000 preferred by the heirs of the widow of Gen. Robert E. Lee. The claim was finally stricken out and the bill was passed. The evening session was devoted to pension legislation.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—SENATE—Permission was granted by the senate Wednesday for the foreign relations committee to sit during the sessions of the senate. Following this action, the resolution providing for the recognition of the independence of Cuba introduced Tuesday by Mr Allen (Neb.) was at the request of Mr. Frye (Me.) referred to the foreign relations committee without debate. Beyond these two points, no reference was made by the senate to the Cuban question. Mr. Caffery (La.) concluded his speech on the national quarantine bill, after which the measure making further provision for a civil government for Alaska was passed.

HOUSE—A wild and uproarious scene occurred in the house of representatives Wednesday when Mr. Bailey, the democratic leader, attempted to force the house to consider the resolutions upon a proposition to overrule the speaker and pass a resolution recognizing the independence of the Cuban republic. He was cheered on by the crowded galleries, but the members of the majority refused to support him. When the vote was taken only two republicans, Messrs. Acheson and Robbins (Pa.) broke from the party lines. About a dozen more sat silent in their seats and refused to vote. The scene throughout was most dramatic and the members and spectators in the galleries were wrought up to high pitch of excitement. Several times later in the day during the consideration of the naval bill whenever the Cuban question was broached the members swarmed about the speaker and the galleries cheered. This was especially the case when Mr. Cummings (N. Y.) spoke. Mr. Boutelle, who objected to a request for extension of his time was hissed.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—SENATE—An apparently simple request made of the senate Thursday by Mr. Frye (Me.) on behalf of the foreign relations committee unexpectedly precipitated a discussion on the Cuban question. It finally led to a passage at arms between Mr. Chandler (N. H.) and Mr. Frye in which the former made some sarcastic references to the conduct of the foreign relations committee and to the attitude of the president. Upon the conclusion of the Cuban discussion the sundry civil appropriation was taken up and 25 pages of it were disposed of before adjournment.

HOUSE—For three hours Thursday the packed galleries and excited members of the house listened to a passionate outburst of oratory on the Cuban question during which the intensity of feeling was alternately manifested by cheers, jeers and hisses. Time and again the excited throngs in the galleries were admonished to be silent and once at least it seemed as if a motion would be made to clear them. The three speeches which stirred the assemblage to its depths were made by Mr. Grosvenor (rep., O.), who it was assumed spoke for the administration, and who practically pledged it to the cause of free Cuba; Mr. Bailey (dem., Tex.), who announced the democratic position as for free Cuba without war, if it could be avoided, but with war if necessary, and Mr. Johnson, of Indiana, who spoke for peace, declaring that it was our duty to go to the extreme in magnanimity to avoid the horrors of war.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—SENATE—In the open session Friday Mr. Chandler (N. H.) called up the resolution he introduced Thursday, requesting the president to send the Cuban consular correspondence to the senate, and at his suggestion it was referred to the committee on foreign relations. Immediately afterward, however, he introduced another resolution, which went over, calling upon the secretary of state for the same information. Bills passed: To authorize the secretary of the interior to issue a permit to the American invalid society of Boston, to use 200 acres of land on the abandoned Fort Stanton military reservation in New Mexico for a national sanitarium for the treatment of pulmonary diseases; to extend the rights of commutation to certain homestead settlers on lands in Oklahoma, opened to settlement under the provisions of laws; and to extend $1,000 to the University of Kansas as relief. At 2:35 o'clock a secret session was ordered. At 4:10 the senate went from secret legislative session into executive and soon afterward adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—After an exceedingly turbulent session of six hours the house Friday passed the naval appropriation bill and then adjourned until Monday. The war spirit was manifested in all the speeches and overrode the naval committee itself by increasing the number of torpedo boats and torpedo boat destroyers to 24, the bill as reported providing for but 12. The amendment of Mr. Cannon, chairman of the appropriations committee to reduce the number of battle ships to one was buried under an overwhelming majority. The provision relating to armor plate, which in ordinary times would have precipitated a debate of several days was disposed of in ten minutes, a proposition to decrease the price agreed to in the bill from $400 to $300 per ton being drowned in a perfect chorus of noes. Mr. Cannon, during the course of the day, announced the belief of a majority of the members that war would be upon us within a week and Mr. Dearmond (Mo.) made a notable speech, declaring that if hostilities were to come it was our duty to strike the first blow.

Flying Squadron Ready to Sail.

PORTSMOUTH, Va., April 2.—The flying squadron is being stripped of all woodwork, and the sailors aboard are sending their valuables ashore. The Columbia reported in Hampton Roads to Capt. Schley Friday. Divers were engaged in scraping the battle ship Massachusetts' bottom at Newport News.

Leiter Wheat for Paris.

CHICAGO, April 2.—Joe Leiter has practically closed the sale of 2,500,000 bushels of wheat, presumably to Dreyfus, of Paris. The wheat will be delivered early next week.

PUBLIC MEN

Believe That the Crisis Will Reach a Climax in a Few Days.

This Delay Will Be Welcomed By Those in Charge of the War Preparations--Can Congress Be Restrained Until the Message Is Issued?

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The opinion almost universally held in Washington Sunday night by leading public men and diplomats is that the crisis will reach its climax this week, and that the question of war or peace will be determined within the next seven days. Senators and representatives met and conferred all day about the gravity of the situation, and at the white house the president consulted with several members of his cabinet and other confidential advisers regarding the message which he is preparing to send to congress. At the state, war and navy building active work was going on, and altogether it has been a day of suppressed feeling. No absolute day yet announced when the message is to be sent to congress, and all that seemed to be absolutely certain Sunday night was that it would not go in Monday—Tuesday possibly, but more probably Wednesday or perhaps Thursday. In addition to the physical work of preparing the comprehensive documents upon which the president expects to rest America's case with the world, there are other reasons why those in charge of the war preparations will welcome every hour's delay. War material, which we have ordered abroad, is not yet shipped, and the factories in this country, which are running day and night making powder and projectiles, are anxious for delay. Some of the factories in Connecticut, with contracts have telegraphed Representatives Hill urging all the delay possible. They say every day now is precious.

There is still a divergence of opinion as to what the president will recommend in his message; indeed there seems to be still a question as to whether the president will make any specific recommendations. Some of his most intimate friends, however, assert emphatically that his recommendations will be specific and vigorous and such that his party and country would willingly follow when he points the way. One of these said that the president, in his strong desire for peace and his earnest hope that war might possibly be avoided was yielding somewhat to the sentiment of the leaders of his party and the country. He has not given up hope yet that hostilities may be averted. There are those who believe the president has not yet made up his mind as to the exact course he will pursue and there seems to be a question as to whether the consular reports and the diplomatic correspondence is to be transmitted with the message.

The suspense caused by the necessary delay in the preparation of the message is very trying upon members of both houses, and the most universally discussed question in Washington Sunday night was whether congress can be restrained until the message is transmitted. All realize the difficult and arduous task of preparing our case for the world's inspection and the care which must be exercised and there seems to be no disposition to "unduly" hasten the president. The party leaders are extremely anxious to avoid a breach with the executive, such as would occur if congress were to take the initiative. After a careful canvas of the situation Sunday they believe the radical republicans can be held in line a few days longer, until Wednesday at least. The conference of republicans of the house who have been insisting upon prompt action held another meeting Monday night. While many of them are now in favor of giving the president more leeway than they were last week, it is realized that 25 republican votes in the house would, with the democratic and populist votes, be sufficient to act. It can be pretty confidently asserted that all the republicans of the house, with possibly exceptions which could be counted on the fingers of one hand, can be controlled until Wednesday. After that what might happen if the president asks for further delay is problematical. Mr. Bromwell, of Ohio, for instance, who says he hopes he will not be obliged to part company with the president, says he will vote with the democrats if necessary to override the speaker after Wednesday. Mr. Cooper, of Wisconsin, has made a similar statement. The republicans of the house committee on foreign affairs have held informal meetings Sunday and have practically agreed to report a resolution of a tenor similar to that agreed upon by the foreign relations committee of the senate Saturday. The house resolutions will probably follow the language of those of the senate regarding the blowing up of the Maine.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—The full senate committee on foreign relations has practically agreed to accept the recommendation of the sub-committee for a resolution recognizing the independence of Cuba and recommending armed intervention if necessary to secure it.

This conclusion was reached after a session Saturday that did not continue for more than an hour, and so far as can be learned there was no division of opinion expressed in the committee as to the propriety of those

M. Zola Free.

PARIS, April 4.—The court of Cassation has quashed the sentence of one year's imprisonment and three thousand francs' fine imposed upon M. Emile Zola on February 23, a result of the collapse of the charges made by him in the Arore against the conduct of the Esterhazy court-martial, but the court has not ordered a trial before another assize. The decision is based on the fact the president of the court-martial should have lodged the complaint against M. Zola instead of the minister of war, as it was the court-martial that was assailed by the famous author and editor.

THE X RAY.

Its Use on Board of War Vessels and on the Field in Case of War.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., April 4.—Lynde Bradley, an expert electrician of this city, has perfected plans for the use of the X ray on board war vessels and on the field, and in case of war will immediately enlist in the government service. Mr. Bradley says that while it would be a simple matter to bring the X ray into use on a war ship that considerable difficulty would be attached to the introduction of the machine on the field. A small engine, boiler and dynamo would have to be mounted on wheels for field use and the X-ray machine mounted on a carriage. The apparatus, however, will be much lighter and more portable than may be imagined and his field apparatus could be furnished in a week.

"I have been thinking of this matter for months," said Mr. Bradley Saturday, "but have waited for hostilities to begin before taking any active steps. The great help that the X Ray would be to surgeons lies in the quick, easy and painless method of locating a bullet or splinter in a man's body, a fracture of a bone, or other serious injury."

TORPEDO FLOTILLA

Reached the Cape Verd Islands, 2,000 Miles From Porto Rico, on Saturday.

MADRID, April 4.—The statement cabled Friday night that the torpedo flotilla of Spain has arrived at Porto Rico was taken from a newspaper here. Investigation shows the announcement to be erroneous. The Spanish flotilla has arrived at the Cape Verd islands and it is said will proceed after coaling.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The announcement that the Spanish torpedo flotilla was at the Cape Verd islands, off the west coast of Africa, instead of at Porto Rico, was received with a good deal of satisfaction at the navy department, which was without information of its own on the whereabouts of the flotilla. The islands are more than 2,000 miles from Porto Rico and it is the opinion of naval experts that at the very best ten or twelve days would be the least time within which they could make the run across.

ROYAL FAMILY

Of Spain Fears an Outbreak Unless the Differences With the United States Are Soon Settled.

BERLIN, April 4.—The German ambassador at Madrid, Herr Von Rodowitz, reports to the foreign office here that the Spanish royal family fears an outbreak unless the differences between the United States and Spain are soon settled.

The Carlist movement is assuming more active form and the royal family fears especially a pronunciamento from Gen. Weyler and the military party.

Everything is prepared in the royal castles for flight. The boy king, Alphonso, will be taken to San Lucar de Barrameda, an Andalusian port, where a yacht is kept ready for sailing.

The replies to the queen's letter asking for the intervention of the European powers have been wholly unsatisfactory.

THE PRESIDENT

Will Recommend Recognition of Cuban Independence, But Will Omit All Reference to Armed Intervention.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—A member of the senate committee on foreign relations who visited the president Sunday night, after leaving the white house stated that the message would be sent to congress on Wednesday, and that it would recommend the recognition of the independence of Cuba, but omit all reference to armed intervention.

This, it is believed, will not be satisfactory to congress. There is a suspicion that the president pursues this course for the purpose of throwing the entire responsibility for what may follow on congress.

Army Regiments Practically Full.

WASHINGTON, April 4.—Adj. Gen. Corbin Saturday pronounced absolutely false the report circulated in New York that the war department had issued orders to add 10,000 men to the army. No such orders, he said, had been issued or are contemplated. The army regiments are now practically full with the exception of a few men needed to fill companies to their full quota and only an insignificant number of men are needed unless congress by legislation provides for a larger army.

The Rising in Zambales Subdued.

NEW YORK, April 4.—A dispatch to the Herald from Hong Kong says: The rising of the Colinas in Zambales has been subdued. The troops killed thousands of Indians, including hundreds of women and children. A rebel meeting in Manila was surprised by civil guards, who killed 11 in the house and took 60 prisoners. All the prisoners were shot the same day without a trial. Six of the guards were wounded and two killed. The alarm has subsided.

Torpedo Flotilla Will Remain at Cape Verde.

MADRID, April 4.—The Spanish cabinet has decided that the torpedo flotilla shall remain at Cape Verde Island until further orders. The flotilla will be joined by a squadron composed of the Charles V., the Alphonso XIII., the Infanta Teresa and the Christopher Colon, which will accompany it to Cuba. It has also been decided that the Vizcaya and Oquendo, as soon as they are sighted at Porto Rico, shall be ordered to return to Havana.

Grand Central Depot Open for Business.

CINCINNATI, April 4. — The muddy waters of the troublesome Ohio river have receded enough to permit the opening of the Grand Central station and trains on all roads using that depot began to arrive and depart as usual, Saturday afternoon. The Eighth street station will be abandoned and travel will resume its normal condition.

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., April 4.—Ex-Sheriff Adams died in this city after a long illness with kidney troubles. He was 64 years of age.

HIS TERRIBLE SUSPICION.

It Spreads a Thick Smear of Opaque Gloom Over His Correct Young Life.

Reginald Ashcroft was the son of rich but refined parents, and yet he was not happy.

There was a pained expression upon his handsome countenance, and ever and anon he walked to the window and looked out over the beautiful prospect that stretched away toward Wilton manor.

At last he mounted his favorite colt, which had for two hours been hitched in front of the stately old mansion, and dashed down the broad highway.

Upon reaching Wilton manor the young man dismounted and rushed in.

Geraldine Huddlethwaite, who had seen his coming, met him at the door.

There was a fond clasping of hands, a long, long look that was more eloquent than words could have been, and then the handsome pair entered the drawing-room.

"Something troubles you, Reginald," the beautiful girl said at last. "Ah, do not try to keep it from me. My love tells me that you are in trouble. Tell me all, sweetheart, and let me share your burden."

"Dearest little one," he answered, as her fair head was pressed against his breast, "I suppose I have done wrong to come here and cast my gloom over you. But I knew you would worry if I stayed away. Forget that I am not myself to-day. I am unwilling that you should suffer simply because I must."

"Reginald," she cried, drawing away, "you do not love me as you should or you would not have such terrible words."

"There, there, darling," he replied, drawing her to him again, "I will tell you all. I will be frank with you."

Then he sighed, and after a brief silence resumed:

"You know I am to take part in the match game of golf to-morrow."

"Yes, yes," she answered, and a startled look came into her eyes.

"Well," he went on, "I am almost sure that I am to be made the victim of a conspiracy—that somebody has been tampering with my sticks. I examined them this morning, and one of them looked as if it had been undisturbed. I am almost sure, too, that it weighs at least half an ounce less than it did before!"

Geraldine Huddlethwaite was so badly shocked that she could only stare at him, and they both sat there in dumb silence.—Cleveland Leader.

AN AFFLICTED MOTHER.

From the Times, Paw Paw, Ill.

A resident of this town who has lost two children during the past six years by violent deaths has been utterly prostrated by the shock, and seriously sick as a result of it. One child (aged 9) was killed by a cyclone in '90 while at school; another, three years later was run over by a Burlington R. R. train. That griefs and misfortunes may so prey on the mind as to lead to serious physical disorder has been well established in this case. As a result of them, her health was shattered and she has been a constant sufferer since 1890. Her principal trouble as been dyspepsia of the stomach which was very painful, and exhibited all the symptoms of ordinary neuralgia, nervousness and indigestion. Physicians did her no good whatever. She was discouraged and abandoned all hope of getting well. Finally, however, a certain well known pill was recommended (Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People).

She supplied herself with a quantity of them and had not taken them two weeks when she noticed a marked improvement in her condition. She continued taking the pills until seven or eight boxes had been consumed and she considered herself entirely cured. She can now eat all kinds of food, and nervousness she has not been able to do for years. She is not troubled in the least with nervousness as she was during the time of her stomach troubles.

She is now well and all because of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People a complete cure has been made.

If any one would like to hear more of the details of her suffering and how cured by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People they may be obtained probably by writing the lady direct. She is one of our well known residents, Mrs. Ellen A. Oderkirk, Paw Paw, Ill.

Even Up.

During the summer of 1896 a handsome New England woman paid a visit to one of the North side society queens of Wichita. In due time a swell lawn party was given by the hostess at her home, to make the visitors acquainted with her western friends. Among those invited was Will Beatty. He was presented to the eastern lady, and it happened to be his good fortune a little later in the evening to have her on his arm promenading over the velvety lawn. In the course of the conversation Miss Blank asked Mr. Beatty what business he followed, and he replied: "I'm a commercial traveler." The visitor, possibly in a moment of mental aberration, made this remark: "I'm the best commercial travelers do not go in the best society." Before the last word had hardly left her lips Mr. Beatty replied: "They don't here, either." Conversation was carried on after that in entirely different channels.—Wichita Eagle.

A Dyspeptic's daily diet.

Dyspepsia is one of the most prevalent of diseases. Thousands of people suffer from it in a more or less aggravated form. Few diseases are more painful to the individual or more far reaching in their effects on human life and happiness. What the dyspeptic needs is not local treatment, not mere temporary stimulus. The real need is the toning up of the entire system. Fortify the system and it will do its own fighting, and promptly eject any intruding disease. The success of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla in curing indigestion and dyspepsia is due to just this quality which it possesses, of renewing the vital forces, repairing the waste and loss of the body. The ordinary treatment brings the food down to the level of the weak stomach. Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla puts strength into the stomach, and brings it up to the level of the strong food it for men. It does this by strengthening the entire system. The stomach cannot stay weak when all the other organs are gaining strength. What Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla will do for dyspepsia is best illustrated in cases like that of M. S. Shields, Meridian, Miss. Mr. Shields had got down to the last level of dyspepsia. But let him tell his own story:

"For years I was afflicted with dyspepsia which gradually grew worse until I could eat nothing but bread and potatoes seasoned with a little salt, and drink only a little milk. I became so bad that a trifle too much of even these caused terrible suffering in the regions of the stomach, darting pains back of the eyes, attended with dizziness and partial loss of sight. The only way I could get relief was by vomiting. Finally I had such a severe attack that the entire left side of my body felt numb and partially paralysed, and in this condition, I was taken to my room unconscious. The physicians failed to help me, and none of the many remedies I took did me any good. At last a friend presented me with a bottle of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla and before I had used half of it, I could see a decided change for the better. I used three bottles and was so completely cured that for four years I was in good health with the old complaint, but am rugged and hearty and able to eat anything that can be eaten. I do not hesitate to say too much in praise of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and I would not give one bottle of it for a dozen of any other kind."—M. S. SHIELDS, Meridian, Miss.

Try Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla if you are dyspeptic. If you want more testimony to this fact write the doctor. Get Dr. Ayer's Curebook. It is sent free on request by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell.

OVERWORKED WOMEN.

Letters to Mrs. Pinkham From Women Who Have Been Helped From Sickness or Health.

The ordinary every-day life of most of our women is a ceaseless treadmill of work. How much harder the daily tasks become when some derangement of the female organs makes every movement painful and keeps the nervous system unstrung!

The following letter from Mrs. WALTER S. BANTA, Sparkill, N. Y., tells the story of many women, and shows them how to get relief:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot thank you enough for all Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. When I wrote to you I had suffered for years with falling, inflammation and ulceration of the womb; my back ached, and I was so much distressed I could scarcely walk. I was a burden to myself and did not care whether I lived or died.

"I have taken five bottles of your medicine and it has done wonders for me as all my friends can testify. I can now do my own work, and do not know how to express my gratitude to you for the good your medicine and advice have done me. I owe my life to Mrs. Pinkham."

Mrs. Pinkham's counsel is offered free to all women who need advice about their health. Her address is Lynn, Mass. Mrs. P. H. HUTCHCROFT, Kellerton, Iowa, tells here in her own words how Mrs. Pinkham helped her:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was in a very bad condition before I wrote to you and began the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did not know what to do. I suffered terribly every month, when on my feet would have such a bearing-down feeling, was very weak, womb was swollen, back ached, appetite was very poor, also had trouble with my head. I have taken several bottles of your Compound and cannot say enough in its favor. It helped more than all the doctors."

SOUTH CAROLINA LADIES DON'T LIE.

Mrs. C. M. Cowan

Inman, S. C., says: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine for years, with the best of results for Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Indigestion and Swollen Feet. It cured Miss S. Hammett of a complication of diseases; she says it saved her life. I think it far excels "Zeilin's" and the "Black Draught" medicine.

Falling of the Womb.

The cases of uterine displacement are very numerous and consequent a prolific cause of intense and wide-spread suffering. Its symptoms are bearing-down and dragging sensations, pain or weakness in the back, sometimes a sense of goneness at the pit of the stomach. All may result even to frequent childbearing, wearing garments that compress the waist and abdomen, overdriving, standing on the feet too long, and general debility.

We would strongly urge the use of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine which will purify and vitalize the blood, give tone and strength to the nervous system, and do that it will be kept in place. To facilitate a quick and complete recovery, we recommend as an important adjunct Mexican Female Remedy, which will produce the happiest results.

M. A. Rutherford

Wahalla, S. C., writes: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine more than 20 years, for Torpid Liver and Dizziness. I take a dose every two weeks and feel all right. I know it is far Superior to "Zeilin's Regulator," in my case.

Womanhood.

The health and well-being of mankind depend upon the perfect health and perfection of womanhood. Among the diseases which most impair the female constitution are leucorrhœa, irregular and painful menstruation, falling of the womb, chlorosis, scanty or too profuse menstruation. These diseases can be cured. Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine is a delightful remedy to take, entirely harmless, free from narcotics, purely vegetable and produces no unpleasant after effects. It is unequalled as a uterine tonic and curative agent for all female diseases, and it is impossible for weakness of the uterus to exist where it is faithfully and persistently used. Consultation is free. Book of woman's life which can be cared by using Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine.

The Kentucky Wagon-works Company at Louisville has been asked by the Quartermaster General whether it is prepared on short notice to furnish army wagons, ambulances and anything in this line that may be needed by an army in the field. The answer was "Yes"

Several ministers of the town were recently "taken in" by a stranger who collected money on subscription to a paper said to be published in Chicago, to contain valuable statistical information, and which it was claimed would furnish answers within twenty-four hours to any question asked. It proved to be a fraud.—Georgetown Times.

A novel arrest was made at Somerset when, to circumvent an alleged "blind tiger." Commonwealth's Attorney Sharpe swore out a warrant for "Jack" who, when arrested, proved to be Bud Hamm, who was indicted several times for selling liquor illicitly and bound over under $1,200 bond. The witnesses all swore that they had bought whisky from a man behind a sliding window, in a certain house, who gave his name as "Jack." and drew up the warrant as indicated.

Since the publication in Eastern papers of Gen. Cassius M. Clay's proposal of marriage, he has been flooded with letters from women all over the country who desire to share the society of the "Old Lion" and become the lady at palatial White Hall. In his mail one day were thirty-one letters from widows and old and young ladies, some not over sixteen years of age, all stating their willingness to become Mrs. Clay. Several of those letters were accompanied by photographs.

Judge Lee informs us that the State Board of Equalization did not make any change in the assessed value of the property of Trimble county for the year 1898. In 1895 the proposed raise of the lands and town lots by the State Board of Equalization was 13 per cent on lands and 10 per cent on town lots; and for the year 1897 the proposed raise by the State Board was ten per cent on real estate. Both raises were fought by Judge Lee and he was successful in preventing said raises being put on.

An amusing incident occurred at Glasgow Monday. Two negroes were sold at public sale by the Sheriff, in pursuance of a provision of the vagrant law. One brought $2.25 the other commanded the stiff price of $2.50. The bystanders enjoyed the scene immensely, and during the sale made such expressions as these: "Has he got any splint knots on him?" Can he work anything but his jaw?" The father of one of the negroes bid as high as 40 cents, then dropped out. The successful buyers paid for their purchases and have put them to work.

CROP AND STOCK.

The Lexington Gazette says good straight two year old cattle are in good demand at 5 cents.

Thirty car loads of mules, valued at $45,000 were shipped out of Hardin county the past week.

The Harrodsburg Democrat notes the sale of 1,000 lambs for delivery July 1st and 10th at 4 cents.

Several growing crops of wheat in Madison have been sold at 75 and 80 cents, says the Register.

The growing wheat is looking fine in Central Kentucky, and the farmers are making preparations for a big crop of tobacco.

The Woodford Sun reports the sale of 4,800 bushels of wheat at 96 cents, for 1,800 bushels of which 98 cents was refused last court day.

Louisville is not much of a live stock market. Wednesday's Courier-Journal says there were only 16 cattle, 719 hogs and one sheep on the market the day before.

Phil T. Chinn bought from J. M. Moberley, Mercer county, 2 yearling Lissak colts, paying $500 each for them. One is out of Martina by St. Martin, and the other out of Lavinia, by Leonatus.

The largest horse in the State is owned by Dempey Richard, of Borden. The animal is six years old, 18 hands high, and weighs 2,734 lbs. His feet are 8 inches in diameter, head 39 inches long, mane 42 inches and tail 72 inches long.

We fail to see what the people of the United States want with any more territory. We have over 600,000,000 acres of land that is capable of being cultivated. This makes a farm that is large enough to produce a great deal of sweat and at the same time produce enough provisions to feed almost the whole world. We have a great deal more land than is cultivated cartully.

There is beginning to appear in Massachusetts a so-called chop feed, consisting of the hulls and germs of Indian corn. It looks very much like gluten feed, but differs from it in that it does not contain the gluten of the corn. It has about 10 to 11 per cent. of protein, while the gluten feeds contain from 20 to 29 per cent. It is made by those factories engaged in the manufacture of gluten meal. It unquestionably posses considerable feeding value, but it is destinetly inferior to the gluten feeds.

The Southern stock of cow pea is a great forage plant and fertilizer if plowed under green. These peas are being used to some extent by farmers as far north as the mouth of the Illinois river to keep the cultivated land in good order, particularly where the soil has been clover sick. The cow pea, aside from its value as a forage plant, is a wonderful fertilizer, and may be sown for that purpose and plowed under while the pods are forming. On worn out land or land that simply requires a and a little stimulation to restore its productiveness, it produces wonderful results the following year.

Hardin county last summer carried off the honors of Kentucky in large wheat yields, and this winter it agains comes to the front and can lay claims to being the greatest cattle county in the State, excepting Fayette, Clark, Bourbon and other famous blue grass counties. There have been fed and are now on feed within a radius of twelve miles from Elizabethtown 10,000 head of cattle. Many have been sold as high as $65 a head and some are yet to be sold that will bring that price, but putting the average down to $40 a head this represents $400,000 in cash. There are no flies on Hardin county.—Elizabethtown News.

The Dairy Commissioner of the Dominion of Canada says: "I have found the best results to be obtained from using (a mixture of peas, oats, barley and corn; or a mixture of peas, corn and bran) ground very fine, soaked for not less than thirty hours before they are fed. I think hogs should be kept so as to permit, and even to cause, them to take a great deal of exercise until after they weigh more than 100 pounds each. In the growing of young pigs it is important that they should receive a daily allowance of skim-milk for six weeks or two months after they are weaned. Skim-milk is the great flesh-forming or muscle and bone forming food; and if the young pigs are stunted in these regards at that time they cannot be developed into the best class of hogs, no matter what breed they may be. In my judgment it is highly important that the quality of Canadian hogs, in regard to proportion of lean flesh and firmness, should be maintained and improved, if the best customers for hog products are to be secured and retained.

RELIGIOUS ITEMS.

Rev. R. L. McCreedy, of Frankfort, will leave in a short time for a trip to the old world.

Rev. I. S. McElroy, of Maxwell street Presbyterian Church, Lexington, is considering a unanimous call from a large church at Memphis.

From his pulpit, Elder Spencer stated that out of a membership of over 1,100 of the Central Christian Church, Lexington, not over 300 paid anything towards the support of the church.

Rev. W. T. Jolly, who died in Richmond, Va., March 14th, was born, reared and educated in Campbell county, this State. His wife was Miss Ida M. Gary, of Rising Sun, Ind. He was one of the ablest Baptist Ministers in the country, and had many friends in this State.

After 30 years service as District Superintendent of the American Bible Society, Rev. George Savage, of Winchester, tendered his resignation at the annual meeting of the society at the Union M. E. Church, in Covington, Sunday night, to take effect April 1st. A series of resolutions of regret and expressive of the valuable services rendered by Dr. Savage were adopted. His resignation is due to the fact that the Bible Society has concluded to dispense with all district superintendents throughout the State, confining all work to local societies.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[News]

County court was not a very large one.

Last week witnessed the greatest butter panic ever known in the history of Owenton.

It is reported that Mrs. C. J. McLear will soon begin the erection of a large business block on the lot adjoining the Odd Fellows hall.

The marriage of Miss Willie Blanton to Mr. M. B. Hanlon on the 16th, was a quiet but elegant affair.

[Herald,]

Many of our farmers report tobacco plants plentiful.

Dirt roads out of sight. Pikes getting in bad trim, soon be dirt roads again.

The wheat crop never looked finer at this time of the year. It promises a fine yield if nothing happens to it.

About once a month some horses are stolen and ridden all night. We need a bloodhound to run down thieves.

"Uncle" Martin Loomis, on old and respected gentleman and Baptist preacher, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. Z. Allphin, last Friday.

Last week S. J. Mefford, living about three miles down the river from Gratz was on the water in his skiff for some cause and discovered a bureau drawer floating, and he took the drawer into his boat and upon examining same he found a man's shirt and he began to unfold the shirt and found a babe about three months old. So unexpected was the sight he dropped it into the river, where it sank out of sight and could not be recovered.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier]

The continued rains have been beneficial to meadows, as grass is now exceedingly abundant and fine.

Dr. J. M. Worrall, of Danville, will begin a protracted meeting at the Presbyterian church to morrow Friday, April 1st.

Clay Conrad is now a full fledged farmer and goes to his work regularly every day (except Sundays). Clay says he intends to raise the largest and best crop of tobacco this year ever seen in Grant county. Whoop her up, Clay! We know you can do it.

Last Tuesday morning, Mortie Young and Wm. Boone aged 18 and 15 years, entered the livery stable of Robert Lancaster. Young picked up a revolver in the office and jokingly commanded Boone to give up his money. In an instant a loud report was heard and on examination it was found that Young had shot himself through the palm of the hand making a painful wound; the ball passed clear through the hand and struck Boone in the thigh producing a dangerous wound.

FROM CARROLL COUNTY.

[News]

There are about 100 bicyclists in Carrollton.

The Barker Tobacco Co., has received 4,800,000 lbs., of tobacco this season.

The State Board of Equalization increased land 14 and town lots 8 per cent. in this county.

Gaines & Smith have engaged about 500 lambs at 5c for June delivery, 4½c. the 20th and 4¼ July 15.

A great many tobacco plant beds were washed out on the hillsides and hundreds are covered with water in the lowlands.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 13, 1898. NO. 25.

UNCLE SAM is not doing much business with Spain, now.

THERE is considerable politics mixed up with the war business at Washington.

SOMEBODY will have to fight or back down, pretty soon. The RECORDER believes it will be a back down.

IF there is a war with Spain it will not be because the President has not exhausted his wits trying to prevent it.

GEN. LEE has left Havana. He felt very much like fighting before he left the city. Insult upon insult was heaped upon him.

CIRCUIT COURT was just getting under way well when our columns closed. The petit juries had not been organized completely.

THE farmers are very much behind with their work, but with a few days' weather like that of this week they will soon overcome the delay occasioned by unfavorable weather.

IT is only occasionally that a man who proposes to go to the front as a private, in the event of a war with Spain, is heard of. They all want to go as officers-Colonels or Captain for instance.

WHAT was expected to be a war message appears on another page. It shows conclusively that while the President is moving forward he is pulling back. It makes the Sanish out an ugly, cruel people.

THE President's message which had been delayed from time to time was sent to Congress, Monday at noon. It asks Congress to authorize the President to use the army and navy to bring about peace in Cuba.

THE pension question is becoming a more serious matter to this country each year, and the Secretary has startled the country with the announcement that from 1890 1898 the pension roll increased from 537,044 to 996,000.

IF the war proves a go, this country can raise an army of 100,000 men in fifteen minutes. But how long it will take to whip Spain deponeth saieth not. It may prove more of a job than many anticipate, but it will be done and well done if this country undertakes it.

THE President's message which will be found on another page in this issue, was a disappointment to Congress, and instead of advancing some plan upon which all could agree, it has thrown Congress into a confusion that it will take several days to over come. Congress is very much inclined to adopt a plan of procedure that is in accord with its notion as to how the Cuban matter should be handled, disregarding the President's wishes along that line. It is very doubtful if Speaker Reed will be able to keep the determined friends of Cuba from cutting loose from the andministration, and going after the Spaniards.

THE following went before the State Board of Equalization, at Frankfort, last week, to explain to it why it should not add seven per cent. to the value of lands and personal property subject to equalization, as retured by Assessor Brady: County Attorney Lassing, County Judge Roberts, ex-Assessor R. A. Brady, and the writer. The Board had decided to add seven per cent. to about $5,000,000 of Boone's taxable property, but after hearing the protest it concluded to make the increase six instead of seven per cent. and the county was thus relieved of about $200 in taxes which it was proposed to add to Boone's amount.

THERE has been some controversy as to what amount of road tax the new road precinct in the Burlington precinct pays and as to what amount of road money it will receive. On that question the Sheriff's tax book for 1898, makes the following showing: The assessed value of taxable property in the new precinct is $190,656, which, at 10 cents on the $100 amounts to $190.65 road money; to this is to be added 48 polls, at $1 each making $48 poll tax for road purposes, and a total of $248 road tax paid by the new precinct, but while the new precinct pays considerably over one-fifth of the road tax in the Burlington precinct it will draw only one-fifth of the road tax paid in the voting precinct. These are facts that cannot be truthfully controverted. Road district No. 5, will expend on her roads about $130 while she pays about $250.

CROP AND STOCK.

Waller Sharp, of Sharpsburg, has on hand 500,000 pounds of tobacco. His profit on his 1897 purchase will exceed $50,000.

At the horse sale at Lexington 438 horses sold bringing $2,720, an average of $179.13. Highest price was $800 paid for Beakshire Chimes 2:17. Sale was financially a success.

The first large sale of American horses occurred at Berlin, Germany, last week, at which 300 head were disposed of in short order, prices ranging on driving horses from $175 to $200.

With the mercury at 20 Wednesday morning the small fruits are all killed, and we believe the tobacco plants are killed also. The young clover and oats if not saved by being covered with snow are killed.—Owingsville Outlook.

The early fruit section of California, particularly Vaca Valley, from where most of the cherries, apricots and peaches are sent East in April and May, has been visited by a second disastrous freeze. The loss in Vaca Valley alo ne will aggregate 500,000.

Squire Henry Morgan, of White Sulphur vicinity, has had several hogs to die, and others are sick. Some of his neighbors have suffered in the same way. The disease resembles pneumonia more than cholera. He thinks the trouble is due to drinking impure water from puddles, which is impregnated with filth from the stables when it rains or is carried off by the thawing of frozen ground.—Georetown Times.

The experienced nurserymen say apples, grapes and small fruit have escaped the killing frost and freezes, but peaches and most of the early cherries are gone. There will still be an abundance of plums, pears, late cherries, damsons and other small fruit, however. What the outcome will be with these depends entirely on conditions of light and temperature, and the measure of sunshine, temperature and rainfall during the next month.

Recently a test was made on a load of hogs at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, to determine the actual gain that could be made by properly feeding and watering them. A bunch of seventy three head was driven from the cliutes to the scales and weighed 17,320 pounds. After they were sold they weighed 17,600 pounds, and were only fed one bushel of corn, showing an actual fill of 280 pounds. This bunch of hogs was taken just as it came in the regular course of business.

Notwithstanding the heavy freezes of Monday and Tuesday nights—the thermometer registering 24 and 22—there is plenty of peaches and all other kinds of fruit left, so say many who have examined their orchards. All that were in full bloom were either badly damaged or killed, but those which had not bloomed out are not injured but slightly if at all. and if it is not killed later we may expect a fair sized crop of fruit. There was never known before to be such a heavy peach bloom and one-half or two thirds of them could be killed and still be plenty left. We have asked a majority of the largest fruit growers in the county for their opinion in reference to the fruit crop since the freezes, and they are almost unanimous in the belief that there is plenty left. The old saying that "if fruit blooms in the light of the moons it will never be killed," may hold good.—Milton News.

CUBA, which is attracting more attention now than anyother spot on the face of the earth is an interesting country. It was discovered by Columbus only a few days after he cited the Main land of North America. The original colonists were Spaniards, and to retain possession of the island has cost many Spanish lives. In 1624 the Dutch captured it but soon restored it to Spain. In 1762 the British captured Cuba, but they held it only a few months, when, under the terms of a treaty it was again surrendered to Spain. From east to west Cuba is 600 miles long, while its width varies from 21 to 111 miles. Its area is 43,220 square miles. Its products are sugar, coffee and tobacco, while in its forests are palm, mahoghony, ebony and cedar. Sixty-five per cent. of the population at the beginning of the conflict now waging was white.

THE base ball season will open up again in a few days, and will somewhat detract from the interest in the proposed war with Spain.

KENTUCKY CROP REPORT.

Condition of Crops And Live Stock April 1st, 1898.

For the April Crop Report replies were received from one hundred and sixty-eight correspondents representing 105 counties.

WHEAT.

The condition of wheat on April 1st, 101, being an improvement of ten points during the month of March. On April 1, 1897, the condition was 94. Considering the crop by the three subdivisions, western, central and south-eastern, we find the highest average condition in the central section, 103. In the western section the condition is 102, while the few counties reporting from the south eastern section shows an average of 98. On March 1, the condition by sections was: western, 93; central, 90; no estimate being given for the south eastern.

Remarks of correspondents show practically universal satisfaction with the prospects, an occasional complaint of too much rain being the only exception.

OATS.

The estimated acreage of oats compared with the acreage of 1897 is ninety-one per cent. of the acreage of that year. It is largest in the western section, ninety-six, and smallest in the central section, 84. In the south-eastern section it is ninety-two per cent. of the 1897 acreage. Much of the crop was sown quite early and this is growing nicely. Rain has of late greatly interfered with the work of sowing and the crop will, on this account, be divided into two clearly defined parts, the very early and the very late.

TOBACCO.

Every indication points to a largely increased acreage of tobacco both in burley and dark districts. Plant beds show an excellent condition, especially in the western section (dark tobacco); there the condition, as compared with normal, is 106. In the central section (burley) the condition is 103, and the south-eastern section (principally burley) the condition is 101.

SHEEP AND SPRING LAMBS.

The revival of the sheep raising does not, so far, appear to be manifesting itself in an increased production of spring lambs; the number as compared with 1897 being but ninety-two per cent. of the production of that year. The central section leads with a production of ninety-five per cent. as compared with 1897. In the western section the number is nincty-two per cent.; while in the south eastern section the number is but 88 per cent. The percentage of loss by dogs during the past year is 6 per cent. for the State. The western section sufferd the greatest loss, 7 per cent. The central section lost 5 per cent., and the south-eastern section 6 per cent.

PASTURES.

Pastures are in a very advanced stages for the season, and continuance of present conditions will enable farmers to put stock to graze three weeks in advance of the average date.

LUCAS MOORE,
Commissioner of Agriculture.

THE WAR DEBT.

The Courier-Journal is asked to tell what the amount of the war debt is now. The debt incurred during the war is not kept distinct from other debts. The debt of the United States on January 1, 1861, just before the beginning of the war, was, in round numbers, $691,000,000. On the 1st inst., less cash in the Treasury, it was $1,008,000,000. The difference is $939,000,000. This is not all a bonded debt, but includes the gold and silver certificates, greenbacks and Sherman notes. The bonded debt is about $847,000,000. Of this, part was contracted to create and to maintain the gold reserve, but some of the notes redeemed have been used to pay current expenses and others are still in the Treasury, so that they go to reduce the amount of debt less cash in the Treasury. The amount of the war debt outstanding is, therefore, largely a matter of opinion, depending upon what we mean by the term. The difference between the debt in 1861 and that now is the best solution possible. The greenbacks were a product of the war, and the expense of redeeming them may be fairly called a part of the war debt.—C.-J.

IF Gen. Lee is put in command of an army and sent to Cuba he will take great pleasure in paying his respects to the occupants of Morro Castle.

Maybe the President isn't to blame at all. Perhaps Tom Reed is holding him back.—Detroit Tribune.

President McKinley is opposed to war upon Spain. He is equally opposed to war upon trusts.—Corinbus Press-Post.

That the President is a man of peace is not to be doubted, but he is not for peace at any price.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

It is not true that Senator Hanna has asked to be appointed a Brigadier General of Volunteers in case of war.—Boston Globe.

The country has waited patiently since the 28th day of March, and now it asks you, Mr. McKinley: What about the Maine?—Washington Times.

It is quite evident that Congress is ready to do things to Mr. McKinley's diplomacy-trocha, if he doesn't abandon it.—Anaconda Mont. Standard.

Mark Hanna has been inspired. The way to reconcile capitalists to a war with Spain is to agree to pay the bills in interest-bearing gold bonds.—Wichita Beacon.

Hanna's attitude warrants Lentz in asking if the President will substitute dollar marks on the national flag for stars and ticker ribbons for stripes.—Chicago Chronicle.

McKinley's Administration is going to be an expensive and as destructive to the Republican party as Cleveland's was to the Democratic party.—Louisville Dispatch.

President McKinley has won at every stage without firing a shot or taking a false or unnecessary step. He will win now, for peace and without war.—Philadelphia Press.

If President McKinley has really selected Mr. Grosvenor as the mouthpiece of the Administration he is of the opinion that he needs something roomy in that line.—N. Y. Journal.

If President McKinley yearns for peace for the sake of peace, why does he not strike vigorously? Why does he not secure peace beyond the shadow of a doubt in 48 hours.—N. Y. World.

Isn't it about time for business men to deny the authority of Mark Hanna to speak for them? His sordid pharisaism is a reflection on the business men of America.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Mr. Depew has delivered more than a thousand speeches, which with the several hundred thousand interviews for the press, has kept him tolerably busy for the last 150 years.—Chicago News.

The country has stood by the President much stronger than he desired it to do. The question is now, not will the country stand by McKinley, but will McKinley stand by the country?—Louisville Dispatch.

Minister Woodford once came near to being President of the United States. When Garfield was nominated the choice for Vice President lay between Woodford and Arthur, and the former was for a time the favorite.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

We have been supposing all along that Mr. McKinley's amiability was causing him to be made a tool of by the high financiers, but when he declares that he is willing to wreck the Republican party in their interest we know that he has both eyes open.—Atlanta Constitution.

Hanna is McKinley's blight, but he owes him much. The pity of it is that he would pay his debt at the sacrifice of the national honor. To make certain of his pay Mark Hanna, for whose promotion to the Senate the State Department was prostituted, demands as a right a privilege granted to no other Senator, and personally attends Cabinet meetings. The trail of the doubtful dollar is over them all.—Chicago Chronicle.

A SUBLIME MARTYRDOM.

The Death on the Cross Should be Accepted by All Mankind.

The Saviour's Blood Was Shed for the World, and His Life Was Sacrificed That We Might Live—Dr. Talmage's Easter Sermon.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was Heb. ix., 22: "Without shedding of blood is no remission."

John G. Whittier, the last of the great school of American poets that made the last quarter of this century brilliant, asked me in the White mountains one morning after prayers, in which I had given out Cowper's famous hymn about "The Fountain Filled With Blood," "Do you really believe there is a literal application of the blood of Christ to the soul?" My negative reply then is my negative reply now. The Bible statement agrees with all physicians, and all physiologists, and all scientists, in saying that the blood is life, and in the Christian religion it means simply that Christ life was given for our life. Hence that all this talk of men who say the Bible story of blood is disgusting, and they don't want what they call the "slaughter house religion," only shows their incapacity or unwillingness to look through the figure of speech toward the thing signified. The blood that, on the darkest Friday the world ever saw, oozed, or trickled, or poured from the brow, and the side, and the hands, and the feet of the illustrious Sufferer, back of Jerusalem, in a few hours congealed and dried up, and forever disappeared, and if man had depended on the application of the literal blood of Christ, there would not have been a soul saved for the last 18 centuries.

In order to understand this red word of my text, we only have to exercise as much common sense in religion as we do in everything else. Pang for pang, hunger for hunger, fatigue for fatigue, tear for tear, blood for blood, life for life, we see every day illustrated. The act of substitution is no novelty, although I hear men talk as though the idea of Christ's suffering substituted for our suffering were something abnormal, something distressingly odd, something wildly eccentric, a solitary episode in the world's history; when I could take you out into this city and before sundown point to you 500 cases of substitution and voluntary suffering of one in behalf of another.

At 9 o'clock to-morrow afternoon go among the places of business or toil. It will be no difficult thing for you to find men who, by their looks, show you that they are overworked. They are prematurely old. They are hastening rapidly toward their decease. They have gone through crisis in business that shattered their nervous system and pulled on the brain. They have a shortness of breath, and a pain in the back of the head, and at night an insomnia that alarms them. Why are they drudging at business early and late? For fun? No; it would be difficult to extract any amusement out of that exhaustion. Because they are avaricious? In many cases, no. Because their own personal expenses are lavish? No; a few hundred dollars would meet all their wants. The simple fact is, the man is enduring all that fatigue and exasperation, and wear and tear, to keep his home prosperous. There is an invisible line reaching from that store, from that bank, from that shop, from that scaffolding, to a quiet scene a few blocks away, and there is the secret of that business endurance. He is simply the champion of a homestead, for which he wins bread, and wardrobe, and education, and prosperity, and in such battle 10,000 men fall. Of ten business men whom I bury nine die of overwork for others. Some sudden disease finds them with no power of resistance, and they are gone. Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution!

At 1 o'clock to-morrow morning, the hour when slumber is most uninterrupted and profound, walk amid the dwelling houses of the city. Here and there you will find a dim light, because it is the household custom to keep a subdued light burning; but most of the houses from base to top are as dark as though uninhabited. A merciful God has sent forth the archangel of sleep, and he puts his wings over the city. But yonder is a clear light burning, and outside on a window casement a glass or pitcher containing food for a sick child; the food is set in the fresh air. This is the sixth night that mother has sat up with that sufferer. She has to the last point obeyed the physician's prescription, not giving a drop too much or too little, or a moment too soon or too late. She is very anxious, for she has buried three children with the same disease, and she prays and weeps, each prayer and sob ending with a kiss of the pale cheek. By dint of kindness she gets the little one through the ordeal. After it is all over, the mother is taken down. Brain or nervous fever sets in, and one day she leaves the convalescent child with a mother's blessing, and goes up to join the three departed ones in the kingdom of Heaven. Life for life. Substitution! The fact is that there are an uncounted number of mothers who, after they have navigated a large family of children through all the diseases of infancy, and got them fairly started up the flowering slope of boyhood and girlhood, have only strength enough left to die. They fade away. Some call it consumption; some call it nervous prostration; some call it intermittent or malarial indisposition; but I call it martyrdom of the domestic circle. Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution!

Or perhaps a mother lingers long enough to see a son get on the wrong road, and his former kindness becomes rough reply when she expresses anxiety about him. But she goes right on, looking carefully after his apparel, remembering his every birthday with some memento, and when he is brought home worn out with dissipation, nurses him till he gets well and starts him again, and hopes, and expects, and prays, and counsels, and suffers, until her strength gives out and she fails. She is going, and attendants, bending over her pillow, ask her if she has any message to leave, and she makes great effort to say something, but out of three or four minutes of indistinct utterings they can catch but three words; "My poor boy!" The simple fact is she died for him. Life for life. Substitution.

About thirty-eight years ago there went forth from our northern and southern homes hundreds of thousands of men to do battle. All the poetry of war soon vanished and left them nothing but the terrible prose. They waded knee deep in mud. They slept in snow banks. They marched till their cut feet tracked the earth. They were swindled out of their honest rations and lived on meat not fit for a dog. They had jaws fractured, and eyes extinguished, and limbs shot away. Thousands of them cried for water as they lay on the field the night after the battle and got it not. They were homesick, and received no message from their loved ones. They died in barns, in bushes, in ditches, the buzzards of the summer heat the only attendants on their obsequies. No one but the infinite God who knoweth everything, knows the ten thousandth part of the length, and breadth, and depth, and height of anguish of the northern and southern battlefield. Why did these fathers leave their children and go to the front, why did these young men, postponing the marriage [illegible] probabilities of never coming back? For a principle they died. Life for life. Blood for blood. substitution!

But we must not go so far. What is that monument in the cemetery? It is to the doctors who fell in the southern epidemics. Why go? Were there not enough sick to be attended in these northern latitudes? Oh, yes; but the doctor puts a few medical books in his valise, and some vials of medicine, and leaves his patients here in the hands of other physicians, and takes the rail train. Before he gets to the infected regions he passes crowded rail trains, regular and extra, taking the flying and affrighted populations. He arrives in a city over which a great horror is brooding. He goes from couch to couch, feeling the pulse and studying symptoms, and prescribing day after day, night after night, until a fellow physician says: "Doctor, you had better go home and rest; you look miserable." But he can not rest while so many are suffering. On and on, until some morning finds him in a delirium, in which he talks of home, and then rises and says he must go and look after those patients. He is told to lie down, but he fights his attendants until he falls back, and is weaker and weaker, and dies for people with whom he had no kinship, and far away from his own family, and is hastily put away in a stranger's tomb, and only the fifth part of a newspaper line tells us of his sacrifice—his name just mentioned among five. Yet he has touched the furthest height of sublimity in that three weeks of humanitarian service.

He goes straight as an arrow to the bosom of Him who said: "I was sick and ye visited me." Life for life. Blood for blood. Substitution!

In the legal profession I see the same principle of self-sacrifice. In 1846, William Freeman, a pauperized and idiotic Negro, was at Auburn, N. Y., on trial for murder. He had slain the entire Van Nest family. The foaming wrath of the community could be kept off him only by armed constables. Who would volunteer to be his counsel? No attorney wanted to sacrifice his popularity by such an ungrateful task. All were silent save one, a young lawyer with feeble voice, that could hardly be heard outside the bar, pale and thin and awkward. It was William H. Seward, who saw that the prisoner was idiotic and irresponsible, and ought to be put in an asylum, rather than put to death, the heroic counsel uttering these beautiful words:

"I speak now in the hearing of people who have prejudged prisoner and condemned me for pleading in his behalf. He is a convict, a pauper, a Negro, without intellect, sense or emotion. My child with an affectionate smile disarms my care-worn face of its frown whenever I cross my threshold. The beggar in the street obliges me to give because he says, 'God bless you!' as I pass. My dog caresses me with fondness if I will but smile on him. My horse recognizes me when I fill his manger. What reward, what gratitude, what sympathy and affection can I expect here. There the prisoner sits. Look at him. Look at the assemblage around him. Listen to their ill-suppressed censures and excited fears, and tell me where among my neighbors or my fellow-men, where, even in his heart, I can expect to find a sentiment, a thought, not to say of reward or of acknowledgment, or even of recognition. Gentlemen, you may think of this evidence what you please, bring in what verdict you can, but I asseverate before Heaven and you, that, to the best of my knowledge and belief, the prisoner at the bar does not at this moment know why it is that my shadow falls on you instead of his own."

The gallows got its victim, but the post mortem examination of the poor creature showed to all the surgeons and to all the world that the public were wrong, and William H. Seward was right, and that hard, stony step of obloquy in the Auburn courtroom was the first step of the stairs of fame up which he went to the top, or to within one step of the top, that last denied him through the treachery of American politics. Nothing sublimer was ever seen in an American courtroom than William H. Seward, without reward, standing between the furious populace and the loathsome imbecile. Substitution.

In the realm of the fine arts there was as remarkable an instance. A brilliant but hypercritical painter, Joseph William Turner, was met by a volley of abuse from all the art galleries of Europe. His paintings, which have since won the applause of all civilized nations, "The Fifth Plague of Egypt," "Fisherman on a Lee Shore in Squally Weather," "Calais Pier," "The Sun Rising Through Mist," and "Dido Building Carthage," were then targets for critics to shoot at. In defense of this outrageously abused man, a young author of 24 years, just one year out of college, came forth with his pen, and wrote the ablest and famous essay on art that the world ever saw, or ever will see—John Ruskin's "Modern Painters." For 17 years this author fought the battles of the maltreated artist, and after, in poverty and broken-heartedness, the painter had died, and the public tried to undo their cruelties toward him by giving him a big funeral and burial in St. Paul's cathedral, his old-time friend took out of a tin box 19,000 pieces of paper containing drawings by the old painter, and through many weary and uncompensated months assorted and arranged them for public observation. People say John Ruskin in his old days is gross, misanthropic and morbid. Whatever he may do that he ought not to do, and whatever he may say that he ought not to say between now and his death, he will leave this world insolvent as far as it has any capacity to pay this author's pen for its chivalric and Christian defense of a poor painter's pencil. John Ruskin for William Turner. Blood for blood. Substitution!

What an exalting principle this which leads one to suffer for another! Nothing so kindles enthusiasm or awakens eloquence, or chimes poetic cadence, or moves nations. The principle is the dominant one in our religion —Christ the Martyr, Christ the Celestial Hero, Christ the Defender, Christ the Substitute. No new principle, for it was old as human nature; but now on a grander, wider, higher, deeper and more world-resounding scale. The shepherd boy as a champion for Israel with a sling toppled the giant of the Philistine braggadocio in the dust; but here is another David who, for all the armies of churches militant and triumphant, hurls the Goliath of perdition into defeat, the clash his brazen armor like an explosion at Hell Gate. Abraham had at God's command agreed to sacrifice his son Isaac, and the same act just in time provided a ram of the God-given substitute; but there is another Isaac bound for the altar, and no hand arrests the sharp edges of incarnation and death, and the universe pulses and quakes and recoils and groans at the horror.

All good men have for centuries been trying to tell whom this substitute was like, and every comparison, inspired and uninspired, evangelistic, prophetic, apostolic and human falls short, for Christ was the Great Unlike. Adam, a type of Christ, because he came directly from God; Noah a type of Christ, because he delivered his own family from deluge; Melchisedec a type of Christ, because he had no predecessor or successor; Joseph a type of Christ, because he was cast out by his brethren; Moses a type of Christ, because he was a deliverer from bondage; Joshua a type of Christ, because he was a conqueror; Samson a type of Christ, because of his strength to slay the lions and carry off the iron gates of impossibility; Solomon a type of Christ, in the affluence of his dominion; Jonah a type of Christ, because of the stormy sea in which he threw himself for the rescue of others; but put together Adam, and Noah, and Melchisedec, and Joseph, and Moses, and Joshua, and they would not make a fragment of a Christ, a quarter of a Christ, the half of a Christ, or the millionth part of a Christ. He forsook a throne and sat down on His own footstool. He came from the top of glory to the bottom of humiliation, and changed a circumference seraphic for a circumference diabolic. Once waited on by angels, now hissed at by brigands. From afar and high up He came down; past meteors swifter than they; by starry thrones, Himself more lustrous; past larger worlds to smaller worlds; down stairs of firmaments, and from cloud to cloud, and through the tree tops and into the camel's stall. Christ His shoulder under our burdens and thrust the lances of pain through His vitals, and wrapped Himself in all the agonies which we deserve for our misdoings, and stood on the splitting decks of a foundering vessel, amid the drenching surf of the sea, and passed midnights on the mountains amid wild beasts of prey, and stood at the point where all earthly and infernal hostilities charged on Him at once with their keen sabers—our Substitute!

When did attorney ever endure so much for a pauper client, or physician for the patient in the lazaretto, or mother for the child in membranous croup, as Christ for us, and Christ for you, and Christ for me? Shall any man or woman or child in this audience who has ever suffered for another find it hard to understand this Christly suffering for us? Shall those whose sympathies have been wrung in behalf of the unfortunate have no appreciation of that one moment which was lifted out of all the ages of eternity as most conspicuous, when Christ gathered up all the sins of those to be redeemed under His one arm, and said: "I will atone for those under my right arm, and will heal all those under my left arm. Strike me with all thy glittering shafts, O Eternal Justice! Roll over me with all thy surges, ye oceans of sorrow?" and the thunderbolts struck Him from above, and the seas of trouble rolled up from beneath, hurricane after hurricane, and cyclone after cyclone, and then and there in the presence of Heaven and earth and hell, yea, all worlds witnessing, the price, the bitter price, the transcendant price, the awful price, the glorious price, the infinite price, the eternal price was paid that set us free.

BEAN fever has been added to the list of epidemics like hay fever and rose fever by a German doctor, who has christened his discovery "Favismus." His cure for the disease is to keep away from the beanfields.

TELEGRAPH IN THE SUBURBS.

Why a Certain Family Now Has Its Messages Delivered at the Barn.

For the benefit of those persons who do not live in the suburbs it will be necessary to preface this story with a word of explanation regarding a certain out-of-work peculiarity of the telegraph service. In small places near New York it is the company's rule to deliver messages free of carrying charges—that is, in city style—to all houses within a certain radius of the telegraph office, which is always located in the railway station. Beyond this "dead line," if [illegible] was permissible, fees are charged according to the distance which the messenger must travel. This money does not go to the company, but to the small boy who has been fortunate enough to secure the job of district messenger.

After having paid for several telegrams without protest or inquiry, a certain family in one of these towns decided recently that the place in which they lived must be situated within the free limit, and the mistress of the house appointed herself a committee of one to visit the telegraph office and investigate. The operator courteously brought out a map of the town and demonstrated to her by its aid that while a part of her place undoubtedly came within the line, that portion on which the house stood lay just beyond it.

"How queer!" exclaimed the perplexed householder. "Well, can't have telegrams delivered out in the orchard or in the garden, so I suppose you'll have to keep sending them to the house and charging. We don't have very many coming, anyway."

But the last remark was ill-timed. That day no less than four arrived—two from friends who had been invited for a visit and had been obliged to decline; one from a sister in Chicago, announcing her coming east, and the fourth from the master of the house, saying that he would not be at home for dinner.

"Now, isn't that exasperating!" complained Mrs. —— to a sympathizing neighbor. "But I know what I shall do. I have found that the barn is inside the free line and I'm going to have the messages left there. If the company were real good-natured I think they might sometimes stretch a point and send the telegrams to the back door."

Following this plan, the barn was at last accounts the receiving station, and mistress' thrifty soul was content.—N. Y. Tribune.

JUDGE OF HUMAN NATURE.

A Wide-Awake Hotel Chambermaid Who Could Size Up the Guests to a Dot.

"I have been on the road for more years than two-thirds of the world's people live," remarked the veterna drummer, as he was taking it easy at a hotel in Washington, "and I have seen a good many things, but never until this morning have I seen a chambermaid in a hotel who guessed what my accomplishments were by the room I had. For the sake of a wise economy prevailing all over the land at present I had an apartment on the top floor, and it was pretty high up. When I came out for breakfast I noticed that a button was off my overcoat, and as the maid was sweeping in the hall I told her I would pay her if she would get a needle and thread for me and sew it on.

"'I think you can do that, sir, better than I can,' she responded, with a knowing smile.

"'Why, do I look like a tailor?' I inquired.

"'Not so good-looking as one I know,' and she blushed; 'but it wasn't that, sir, I was meaning.'

"'And what was it?'

"'It's this, sir: I've been a chambermaid for 12 years, and I have seen a good many men in my time, and I never saw one yet that took a top flure room that couldn't sew a button on as well as any woman in the place. They are thrifty, that kind are, sir, and they know how to take care of themselves. It's the doods on the lower flures, sir, that have to be waited on like babies and can't do a blessed thing for themselves, sir.'

"It was a compliment, and it wasn't," concluded the veteran, "but seeing that I was not classed with the dudes I took it as a preponderance in my favor. And the same, the chambermaid was calling the turn on 75 per cent. of the top floor contingent."—Washington Star.

Lace Slippers in Vogue.

Here is good news for the woman who has a pretty foot but a weak ankle, and finds her sufferings and dangers great in a high-heeled evening slipper. There are now to be had the most smartly cut evening shoes of glace kid, lined with crimson satin, and laced up the front over V-shaped openings, as high as the middle of the calf. Through these ample openings glimpses of the pretty open-work evening stockings are seen, and so far down does the lacing extend that as small a size of this shoe can be worn as any low slipper. It is the high sides of the shoe that hold the ankle firm for dancing, and, moreover, such footgear can be appropriately worn when driving about on a round of calls.—St. Louis Republic.

Nested Eggs.

Two cupfuls of chicken meat—both dark and light—add one tablespoonful of melted butter, the same quantity of rich cream, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, salt and cayenne to taste, and two well-beaten eggs. Put the ingredients in a saucepan and let them thoroughly heat so as to set the eggs. Turn the mixture upon a hot platter and form it in a flat mound with a ridge around the edge. Meanwhile poach the number of eggs required and place them carefully on the meat. Garnish the dish with sprigs of parsley and thin slices of lemon around the mold. Serve hot.—Every Month.

STAND BY THE ISSUE.

James K. Jones Urges Free Silver Men to Unite for the Fray.

"If any doubt about the necessity for a complete corporation amongst our friends has existed heretofore, recent declaration by Messrs. Gage and Cleveland should now remove them. Secretary Gage, in an address before the chamber of commerce of Cleveland, O., on the 18th of March, is reported, after quoting from my recent address, the following words: 'The surrender of the republican party to the advocates of the gold standard and monopoly is at last complete. The present administration, called to power upon the solemn pledge of the republican national committee at St. Louis to promote bimetallism, has formulated and sent to congress a bill, the leading purpose of which, the secretary of the treasury avows is to commit the country more thoroughly to the gold standard,' to have said 'if intended as a statement of fact, the affirmation is perfectly correct.' The honorable secretary frankly admits that the allegations contained in the foregoing words are as a statement of fact 'perfectly correct.' Thus the lines seem clearly drawn and distinctly understood by both sides. Those who favor the gold standard and monopoly will act together, and it is certainly absolutely necessary that those who oppose these iniquities shall act together and as far as possible in perfect harmony. In 1896, in the congressional election of Oregon, the following votes were cast in the First district:

Republican	13,755
Populist	19,226
Democrat	7,914

The republicans elected by 59 plurality over the populist, with 7,914 democratic votes counting nothing. Expressed in another way, in this district 19,355 votes cast elected a congressman over 27,240 votes in the opposition. This was only possible because those votes opposed the republican party divided. In the Second district in the same state, and at the same election, there were cast the following votes:

Republican	12,637
Populist	12,279
Independent Republican	2,561
Democrat	7,699

The republicans elected their candidate over the populist by a plurality of 358, while 16,906 democratic and independent republican votes were thrown away; or stated otherwise, 13,617 republicans elected their congressman over 28,140 votes in the opposition. Such amazing results could only come from a failure to unite among those opposed to the republican party. With such results so recently obtained by those methods, is it any wonder that the republicans are attempting again to divide us? In a recent letter to some Pennsylvania friends Mr. Cleveland is reported to have said: 'I am so earnest in my desire to see our country blessed with safe money and a suitable financial system that I am of the opinion we ought to give patriotic and consistent support to any plan which insures that result.' But could a more effective plan to accomplish what Mr. Cleveland and Mr. Gage wish be adopted than this one of dividing our forces while the enemy is united? The elections this year are the skirmish line for 1900. 'United we stand, divided we fall.' Everything which can be done this year to make cooperation amongst bimetallists thorough and complete in 1900 should be done; strife between factions of bimetallists can only do harm; nothing but complete cooperation can make success certain in that great struggle. No bimetallist should insist that another bimetallist shall change his party affiliations or his party name, but should cordially welcome his cooperation in this struggle. Americans and Frenchmen poured out their blood together in the struggle for American independence, and neither asked the other to change his allegiance to his country. Surely wrangles over party names will not be allowed to obscure the great issue. Local offices and partisan advantages certainly will not be cause for dissension amongst us. It would be infinitely better and more patriotic to submit to injustice and yet maintain a compact organization rather than allow ourselves to be divided. The nation will understand and appreciate sacrifices for the cause and they will not be forgotten."—James K. Jones.

No Alliance Needed.

There are those who would favor an alliance between this country and England. Such an alliance would be a great political mistake. Because there is a war cloud drifting this way from Spain there is no wisdom in joining hands with a country that has a war cloud drifting its way from China. The United States is quite capable of taking care of Spain without the aid or consent of any foreign nations. Its true policy is to avoid entangling alliances. England has no friends in Europe. America has no enemies there except Spain. To form an alliance with England would be to estrange France and Russia, to offend Germany, to antagonize Austria and to take unnumbered troubles along with the doubtful friendship of England. America has stood alone for the last century. This country should stand alone for all time. Europe is in a constant state of turmoil. Each nation of the old world is jealous of every other nation. Peace across the Atlantic is nothing but an armed truce. America has enjoyed real peace. It has needed no great standing army. It should not put itself in a position to make a standing army necessary.—Chicago Dispatch.

——Poor old Spain, once the richest of nations, once the mightiest of empires on the globe, has the poorest credit of European countries—and only Brazil and Uruguay of the governments of the civilized world rank below her. The United States have resources greater than any other power on earth. Yet Spain has been thimble-rigging the McKinley administration and the republican party.—Illinois State Register.

CURRENCY REFORM.

How the Goldbugs Propose to Preserve the Financial Stability of the Nation.

The report of the monetary commission of the executive committee of the Indianapolis monetary convention has been made and is being franked as part of the congressional record. If and doubt ever existed of the true nature of this movement that doubt can exist no longer. Under the well-sounding name of "currency reform" it was believed that the gold standard was hidden. This is now known to be fact. The whole propaganda is merely a flank movement of part of the gold standard forces, and no man should be deceived into the belief that they really intend only a reform. The only reform intended is to fix the gold standard so firmly on the American nation that it can never be shaken.

The report of the commission says that any standard other than gold is a great danger and "compared with this danger all existing evils of mere kind or quantity of our present money are relatively only inconveniences. The first need of the situation is to fortify the standard." Thus the whole fight is to be for the gold standard and the real defects are to be regarded as mere "inconveniences." The whole financial system of the country is much in the form of an inverted pyramid, a mass of credit on a little base of gold, but this danger, that some time the pyramid topple over, is an "inconvenience." They are determined to stand by that base, even if the whole superstructure comes down. At all hazards they will fortify the standard. They will fortify the standard, even if they have to pull off the entire superstructure. Have they not said that all questions of mere quantity are simply an "inconvenience" compared with the necessity of saving the gold standard?

We are then prepared to hear of almost any proposition in the matter of handling the great mass of credit money afloat plus the legal tender silver dollars. Listen to what they call one of the defects of the system: "Second, the continuance in circulation of government promises to pay, which, when made a legal tender, constitutes a forced loan, which are secured by only such resources as the exercise of the taxing power can render available, and which are payable only at the will of the debtor." So they find our United States notes very defective. They call them a "forced loan," and they want them called in and the national banks given the privilege of making a forced loan, the government to pay them about $12,000,000 a year for doing it. They object to the people, through the government, making a forced loan on themselves, for in that manner, the loan pays no tolls to the banks. That is all there is about the bankers' objection to the United States notes, called greenbacks. In the eyes of the national bankers it is a stupendous piece of folly for the people to have borrowed $346,000,000 from itself, and to have saved paying interest to outside parties. According to their moral code the people should have borrowed that money from the banks, and are even asked at this late date to change their free loan for one that pays interest to the banks. Be assured they will never get their wish, unless the monied powers are even stronger than they appear.

They find fault even with the security because the notes are simply the government promise to pay. They want them changed into national bank notes, which are secured by what? Simply secured by the government's promise to pay. As to security it is tweedledum and tweedledee. Then they say these notes are "payable only at the will of the debtor." Another base assault on the prerogatives of the money lenders, so they think. All they want is that all the laws be in favor of the creditor, the debtor being even deprived of using as legal tender anything except gold. So would they fortify the standard.

But so will they not "fortify the standard" while the American people are awake.

EARLY SPRING CARE.

Success in the Hen Business Depends on Details in Feeding, Watering and Supervision.

The passing seasons increase my belief that to get eggs it makes far less difference whether you have Leghorns or Brahmas, or what special brand of animal meal you feed, than whether you look after the details in feeding, watering and supervision. When the hens cannot scratch for exercise or worms because of snow or frozen ground, they must then have animal food and an artificial incentive to scratch. Cut bone is the cream of animal food and if you can get that it pays the largest possible interest on any output. Hens can stand more slighting in other directions and still pour out eggs, with plenty of bones. If this is impossible, kiln-dried meals will be better than nothing. Feed it liberally.

A PAIR OF HIGH-BRED FOWLS.

The second cure is oyster shells or whatever you use for shell material. The amount that a flock of hens will eat seems almost incredible, but they know best; your only lookout is to see that the boxes are never empty. A dull, mopy hen rarely lays. More probably she eats and grows fat, and still doesn't lay. Scratching pens are desirable, but everybody cannot afford them. An excellent substitute is made by throwing down a bushel of hayseed every few days on the floor of the common pen. The hens go over it at once and with a vim. It absorbs moisture, gives exercise and sweetens the atmosphere wonderfully. On a farm there is plenty of waste hayseed on the barn floor. Feeding is not among the lesser things of poultry keeping, yet the feeding, its kind and regularity, is worth care and study. A warm mash in the morning of a three part meal, corn, oat and fine feed (mixed at the dealers), stirred up with small potatoes and animal meal, or a condition powder. Oats at noon and wheat at night, except now and then a corn supper for a change. Water should be clean and warm when necessary and ever present. Be regular as to your feeding hours and do not forget to feed them. Eternal vigilance from the day-old chick to the stewpan is the one thing needful to make hens lay.—Annie L. Rogers, in Farm and Home.

EGGS FOR HATCHING.

Get Rid of All Males Now and Procure "New Blood" for Next Spring and Summer.

While it is proper to keep the breeds separate during those periods of the year when the eggs are to be used for hatching, it is a saving of time, labor and feneing to let them out on the fields together until spring comes. It is the impression on the part of some that when birds of different breeds are allowed together the purity of the flock will be impaired; but if the breeds are separated a month before the eggs are used there will be no evidence of impurity in the chicks hatched. Where one has two or three breeds it is somewhat difficult to keep them separate without confining them in yards, and as by so doing more work becomes necessary, it is not advisable to separate them a day longer than the time fixed for hatching is taken. There is a safeguard, however, should doubt be entertained in regard to retaining the purity of the breeds, and that is to get rid of all males now and procure "new blood" next spring. It is not necessary to have the males with the hens, as they will lay as many eggs without the males as when they are present with the flock.—Farm and Fireside.

HELPFUL FARM NOTES.

Do not keep too many hens in a flock.

Always use a good thermometer when churning.

One advantage in the creamery is that the farmer's wife gets rid of the drudgery of making butter.

One serious objection to selling hay from the farm is that it carries away too much of the fertility of the farm.

To make the most out of it, plan to save all of the liquid manure as well as the solid by using plenty of bedding.

Agricultural papers help to build the farmer up by being alive to his interests, and every farmer can find profit in reading them.

While theoretically budded trees are the best, yet, practically, there are just as good trees growing by root grafting as by budding.

It is only when good care has been taken to maintain the fertility of the farm that it can in any way be considered advisable to plant young trees where a very old one has died.

The soil for the orchard should be dry, firm, mellow and fertile. Generally a soil that will produce a good crop of corn or wheat will grow good trees and fruit. It should be worked into a good condition before planting.—Farmers' Union.

TREATMENT OF PIGS.

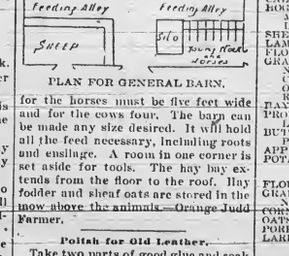
At Eight or Nine Months of Age They Should be in Good Shape for the Market.

All the pigs may be treated alike until they are five or six months old, because no matter for what purpose they are intended, the first work in the preparation for that purpose is to build up the frame, to develop the bone and muscle, says Texas Stock and Farm Journal. Whenever the weather permits the sows and pigs should have free and wide range over all the farm not devoted to cultivation, and pasturage should be looked upon as essential to their development. If the pasturage is good the amount of rooting they will do will not be a damage to the range or the farm, for they will destroy many insect pests and the exercise will be a benefit to the animals. A patch of peas should be grown on every farm for the young pigs as well as for other purposes, and the pigs should run in them an hour or so every day. The peas have much the same nutritive qualities as milk and are cheaper. When the pigs have them in sufficient quantity their frames have a rapid development and they can be brought on to the corn feeding later with less risk of injury than if they had passed through the summer on grass or alfalfa alone. But wherever in Texas the alfalfa can be grown, and in many portions of the state it will thrive well, it ought to form a most important part in building up the frames of the young animals. After they have become five or six months old those that are to be kept as breeders should be separated from the animals that are to be fed for market. The methods of handling the former should not be materially changed, and such changes as are made in feeding the fattening animals should be made gradually and cautiously, watching them until they have been brought to full feed. At no time is it well to confine them solely to corn. Some green stuff should be given them, and some variety of food, with plenty of charcoal and salt, abundance of pure water, and they should have clean, well-sheltered quarters. Corn, of course, will be the principal food in finishing, but it should never be given so freely and exclusively as to cause the hogs to become in the least tired of it. And at eight or nine months of age they should be ready for the market.

VALUE OF ARTICHOKES.

This Writer Considers One Acre of Them to Be Equal in Value to Six of Corn.

Artichokes are not given the attention they deserve; there is no crop on the farm that will give as great returns. They are drought proof and a certain preventive of hog cholera. One acre will feed 30 shoats five or six months, as 500 to 600 bushels per acre is a common yield, while on rich soil 1,000 bushels is frequently produced. As milk producers, fed to cows, the artichoke stands without a peer, and the tops make excellent feed for horses. They also make excellent pickles and salad when properly prepared, and withal are excellent fertilizers and easily grown.



Prepare the ground by plowing deep and pulverizing the lumps; mark the rows as for potatoes, four feet wide; cut to one eye and drop 14 inches apart in row; cover about three to four inches; cultivate same as corn or potatoes. Plant from 1st to 15th of May. It is not necessary to dig them for hogs, as they will do their own harvesting, and freezing does not hurt them. Do not store in the cellar, but put in pits and cover with a layer of straw and four or five inches of earth.

I consider one acre of artichokes worth six acres of corn; try them next season, if only a small patch.—R. T. Patterson, in Agricultural Epitomist.

GROUND PLAN FOR BARN.

Suitable for Places Where a Small Dairy Is Kept, and Some Horses and Sheep.

The accompanying ground plan of general barn is suitable for many localities where a small dairy of cows is kept, enough horses to operate a small farm and a flock of sheep. The stalls for the horses must be five feet wide and for the cows four. The barn can be made any size desired. It will hold all the feed necessary, including roots and ensilage. A room in one corner is set aside for tools. The hay bay extends from the floor to the roof. Hay fodder and sheaf oats are stored in the mow above the animals.—Orange Judd Farmer.

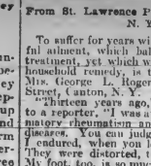
Polish for Old Leather.



Take two parts of good glue and soak in tepid water until it is thoroughly softened, then add five gills of water and two gills of brandy or common spirits, rubbing it until it becomes smooth; stir this into the mass, and afterward stir in two parts of wheat flour mixed in cold water. The mixture is then put over a moderate fire and allowed to steam off a little, but not to boil, stirring it well while over the fire. It can be used immediately, or made up into small cakes which can be dissolved at any time in a little water or beer. It can be put on with a brush, a thin coat only being required, and afterward rubbing it with a linen or silk cloth. It will restore old dash boards of leather, or leather tops, where the enamel is not off.—Western Plowman.

INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.

From St. Lawrence Plaindealer, Canton, N. Y.

To suffer for years with a prevailing painful ailment, which baffled skillful medical treatment, yet soon took at these hands household remedy, is the lot which befell Mrs. George L. Rogers, of West Main Street, Canton, N. Y.

"Thirteen years ago," said Mrs. Rogers to a reporter, "I was attacked with inflammatory rheumatism and a complication of diseases. You can judge somewhat of what I endured when you look at these hands. They were distorted, twisted and swollen. My foot, too, is so much out of shape that the big toe lays across the others, the end of which is almost as large as the foot itself. I tried different doctors and many proprietary remedies, but was soon bedridden.

"Last March I tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and before I had finished the first box I began to feel that they were doing me good. I continued using them and steadily grew better.

"I have used thirteen boxes of the pills and to-day feel better than for the past fifteen years. My appetite is good, I feel bright, cheerful and have a desire to live and enjoy society.

"I have been a member of the Methodist church for many years, but for six years was unable to attend. I am able now to attend the church services regularly and certainly appreciate that privilege. I consider Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People a wonderful medicine and am confident no other medicine could have effected the wonderful cure they have in my case." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are composed of vegetable remedies that exert a powerful influence in purifying and enriching the blood, thus curing many diseases.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is but one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Comparing Notes.

"I've been married five years," said the proud little man from Detroit.

"That's nothing," laughed the Chicago man who occupied the same seat on the train. "I've been married five times."—Detroit Free Press.

"Mother, come here quick, there goes Jane Albright in that everlasting calico dress of hers. I should think that girl she'd be tired of wearing it. This is the fifth year it's a day. I never did see such a careful woman with her clothes."

"It ain't the cost she takes of it, Mandy, child, it's the goods. Them's William Simpson & Son's prints, the same as my old black and white which is almost as good now as the day I bought that first year ago come Easter. I was at the store with Jane when she bought that dress, Mandy, and so far as I can see the colors is just as bright to-day as they was then. It never wore it ever a stant ever since. It proves old Jones, what keeps the store, was tellin' truth when he says that the name of William Simpson & Sons on the ticket on a package of calikers or prints was a certain sure guarantee of gettin' your money's worth, for I never seen such colors keep bright and last so long."

Give the Children a Drink

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Sold by all grocers and liked by all who have used it, because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Grain-O aids digestion and strengthens the nerves. It is not a stimulant but a health builder, and children, as well as adults, can drink it with great benefit. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee. 15 and 25c.

ACCORDING TO CONSCIENCE.

Why the Congregation Was Separated on Sexual Lines in Tennessee Mountain Church.

"On one occasion," remarked the able journalist, "I was down in the mountains of Tennessee, where everything is primitive, and on Sunday I attended a Baptist church, where, much to my surprise, the women were seated on one side of the house, and the men on the other. I had never seen anything of the kind before, and after the services were over I spoke about it to one of the members, whom I knew quite well.

"'It's allus been done that a-way,' he said in explanation.

"'But why?' I persisted.

"'Sos to worship God accordin' to our own consciences, as the constitution provides.'

"'But sitting on opposite sides of the church doesn't make any difference, does it?'

"'Don't it?' he replied with emphasis. 'Well, hit jis' do. Do you reckon that a man kin set over thar alongside av his wife where she kin nudge him with her elbow about every onct in two minutes or he begins to swag—I say, kin a man do that under them circumstances and worship God accordin' to his own conscience? Well, not much, nowhar; an' pertickler not in this heie neck uv woods.'

"The explanation and the supporting argument carried conviction beyond all controversy, and I had no more to say in opposition."—Washington Star.

A Remarkable Book.

A Comic History of Greece, from the Earliest Times to the Death of Alexander the Great. By Charles M. Snyder. Philadelphia: J. B. Lippincott Company.

The author of this work has set him- If the task of making a truly serious set of circumstances, exceedingly funny. He has unquestionably succeeded, as he represents it. He wrote the book for the purpose of getting even with the myths and heroes of antiquity who caused him such anguish in school days. The Comic History of Greece is witty and humorous, without being vulgar. About 130 illustrations illuminate the lines from the pencils of a half dozen artists. The book is a truly tickle tonic for the melancholy.

"MY WIFE'S LIFE."

How I was the means of saving it.

When the lungs are attacked and the symptoms of consumption appear, then begins the struggle between affection and that destroying disease which slays its thousands annually. It is a happy issue to the struggle when disease is conquered and health restored. Such an issue does not always end the struggle, but it did in the case of Mr. K. Morris, Memphis, Tenn., who says his wife wasting and weakening and physicians helpless, and then suggested the simple remedy that wrought the cure. He tells the story thus:

"Seven years ago, my wife had a severe attack of lung trouble which the physicians pronounced consumption. The cough was extremely distressing, especially at night, and was frequently attended with the spitting of blood. The doctors being unable to help her, I induced her to try Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and was surprised at the great relief it gave. Before using one whole bottle she was cured, so that now she is strong and quite healthy. That this medicine saved my wife's life I have not the least doubt. I always keep Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, whenever any of my family have a cold or cough we use it, and are promptly cured."—K. MORRIS, Memphis, Tenn.

The question: "Is consumption curable?" is still debated, and still debatable. It is safe to say that this was not a case of consumption. Yet the physicians said it was. They should know. As a matter of fact, Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has wrought so many similar cures that it seems to argue the curableness of consumption, in its earlier stages, by the use of this remedy. There is no better medicine for pulmonary troubles than Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. It gives relief in cases of Asthma, and Bronchitis, where relief has been heretofore unattainable. It promptly cures Coughs and Colds, La Grippe, and all affections of the throat and lungs. Heretofore, Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has been put up in full size bottles only, at $1.00 per bottle. To meet a world-wide demand for a smaller package, the remedy is now put up in half size bottles, at half price—50 cents. Write for Dr. Ayer's Curebook (free) and learn more of the cures effected by Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Address J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

THE SECRET OF A GOOD DISPOSITION.

Mrs. Pinkham Says a Careful Regard for Bodily Health Makes Women Sweet and Attractive to All.

The world is filled with sweet women who are held back from usefulness by some trouble of the female organs.

Fretfulness and nervousness rapidly destroy sweet dispositions.

Sickly all-worn-out women cannot live happy lives. Nearly every woman may be well and happy if she will follow Mrs. Pinkham's advice. See what Mrs. Craig says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and think it is the best medicine for women in the world. I was so weak and nervous that I thought I could not live from one day to the next. I had prolapsus uteri and leucorrhœa, and thought that I would die. I had dragging pains in my back, burning sensation down to my feet, and so many miserable feelings. People said that I looked like a dead woman. Doctors tried to cure me, but failed. I had given up when I heard of the Pinkham medicine. I got a bottle. I did not have much faith in it, but thought I would try it, and it made a new woman of me. I wish I could get every lady in the land to try it, for it did for me what doctors could not do."

—Mrs. SALLIE CRAIG, Baker's Landing, Pa.

That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a safeguard of woman's health is clearly proven by the thousands of letters constantly being received. Here is one from Mrs. W. P. VALENTINE, 566 Ferry Ave., Camden, N. J.:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Before writing to you I felt very bad, had terrible sick headaches, no appetite, gnawing pain in stomach, pain in my back and right side; was tired and nervous, and so weak I could scarcely stand. I was not able to do anything, had sharp pains all through my body. Before I had taken half a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I found myself improving. I continued its use until I had taken four bottles, and felt so well that I did not need to take any more. I am like a new person."

Soap-heredity.

Women who use soap don't do so because they know it's the best. Probably they haven't given a thought to the matter. They inherit the soap-habit—their mothers and grandmothers did, before them.

Women who use Pearline do so, because they have used soap and Pearline, and have found Pearline to be better—more effective, saving time and rubbing; just as harmless, and more economical.

Most people around here thiuk the fruit killed as dead as a hammer.

Miss Lottie Fail, of Covington, spent the Sabbath with her parents here.

Union sent a delegation to Kensington, Saturday, to fish. Results—thirty newlights.

Esq. Bannister knows when and how to pass a nice compliment for we heard him do so Saturday evening.

Mr. Dud Fiunell made a delivery of fruit trees here Saturday. They were fine looking trees and the buyers seemed pleased.

The Newman brothers, Martin and Ed, have taken up a mare, 14 hands high, white feet and bald face, and will be pleased to hear from the owner.

James Gatson, of Covington, came out, last week, and while here tried his skill at riuing wiid horses. We wont say that he failed to ride the horse, but will say his back was mighty dirty before he finished the job.

Stephen Robbins lost $30 worth of lambs and sheep by dogs, and proposes to have the business stopped by killing every dog he finds on his place if the owner of said cur is not with him.

Perry Aylor is a conservative, well posted man, but is certainly as earnestly in favor of the U. S. giving Spain a good licking as anybody we have met. Mr. Aylor says three-fourths of the people think the honor of this country should be upheld at all hazards, while the other fourth are willing to let the flag drag in the dust of dishonor, simply because a few millions of Spanish bonds might be cancelled and a loss sustained by the holders. He thinks if Congress would ride over Wall Street and its allies—Mark Hanna, McKinley & Co., declare war and let the good work of lambasting the Dons go on, a double victory would be gained.

Spring time with its sunshine and warm days is conspicuous by its absence—instead we have snow drifts two feet deep, a busted fruit crop and no gardens planted. The winds whistle around the corners with a regular December twist to them, and all prospects for living without coats, flies and mosquitoes for 12 months to come seems favorable. Apples are scarce and Irish potatoes taste better than they did in January. Setting hens have been unruly and spring chickens are not expected before July, if then. People who want to work can't and those who never did will not if the weather don't get warmer. So it is the world wags and we over here just wag with it and let people who want to worry about the weather just keep on worrying, but mind you, when the time comes for roll-call on the shores of the gentle hereafter, the Union delegation will back up to the trough and take nourishment with the balance of the crowd as good naturedly and as regularly as anybody.

I will rectify a mistake that was in the RECORDER last week. W. M. Baily has measles instead of pneumonia, and we are sorry to say they are not treating him very well

There has been great danger of a flood at North Bend, O. The drain from the ice pond became obstructed during the high water and the big rains swelled it until it covered the county road and was in a great many of the houses up to the windows. Dynamite was used to open the drain and now it is nearly all out, but a good many houses are ruined.

Why is it you see "Reveries of an old bachelor" so often and never see "Reveries of an old Maid?" I think they think as well as bachelors, and you so often see "What wives should remember," are'nt there any things that husbands should remember? I shall try to remember this when I have the good fortune to have a wife of my own.

Walton.

April 10—Promiscuous fishing in the ponds of Mrs. Eliza Arnold and Wm. Arnold has been summarily stopped At Mrs. Arnold's because of breaking down fences and letting the stock out upon the railroad; at Mr. Holder's on account of the playful habit some of the coons who througed its banks indulged in of baiting their hooks and casting them on the shores when it would be snapped up by an unfortunate chicken which would be hauled in and its head wrung off in a jiffy.

The town trustees have indicated a disposition recently to have the ordinances enforced. It is to be hoped that they will continue the good work. Especially is there an earnest demand for a rigorous enforcement of that one prohibiting fast riding or driving in the town limits. The biggest part of our population is juvenile and north of the Verona road seems to be the favorite speeding ground for the Jehus, and this part of Pike street nearly always has a great many children on and the reckless drivers go at the top of their speed regardless of the little tots who may be on or crossing the streets. Another vexatious feature of fast driving is that it raises such a dust which in dry, warm weather fills every house on the street and tries the temper of the good housewives very sorely.

While on the subject, it is in dim remembrance that there is an ordinance about keeping the sidewalks in repair, but a stranger coming here would be inclined to disbelieve it, if he should be compelled to meander over any considerable portion of the town. The streets need cleaning about as badly as any place in Kentucky. Pike street has only two crossings that are navigable with ordinarily good rubbers in wet weather. Botts street is an out and out nuisance, with only a short sidewalk the length of Sam Hind's drug store, having a stepping off place at the lower end of about two feet.

There were exhibitions here Thursday and Friday nights that gave great amusement to the spectators Dr. Jones was the victim at the former in the conducting of electricity by means of a common rope. In the latter, it was given out that a test vote would be made by the audience and it should be a conclusive one, as to who was the most noted of "Lawrence's" disciples in the town. It was set up for a test vote between Jimmie Holder and our worthy P. M., Willie Metcalfe. A tight race was looked for, but neither was present. A vote was taken on those present and the handsome druggist Sam Hind passed under the wire a way to the good. It seems Holder and Metcalfe became suspicious from being asked by so many persons if they were going to attend.

The fruit here, peaches, cherries and plums were not so badly injured as to cause the doleful lamentations that are going up in some sections.

W. A. Crigler has six of the lagoon ponies on his pasture, and they have created much excitement among the children of this neighborhood.

Beaver.

April 11—J. H. Sleet is confined to his bed with grippe.

Two children of Fielding Grubbs are very sick.

Mrs. Robt. Connelly is very sick at the home of her son, John.

R. C. Johnson, of Walton, was in our village several days last week.

Miss Pearl Hughes is visiting Mrs. Garvey, nee Dickey, at Anderson, Indiana.

The Y. P. M. S. will give an open session at the Chapel, Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Mrs. Slotman, a dressmaker of North Side, a suburb of Cincinnati, is sewing at Mrs. J. H. Sleet's.

Little Harvey Coyle, son of Thos. Coyle and wife, fell from a wagon last week and broke his arm.

B. B. Hume and Ed Slayback and their wives, spent Sunday with Thos. Coyle and family at Crescent Springs.

The items seemed a little mixed last week because the week before they failed to appear and the editor put both together.

Rev. W. T. Rowland filled his regular semi-monthly appointment at Hughes' Chapel, Sunday, and preached a most excellent discourse on "The Resurrection."

Beaver had two scares from the fire alarm last week. Jim Carroll's house and the old chapel occupied by George Yarnell being the seats of action. Little damage was done to either.

Geo. W. Sleet, sr., spent several days near Lexington, last week, looking for a farm. He found one to suit his fancy but it changed hands less than an hour before he found the owner; consequently he will remain at Beaver this year.

John W. Sleet started to visit friends in the country, last Friday night. After journeying a mile or more his horse fell, throwing him violently to the ground. We are glad to say he was able to walk back to town and carry his saddle, which he found some distance on the road toward home.

Your correspondent walked into town the other day to get the news, and found that a boom had struck the place, and struck it hard, too. T. J. Hughes was building an addition to his store; C. C. Sleet was remodeling the Gilpin house and having it repapered and painted; J. S. Taylor had been to Cincinnati and purchased a large stock of goods for the B. L. M. Co.; J. C Carr had been grading his yard and had greatly improved the road in front of his place by hauling dirt and stone and filling up the low places. If every farmer would do as much, then we should think that Dr. Crouch had accomplished a good work by his most excellent letters. In the suburbs we noticed Jake Hughes has a new grape arbor; Jerry Griffeth J. C. Hughes and Rev. Gregory, have each improved his farm by new fences.

Hebron.

April 11.—Hebron is soou to have a meat shop.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas Stephens, of Hebron.

Miss Maggie Bullock returned Saturday from Fairview.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Goodridge spent Sunday with their mother, Mrs. Davis.

Mr. John Taneous has ordered a new Keystone buggy through our ageut, Robert Bradford.

Rev. G. W. Watkins leaves Friday for his appointment at South Fork. He returns Monday.

The prayer meetiug will feel its loss in two of its active members, Mrs. Whitlock and Mr. Hann.

Mrs. and Mrs. Frank Gordon and Mr. and Mrs. Watkins were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Taneous, Sunday.

Miss Nora Stepheus visited her sister in law, Mrs. Chas. Stepheus, of Utziuger, during the past week.

Mrs. Amanda Rouse has returned from Ohio, where she has been spending the winter with her daughter

C. W. B. M., of Bullittsville christian church, will meet fourth Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the church.

Mr and Mrs. John Taneous entertained a number of friends very pleasantly on last Thursday evening at krokluole.

Mr. Brack Whitlock has been quite busy this week moving to Coal City, Ohio. We regret very much to loose Mr. Whitlock from our town.

Verona.

April 11.—About one-half the peaches and all of the early cherries are killed.

Mrs. Sullivan, of Covington, is assistant in the meeting here.

W. E. Vest, of Burlington, was here, one day last week, surveying for Scott Myers.

According to the old saying, rain on Easter Sunday, rain seven consecutive Sundays.

Your correspondent is improving the L. J. Riley property by building chicken house and new fencing.

Vaccinate and get ready for smallpox. You are liable to meet with this contagious disease at any time.

Very little plowing done at this time, but should this week be favorable there will be much earth turned over.

Considerable winter struck our burg, one day last week, but no serious damage doue to fruit and tobacco plants.

People in this vicinity have about all been walking through the fields instead of traveling the dangerous roads. We call on Dr. Crouch again for a good letter.

Our friend, Dr. Foster Wolfe, has returned from Louisville Medical College with his sheep skin of high honors, and will locate near Gordonsville. May success be yours, Foster.

We have been having a great revival meeting at the M. E. Church. Brother Haney is still with us and we feel that there is much good being done in the way of converting souls and sanctifying others. May the good work continue until there will not be a soul in this vicinity unsaved.

Constance.

Two more additions to the Mission, last Sunday.

There will be another wedding in town soon.

The boys were all out on their wheels last Sunday.

The Mission will start a Sunday School next Sunday at 9 a. m.

Revs. Knapp and McGiven, of Cincinnati, preached two sermons each at the Mission, Sunday.

Rev. G. W. Watkins preached his regular sermon at the Christian church last Saturday night.

Albert Rouse while attending prayer meeting had the wheels of his wagon taken off and misplaced by some unknown parties.

John Myers and some more of the boys, who have been working at the Jones Desiccating Factory will leave for Pittsburg soon, to work for a factory at that place.

The entertainment given, last Friday and Saturday nights, was a grand success and all who took part deserve great credit for the proficiency of the different parts. The music was furnished by the Holwick Mandolin Club, of Cincinnati.

Petersburg.

Dutch measles has been prevailing here.

Andy Leonard has returned to Louisville.

Dr. R. C. Tilley has been suffering with a severe cold.

Frank Bruce and Alice Mahan were married last Wednesday.

The Workum has a full set of negroes for cook, steward, waiters, &c.

Ed Keim has returned from Tyrone, Ky., being scared out by the small pox.

Harry Fauss has a position with the Ohio State League, at $50 a month, I hear.

H. C. Lyon, Steve McWethy and Wm. Mahan, have gone to Uniontown to cooper.

Irvan Theetgee married Miss Mary Fowler, of New Hope, Ind., on the 2d inst. The boys gave Irvan and his bride a charivari when they reached home.

Address the undersigned, at Williamstown, or any of the Board of Directors at the same place.

Directors:—R. H. O'HARA, JO GLASSCOCK, R. T. DICKERSON, W. P. WEBSTER, J. W. WEBB and R. H. ELLISTON.

Office next to Postoffice in Oddfellows' Building.

J. H. WESTOVER, Sec't'y.

Dr J. M. Grant has purchased J. Frank Grant's handsome residence, and moved there. His office remains at his old home.

Several of the Aurora beaux are very attentive to some of our handsome young ladies, and it is said several weddings are booked for the near future.

Arthur Alloway, one of the pitchers for the Ft. Wayne, Ind., ball team, has gone to join his club. He will get $135 a month and his expenses paid, this year. Success to you, Podge.

Clore's Ridge.

April 9.—But little plowing done.

There have been several mad dogs in this neighborhood.

Farmers are very much behind with their spring work.

Miss Lulu Byle began teaching at Beech Grove Monday.

Uncle Mike Clore is building several wire fences on his hill farms.

At Mrs. Polk Sullivan's sale corn sold for 33½ cents a bushel; horses from $20 to $40.

The social at Z. T. Stephens' was well attended, and was enjoyed by all present.

The horse that was taken from Earnest Walton's barn near Union, was found in the road near Tom Clore's, with the bridle over the saddle.

The Well known Combined Harness and Saddle Stallion,

Jim Crow,

Will make the season of 1898, at my place, 1½ miles east of Burlington, Ky., on the Florence & Burlington pike, at $8 to insure a living colt.

JIM CROW is from the noted Morgan family of horses, tracing back to Justin Morgan of 1792. Jim Crow is 16 hands high, has good style and great power; he has always been very successful in show rings as a general purpose horse, and he transmits these qualities to his colts, as they have also been successful in the show rings

The Celebrated Mule Jack,

DON CARLUS,

Will stand at the same place at $8 to insure a living colt, money due when colt comes or mare parted with.

This Jack is black, 15 hands high, has all the best qualities as a mule jack. He is from imported stock on both sides and is the grandson of Imported Starlight who sold for $3,000. Don Carlus has proven himself a superior breeder, being the sire of some of the best mules in Fayette county, Ky.

I will give a premium in the fall of 1899, of $5 for best mare mule and $5 for best horse mule of this jack's get.

Liberal reduction on two or more mares owned by one or in clubs of six mares.

Registered Guernsey bull JESSON 3662, will be found at same place at $1 for a living calf.

Caution to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur. For pedigrees in full or further particulars call on or address

J. E. ROUSE,

Local News.

The oats crop will be sowed this week.

Considerable plowing was done last week.

Lots of garden truck will be planted this week.

Considerable corn ground was broken last week.

Mr. John E. Walton, of Erlanger, is dangerously ill.

Jack Frost kept after the fruit until he got most of it.

Trustees of the public schools were taking the census last week.

George Blyth is certain he saw John Leopold in Cincinnati, one day last week.

Several Boone county people have important business away from home this week.

The Burlington and Florence 'pike will be in good condition for wheelmen this season.

The Justices of the Peace will keep a sharp eye on the road overseers during the next year.

Providence has made an effort towards reducing the 1898 tobacco crop in this section of the tobacco belt.

It rained, last Sunday, and that being easter Sunday it will rain for six more Sundays, and this will be a good crop year according to tradition.

The ex-State guards at Erlanger feel much easier since they discovered that the order commanding them to prepare to go to the front was a fake.

Miss Permelia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blyth Buffington, who reside near the Aurora ferry, and Mr. F. M. Platt, of Indiana, were married at the residence of the bride's father, yesterday.

Mr. B. W. Buffington, who lives near the Aurora ferry, was in town Saturday. He says he had not been able to find a live peach bud since the recent cold spell, but thinks there will be some pears.

The county clerk issued the following marriage licenses, last week:
Benjamin Bruce and Alice Muhan.
James Rogers and Pearl Vincent.
Henry Miller and Bessie D. Watson.
F. M. Platt and Permelia Buffington.

On the first Monday in April Master Commissioner Berkshire sold the 40,000 acres of Pike county land, to Cortland VanCamp for $900. He sold, also, in the action to settle Simeon Baldon's estate, 33 acres to Nicholas Carpenter for $100.

Dr. S. S. Scott, of Erlanger, has many friends in this county, who are pained to hear of his enfeebled condition, and hope that with the return of spring he will regain his health and vigor with which he has been blessed until recently.

Supt. Vosbell has decided to hold all examinations of teachers and common school graduates, hereafter, at Union. The examinations of white teachers will be held on the first Saturday in May, June, July and August, and colored examinations on Friday following the first Saturday in each of the above months. The examination for common school graduates will be held on the last Thursday in June.

The fiscal court has under consideration a proposition to tear the cupola off of the court house, because the court is laboring under the mistaken idea that the cupola is the cause of the building leaking, and that the leak can not be repaired with it on. If the court house was the only building in the world that had a cupola on it, there might be some force in the argument, but it is not, and it will cost more to ruin the looks of the building by removing the cupola than it will to do the necessary repairs to stop the leaking.

"Llewellyn Davis, 13 year old son of Rev. S. E. Davis," says the Aurora Independent, "came very nearly being drown in a very peculiar way, last Friday. The river which had flooded their home had receded from the floors but the cellar had about six feet of water in it. The father and son were using this water to scrub the floor with. The boy had gone to dip a bucket of water which he had to do by holding to a post and leaning over. He slipped and fell head foremost into the water. His father waited for him to return until he got anxious about the boy and then went to look for him. As he came to where the boy ought to be he saw his little hand waving just above the water and several feet away. The father plunged in and by heroic effort saved the boy when a moment later might have been too late.

The Pendletonian of last week says: "A dispatch from Muncie, Ind., under date of March 31, says: 'Jack Mulroney, with many aliases, an escaped convict from Kentucky State prison, was arrested here for stealing $700 from an Augusta (Mich.) woman through the greengoods game. He had shaved, cut and dyed his hair and was living at the best hotel in the city. He is wanted in Arkansas for robbery.'

"Mulroney is also wanted in Boone county, Ky., where he stole a lady's gold watch and a silver watch from James Cummins, of Verona.

"In October, 1896, Jack Mulroney, alias J. C. Tolliver, was arrested in Cincinnati at the instance of Pendleton county officials. He had stolen a horse from one Collins in Mason county and brought it to Falmouth where he sold it. He was indicted, tried and convicted of horse stealing at the October term, 1896, of the Pendleton Circuit Court, and on October 29th was sentenced to five years in the Kentucky penitentiary by Judge Kimbrough. Before he was conveyed to Frankfort, however, he made his escape from our county jail by prying out of place a defective iron bar, in doing which it is believed he had outside assistance.

"Mulroney, who seems to be an all round crook, is now in the toils at Kalamazoo, Mich. Steps are being taken by Kentucky authorities to obtain a requisition for him."

County Court.

April 4.—Henry Kroger granted license to keep tavern in Florence with privilege to retail spirituous, vinous and malt liquors. State license, $150.

Ordered by the Court that hereafter 10 hours shall constitute one day's work on the roads of this county, and that each two-horse team with wagon or plow and driver be paid $2,50 per day, and that each three-horse team with wagon or plow and driver be paid $3 per day, and that each four-horse team with wagon or plow and driver be paid $3.50 per day for each day's work done on the roads of this county.

Ordered by the Court that the overseers of the roads shall complete all plowing and grading of the roads on or before the first day of July in each year.

Ordered by the Court that each member of this court, including the County Judge, be and they are hereby appointed a standing committee to see that the overseers in their respective districts properly work their roads, and expend the money to the best possible advantage, and upon the report of any member of this committee to this court that any overseer has been negligent in the discharge of such duties as such overseer, or has carelessly or partially expended the money in his hands, they (said overseer) shall be liable to removal from office by the County Judge.

Ordered by the Court that J. M. Lassing, County Attorney, and C. C. Roberts, County Judge, be and they are hereby appointed a committee to ascertain the probable cost of removing the tower on the court house, and flushing over the roof where the tower now stands.

Ordered that the Court meet again on the last Monday in April, 1898.

DIED—On the 3d inst., Mrs. Helen M. Walton, aged 84 years, 6 months and 10 days.

Mrs. Walton was a daughter of Nathan Smith, who reared a large family near Union, this county, Mr. Edwin Smith, of the Hathaway neighborhood; now in his 87th year, being the oldest child.

Mrs. Walton was married October 25, 1838, to John H. Walton, who was a widower with five children. For 59 years she was an earnest and consistent member of the Bullittsburg Baptist church, with which she united under the ministry of Robert Kirtley. She leaves a brother and five children and nineteen grand-children to mourn her loss.

The following horses were exhibited on the streets Monday.

Gex, saddle stallion, handled by R. Lee Huey.

Tucker, James H. Aylor's famous stallion.

Richwood, jr., owned by John Clore, of Hebron.

Richard Hanks, owned by C. W. Myers, of Florence.

Membrino Star, belongs to Jas. W. Aylor, of Hathaway.

Squire, a pioneer owned by James A. Riddell.

A few days since Jamer Allen, of the Big Bone precinct, shot and slightly wounded a strange bird, which he succeeded in capturing. Hundreds of people have seen it and all pronounce it a stranger to this part of the country. It has a long, sharp bill, medium sized body, and long, slender legs. Its feathers have stripes like a tiger. It is vicious, and has given Mr. Allen two or three painful wounds with its sharp bill.

When court convened Tuesday the docket was called according to the understanding at last term, and cases set for trial, some of them for next week.

Geo. Blyth will sell a good bull at his sale on the 14th inst. It is half Guernsey.

Mrs. Aggie Lawell died at her home in Lexington, on the 8th inst, at 4:30 a. m.

Singing, and, if time, followed by short talks on same subject.

Adjourn until 1:30 for refreshments.

2. Organize the meeting of the board and transact the requsite business.

Singing, and, if time, short talks on the subject of the sermon.

Adjournment until 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

After opening exercises Wednesday morning, organize the meeting for further services.

3. A paper by Brother G. J. Jones; alternate, Bro. D. F. Castleman. Subject:—"The present aspect of the Missionary cause, what has been attempted and accomplished." Followed by addresses.

4. A paper on the spirit of missions. "Its identity with the Spirit of Christ." Dr. S. M. Adams; alternate, Bro. G. M. Allen.

Addresses, Singing.

5. Address by Bro. T. L. Utz; alternate, Bro. M. J. Hoover. Subject.—"Cultivation and growth in the Spirit of Missions, in ministers and churches, and its chrystalization into action—in going, laboring, giving, praying.

Addresses, Singing.

6. Address, 3ro. J. A. Lee; alternate, Bro. B. F. Swindler. Subject:—"Past success in the work of Missions, a ground for renewed activity and increased responsibility."

Addresses, Singing, Adjournment.

Brethren of the Executive Board, let us have a full attendauce. A cordial invitation by church and pastor is extended to all.

B. F. Swindler,
J. A. Kirtley,
Committee.

As Bro. Swindler signified in advance that I must do the work of gettlug up the program, and he "would do the approving," I have, partly, to spare his modesty, and partly from the shortness of the time, gotten it up and now he must "do the approving." J. A. K.

J. R. McHatton has leased the Pheonix hotel in Walton, and will take charge in a few days. He will make a spleudid laudlord, and the Pheonix ought to do a good business under his management.

Miss Bertha Abbott, of Erlanger, will be at Mrs. W. E. Vest's, Thursday April 21, with her millinery.

Rev. Fosher preached au able sermon at the Universalist church Monday evening.

It is like pulling teeth for farmers to attend court during this fine weather.

S. D. Rice, of McVille has 1,000 bushels of corn for sale. Price, 25 cents.

H. R. Hearn, of Richwood, has a good 2 year old Jersey bull for sale.

Circuit Court.

The April term of the Boone circuit court convened Monday. Judge Green did not arrive until noon, and the organization and charging of the grand jury was not completed until after dinner. The jury is composed as follows:

GRAND JURY.

N. S. Walton, foreman; John F. Greene, clerk, and Henry Cotton, E. O. Rouse, M. E. Hance, F. H. Russell, W. M. Rogers, Allie Corn, J. A. Gaines, John Hogan, R. S. Cowen, Robert McGlasson.

The charge given the jury comprehended all the offenses, and was delivered in earnest, plain language, and the jury retired to its room well informed as to its duty as grand jurors.

The grand jury as a body is composed of representative men, and while it will endeavor to bring to justice those guilty of infractions of the penal laws, it is not a body that will encourage petty spites by dignifying them with an investigation.

PERSONAL MENTION.

John Lane, of Walton, was in town last Saturday.

John Allison, of Covington, attended court here Monday.

Rankin Revill spent last Sunday with his parents here.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley, was among the visitors in town Saturday.

Judge Roberts and little daughter, Mary, were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Jas. B. Finnell, and wife, of Georgetown, last week.

Edgar Berkshire gave it as his opinion, last Saturday, that there would be plenty of peaches unless they are killed later on.

A. B. Rouse was at home Monday and Tuesday from the Louisville Law School. While here he passed an excellent examination and was licensed to practice law, and was admitted to the bar, returning to school a full fledged attorney.

THE Austrians have discovered another American germ. Two shipments of American clover seed worth $3,900 were returned to New York from Hungary recently on the ground that they were infected with cuscuta epithymum, commonly called dodder. The leading agricultural journals of Austria and Hungary are urging the government to shut out American seeds altogether.

PETRIFIED human bones are made to order at Crookston, Me. Phœnie Finn, a colored woman of the place, serves as the model from which plaster casts are made for fraudulent museum exhibits. She has earned a comfortable living in this way for many years. The average price of a petrified human body made of plaster of paris and clay, and so skillfully treated as to appear to be genuine, is $100.

LORD GEORGE HAMILTON, secretary for India, has reported the losses up to date for the Indian frontier to the house of commons: Forty-four British and six native officers, with 136 British and 220 native men have been killed. The wounded comprise 93 British and 26 native officers, with 400 British and 825 native men, while 10 British officers and 250 men, with 220 natives of all ranks, have died of disease.

PARIS cab fares are to be changed to a system regulated only by time, the course at 1½ francs being abolished. The first two minutes of a ride will cost 60 centimes, the second and third two 10 centimes each, then follow two three-minute spells at 10 centimes each, so that a 12 minute ride costs a franc; 23 minutes and over will cost 1 franc and 50 centimes. Clocks indicating the time and price will be placed in every cab.

IT is proposed by a company of capitalists of Rochester, N. Y., to make a practical demonstration of the feasibility of storing water at the high water period to release at the low water period for purposes of furnishing hydraulic power and for other purposes to which the waters of the Genesee river are applied. It is proposed to get possession of a large area near Portage and on this area store the waters when they are high.

IT requires four years and four months for a ray of light to reach us from the nearest star, and yet light travels at the rate of 186,320 miles in a second. At this rate a first-class express train, running at a speed of 37 miles an hour, would require a continuous run of 75,000,000 years to reach Alpha Centauri. It would take 250,000 years for a cannon ball, traveling at the usual speed of such projectiles, to reach this same point, which is our nearest star neighbor.

AT Peoria, Ill., Linn McNeil has been convicted of burglary. When the authorities raided his house they found three wagon loads of stolen property, including ten hives of bees, three cook stoves, five sets of harness, two grindstones, one granite grave-stone, a half barrel of pickled pigs' feet, 20 young trees, one rubber foot ball stamped "welcome," an assortment of bibles and autograph albums, children's toys, storm doors, one set of false teeth, chickens, hogs and pet cats.

THE state superintendent of public instruction in New York is urging the adoption of a curfew law by the legislature. He says that in 360 western cities that have adopted the measure there has been a decrease of from 50 to 75 per cent. of the arrests of children, and a decrease of from 50 to 100 per cent. in commitments to the reform schools. He says that last year there were 179,000 arrests of children under 16 years of age. What he wants is a state law of uniform operation.

ON the banks of rivers in South America a curious insect is found, an insect that fights its enemies with a natural explosive resembling a charge of gunpowder sent from the muzzle of a gun. J. G. Wood, in his natural history, says that when this beetle is handled a sharpish explosion is heard, and on looking at the creature a tiny wreath of bluish vapor is seen to issue from the body. This vapor has a very pungent odor, and when discharged against the skin leaves a yellow mark like that produced by nitric acid.

A SIMPLE and ingenius device has been patented for the automatic closing of elevator doors. The moment the car begins to ascend, the door on the ground floor commences to close, and by the time the floor of the car is three feet high, it is shut and tightly locked. The door of the first floor landing begins to open when the elevator is about three feet below it and is wide open at the exact moment when the occupants are prepared to step out. Further upward movement causes the door to shut again and the same sequence of operations again occurs, and so on.

WAR INEVITABLE

Except in the Event of a Surrender on the Part of Spain.

The Opinion in the House and Senate Is That War Must Come—All Hope of Peaceful Settlement of the Trouble is Gone.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—There is no longer any doubt as to the purposes of this government with respect to the situation in Cuba. War, in the opinion of the administration, is inevitable, except in the unlooked for event of a surrender on the part of Spain.

The President's message which he had intended to send to congress Wednesday has not been changed in any particular and embodies the unanimous views of the cabinet without the slightest variance or exception. Any movement to avert war now must come from Madrid, and must concede American demands, including an end to Spain's domination in Cuba.

The note of the powers is not regarded in any sense as a protest against the course this government has pursued thus far, or is likely to adopt to secure a stable government in Cuba.

Some of the governments represented in the note are known to be in full accord with this government in its purposes with respect to the Cuban question, and therefore any theory that the note was intended as a remonstance is not regarded as tenable.

At the capitol the situation was ardently discussed among individuals and came up in public debate in both houses. Senator Morgan, of Alabama, said he was ready to vote for a declaration of war in discussing an amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill.

In the house a significant declaration was that of Gen. Grosvenor, who declared he believed war inevitable. In fact the speeches made by Gen. Grosvenor in answer to charges against the administration by Mr. Lentz, of Ohio, was an important contribution to the news Monday.

The importance of Gen. Lee's telegrams were considered by members not to have been overestimated, and the impression that the president was amply justified in withholding his message became a conviction. This fact was emphasized by the adjournment until Monday of both houses.

The opinion in the senate and house is that war must come. Even the most optimistic of the conservative senators have given up hope of a peaceful settlement.

MAJ. GEN. MERRITT.
(In Case of War He Would Lead Our Cuban Expedition.)

The Texas at Hampton Roads.

FORT MONROE, Va., April 8.—The battle ship Texas steamed into Hampton Roads Thursday morning at 7:30 o'clock, and at 8 o'clock dropped anchor with the flying squadron off Fort Monroe. She is fully painted the lead war color and is in the best of condition. The Massachusetts will be down from Newport News either late Thursday night or early Friday morning, and the squadron will then be ready for any emergency. Commodore Schley has not yet received any definite orders from Washington.

Americans Leaving Havana.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—A cablegram from Consul General Lee received Thursday morning announces that 200 Americans have taken their departure from the island and that all is quiet in Havana. After a conference with the president Representative Grosvenor stated Thursday that there would be no change, of any importance at least, in the message intended for submission Wednesday unless there is a change of facts, which was not at all likely.

Margaret Mather Dead.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 8.—Margaret Mather, the actress, played her last death scene Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. While playing the cave scene in the fourth act of Cymbeline in this city Thursday night she collapsed and was carried off the stage in an unconscious condition and never regained consciousness. She died of convulsions caused by acute Bright's disease.

Fruit and Berry Crop Injured.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 8.—Reports received from all over Tennessee, North Alabama and North Georgia show that the damage done to the fruit and berry crops by the frosts of Tuesday and Wednesday nights was very heavy. In many sections the peach crop was entirely killed and the berry crop cut in half. Early vegetables were killed nearly everywhere. The loss will amount to many thousands of dollars.

Thanks to Gen. Lee.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Representative Wheeler, of Alabama, introduced a resolution in the house Thursday tendering the thanks of congress to Gen. Fitzhugh Lee for the courage and good judgment displayed by him in the performance of his duties as consul general at Havana.

Astoria and Columbia Road Finished.

ASTORIA, Ore., April 8.—The last spike on the Astoria and Columbia River railway has been driven and the completion of this road gives the first all rail line from eastern United States seaports to Astoria.

AMONG OFFICIALS,

At Havana, From Blanco Down, the Feeling Is One of Resignation.

NEW YORK, April 9.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Havana says: This community awaits developments with stoical indifference. Among the officials, from Blanco down, the feeling is one of resignation. They are desperate, but they have done what they could to save the remnant of Spain's sovereignty in Cuba. They have also made the best preparation possible for repulsing a hostile attack. Some army and navy officers have real faith in the extensive land batteries and in the harbor defenses of Havana. The higher officials, however, fear that if the point of hostilities is reached and that landing of American troops on the island is desirable for strategic purposes, they will be landed at Matanzas and other places and march overland while Havana is blockaded.

HAVANA, April 9.—Everything is quiet here and the state of waiting, expectancy and doubt continues as it has during the past week or more. According to outward appearances there is absolutely no change in the usual routine of life in a happy, tropical city. Good Friday, with its proper observance, is more the topic in the public mind here than war or diplomacy. From Friday on, all code telegrams from or to Cuba must be translated by the censor's office with the code books in sight.

WASHINGTON, April 9.—There is less manifestation of excitement in Washington Friday morning than at any time since the war talk began. This lack of excitement is due to the fact that congress and the public believe that they know practically what the president will say in his message on Monday, are satisfied that the message will go in on Monday and that there will be war, unless Spain immediately yields at every point. A belief in war brings calm. A suggestion of peace without the liberty of Cuba causes excitement. The periods of great excitement have all been brought about by intimations that the administration might not stand firmly to the position which the country demands and that Spain might be permitted to retain her sovereignty in Cuba. Friday opinion was crystallized, and in no quarter is doubt expressed that the Spanish are to be compelled to evacuate Cuba.

This conviction brings contentment to congress and to the public here. This is shown not less in administration circles than at the capitol. In the departments active preparations for war are being made as heretofore, but it is understood in congress that the government is ready even now for the opening of hostilities. Nothing is expected to happen here until the president's message is received. There is a perfect understanding that nothing can happen to change the situation unless it happens at Madrid. If Spain pulls down her flag at Havana, it will not be fired on. If not, war will come, probably before the close of next week.

MINISTER WOODFORD

Will Not Leave Madrid Until Directed to Apply for His Passport or They Are Handed Him.

MADRID, April 9.—A much calmer feeling prevailed here Friday, reflecting the newspaper utterances and various published versions of the cabinet meeting of Thursday evening.

The statement published in London to the effect that United States minister, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, is to leave Madrid on Sunday is untrue. Gen. Woodford Friday reiterated his statement that he would not leave until directed to apply for his passports or until they were handed to him. The minister added that he had no intimation of his government fixing a date for his leaving Madrid, and it might be taken as a fact that no date would be fixed upon until after President McKinley's message had been sent to congress, as to leave the capital before that would prejudge the whole case.

THE REVENUE CUTTER

Walter Q. Gresham Arrives at Cleveland and is Awaiting Orders.

CLEVELAND, O., April 9.—The new revenue cutter Walter Q. Gresham arrived in port Friday and is awaiting orders. She and the Calumet, a smaller cutter, have been ordered to the seaboard for navy duty. The Gresham was built with the idea of using her as a war ship if necessary. She has a speed of 21 miles an hour and can be quickly transformed into either a dispatch boat or a torpedo boat destroyer. It has been ascertained that to get her through the St. Lawrence river canals it will be necessary to cut in tow sections. This work will be done in Cleveland or Ogdensburg. It may be another month before the Welland and St. Lawrence river canal are open and a delay to await events may be in order.

The Flying Squadron.

OLD POINT COMFORT, Va., April 9.—Commodore Schley, of the flying squadron, was in fine feather Friday, and was confident that his now fully equipped squadron can meet, successfully, anything it may be sent against. He has completed his personal staff, Lieut. James H. Sears, of New York, still being his flag lieutenant, and Junior Lieut. Benjamin Wells, of New Jersey, being the private secretary.

Uncle Sam Buys Another Vessel.

HONG KONG, April 9.—The United States has purchased the cruiser Zasino from the British government.

Better Than Was Expected.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 9.—A statement of the accounts of W. H. Byers, the assigned wholesale millinery dealer, shows assets $85,708.64 and liabilities $65,489.69. This showing is much better than was expected, liabilities having been estimated to be in excess of the assets.

Gen. Hardin Dead.

AUSTIN, Tex., April 9.—Gen. Wm. P. Hardin, one of the leaders of the confederate army and superintendent of the Confederate home in this city, died Friday of Bright's disease, in his 82d year.

AN ARMISTICE

Granted to the Insurgents Without Conditions, by the Spaniards.

At a Cabinet Meeting It Was Decided the Proposed Armistice Did Not Change the Situation—the Message Will Go to Congress.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The Spanish government, through its minister at Washington, Senor Polo De Bernabe, Sunday night delivered an important official document to the state department stating that the armistice which the queen regent, of Spain, had commanded Gen. Blanco to proclaim Sunday was without conditions, that her majesty's government had granted liberal institutions to the island of Cuba, which the Cuban parliament would develop; recalling the condolence and sympathy expressed by the queen regent and her government, on the disaster of the Maine and the horror this disaster had occasioned in Spanish hearts, and appealing to the courtesy and sense of justice of the United States government to enlighten public opinion upon the attitude of Spain. The note also repeats the offer of the Spanish government to submit the Maine question to experts designated by the maritime powers of the world.

This document was the official notification of the Spanish government to the United States of the granting of an armistice and its essential terms. Minister Woodford's dispatch Saturday night briefly stated the fact that an armistice had been agreed upon, but it was not communicated as coming from the Spanish government. Sunday's communication cleared up misapprehension on the most vital point of Spain's concession namely, that the armistice was without condition. The note was received by the state department after the first cabinet meeting and was one of the main subjects of consideration at the second cabinet meeting held Sunday night. Although the Spanish note was surrounded with the usual secrecy of official negotiations, the following summary of its contents was secured:

"The Spanish minister in Washington, deeply impressed by the numerous errors which seem to have obtained credit in public opinion in America in regard to the Cuban question, considers it his duty to call again the attention of the secretary of state of the United States to the following points:

"First. Her majesty, the queen regent of Spain, desirous of ending the troubles which are desolating Cuba, has commanded a suspension of hostilities. Gen. Blanco has been ordered to proclaim Sunday an armistice without conditions. He will determine later the duration and details of this armistice so as to carry out the generous intentions of her majesty and the wishes of the friends of peace.

"Second. Her majesty's government has granted to the island of Cuba institutions as liberal as those enjoyed by Canada under the British flag. The Cuban chambers will meet on the 4th of next May. It will be their duty and privilege to put into practice and develop these institutions. In addition to these Cuba is represented in parliament at Madrid.

"Third. Public opinion in this country appears to ignore the fact that the loss of the Maine was immediately followed by official and reiterated expressions of condolence from her majesty, the queen, from her government, from her charge d'affaires in Washington, and from the authorities in Havana, all of which tended to affirm the horror which this disaster had caused to arise in Spanish hearts, as also the sympathy felt for the United States government and navy and for the American nation.

"The Spanish minister feels confident that he can count upon the courtesy and sense of justice of the United States government to enlighten public opinion upon this subject.

"Fourth. As to the cause of this lamentable disaster, it resolves itself into a question of facts, which can only be settled by material proofs. The Spanish minister reiterates the assurance that his government is ready to submit the question to experts designated by the maritime powers, whose conclusions are in advance accepted."

Senor Polo delivered the document in person to the state department, and aside from the interest in the communication itself, the call had added interest as an evidence of a renewal of diplomatic negotiations, this being his first call at the department in ten days. Later Senor Du Bose, first secretary of the legation, made another call at the department on the same general subject. Besides delivering the note, the call permitted a personal exchange between the secretary of state and the Spanish officials of an agreeable character.

The cabinet, after a three hours' special session, called by the president in view of the armistice issued by the Spanish government, adjourned about 1:40 o'clock. The proposal for an armistice, it was subsequently announced by one of the members, had not changed the situation in the slightest degree, and the president's message would go in to congress Monday notwithstanding the armistice decision of the Spanish government. There will be another meeting of the cabinet at 8 o'clock Sunday night to review finally the president's message before it goes to congress with the changes made.

New Orleans and San Francisco Sighted.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The captain of the steamship Aller, which arrived here Sunday, says that at 2 p. m. April 7 his vessel passed within ten miles of two war vessels, both of which were painted white. The leading vessel was rigged with three masts and the other with two. Both were bound west and appeared to be going at the rate of ten knots an hour. The vessels were sighted in Lat. 40.45 Long. 48.40. These vessels are evidently the New Orleans (formerly the Amazonas) and the San Francisco, which sailed from Gravesend, Eng., two weeks ago Monday.

THE AMBASSADORS

Of Five Great Powers Advise Spain to Give Extreme Concessions to the United States.

NEW YORK, April 11.—A dispatch to the World from Madrid says:

The ambassadors of five great European powers—France, Russia, Italy, Germany and Austria—have diplomatically informed the government of Spain that war with the United States can only be avoided, in their judgment, by Spain yielding.

The ambassadors of Europe have advised extreme concessions to the United States. They appealed to Spain's pride, noble self-sacrifice and self-interest. They meant that she must abandon Cuba.

The ambassadors of the same powers called upon President McKinley in Washington, in the interests of peace as a matter of form. There was possibly no expectation, no hope, that the United States would recede one inch from its one vital demand—that Spain must give up Cuba.

But the powers may have felt that as they were about to use coercion in Madrid it would be diplomatic to make a demonstration in Washington at the same time.

There is reason to believe that the powers have made extraordinary propositions to Spain. They have said in effect that if she should make such concession to the United States as they believed to be necessary, the powers of Europe would guarantee her against war, both external and internal.

The powers would delegate to one of their own number, Austria, whose throne is closely allied to that of Spain by ties of blood, the duty of defending Spain against any internal foes that might arise, as a menace to the dynasty, as a result of yielding to the demands of the United States.

Spain English this means that Austrian troops would, if necessary, be sent to Spain to maintain order and to suppress civil war. The Austrian troops would have behind them the allied moral and physical forces of Europe.

The papal nuncio, who has been repeatedly to the palace in the last 24 hours, is believed to be in sympathy with this programme.

FAREWELL CRY

Of the Havana Crowd to Gen. Lee and the American as They Sailed From the Harbor Was "Get Out, You Yankee Swine!"

KEY WEST, Fla., April 11.—As the Fern, with Gen. Lee and the Americans was leaving Havana harbor Saturday evening, the wharves and boats on both sides of the narrow entrance to the harbor were crowded with Spaniards, who hissed and jeered as each boat passed out. As the Fern rounded to, heading for the open sea, she passed near the Maine wreck. The group on deck had been laughing and talking expressing their satisfaction at leaving Havana. With one accord each man doffed his hat in salute of the brave dead, while silence fell on all the space of several minutes. Gen. Lee being on board the Fern made the boat a target for redoubled hisses, groans, cat calls and whistles from the crowds on shore. "Get out, Yankee swine," was one of the mildest expressions used. This seemed to strike every one on board as ludicrous. Vice Consul Springer, who had been on the island 30 years, waved his hand to a particularly abusive group, saying, in tones loud enough for all to hear, "Wait, wait, my friends, we shall all be back soon."

GEN LEE

Arrives at Key West, Fla., and Leaves for Washington.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 11.—Consul General Lee arrived here on the Fern at 7:30 Sunday morning.

Gen. Lee came ashore at 11 o'clock and received an answer to a telegram he had sent to Washington. The general sailed for Tampa at noon. From that port he will go direct to Washington.

Lee's Message to Blanco.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 11.—"You may tell Gen. Blanco for me that the Fern is the last ship of the American navy that will ever go out of Havana harbor while the Spanish flag flies over the Morro." This was the message that Gen. Lee sent to Gen. Blanco as he steamed out of Havana harbor Saturday night. Lee was indignant at the insults heaped upon his head by the Spanish officials and the populace. He had been snubbed at the palace by Gen. Blanco and affronted by Dr. Congosto.

Asiatic Squadron Ready.

LONDON, April 11.—The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing Sunday, says: "The American squadron has completed arrangements for putting to sea. Two vessels have steam up ready to start at a moment's notice. The cruiser Baltimore and the revenue cutter Hugh McCulloch are expected Tuesday. The British steamers Nanshon and Zafro have just been bought by America for transport purposes."

A Battle at Atbara.

CAIRO, Egypt, April 11.—The British brigade, in the defeat of the Dervishes Friday at Atbara, and the capture of Mahmoud, the Dervish commander, and 4,000 of his followers, lost, in addition to the officers killed, cabled Friday, ten rank and file killed and had 90 men wounded. The Egyptians lost 51 men killed and had 14 officers and 319 men wounded. The Dervishes lost about 2,000 men killed.

Indicted for Marrying His Niece.

WEST LIBERTY, Ky., April 11.—The grand jury returned an indictment against Lee Rose for marrying his niece, Ella Rose. Quite a sensation was created, as they belong to very prominent families. The bond was fixed at $1,000. The clerk who issued the license was also indicted.

Big Order for Blouses, Etc.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., April 11.—An order for 60,000 blouses, besides a number of shirts, drawers, etc., has been received at the quartermaster's depot in this city. One hundred and fifty extra seamstresses have been employed.

Blood Is Life
Pure Blood
Is Health.

Without blood circulating through your veins you could not live. Without pure blood you cannot be well. The healthy action of every organ depends upon the purity and richness of the blood by which it is nourished and sustained. If you have salt rheum, scrofula sores, pimples, boils or any kind of humor, your blood is not pure. If you take Hood's Sarsaparilla it will make your blood pure and promptly relieve all these troubles. In the spring the blood is loaded with impurities. Hence, all those unsightly eruptions, that languor and depression, and the danger of serious illness. Hood's Sarsaparilla is needed to purify, enrich and vitalize the blood and protect and fortify the system.

ROMANCE VERSUS KICKS.

The Lop-Eared Marquis Who Disliked Moonshine Vanquished the Pleading Poet.

She whom I adore is the wife of a fat marquis—a lop-eared, blear-eyed, greasy marquis. A man without soul. A man without sentiment, who eats, sleeps, snores for moonlight and music. A low, practical man, who pays his debts. I hate him.

This very morning at breakfast, he had cursed the fishballs and sneered at the pickled onions.

She is a good cook. The neighbors will tell you so. And to be told by the base marquis—a man, who, previous to his marriage, had lived at the cheap eating-houses—to be told by him that her manner of frying fishballs was a failure—it was too much.

Her tears fell fast. I, too, wept. I mixed my sobs with her's. "Fly with me!" I cried.

Ere she could reply—ere she could articulate her ecstacy, her husband, the marquis, crept snake-like upon me.

Shall I write it? He kicked me out of the garden—he kicked me into the street.

I did not return. How could I? I, so ethereal, so full of soul, of sentiment, of sparkling originality! He, so gross, so practical, so lop-eared.

Had I returned, the creature would have kicked me again.—Boston Journal.

THE MESSAGE.

The President Asks for Authority to Take Measures

To Terminate Hostilities in Cuba and Establish a Stable Government.

To Use Military and Naval Force if Necessary for Those Purposes.

The President Is Prepared to Carry Out Every Obligation Imposed by the Constitution.

The Wreck of the Maine Shows That Spain is Not Able to Guarantee Security to Foreign Vessels in the Ports of Cuba —Spain Suggests Arbitration.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The president Monday sent the following message to the congress of the United States:

Obedient to that precept of the constitution which commands the president to give from time to time the congress information of the state of the union, and to recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient, it becomes my duty now to address your body with regard to the grave crisis that has arisen in the relations of the United States to Spain by reason of the warfare that for more than three years has raged in the neighboring island of Cuba. I do so because of the intimate connection of the Cuban question with the state of our own union and the grave relation the course which it is now incumbent upon the nation to adopt must needs bear the traditional policy of our government if it is to accord with the precepts laid down by the founders of the republic and religiously observed by succeeding administrations to the present day.

The present revolution is but the successor of other insurrections which have existed in Cuba against the dominion of Spain, extending over a period of nearly half a century, each of which, during its progress has subjected the United States to great effort and expense in affording its neutrality laws caused enormous losses to American trade and commerce, caused irritation, annoyances and disturbance among our citizens, and by the exercise of cruel, barbarous and unevilized practices of warfare, shocked the sensibilities and offended the humane sympathies of our people.

Since the present revolution began, in February, 1895, this country has seen the fertile domain at our threshold ravaged by fire and sword in the course of a struggle unequalled in the history of the island and rarely paralleled as to the number of the combatants and the bitterness of the contest by any revolution of modern times where a dependent people strives to throw off the yoke imposed by the power of the sovereign state. Our people have beheld a once prosperous community reduced to comparative want, its lucrative commerce virtually paralyzed, its exceptional productiveness diminished, its fields laid waste, its mills in ruins and its people perishing by tens of thousands from hunger and destitution, so that the aggregate of the misery now existing in the island has appealed to the charity of our nation to an extent exceeding $200,000. In the cities the reconcentrados, as they are called, are existing in a state of forced concentration, without shelter or the commonest sanitary provisions, and hence dying at the rate of from four to five hundred per day from starvation and disease.

The agricultural districts are almost depopulated. Exact estimates of the loss of life are impossible, but conservative calculations place the number of victims of the war and of the reconcentration system at not less than 200,000 souls since the present insurrection began. The production of sugar, the staple of the island, has fallen off to a little more than one-tenth of the usual crop. Exportation has practically ceased. Commerce and navigation languish accordingly. The general loss to the island in the value of its destroyed property, crops and live stock, in the diminution of its soil values and in the paralysis of its industries is estimated in round numbers at $200,000,000. The inhabitants are perishing miserably with hopeless discontent gnawing at their hearts, and the conditions are deplorable even in the large towns where the concentrados have congregated

Seven or eight sturdy young men have gone from along Green river in the past few weeks to join the United States army.

While feeding horses, James Anderson, a wealthy farmer, of Simpson county, was kicked and is thought to be dying.

Mrs. Marion E. Taylor, of Louisville, who went to the launching, was robbed of $2,000 worth of diamonds at the Hygeia Hotel.

Dr. G. W. Evans, of Richmond, is raising a company to fight Spain. Every man that joins must be not less than six feet tall.

There are 35 young preachers at Georgetown College—one Methodist, one Presbyterian and thirty-three Baptists, says the Times.

Buford Allen got a life sentence at Elizabethtown for burglary, having already served two terms in the penitentiary for the same offense.

In the event of war with Spain Judge Thomas H. Paynter, of the Court of Appeals, says he will organize and lead a regiment of volunteers.

Capt. John L. Stout, one of the best known men in Bowling Green died of dropsy. He had been ill for some time and his death was not unexpected.

The wife of Henry Payne, a farmer residing near Knottsville, gave birth last week to two girls and a boy. All exceptionally fine babies and doing well.

John Danke, a five-year old son of Conrad Danke, of Fulton, died suddenly. The next day his younger brother Wayne, aged 3 years, died as suddenly.

The farm of William Tarr, in Bourbon county containing 118 acres was sold at public sale, and was bought by H. H. Hoffman, of Cincinnati for $66 10 per acre.

The vault of the Deposit Bank at Sulphur, Henry county, was partially destroyed by burglars in an attempt to rob the bank. The burglars got nothing.

The Richmond Knights of Pythias Lodge decided in case any member is stricken with small-pox to erect its own hospital and care for the person without any outside assistant.

The Kentucky Odd Fellows' Widows' and Orphans' Home will be located at Lexington, that city's bid being regarded by the Location Committee as the most favorable offered.

William Neal, a tinner, while walking on the roof of the Branch bank of Kentucky, at Frankfort, missed his footing and fell to the ground a distance of nearly 30 feet. He will recover.

Captain Albert Rees, of Owenton is raising a military company to be composed exclusively of bachelors between the ages of 30 and 50 years. He hopes to have 100 by the time they are needed.

The mangled body of Robert Patty, a son-in-law of Judge Cantrill, of Lebanon, Tenn, was found on the railroad track near the depot at Bowling Green. He is believed to have committed suicide.

Rev. John F. White, one of the oldest ministers in western Kentucky, died at his home in Cadiz, after a long illness. He was 83 years old and had been actively engaged in ministerial work for 60 years.

The largest number of prisoners ever noted in the Frankfort penitentiary at one time are now in that institution. There are 1,306 prisoners in the institution. About one hundred are crowded two in a cell.

There is an exodus from Green county, and others are talking of going to Minnesota to locate. Three carloads of negroes left Greensburg Monday for Fergus Falls, Minn., where they will take up claims and locate.

At a church near Vanceburg Roch Newberry put his muddy feet on Henry Bruce. Bruce invited him out to fight, and Newberry struck him on the head with a rock crushing his skull. Bruce is in a critical condition, and it is thought will die.

Dr. Ashcraft, a prominent young physician of Robertson county, took a dose of poison by mistake. His young wife, when apprised of the fact, was so badly frightened that in one week's time her hair was white as snow.

Frank German filed suit against the Maysville Brick Company for $20,000 damages, alleged to have been sustained while employed by that company last fall as feeder of a brick machine. German had one of his legs torn off.

Wilburn R. Smith, of Lexington, to whom Miss Bradley gave the jug of water from the Lincoln Spring, after filling the bottle for the christening, is having miniature jugs made and will fill them with the water and present one to each of the maids of honor.

While plowing in a field near Uniontown, Ky., Henry Jackson, a farm hand, uncovered a slab of stone, five feet square. Under the stone were six skeletons in a sitting position. The grave was lined on all sides with huge sand stones. Several pieces of quaint pottery and Indian war implements were also found in the grave.

Carl G. Von Schoeler was adjudged a lunatic at Paducah and was taken to the Hopkinsville asylum. Von Schoeler is a watchmaker and a sculptor, and has produced some wonderful things in minature carving on wood, metal and other substances. He came to America from Berlin several years ago. He lived in Texas and went to Paducah about a year ago from Kuttawa. He is said to be a scion of nobility.

Thomas Woodward, son of W. J. Woodward, a prominent business man of Mt. Olivet, Ky., has brought suit in the Circuit Court for divorce from his wife, Mollie Woodward, on the ground of desertion. The story of his marriage is decidedly out of the ordinary. Some years ago Mr. Woodward fell in love with the very pretty daughter of a prosperous farmer of Robertson county. His suit was looked on with disfavor by the father of the girl. So they made arrangements to elope under cover of a dark night to Carlisle and get married. The plan succeeded beyond his most sanguine expectations. Tom, who is a whole souled good fellow, and withal very near sighted, found after being joined in the holy bonds of wedlock that he had married a sister of his fiance. It seems that his girl had changed her mind at the last moment and persuaded a younger sister to take her place. The young husband, after discovering his mistake, kindly informed his newly wedded wife that the arrangement was perfectly satisfactory.—Bracken Chronicle.

Mr. Charles Layle and Wm. Kendall, of Cynthiana, were in town Sunday on the lookout for two stolen horses. They met with success, not only getting the horses but capturing the thieves. On last Sunday night week two horses were stolen from two farmers by the name of Casey and Hedger in Harrison County. On Monday morning following, two men, one by the name of Clifford and one by the name of Jack Hutcheson, traded a bay mare to Otis Munson, near Beechwood, and came from there on to Owenton. Late in the afternoon they sold the other mare to Nick Thompson, near Sanders. Messrs. Layle and Kendall found both horses in possession of the parties who traded for them, but did not take them back with them, as they were in too much of a hurry to get back and nab Clifford and Hutcheson, the theives, who live in Harrison. Mr. Munson is still out a horse, as he has not been able to find out what they did with his mare.

The largest snow of the entire winter fell Monday night and all April flowers were covered with the beautiful to the depth of several inches. The intensly cold weather of the last few days evidently killed most of the fruit, all young vegetation, tobacco plants except those heavily covered with canvass and doubly protected, and much of the young clover. However, it is plenty of time to sow tobacco beds and clover seed.

Minerva Barnett has been an inmate of the Grant county poor house for more than twenty years. She has cost the county $3,000, and while she is apparently as strong and healthy as any woman, she hopes to end her days in the county infirmary. She has a daughter about thirty years old who is also an inmate of the infirmary, and has been for a long time. For some people the poor house would seem to have great attractions.

Louis McGlasson, of Ft. McPherson, Ga., is at home with his father at Mason on a three months furlough. Mr. McGlasson has been in the standing army for three years and most of the time has been stationed at Ft. McPherson, which at present is one of the most important posts in the United States. It has recently been made department headquarters and in event of war a very considerable body of the National Army will be mobilized at that point. Mr. McGlasson is very well pleased with the service. He gets $15 per month and when away on a furlough, as at present, he draws $7.50 per month in addition for rations. It is a wonder that more boys do not serve a term in the army. However, in the past when the standing army was limited to 25,000 men it was difficult to get enlisted, but if the bill passes, that has been offered in Congress, increasing the army to 100,000 men it is quite likely that there will be room for all of the young men who want to go into the service. As far as we are advised there are at present but three Grant county boys in the Federal service.

Bids for repairing the court house were opened. The contract was let to A. F. Pickett, of Greensburg, Indiana, at $665, which was $150 lower than the next bid. These repairs are extensive, including the raising of the roof, repairing tower, putting on steel ceiling etc.

The great question of the session was the turnpike question. The justices thought about it earnestly and discussed it in extenso. Finally, on the recommendation of the Judge, it was decided to set aside $2,500 per year, out of the Road and Bridge fund, for keeping up the pikes; the same to be apportioned among the several magisterial districts according to the total length of pike in each; each magistrate to superintend the expenditure in his own district—which is to be $30 per mile per year, if necessary; the magistrate to have $1.25 per mile per year for superintending. It is thought this arrangement will keep the pikes in good order.

MONTHLY SUFFERING.

Thousands of women are troubled at monthly intervals with pains in the head, back, breasts, shoulders, sides hips and limbs. But they need not suffer.

These pains are symptoms of dangerous derangements that can be corrected. The menstrual function should operate painlessly.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20, 1898. NO. 26.

WAR! WAR!! WAR!!

The two Houses agreed upon and adopted the following resolutions after Monday, midnight:

RESOLVED, By the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled:

1st.—That the people of the island of Cuba are, and of right ought to be, free and independent.

2d.—That it is the duty of the United States to demand, and the Government of the United States does hereby demand, that the Government of Spain at once relinquish its authority and government in the island of Cuba, and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and from Cuban waters.

3d.—That the President of the United States be, and he hereby is, empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States, and call into actual service of the United States the militia of the several States to such an extent as may be necessary to carry these resolutions into effect.

4th.—That the United States hereby disclaims any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over said island, except for pacification thereof, and asserts its determination when that is accomplished to leave the government and control of the island to its people.

The Foraker resolution recognized the government of Cuba, but Speaker Reed would not permit it to pass the House.

No war yet.

FORAKER has knocked out the President's good eye.

THE base ball news now divides space and attention with the war.

SWITZERLAND has decided to not offer to mediate between the United States and Spain.

THE roof on the County Infirmary leaks. Does the cupola on the court house cause it?

THE farmer who cultivates a variety of crops this year is the one who will hit a good market.

IF Spain could compel this country to fight altogether on the sea, she might worry Uncle Sam considerably.

THE campaign for the Democratic nomination is now in full blast in several Congressional districts in this State.

FORAKER is the greatest man in Ohio, to-day, in the estimation of the people of this country. He is nervy a proxy for any man orset of men, but always a leader.

THE grand jury inspected the court house cupola, last week, and decided that it ought not to be removed, and made of record a protest against such a proceedure.

THE fine weather of the past week has given the farmers a good send-off with their work, while vegetation has grown rapidly and grass has so far advanced that stock can subsist without being fed.

THE Covington ministers are engaged in a vigorous war on the pool rooms, and they are somewhat incensed at Commonwealth's Attorney Glenn because he will not request the court to call a special grand jury to indict those operating the rooms.

RECOGNIZING her inability to hold her own with the United States, on the field of battle, Spain is exceedingly anxious to have other nations to espouse her cause. Spain ought to have employed some nation to assist here to whip poor little Cuba.

SOMEONE went to the trouble of withdrawing Hon. W. P. Thorn, of Eminence, from the race for Lieutenant-Governor, but he protests so strenuously against the summary procedure that those who undertook to side-track him will have to revoke their announcement.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, April 15th, 1898.

Major General Fitzhugh Lee, Commanding U. S. Army of occupation, in Cuba. How does that sound? If Mr. McKinley carries out his promise to act promptly upon the joint resolution of Congress demanding that Spain get out of Cuba, and authorizing the President to employ the entire land and naval forces of the U. S., and as much of the militia of the soveral States as may be needed to enforce the demand, and political jealousy does not prevent, it is likely that Fitz Lee's official title will read something like that before he is many days older. He has told Mr. McKinley that he wishes to go back to Cuba, not as a Consul General, but as a part of the army sent there to drive the Spaniards out, and his knowledge of the island and its people would make him an ideal commander of the U. S., to send; but jealousy has already been [illegible] in some quarters by the unprecedently enthusiastic welcome given Gen. Lee, and it may grow sufficiently powerful to prevent his getting a military assignment that he could accept. He is positive that the Maine was blown up by Spanish officials and he has not hesitated to say so. His time has been taken up almost entirely since he arrived in Washington in giving information either to Congress or some other branch of the government, and his popularity is growing all the time, but his head isn't swelled.

Most of the Democrats and Populists in Congress sought to incorporate a recognition of the independence of the republic of Cuba in that forcible intervention joint resolution, but the most they could do was to put themselves on record by supporting a resolution providing therefor reported by the minority of the Foreign Committee, which was beaten by a vote of 191 to 150. The majority adopted Mr. McKinley's views; consequently the resolution that was adopted with only 19 opposing votes in the House declares the people of Cuba free and independent, and ignores the government of the republic of Cuba, which has conducted for three years a successful war against Spain. However, as the resolution is as certain to bring war with Spain as would an actual declaration of war, all parties in Congress will now join in helping to fight the war to a speedy and successful conclusion, and in getting revenge upon Spain for her treacherous destruction of the Maine; when Spain is thoroughly licked will be time enough to discuss other phases of the matter.

Hon. W. J. Bryan paid a flying visit to Washington, this week, in order to fill the role of guest of honor at the big Jefferson birthday banquet, given under the auspices of the National Association of Democratic Clubs. He responded to the toast, "Thomas Jefferson," and his speech was good, sound Jefferson Democracy from start to finish, including his reference to and aproval of the course that has been followed by the Democrats and Populists in Congress on the Cuban question. He has gone to New England, where he will make several speeches.

Representative Lacy, of Iowa, got a little more than he went after when he taunted Representative Hartman, of Montana, with having about three years ago said derisively of Populists, that one of them wanted to cross centipedes with Berkshire hogs in order that each hog should have a hundred hams; another, to cross the honey bee on the lightning bug, so that they could work at night. and still another was trying to cross the milkweed with strawberry so as to have strawberries and cream on the same plant. Mr. Hartman said that the words were used by him in describing Gen. J. S. Coxey, whose wild idcas were afterwards turned down by the Populists National Convention, and he added: "By reading the record of the Republican Convention of 1896, he discovered that that party was endeavoring to make bimetallic posoys and gold standard flowers bloom on the same plant, and he might very easily conclude that strawberries could be budded on the milkweed, and thereby raise strawberries and cream on the same plant. But it was also found that a great deal of the work of the Republicans was done in the night time, and he naturally concluded that they would need the services of the lightning bug; and he finds out also that the Republicans would want, in order to make good their promises and increase the amount of food, to breed the centipede with the Berkshire hog in order to raise a hundred hams to each animal. I want to call attention to the fact he went direct to the master of the Republican party and negotiated with him, and one of the results was that Gen. Coxey rode through the State of Ohio, in the rest of the Republican party, private car, paid for at the expense of Mark Hanna; therefore, Mark H[illegible] succeeded not only to his use of the idea of breeding the honey bee to the lightning bug, so that they can be used at night, but also to the breeding of the strawberry plant with the milkweed, so that the Republican party could have strawberries and cream the remainder of its days."

GEN. LEE says the Maine disaster was the result of an external explosion, and that some of the Spanish in high places were posted as to when and how the ship was to be blown up. He does not think that Gen. Blanco was a party to the awful crime. It is evident that nothing can be [illegible] in regard to the trouble with Spain that will please Lee better than being given a command and sent over to Cuba to avenge the murder of 266 Americans, and to do someting for the thousands of poor human beings, who are being tortured to death by the slow process of starvation. Fitz Hugh Lee has but recently distinguished himself as a Consul General, while his record as a General on the ensanguined field is not less brilliant, and it is pretty generally conceded that he is the proper person to have command of the forces in the event of war with Spain.

B. J. NEWLON, editor of the Owenton Herald, who served und er Col. John S. Mosby in the late civil war proposes to raise a company of cav, alry to be composed of Kentucky editors to serve in the war with Spain. Bro. Newlon would better make his company an infantry aggregation, as there is not a half dozen Kentucky editors who can maintain a position on the hurricane deck of a bucking broncho or a stubborn mule, and why should they hazard their lives in an attempt, simply that Cuba may be freed. The editor of this paper will go on footback, unless he comes to the same conclusion as that of the editor of the Georgetown Times, that "some of us will have to stay at home to look after the women and children."

COL. WATTERSON, editor of the Courier-Journal, has dipped his pen in vitriol and is writing some very savage articles, indicating that he is willing to march on Havana at the head of one hundred thousand Kentuckians either armed or unarmed. The Colonel says the bondholders have been dictating the shilly-shally policy that is a discredit to this nation. It is strange that the great editor should turn upon those in whose interest he fought so valiently not long since.

THOSE people in foreign lands who expect the South to secede in case of war with Spain, will find themselves badly mistaken. There is not a more loyal section in this country than the South, and it will bear its share of the burden caused by a war with Spain or anyother country. There is no longer a divided North and South in this country. If anybody entertained any doubts on that question, the war talk of the past few weeks has certainly dispelled them.

MR. CASH, of this State, who started out with what was considered very flattering prospects for an important foreign mission under McKinley, has been let down with an insignificant storekeepership at a country still house. This is certainly outrageous treatment, because everybody knows that McKinley owes his election to Hanna and Cash.

CARROLLTON electric light system was put in operation last Saturday night, and the Democrat celebrated the event with an edition in two sections, giving the pictures of Messrs. Jett and the machinery of the plant. There was a big time in the old town that night.

SECRETARY GAGE is only awaiting the firing of the first gun to ask Congress for authority to issue $250,000,000 bonds. The issuing of bonds will be a pleasing feature of the war to the Secretary, no doubt.

QUITE interesting is the reading of those Republican journals that were so harsh in their criticisms of the McKinley Cuban policy when it was being pursued by Mr. Cleveland. It is a horse of entirely another color now.

Is it strategy thus to play into the enemy's hands and wait for her to gather all her strength, either to strike or resist the first blow? VERY little is now heard of the Klondyke. The prospects of war with Spain have turned attention from the gold fields of the northwest.

THE people in this part of the country are divided on the question of war with Spain, many thinking the United States has no right to interfere.

DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON.

Wonderful Piece of Architecture is the Human Ear.

Most Ingenious in Its Conception and Perfect in Its Delicate Yet Substantial Workmanship — The Eloquent Preacher Extols One of the Great Designer's Masterpieces.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was: Psalms xciv., 9: "He that planted the ear, shall he not hear?"

Architecture is one of the most fascinating arts, and the study of Egyptian, Grecian, Etruscan, Roman, Byzantine, Moorish, Renaissance styles of building has been to many a man a sublime life-work. Lincoln and York cathedrals, St. Paul's and St. Peter's, and Arch of Titus and Theban temple and Alhambra and Parthenon are the monuments to the genius of those who built them. But more wonderful than any arch they ever lifted or any transept window they ever illumined, or any Corinthian column they ever crowned, or any gothic cloister they ever elaborated, is the human ear.

Among the most skillful and assiduous physiologists of our time have been those who have given their time to the examination of the ear and the study of its arches, its walls, its floor, its canals, its aqueducts, its galleries, its intricacies, its convolutions, its divine machinery, and yet it will take another thousand years before the world comes to any adequate appreciation of what God did when he planned and executed the infinite and overmastering architecture of the human ear. The most of it is invisible and the microscope breaks down in the attempt at exploration. The cartilage which we call the ear is only the storm door of the great temple clear down out of sight, next door to the immortal soul.

Such scientists as Helmholtz and Conte and DeBlainville and Rank and Buck have attempted to walk the Appian Way of the human ear, but the mysterious pathway has never been fully trodden but by two feet—the foot of sound and the foot of God. Three ears on each side of the head—the external ear, the middle ear, the internal ear, but all connected by most wonderful telegraphy.

The external ear in all ages has been adorned by precious stones or precious metals. The Temple of Jerusalem was partly built by the contribution of earrings, and Homer in the Iliad speaks of Hera, "the three bright drops, her glittering gems suspended from the ear," and many of the adornments of modern times were only copies of her ear jewels found in Pompeiian museum and Etruscan vase. But while the outer ear may be adorned by human art, the middle and the internal ear are adorned and garnished only by the hand of the Lord Almighty. The stroke of a key of yonder organ sets the air vibrating, and the external ear catches the undulating sound and passes it on through the bonelets of the middle ear to the internal ear, and the 3,000 fibers of the human brain take up the vibration and roll the sound on into the soul. The hidden machinery of the ear is by physiologists called by the names of things familiar to us, like the hammer, something to strike—like the anvil, something to be smitten—like the stirrup of the saddle with which we mount the steed—like the drum, beaten in the march—like the harpstrings to be swept with music.

Called like a "snail shell," by which one of the innermost passages of the ear is actually called—like a stairway, the sound to ascend—like a bent tube of a heating apparatus, taking that which enters round and round—like a labyrinth with wonderful passages into which the thought enters only to be lost in bewilderment. A muscle contracting when the noise is too loud, just as the pupil of the eye contracts when the light is too glaring. The external ear is defended by wax which, by its bitterness, discourages insectile invasion. The internal ear is embedded in what is by far the hardest bone of the human system, a very rock of strength and defiance.

The ear is so strange a contrivance that by the estimate of one scientist it can catch the sound of 73,700 vibrations in a second. The outer ear taking in all kinds of sounds, whether the crash of an avalanche, or the hum of a bee. The sound passing to the inner door of the outside ear halts until another mechanism, divine mechanism, passes it on by the bonelets of the middle ear, and coming to the inner door of that second ear the sound has no power to reverberate further until another divine mechanism passes it on through into the inner ear, and then the sound comes to the rail track of the brain branchlet, and rolls on and on until it comes to sensation, and there the curtain drops, and a hundred gates shut, and the voice of God seems to say to all human inspection: "Thus far and no further."

In this vestibule of the palace of the soul how many kings of thought, of medicine, of physiology have done penance of lifelong study and got no farther than the vestibule. Mysterious home of reverberation and echo. Grand Central depot of sound. Headquarters to which there come quick dispatches, part the way by cartilages, part the way by air, part the way by bone, part the way by nerve—the slowest dispatch plunging into the ear at the speed of 1,000 feet a second. Small instruments of music on which is played all the music you ever heard, from the grandeurs of an August thunderstorm to the softest breathings of a flute. Small instrument of music, only a quarter of an inch of surface and the thinness of one two hundred and fiftieth part of an inch, and that thinness dividing into three layers. In that ear musical staff, lines, spaces, bar and rest. A bridge leading from the outside natural world to the inside spiritual world; we seeing the abutment at this end of the bridge, but the fog of an uplifted mystery hiding the abutment on the other end of the bridge. Whispering gallery of the soul. The human voice is God's eulogy of the ear. That voice capable of producing seventeen trillion, five hundred and ninety-two billion, one hundred and eighty-six million, forty-four thousand, four hundred and fifteen sounds, and all that variety made, not for the regalement of beast or bird, but for the human ear.

About 15 years ago, in Venice, lay down in death one whom many considered the greatest musical composer of the century. Struggling on up from six years of age, when he was left fatherless, Wagner rose through the obloquy of the world, and ofttimes all nations seemingly against him, until he gained the favor of a king and won the enthusiasm of the opera houses of Europe and America. Struggling all the way on to 70 years of age, to conquer the world's ear.

In that same attempt to master the human ear and gain supremacy over this gate of the immortal soul, great battles were fought by Mozart, Gluck and Weber, and by Beethoven and Meyerbeer, by Rossini and by all the roll of German and Italian and French composers, some of them in the battle leaving their blood on the keynotes and the musical scores. Great battle fought for the ear—fought with baton, with organ pipe, with trumpet, with cornet-a-piston, with all ivory and brazen and silver and golden weapons of the orchestra; royal theater and cathedral and academy of music for fortresses for the contest of the ear. England and Egypt fought for the supremacy of the Suez canal, and the Spartans and Persians fought for the defile at Thermopylae, but the musicians of all ages have fought for the master of the auditory canal and the defile of the immortal soul and the Thermopylae of struggle.

For the conquest of the ear Haydn struggled on up from the garret where he had neither fire nor food, on and on until under the too great nervous strain of hearing his own oratorio of the "Creation" performed, he was carried out to die, but leaving as his legacy to the world 118 symphonies, 163 pieces for the barytone, 15 masses, five oratorios, 43 German and Italian songs, 30 canoas, 365 English and Scotch songs with accompaniment, and 1,535 pages of libretti. All that to capture the gate of the body that swings in from the tympanum to the "snail shell" lying on the beach of the ocean of the immortal soul.

To conquer the ear, Handel struggled on from the time his father would not let him go to school lest he learn the gamut and become a musician, and from the time when he was allowed in the organ loft just to play after the audience had left to the time when he left to all nations his unparalleled oratorios of "Esther," "Deborah," "Samson," "Jeptha," "Judas Maccabeus," "Israel in Egypt" and "The Messiah," the soul of the great German composer still weeping in the Dead March of our great obsequies and triumphing in the raptures of every easter morn.

To conquer the ear and take this gate of the immortal soul, Schubert composed his great "Serenade," writing the staves of the music on the bill of fare in a restaurant, and went on until he could leave as a legacy to the world over a thousand magnificent compositions in music. To conquer the ear and take this gate of the soul's castle Mozart struggled on through poverty until he came to a pauper's grave, and one chilly, wet afternoon the body of him who gave to the world the "Requiem" and the "G-Minor Symphony" was crunched in on the top of two other paupers into a grave which to this day is epitaphless.

For the ear everything mollifluous, from the birth hour when our earth was wrapped in swaddling clothes of light and serenaded by other worlds, from the time when Jubal thrummed the first harp and pressed a key of the first organ down to the music of this Sabbath day. Yea, for the ear the coming overtures of Heaven, for whatever other part of the body may be left in the dust, the ear, we know, is to come to celestial life; otherwise, why the "harper's harping with their harps?" for the ear, carol of lark and whistle of quail and flip of cricket, and dash of cascade, and roar of tides oceanic, and doxology of worshipful minstrelsy, cherubic, seraphic and archangelic. For the ear all Pandean pipes, all flutes, all clarinets, all hautboys, all bassoons, all bells and all organs—Luzerne and Westminster Abbey, and Freyburg, and Berlin, and all the organ pipes set across Christendom, the great Giant's Causeway for all the monarchs of music to pass over. For the ear, all chimes, all tickings of chronometers, all anthems, all dirges, all glees, all choruses, all lullabies, all orchestration.

Oh, the ear, the God honored ear, grooved with divine sculpture and polsed with divine gracefulness and upholstered with curtains of divine embroidery, and corridored with divine carpentery, and pillared with divine architecture, and chiseled in bone of divine masonry, and conquered by professions of divine marshaling. The ear! A perpetual point of interrogation, asking How? a perpetual point of apostrophe appealing to God. None but God could plan it. None but God could build it. None but God could work it. None but God could keep it. None but God could understand it. None but God could explain it. Oh, the wonders of the human ear.

How surpassingly sacred the human ear. You had better be careful how you let the sound of blasphemy or uncleanness step in to that holy of holies. The Bible says that in the ancient temple the priest was set apart by the putting of the blood of a ram on the tip of the ear, the right ear of the priest. But, my friends, we need all of us to have the sacred touch of ordination on the hanging lobe of both ears and on the arches of the ears, on the eustachian of tube the ear, on the mastoid cells of the ear, on the tympanic cavity of the ear, and on every thing from the outside rim of the outside ear into the point where the sound steps off the auditory nerve and rolls on down into the unfathomable depths of the immortal soul. The Bible speaks of "dull ears," and of "uncircumsized ears," and of "itching ears," and of "rebellous ears," and of "open ears," and of those who have all the organs of hearing and yet who seem to be deaf, for it cries to them: "He that hath ears to hear let him hear."

To show how much Christ thought of the human ear, He one day met a man who was deaf, came up to him, and put a finger of the right hand into the orifice of the left ear of the patient, and agitated the tympanum, and startled the bonelets, and with a voice that rang clear through into the man's soul cried: "Ephphatha!" and the polyphoid growths gave way, and the inflamed auricle cooled off, and that man who had not heard a sound for many years that night heard the wash of the waves of Galileo against the limestone shelving.

To show how much Christ thought of the human ear, when the apostle Peter got mad and with one slash of his sword dropped the ear of Malchus into the dust, Christ created a new external ear for Malchus, corresponding with the middle ear and the internal ear that ao sword could clip away.

And to show what God thinks of the ear we are informed of the fact that in the millennial June which shall roseate all the earth, the ears of the deaf will be unstopped, all the vascular growths gone—all deformation of the listening organ cured, corrected, changed. Every being on earth will have a hearing apparatus as God knows how to make it, and all ears will be ready for that great symphony in which all the musical instruments of the earth shall play the accompaniment, nations of earth and empires of Heaven mingling their voices, together with the deep bass of the sea, and the alto of the woods, and the tenor of winds, and the barytone of the thunder, "Alleluiah!" surging up meeting the "Alleluiah!" descending.

Oh, yes, my friends, we have been looking for God too far away instead of looking for Him close by and in our own organism. We go up into the observatory and look through the telescope and see God in Jupiter, and God in Saturn, and God in Mars; but we could see more of Him through the microscope of an aurist. No king is satisfied with only one residence, and in France it has been St. Cloud and Versailles and the Tulleries, and in Great Britain it has been Windsor and Balmoral and Osborne. The ruler does not always prefer the larger. The King of earth and Heaven may have larger castles and greater palaces, but I do not think there is any one more curiously wrought than the human ear. The Heaven of heavens can not contain Him, and yet He says He finds room to dwell in a contrite heart, and I think, in a Christian ear.

We have been looking for God in the infinite—let us look for Him in the infinitesimal. God walking the corridor of the ear, God sitting in the gallery of the human ear, God speaking along the auditory nerve of the ear, God dwelling in the ear to hear that which comes from the outside, and so near the brain and the soul He can hear what transpires there. The Lord of Host encamping under the curtains of membane. Palace of the Almighty in the human ear. The rider on the white horse of the Apocalypse thrusting his foot into the loop of bone which the physiologist has been pleased to call the stirrup of the ear.

Are you ready now for the question of my text? Have you the endurance to bear its overwhelming suggestiveness? Will you take hold of some pillar and balance yourself under the semi-omnipotent stroke? "He that planted the ear, shall he not hear?" Shall the God who gives us the apparatus with which we hear the sounds of the world, Himself not be able to catch up song and groan and blasphemy and worship? Does He give us a faculty which he has not Himself? Drs. Wild and Gruber and Townbee invented the acoumeter and other instruments by which to measure and examine the ear, and do these instruments know more than the doctors who invented them? "He that planted the ear, shall he not hear?" Jupiter of Crede was always represented in statuary and in painting as without ears, suggesting the idea that he did not want to be bothered with the affairs of the world. But our God has ears. "His ears are open to their cry." The Bible intimates that two workmen on Saturday night do not get their wages, their complaint instantly strikes the ear of God: "The cry of those that reaped hath entered the ears of the Lord of of Sabbaoth." Did God hear that poor girl last night as she threw herself on the prison bunk in the city dungeon and cried in the midnight: "God have mercy?" Do you really think God could hear her? Yes, just as easily as when 15 years ago she was sick with scarlet fever and her mother heard her when at midnight she asked for a drink of water. "He that planted the ear, shall He not hear?"

When a soul prays God does not sit bolt upright until the prayer travels immensity and climbs to His ear. The Bible says He bends clear over. In more than in one place Isaiah said He bowed down His ear. In more than one place the Psalmist said he inclined His ear, by which I come to believe that God puts His ear so closely down to your lips that He can hear your faintest whisper. It is not God far off up yonder; it is God away down here, close up, so close that when you pray to Him it is not more a whisper than a kiss. Ah, yes, He hears the captives sigh and the plash of the orphan's tear, and the dying syllables of the shipwrecked sailor driven on the Skerries, and the infant's "Now I lay me down to sleep" as distinctly as He hears the fortissimo of brazen bands in the Dusseldorf festival, as easy as He hears the salvo of artillery when the 13 squares of English troops open all their batteries at once at Waterloo. He that planted the ear can hear.

Cats can smell even during sleep. If a piece of meat be placed immediately in front of a sleeping cat's nose the nostrils will begin to work as the scent is received, and an instant later the cat will wake up.

CREOLE COOKING.

How Food Is Cooked in the French Quarter of New Orleans —Delicious Dishes.

New Orleans cookery has always had a magical sound. It has appealed to native and outsider ever since French colonization in this country. One eats very little in New Orleans, but one eats often. The French serve often and sparingly with exceeding daintiness. They believe about the art of eating as the Japanese believe in the art of decoration—one rose in an exquisite vase is worth 100 flowers. So the dish excellently dozen, it deliberately and daintily; nearly with its one liquid, is better taste. a groaning board.

The day begun with a cup of coffee and a roll an egg, if one wishes it. Then breakfast at ten or eleven o'clock. It is a city of restaurants, and he who has only lodgings lives at the chef's taste, at the epicure's board. The flavor and taste of their coffee is different from that gotten north or west of Lake Pontchartrain, unless in the hostelries with French chefs. I watched the most famed cook in the city make it one morning, and this is how it was done:

It had been partially roasted at the market, but she put about two cupfuls in a pan with a lid and roasted it a bit more. Heat brings out the flavor. Into the coffee mill it went, and the fresh grounds were put into a tin dripper. This dripper she laid over a brown stone jar, which was entirely warm, and then poured the boiling water into the dripper. She placed the stone jar in front of, not on, the stove. Only a little water at a time was poured over it, and two or three times the whole contents of the jar were poured through the dripper, for extra strength. The result was a coffee that was rich, brown and fragrant. The cup poured only half full, the rest made up with hot milk. It was nectar!

Snails were served often and delightfully. A salad of them is served for breakfast. The shrimps are pink, tiny and fresh. They are laid over crisp, curled lettuce leaves. Over them are shaken oil, vinegar, pepper and salt. The clever chef never beats up his dressing. He just throws each ingredient over without any mensuring but the eye. Invariably he pours it out from the bottle to the salad, then mixes it all up with the wooden spoon and fork.

Liver is a frequeat dish, cut very thick and served very hot. Very little if any hot bread is seen. The bread is delicious. It is broken, never cut. The crust is thick, the bread is porous, and one can eat the most inexcusable amount of it. New Orleans butter is simply delightful, but never superior to the Peansylvania brand.

The concoction of dishes is entirely different. Garlic has touched everything that can be improved by the flavor, and mushrooms or truffles are constantly used. Omelets are rarely served plain. Omelet souffiee is the favored way of cooking, and sweetbreads, truffles, oysters and brains are often used. Their omelets are made exceedingly thick and quite brown.

Roast beef and mutton are not so favored with them as chicken, turkey, venison and squirrel. These meats are made into a composition dish oftener than served as a plain roast.

And with everything one drinks claret. Not in a wine glass! Dear me! No! But in a large water tumbler, half filled with ice and diluted with water. Your good Frenchman never gets drunk, but he drinks always!—Philadelphia Press.

BADGES OF COURAGE.

The Green Sashes Worn by Army Surgeons and Their History.

A great many people do not know why army surgeons wear green sashes. It is not so much an insignia of rank as it is a protection to the wearer. According to the code of war, surgeons are never shot or taken prisoners. To deliberately shoot a surgeon while he is wearing his sash is considered a violation of the code, punishable by death.

Because of this provision surgeons of one army never refuse to look after the wounded of the other army if it is possible for them to do so. During the civil war it was often the case that after a battle the field hospitals would contain almost an equal number of men dressed in blue and gray. The federal army had the best surgeons and the best stores, and a wounded confederate considered himself in great luck if he was removed to a federal hospital to be cared for by federal surgeons and physicians.

But in the heat of battle a green sash is not much protection, and surgeons were often wounded or killed. But this did not keep the surgeons at the rear until the battle was over. They were often found in the thick of the fray, dressing wounds and sending the wounded to the ren. Theirs was a perilous as well as a noble duty, and they performed it well.—Omaha World-Herald.

The Horse and the Nose.

A Roman nose in a horse generally indicates strong individuality, often accompanied by great intelligence. A straight facial line is quite often found with a high degree of intelligence, but a dish-faced horse is rarely anything but a nonentity in character, or a fool. A fine muzzle denotes a highly nervous organization, while a coarse and large muzzle, with small and non-expansive nostrils and pendulous lower lip, means stupidity. A sensitive and trumpet-shnped nostril means courage and intelligence, even when, as it sometimes does, it also means heaves. A broad and full forehead, and length from eye to ear, are good indications of intelligence, but the eye and the ear are the speaking features of a horse's face.—Breeder and Sportsman.

LESSONS OF THE ELECTIONS.

Democratic Victories Portend a Great Triumph Next November.

The local spring elections throughout the central states and in New England presage success for the democratic party in the congressional and state elections next fall. The most notable democratic victories took place in President McKinley's own state. Three-fourths of the cities and towns of Ohio in which elections were held changed from the republican to the democratic column, with not a single change in the other way. Fusion between the allied forces prevailed all over the Buckeye state.

In the grand old state of Michigan, the birthplace of financial reform, the democrats made a gain of 40 per cent. over the splendid record made a year ago. Not a single important town or city in the state is now under republican rule. In Grand Rapids, the second city of the state, the republicans were routed, "horse, foot and artillery," not even electing a single candidate. The republican party leaders of the state are aghast at the democratic gains. They actually cannot see the cause for it all. Next fall Michigan will be entirely redeemed from republican misrule. All the democrats need to do is to readopt the Chicago platform and nominate men known to be in sympathy with it.

In Illinois the victory, excepting Chicago, was generally as pronounced as in other [illegible] made over last year's record, and many towns and cities have gone democratic for the first time in their history. In Chicago there was a loss, I am grieved to say, as compared with last year, but the loss was not great enough to give the city over to republican rule. In 1897 the democrats carried Chicago by 78,000 plurality, electing mayor and 22 out of 34 aldermen. This year the plurality is reduced to 26,000, and only 12 of the 34 were elected as democratic aldermen. The council is still democratic by a safe majority. This year the democrats did not have the leadership of ex-Gov. Altgeld, who for the past six months has been in the south endeavoring to recuperate his health. He returned on the eve of election to find party affairs in bad shape. From now on, however, he will take a hand in affairs. And this is all that the democrats of Chicago want to know; they will follow no other leadership. Mr. Altgeld is very much improved in health and will remain in the harness until there is not a vestige of goldbugism in Illinois.

In Iowa several important victories for democracy are recorded. Twelve towns will have democratic mayors for the first time.

The elections so far held in Indiana are the most encouraging of all. In some towns the republicans did not cast a single vote. Look out for Indiana next fall. With the fusion idea successfully carried out not a single republican congressman can be elected. It is safe to predict that the democrats will also have an overwhelming majority in the legislature. The democratic executive committee has been in the harness for some time, and splendid work is being done in the way of carrying out the fusion plan.

In Wisconsin the democrats swept nearly everything in sight, notwithstanding the fact that "gold democrats" and "middle of the road populists" joined hands against them. The Milwaukee Journal ("gold democrat") bitterly opposed Judge Rose for mayor of Milwaukee, but he was elected by a majority of over 8,000 and a plurality of nearly 20,000. The victory of Judge Rose was a pronounced one indeed, and shows that the opposition of the "gold democrats" and "middle of the road populists" and their organs is a very desirable condition in any campaign in which true democracy seeks the suffrages of true democrats.

The next campaign of importance will be the June elections in Oregon. State officers, congressmen and legislature will be chosen. Complete fusion has been arranged in every district, and the republicans have given up the struggle in advance. The allied forces will not lessen the force of their campaign on this account, however. They will go right ahead until election night, when, it is safe to predict, there will not be a republican official elected to office, national, state or local, in Oregon. The fusion plan in operation is very gratifying to Chairman Jones, of the democratic national committee. During the days of Clevelandism there were no democrats in Oregon. In 1898 there will be hardly anything but Chicago platform democrats.

I am in receipt of a letter from L. A. Rosing, secretary of the democratic state committee of Minnesota, in which he expresses great hope for success in November. Brother Rosing is one of the most earnest workers in the party. Right after the repulse of '96 he got down to business and the result is an almost impregnable organization in every county. Such work counts, and I now predict that Minnesota, too, will swing into the democratic column in November.

With Ohio, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Minnesota in line for democracy this year, no fears need be entertained for the success of the party in 1900.

P. J. DEVLIN.

——There is a vast deal of encouragement to democrats in the results of the spring municipal elections. From all over the country, with exceptions so rare as to be notable, come reports of democratic gains. In many towns of the west which two years ago went anti-democratic when the party was divided the democrats regained control with increased majorities. And now for the congressional elections. The democracy has shown that it is ready for this contest, while republicanism will enter it with uneasy spirit and divided ranks. —St. Louis Republic.

INJUSTICE BEING DONE.

Capitalists Working Under Cover to Preserve the Value of Their Bond Holdings.

It now seems altogether probable that the so-called financial interests are plotting to play upon the Cubans a most unjust trick. The game has gone on for a long time under cover, but the hands of the chief players are beginning to appear. The plan is to take off of the shoulders of the Spanish a part of their debt and place it upon the shoulders of the Cubans, to whom it in no sense belongs. The so-called Cuban bonds are in no sense Cuban; they are Spanish, and were incurred by the Spanish in subduing and keeping subdued the Cuban people. They are called Cuban bonds merely because Spain has promised to use a part of the Cuban revenues in paying them. The men that purchased those bonds took their chances in getting their pay. Moreover, the men that took the bonds are participes criminis of oppressing the Cubans. Imagine, then, the Cubans being compelled by the United States to pay a part of the debt of Spain, incurred in fighting themselves, while they let go by their obligations to their own brave defenders and the families of the men that fell fighting.

In the revolutionary war, by which the American colonists became a nation, England incurred an expense of $500,000,000. Much of this was in the form of a debt. Just imagine France insisting that the United States pay a [illegible] debt of England again the English, while still in possession of the city of New York and a few southern cities, calling upon the tories under their protection to form a government under a charter from England, and then have that government pose as the real government of the colonists. That would be the counterpart of the antounomous government in Cuba. Be assured that this so-called autonomist government in Cuba is to be used by the holders of Spanish bonds as a mighty weapon, the use of which is intended to place the yoke of bonds upon the neck of the Cubans. The holders of the bonds fear that Spain will go into bankruptcy, and do not care who pays her bonds so long as they are not the losers. They consider it good morals that a people that owes them nothing be compelled to pay them what another that does owe them cannot pay.

It is reported that $100,000,000 of Spanish bonds are owned in the United States. This being so, it may be taken for granted that there is at Washington a powerful lobby working under cover for the preservation of the value of their bonds. This means that the democrats, the populists and all other friends of justice in congress have before them a most bitter fight to prevent the consummation of so great an injustice as compelling the Cuban republic to assume a considerable part of the Spanish debt.

The probabilities are that the financial wire-pullers will succeed, being entrenched as they now are behind an administration that came into power by means of the lavish expenditure of money drawn from the pockets of the wealthy. The new and purified democratic party is in a position to make a splendid fight for human justice, and it will not disappoint the people. It will object to the Cuban republic being weighed down with a per capita debt three times greater than that now being borne by the American people. In its position it will have the full support of every liberty-loving American.

——When we have done with Spain, the question will be what to do with McKinley. He will drag along through his term the most despised man ever elected to a great office. ——The Dingley bill isn't such a howling success that its author is howling about it loud enough to be heard. Dingley isn't saying a word in these exciting times. Dingley isn't defying the galleries, like the fearless Johnson, of Indiana. He is sitting timidly watching his monumental deficit bill and waiting for the opportunity to amend it to get more revenue, when the stress of war may be pleaded as an excuse, instead of an absolute failure of the bill itself.—Utica Observer.

——Whether we have war or peace with Spain we shall have to pay the cost of getting ready for war, and suggestions for internal taxes are heard here and there. But it is misleading, in the present condition of the national income, to call these proposed taxes war taxes. What should not the ruling political party in congress face the fact that its revenue laws do not bring in enough income to meet the expenses of the government on a peace footing? There should be no humbug about increasing taxation because of making ready for war. What the treasury demands is more revenue than Dingleyism produces whether for war or for peace.—Boston Post.

Italy has paid $10,000 for the large mosaic recently discovered at Torre Annunziata at the foot of Vesuvius. It contains seven male figures, with an acropolis like that at Athens in the background, and probably represents Plato's academy. A splendid border of flowers and fruit incloses it.

A British marquis' coronet in silver gilt was sold in a London auction room recently for $25. Few British peers own coronets, as the state occasions on which they are used are rare. The one sold was probably made for the coronation of William IV., as the hall mark on the silver was that of the year 1831.

Sir Robert Peel, Bart., has not only been enjoined from selling his family portraits and other heirlooms by the court of chancery, but has been ordered to put back those that he had already disposed of. MADE HIS OWN COFFIN.

The Old Man Followed the Design Disclosed in a Dream, Then Died.

When old Evan P. Jones died, at the Methodist Episcopal home for the aged, in Philadelphia, the other day, he was happy in the knowledge that he had carried out to the letter certain instructions regarding his death which had come to him in a vision. Most important of all was the coffin, which he had made with his own hands, following closely the design disclosed to him in his vision.

The old man, who was 86 years old, died of pneumonia, after a week's illness. At the time of his vision he was in perfect health, but when he awoke he knew that death was close upon him. He was thoroughly cheerful about it. "It is God's will," he murmured, "and I shall soon be ready to obey the summons."

He spoke but little of his vision to anyone save his wife, who was 18 years his junior, and who is also an inmate of the home. To her he related in detail the strange things which he had seen in the vision, including his transition to the celestial kingdom. It was also revealed to him that he must make his own coffin, and to assist him in that task a complete design of the casket appeared to him.

It was composed of two kinds of wood, used in certain proportions, and the lid and sides of the casket were elaborated as he had never seen one in his life. Fantastic designs of peculiar but most exquisite workmanship were wrought upon the cover. These were done with different colored woods, artistically inlaid, as if by a skilled workman's hand.

Before the vision passed from him, too, he was informed, he claimed, that such was to be the casket in which he was to be buried, and that he was to be the maker of it.

For several weeks, with plane and hammer and the more delicate tools of the wood carver, he worked away at his gruesome task. The other inmates of the home watched with awestricken faces. But the old man whistled cheerily as he went about his work.

The coffin was finally completed. Mr. Jones surveyed it critically, and pronounced it the exact counterpart of the one which had appeared to him in his vision. It was really an exquisite piece of workmanship, with its delicate tracery and carvings. The old cabinet maker was buried in the casket of his own making.—N. Y. Herald.

The Scientific Woman.

While waiting for a train in one of the union loop stations a few days ago two women were discussing the use of the third rail. One never had learned that such a rail was used on the electric elevated roads, while the other seemed surprised at her ignorance, and at once explained.

"You see," she said, "there is so much danger of these trains being thrown from the tracks while whipping around curves. Now, if you will notice, when the train approaches, you will see a hook which extends over that rail, and in the event of the cars tipping up they are immediately drawn into position by this contrivance, thus preventing so much danger to life."

"How silly I am," said the other. "Anybody should have known what it was for."—Chicago Journal.

As many as 10,000 quarts of strawberries have been grown on an acre. A plat 50 feet square will produce more than 600 quarts, in the same proportion. It is not every grower who secure 5,000 quarts per acre, but a garden plat can be made to give a larger proportionnte yield than a field.

Many female moths have only rudimentary wings and pupate in the ground. They have to climb the trees to lay their eggs. For this reason several of our destructive moths can be kept off the fruit trees by a slight application of tar and grease. The canker worm and tussock moth are cases in point.

Apple trees are allowed to grow too much wood and are not cut back sufficiently in some orchards. One of the leading horticulturists states that a large apple tree requires more room than a forest tree, and in some cases it may be necessary to cut away three-fourths of each tree, so as to afford plenty of room for all and admit air and sunlight.

THE CAUSE OF DYSPEPSIA.

From the Republican, Scranton, Pa.

The primary cause of dyspepsia is lack of vitality; the absence of nerve force; the loss of the life-sustaining elements of the blood. No organ can properly perform its function when the source of nutriment fails. When the stomach is robbed of the nourishment demanded by nature, assimilation ceases, unnatural gases are generated; the entire system responds to the discord.

A practical illustration of the symptoms and torture of dyspepsia is furnished by the case of Joseph T. Vandyke, 440 Hickory St., Scranton, Pa.

In telling his story, Mr. Vandyke says:

"Five years ago I was afflicted with a trouble of the stomach, which was very aggravating. I had no appetite, could not enjoy myself at any time, and especially was the trouble severe when I awoke in the morning. I did not know what the ailment was, but it became speedily worse, and I was in constant misery.

In Misery.

"I called in my family physician, and he diagnosed the case as catarrh of the stomach. He prescribed for me and I had his prescription filled. I took nearly all the medicine, but still the trouble began to grow worse, and I felt that my condition was hopeless. I tried several remedies recommended by my friends but without benefit. After I had been suffering several months, Frank Campbell, also a resident of this city, urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

"He finally persuaded me to buy a box and I began to use the pills according to directions. Before I had taken the second box I began to feel relieved, and after taking a few more boxes, I considered myself restored to health. The pills gave me new life, strength, ambition and happiness.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure dyspepsia by restoring to the blood the requisite constituents of life, by renewing the nerve force and enabling the stomach to promptly and properly assimilate the food. These pills are a specific for all diseases having their origination in impoverished blood or disordered nerves. They contain every element requisite to general nutrition, to restore strength to the weak, good health to the ailing.

Supreme Court Sustains the Foot-Ease Trade-mark.

Justice Laughlin, in Supreme Court, Buffalo, has just ordered a permanent injunction, with costs, and a full accounting of sales, in the issue against Paul R. Hudson, the manufacturer of the foot powder called "Dr. Clark's Foot Powder," and also against a retail dealer of Brooklyn, restraining them from making or selling the Dr. Clark's Foot Powder, which is declared, in the decision of the Court, an imitation and infringement of "Foot-Ease," the powder to shake into your shoes, now so largely advertised and sold all over the country. Allen S. Olmsted, of Le Roy, N. Y., is the owner of the trademark "Foot-Ease," and he is the first individual who ever advertised a foot powder extensively over the country. He will send a sample Free, to anyone who writes him for it. The decision in this case upholds his trade mark and renders all parties liable who fraudulently attempt to profit by the extensive "Foot-Ease" advertising, in placing upon the market a spurious and similar appearing preparation, labeled and put up in envelopes and boxes like Foot-Ease. Similar suits will be brought against others who are now infringing on the Foot-Ease trademark and common law rights.

PROMPTLY MET.

The Boisterous Bully Was Gently But Effectively Called Down.

There was a big, coarse-voiced fellow, with red face, a superfluity of beef about his head and an insatiable desire to hear himself talk that was nicely come up with in a barber shop the other day. He was flashily dressed and seemed aggrieved that every man employed in the place did not rush to help him get ready for the chair. He had assurance in having himself brought down to the condition for being shaved, declining to handle anything from his hat to his collar and necktie.

While being lathered and shaved he told boisterously and profanely about the degeneracy of the times. Men who had to earn their living didn't know their places and acted as though they were just as good as those who hired them. The greatest mistake this country had ever made was when it did away with slavery instead of extending it to every state and territory in the union.

After he had insisted upon half a dozen additions and extra touches from the knight of the strop the big man stepped from the chair and produced a fat pocketbook, while still holding forth in his offensive vein.

"Nevah mine dat," said the proprietor, who had known life on the plantation in the old days. "We don' make no chag'e fo' talkin' de bris'les off of an mals like you."

The bully was about to break loose like an unbearable eyelene of destruction, but he saw half a dozen barbers about him, each one whetting a razor on the palm of his hand and looking solemn.

"How do you make money at that price?" he asked with a sickly grin.

"We make it often ge'mer, sah," and it was a wonderful to see how soon the big man was dressed and away.—Detroit Free Press.

FIBROID TUMOR CONQUERED.

Expelled by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Strong Statement from Mrs. B. A. Lombard.

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Fibroid Tumor.

The growth of these tumors is so sly that frequently their presence is not suspected until they are far advanced.

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive menstruation accompanied by unusual pain extending from the ovaries down the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation; secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., will give you her advice free of all charge if you will write her about yourself. Your letter will be seen by women only, and you need have no hesitation about being perfectly frank.

Read what Mrs. B. A. Lombard, Box 71, Westdale, Mass., says:

"I have reason to think that I would not be here now if it had not been for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cured me of a fibroid tumor in my womb. Doctors could do nothing for me, and they could not cure me at the hospital. I will tell you about it. I had been in my usual health, but had worked quite hard. When my monthly period came on I flowed very badly. The doctor gave me medicine, but it did me no good. He said the flow must be stopped if possible, and he must find the cause of my trouble. Upon examination he found there was a fibroid tumor in my womb, and gave me treatment without any benefit whatever. About that time a lady called on me and recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; said she owed her life to it. I said I would try it, and did. Soon after the flow became more natural and regular. I still continued taking the Compound for some time. Then the doctor made an examination again, and found everything all right. The tumor had passed away, and that dull ache was gone."

BLOOD POISONING.

A Nurse's Experience.

She'd rather have one than three.

There are thousands of people suffering from blood poisoning who have almost beggared themselves in buying medicines from which they have obtained no help. There are thousands of others who first or last have tried Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla and found perfect healing. One of these others, Mrs. A. F. Taylor, of Englevale, N. Dak. relates the following experience:

"About two years ago, I nursed a lady who was suffering (and finally died) from blood poisoning. I must have contracted the disease from her; for shortly after her death, I had four large sores or ulcers break out on my person. I doctored for a long time, both by external application and with various blood medicines; but, in spite of all that I could do, the sores would not heal. They were obstinate, very painful, annoying, and only getting worse all the time. At last, I purchased six bottles of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, thinking I would give it a thorough trial. Before the first bottle was taken, I noticed a decided improvement in my general health; my appetite was quickened, and I felt better and stronger than I had for some time. While using the second bottle, I noticed that the sores had begun to look healthier and to heal. Before the six bottles had been taken, the ulcers were healed, the skin sound and natural, and my health better than it had been for years. I have been well ever since, I had rather have one bottle of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla than three of any other kind."

This is but one example of the remedial value of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla in all forms of blood disease. There is no other blood medicine that cures so promptly, so surely and so thoroughly. After nearly half a century of test and trial it is the standard medicine of the world for all diseases of the blood. Sores, ulcers, boils, tetter, rheumatism, scrofula and every other blood disease is curable by Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The success of this remedy has caused many imitations to be put on the market. Imitation remedies work imitation cures. The universal testimony is that "one bottle of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is worth three of any other kind." If you are interested in knowing more about this remedy, get Dr. Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured. It is sent free on request by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass. Write for it.

Love's Labor Lost.

He looked into her eyes soulfully, but she seemed totally oblivious of it.

There was admiration and love in his glance, but she did not heed it.

There was a passion and fervor in it, but it was not affect her.

The fact of the matter was that he was over-awed and she did not know whether it was all intended for her or the girl on the other side of the room.—Chicago Post.

Walton.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Hind were the guests of his mother on Sunday last.

The public school closes Friday evening with an entertainment at the opera house.

Boone Finnell announced his intention of going to the city on Monday to see if Uncle Sam would accept his services in the jamboree that seems imminent with the Dons.

Mr. Willie Norman is fuishing an addition to his house, that fills a long felt want to him, and theu it is pleasing to the eye of au observer—but our streets are as muddy as ever, and no one can, without a lanteru, with safety to himself, perambulate the sidewalks after dark.

One night last week Mr. William Holder discovered that his smoke house was on fire, and was fortunate in having it extinguished in time to save his handsome residence. It was very mysterious how the fire originated, as the door was locked and no one had been in it during the whole day. An iron roof greatly aided in preventiug a general conflagratiou.

The commencement exercises of Walton Academy will begin May 8th, when the baccalaureate sermon will be preached at the Baptist church; on the Tuesday evening followiug Rev. James Rogers will deliver a lecture; on Wednesday evening Prof. Virgil A. Pinkley, of the College of Music, will render Dickens' Christmas Carol; Thursday evening the first graduating exercises of the class will occur.

President McKinley appears to have no relish for allusious to the Maine disaster. It cannot cause astouishment, as the ship was sent there by him only as a big bluff, and the thought of the horrible sacrifice must be rather harrowing If he only had but a superficial knowledge of Spanish history it only required very little to know that the Spaniard's conscience has only a mythical existence. One of our leading German Americans, Mr. Jacob Kipp, said of a man that he did not want to speak of too harshly, "If he ever by accident did a good action he would be ashamed of it as soon as he found it out"—So with the Spaniard of high or low degree.

Our town will find that it has made a valuable acquisition in having the Snider Preserve Co., locate their works here. From a reliable source it is learned that it will erect two more large buildings this season, one 135 by 50 and the other 96x48. These will have all the modern machinery used in barrel storage. Improved machinery will also be put in the old building. When completed the plant will be the finest and largest in the State or in the United States. W. H. Metcalfe will be retained for this season as manager, who says it will take about 200 persons to run the establishment, viz: 125 women as peelers of tomatoes, who can make from 80c to $1 50 per day, and 75 men and boys for the other work, who can make from 50c to $2 25. He would like to know how many hands he can get here, as if euough cannot be had he will have to bring them from the city.

In last week's Recorder we see James Allen, of Big Bone, has found a new kind of bird, and that his birdship had pecked him in a vicious manner. Say Jim, why don't you get that old butcher knife and cut his head off like you did my hand?

The editorial staff of the Union Blade had a meeting with the Independent order of toe-nail trimmers at "Heelers Corner," Saturday night, to get up a war bulletin. The B. M. said it made him sick to hear people talk about the inhuman war methods of the Spaniards, when the same people refused to exchange prisoners during the late civil war, and allowed thousands of brave men to starve in loathsome prisons or die of disease. The scientific editor said he had hated to see a war come for fear the South would be made the battle ground, and its fair fields laid waste, but also said he was ready to take up his musket again in defense of honor and principle, let the battle field be where it would if Gen Fitzhugh Lee was made commander of the southern department, the Southern soldiers would carry the stars and stripes over the bristliug guns of Moro Castle and to victory or else be planted beside the brave sailors who lay dead from Spanish treachery on Cuba's fair isle. The assistant editor said he was perfectly willing to fight shoulder to shoulder with auy man from any part of the U. S., except some, and that some was a red-headed barn burner and molasses-jug prisoner from Wisconsin that cabbaged his favorite pony and gave him a thumpiug for objectiug in 1863. The religious editor said he had carried a musket when it was dangerous to be at home or any where else, and while his Bible taught him peace, he could not hold it forever, and he thought the time had come when peace ceased to be a virtue and patience was a back number, and he would be ready to leap upon Cuban soil with the American flag in one hand and his gun in the otherwhile his Bible rested in his coattail pocket.

The Well known Combined Harness and Saddle Stallion,
Jim Crow,

Will make the season of 1898, at my place, 1½ miles east of Burlington, Ky., on the Florence & Burlington pike, at $8 to insure a living colt.

JIM CROW is from the noted Morgan family of horses, tracing back to Justiu Morgan of 1792. Jim Crow is 16 hands high, has good style and great power; he has always been very successful in show rings as a general purpose horse, and he transmits these qualities to his colts, as they have also been successful in the show rings

The Celebrated Mule Jack,
DON CARLUS,

Will stand at the same place at $8 to insure a living colt, money due when colt comes or mare parted with.

This Jack is black, 15 hands high, has all the best qualities as a mule jack. He is from imported stock on both sides and is the grandson of Imported Starlight who sold for $3,000. Don Carlus has proven himself a superior breeder, being the sire of some of the best mules in Fayette county, Ky.

I will give a premium in the fall of 1899, of $5 for best mare mule and $5 for best horse mule of this jack's get.

Liberal reduction on two or more mares owned by one or in clubs of six mares.

Registered Guernsey bull JESSON 3662, will be found at same place at $1 for a living calf.

Caution to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur. For pedigrees in full or further particulars call on or address

The Sheriff is doing the figuring act on his tax books. He is now ready to receive your taxes for 1898.

Those who wanted to plant gardens were given an opportunity to make an early start Monday morning.

O. J. Ryle and E. S. McKim spent all of Friday night fishing down on Gunpowder, and caught about half enough fish for their breakfast.

Remember that Miss Abbott, of Erlanger, will be at W. E. Vest's on the 21st inst. with a full stock of spring millinery, and will be glad to have you call and examine her goods.

The court did not attract very large crowds, last week. The excellent weather for doing farm work kept many at home who, otherwise would have been on hand part of the time at least.

More stock bills have been printed at this office this spring than for any season of the last five years. This indicates that the business of producing horses is looking up in this county.

Dr. Furnish operated on Joseph F. Weaver's knee, Monday, and removed about a quart of puss. Mr. Weaver's condition, we are sorry to hear, is considered very critical. He is paralyed.

Morning Star Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Petersburg, will celebrate the anniversary of Odd-Fellowship in this country on the 26th inst. It will be an interesting meeting, participated in by several lodges.

It is unanimously agreed that there will be a full half crop of peaches in this part of the county, which, doubtless, will be more profitable to the owners of orchards than would have been the enormous crop at first apparent.

Dr. W. H. Harrison, dentist, will be in Burlington on the first Monday and Tuesday; Union, the first Wednesday and Thursday; Florence, first Friday and Saturday, and Petersburg the second Monday and Tuesday in each month.

J. C. Revill is going to return to the first principles of law, and has placed within easy reach in his office 50 volumes of "Viuer's Abridgment," which were printed about 100 years ago. They have been well taken care of and are valuable books.

One gentleman who inspected the Court House roof says there is a frog pond on the deck at the foot of the cupola, and that he saw several places where the tin roof leaks. He says further that the trouble results from the deck being too flat.

We hear that Ben Beldon, who has been operating the Petersburg flour mill, has purchased the plant for $2,000. He certainly got a bargain Mr. Beldon understands his business, as is evidenced by the output of the mill under his management.

At Geo. Blyth's sale last Saturday the following prices were realized: Sheep, $6 per head with lambs thrown in; cows from $20 to $35; bull, $35; 3 sows and about 20 pigs, about $40; 15 shoats weighing about 90 pounds $48; 3 sows, $21; colts, $15.

Since the adjournment of court some of the local attorneys have been amusing themselves as follows: D. E. Castleman, farming; G G. Hughes. preparing for a good garden; Sidney Gaines, carpenteriug; J. M. Lassing, swinging around the circle; N. E. Riddell, hanging paper.

Bert Rouse was burning trash in a field, a few days ago, when the fire got beyond his control, and 40 panels of a neighbor's rail fence were reduced to ashes before the destruction was stopped. It is said Bert taxed his powerful lungs to their fullest capacity in summoning assistance.

Hamlin, the solitary jail bird, went on a rampage last Friday afternoon, and made as much noise in the bastile as generally proceeds from a fully equipped boiler factory. Failing to quiet him by persuasion the jailer put hand cuffs on him, which he removed shortly after being left alone; but the bracelets had a soothing effect and soon quieted him.

Circuit Court.

The following gentlemen composed the petit juries for the term:

Jury No. 1.—J I McWethy, E L Aylor, J B Allen, P P Neal, Wm. Kennedy, Clark Rouse, Manlius Goodridge, T E Randall, C B Beall. Whitmill Ryle, J R McHatton, Hade Wilson.

Jury No. 2.—Ezra Blankenbecker, Lucien Clore, O P Conner, B F Tanner, Samuel Taylor, J M Powers, W M Whitson, J J Ferris, J F Blyth, R P Rice, H J Casey, Joseph Graves.

The criminal docket was disposed of as follows:

Com'lth vs John Horton. 2 cases; same vs Frank staley; same vs Bert Staley; same vs Hogan Presser, &c; same vs Wm Sleet; same vs Ben Covington; same vs Richard McGuire; same vs Web Lampton, 2 cases; same vs Robt VonGundy; same vs F D Ross; same vs John Mitchell; same vs Martha Warner, &c.

The above prosecutions were continued.

The indictments against the following persons were filed away:

Henry Foster, Claud Beall 2, James Crawford, the Hamilton, Normansville Big Bone Turnpike Co. 5, James Crawford, John Zenker, Fred Prable.

Fines were assessed against the following persons:

Ralph C. Tilley, unlawfully selling whisky, $25.

E S Clutterbuck, assault and battery, $5.

The Hamilton, Normansville & Big Bone Turnpike Co., for collecting tolls on persons going to and from religious worship, $100.

Robert Woods, giving liquor to a minor, $10.

Henry Kroger, keeping bar open on Sunday, $20.

John Andersou was acquitted of the charge of committing a breach of the peace by discharging his gun at Henry McNeal's house; and the indictment against him for pointing a deadly weapon at another person, was filed away. Anderson was not committed to jail to await trial, last week

The jury returned a majority verdict acquitting Robert Nixon of the charge of assaulting Elijah Parker.

Divorces were granted in the following cases: Felter Kramer vs. Nannie Kramer; Hester Ryle vs T. W. J. Ryle; Robt. L. Patterson vs Myrtle Patterson.

W. C. Hensley vs Trustees of School District No. 14. In this case the court sustained the defendant's demurrer to the plaintiff's petition as amended. The case was theu submitted on briefs, and a judgment will be rendered at the next term.

GRAND JURY'S REPORT.

To the Hon. John W. Green, Judge of the Boone Circuit Court:—We, the Grand Jury, would report that we have been in session five days, have examined forty-five witnesses, have found ten indictments. We have examined the public buildings and find them well kept and in fair condition. We find some leaks in the flat part of the Court House roof about the cupola. We would recommend that a new and steeper roof be put over that part of the roof, and, whereas, we have heard it reported that the Fiscal Court contemplates removing the cupola from the Court House, and believing that the same is wholly unnecessary and would be very detrimental to the appearance of the building, we would recommend that the same be not done. We also find some leaks in the roof of the County Infirmary and recommend that they be repaired. All of which is most respectfully submitted.

N. S. WALTON, Foreman.

NOTES.

The following attorneys were in attendance: Dickerson, Clay and Cram, of Williamstown; Menifee, of Crittenden; Tomlin, Dyas and Curley, of Walton; Adams, of Erlanger; W. S. O'Neal, of Covington; Rogers, of Cincinnati; Gaunt and McElrath, of Carrollton; Botts, of Owenton, and Commonwealth's Attorney Gray.

Atty. Menifee is a good fighter and hard to vanquish when on the legal field, but his oppouent succeeded in crossing his troca, after nearly an entire day's engagement, last Thursday.

The petit jurors were allowed for 3 days' services and discharged Thursday.

The term of court that adjourned Saturday was the shortest held here for years. A great many of the cases were continued.

Mr J. W. Duncau was appointed Master Commissiouer to succeed J. B. Berkshire, whose term expired with this term of court.

Harry Hamliu, the boy in jail was indicted for malicious shooting. His bond was fixed at $200, and there is but little probability of his being able to give a loud.

There was a deficit in the jury fund, and the jurors had to go home again without their money. This is bound to be the case in this county so long as the present law providing how jurors are to be paid, remains in force.

W. L. Riddell was reappointed trustee of the jury fund.

It used to be that the Covington attorneys swarmed at the Boone county bar, but they have capitulated, and the Grant county attorneys have taken their places.

Jailer Adams is fully convinced that Judge Green is a very liberal driuker—of water.

Court adjourned Saturday at noon, and the Judge was soon on his way home.

Mrs. Martha Phipps died April 14th, 1898, in her 61st year.

Our dear sister was a good affectionate wife, and a kiud and indulgeut mother, a pleasant and cheerful neighbor and beloved by all who knew her. She leaves a husband, one daughter and three sons to mourn her loss, but what is their loss is her gain, then let us all submit to the will of the Lord and hope to meet her in heaven.

A SISTER.

Sleep on dear mother, take thy rest,
The Lord has called thee, he thought it best.
We will see thy dear face on earth no more,
But we hope to meet you on that beautiful shore.

HER CHILDREN.

There was a shooting scrap at Petersburg, last Saturday night, in which several shots were fired, and while bullets perforated the clothing of two or three persons no one was hurt. No particulars reached this office.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. B. W. Adams is visiting at Beaver.

W. C. Brown has been quite sick of pneumonia.

Johnnie Hogan is developing a love for Rabbit Hash.

Mrs Charlotte Reed is visiting her daughters at this place.

Joseph Weaver has been having a serious time with rheumatism.

Judge Crisler and Daniel Hoffman, of Petersburg, were in town yesterday.

Dr. J. F. Smith was quite sick all last week, being troubled with gall stone.

Clyde Berkshire and wife now occupy their new residence out on the Bellevue 'pike.

Mrs. J. H. Ryle, of Erlanger, was visiting her daughters at this place, last Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. E. E. Utz, of Erlanger, was visiting Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Utz, last Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Mary Thompson, who is teaching at Erlanger, spent Saturday night and Sunday in Burlington.

Geo. Blyth and family will move to what is known as the Judge Baker house, near the toll gate, in a few days.

Geo. R. White, of Petersburg, was in town, Monday. He will be a citizen of this neighborhood again in a few days.

Rev. S. M. Adams, of Walton, preached to quite a good sized congregation at the Baptist church here, one night last week.

D. Beall, of Hebron, was in town a day or two last week, and met with many of his friends from distant parts of the county.

Harper Rucker, of the Constance neighborhood, who has had a very severe attack of typhoid fever, we are glad to hear, is improviug.

The friends of Wm. Casey, of Petersburg, who has been in Mexico for some time, fear that he is dead, reports to that effect having been received.

S. P. Baird, of Carrollton, was in town several days last week. He was looking after a lawsuit against the Citizens' Insurance Company, of which he is secretary.

Gene Kelly and Edward Botts were in town, Mouday, closing the land sale by which Mr. Kelly becomes the owner of the old Botts homestead on the waters of Woolper creek.

C. T. Davis, of the firm of C. T. Davis & Co., called in one day last week and left an order for some commercial printing, required in his business. Mr. Davis is one of the several good business young men of the county.

Mr. Edward Gaines, one of the charter members of the Petersburg croquet club, was in town Monday. He thiuks the croquet season ought to open as soon as the baseball season, and is spoiling for a round at his favorite sport.

William Kirtley, a prominent resident of Boone county, was over here Friday to see his cousin, W. R. Kirtley. In appearance Mr Kirtley somewhat resembles the late P. T. Barnum, but we have never heard of him being taken for the great showman.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Snyder, of Bellevue, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their weddiug at their home, last Wednesday, and a large number of their friends was present and enjoyed a most excellent dinner with them. They have a host of friends who hope they may celebrate many more anniversaries of the event that blended their lives.

Joseph and William H. Arnold, of McLean county, Illinois, were in Burlingtou, a few hours last Friday, being in this part of the couutry on a brief business trip. They are sons of Mrs. Sarah Jane Arnold, who is a sister of Mr. Ed R. Smith, of the Hathaway neighborhood. They went out to Hou. N. S. Walton's, Friday afternoon, and lutended to take the train for home that night at Lawrenceburg.

Mrs. C. H. Ashley, of Florence, made the RECORDER a brief but very pleasant call a few days since. Mrs. Ashley is a sister of Mrs. Mary Runyan, of this place, and Hon. Milton Hamilton, of Scott county. She is an old citizen of this county, and she has many souvenirs of the distant past, and which she values very highly, among them being her invitation to the wedding of Mr. Arthur Blyth and Miss Sarah Hughes, May 29th, 1839. The invitation is in a perfect state of preservation, and was written by a neat scribe.

R. K. Aylor, of the Waterloo neighborhood, tells the following good joke on himself: When it became evident that one night, week before last it was going to be cold enough to endanger young and tender vegetation, he began trying to devise some plan for protecting a bed of very promising tobacco plants, an decided that the carpet on the kitchen floor was exactly what the emergency required. After considerable persuation on his part, Mrs. Aylor, with assurance that the carpet should not be injured, agreed that it might be taken up and used to cover the plant bed. The carpet was carefully spread over the bed, and just before he retired that night Mr. Aylor reported to his wife, after an investigation, that the weather was growing quite cold, and proceeded to congratulate himself on having provided his tobacco plants with perfect protection, and the rantankerous polar breeze that swept the country that night did not disturb his slumbers because of the annihilation of his tobacco plants. Some time the next day, after the blizzard had subsided, and all nature was enjoying Old Sol's nourishing rays, Mr. Aylor went forth to unrobe the plant bed and return the carpet according to promise. When he arrived at the bed the spectacle that greeted him paralyzed his organs of speech, and he could not do the subject justice. It at first occurred to him that a Spanish mine had been exploded under the plant bed, and he was about to issue a proclamation of war, when he concluded he would better make an investigation and fix the responsibility for the wreck that lay before him. An investigation was made, and the responsibility for the destruction of the carpet and plant bed was fixed on a squad of a neighbor's hogs that had chanced to pass that way. And now Mr. Aylor has no tobacco plants, and his wife is minus a kitchen carpet.

THE cabinet with which the President surrounded himself is not composed of men whose stesmanship meet the requirements of the stirring events of the times, not even with their free access to Senator Hanna's storehouse of wisdom are they able to keep the ship of State out of dangerous chanels. When John Sherman was assigned to a back seat the country recognized that its expectations were not to be realized.

An English syndicate has bought the extensive Maine sardine factories and will retain the old Italian labels.

One of the states has passed a law fixing a penalty of 18 months in prison for deception in a horse trade. Justice may yet descend upon the umbrella borrower.

Two itinerant umbrella menders in Pennsylvania have received $4,000 for the repair of damaged ribs. They were struck by an engine and the ribs were their own.

In Spain's population of 19,000,000 nearly 8,000,000 report "no occupation," 100,000 are registered beggars, and two-thirds of the whole number can neither read nor write.

The kaiser's navy bill went through the reichstag by a vote of 212 to 139 and in the next seven years Germany will spend $82,750,000 on its navy. Old Neptune will be very much in the swim during the first decade of the new century.

Thomas A. Edison is said to believe in the telectroscope, which is said to transmit the image of an object to any distance in colors, and when Edison believes in anything in this line it is a good time for the rest of us to fall right in with him and take it as a matter of course.

The United States government, through the weather bureau, is to make an attempt to secure statistics in regard to the number of houses struck by lightning during a year, the loss sustained, the circumstances surrounding the case and such other data as will be of use to the government.

The most awkward man in the world without doubt lives in Tennessee. He recently shot a dog, and in explaining the accident to the dog's owner shot him. Later in showing how the tragedy occurred he shot the coroner. He has been liberated now for fear he will try to explain it to some one else.

"Men who marry cooks," is the subject of an article in an exchange. However, there is never any certainty about this until after marriage. Many a man has thought he was marrying a cook and has found out later that she was nothing but a cooking-school graduate, which, of course, is an entirely different thing.

Henry and Richard Clark are employed by the United States government as mail carriers from Ashville, Ala., to towns located in the mountains. They are brothers and both are stone blind. They go different routes and over very rough country, still no one guides them, and they trust entirely to the intelligence of their horses.

The argonauts of '49 were afraid to erect two-story buildings in California because of the frequent earthquakes. Exemption from them of late years has led to the erection of sky-scrapers in San Francisco. These big buildings have recently passed through their first experience in a genuine shake, and from all accounts they have passed through it very creditably.

Miss Fuller, a newspaper woman, has lately been appointed harbor mistress of Tacoma, Wash. It is said that thus far she has done remarkably good work, keeping all records pertaining to the extensive shipping business of the city in perfect shape. She has made out the harbor master's report for the year, the first report of the kind ever made out by an American woman.

In 164 of the most important post offices of this country the department has placed stamp canceling machines, and others are being added. These machines are not owned by the department, but are rented from the factory making them. A rental of $250 a year is paid for the use of each machine. Each machine saves the expense of a boy to do the canceling, at a salary of $900 a year, and does it better.

What is the Chinaman's loss is mankind's gain. It is a good thing for the world that the vast area known as the Chinese empire is gradually passing into foreign hands. Its resources are immense and must be developed. The Mongolian has held out against the onward sweep of progress as long as he can. He must stand aside for those who are more capable. It is rather sad to see his country taken away from him; but sympathetic considerations do not influence the workings of that law known as "The survival of the fittest."

INTERVENTION

House Passes Resolutions Authorizing the President to Use the Army and Naval Forces

FOR THE PURPOSE OF STOPPING WAR

On the Island of Cuba, and in Driving the Spaniards From Off of American Soil.

Similar Resolutions Introduced in the Senate—Will Likely Be Acted Upon Thursday—Cuban Independence Not Recognized.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—The following is the majority resolutions reported to the senate by Senator Davis immediately upon the convening of the senate at noon Wednesday:

Whereas, The abhorrent conditions which have existed for more than three years in the island of Cuba, so near our own borders, have shocked the moral sense of the people of the United States, have been a disgrace to Christian civilization, culminating, as they have, in the destruction of a United States battle ship, with 266 of its officers and crew, while on a friendly visit in the harbor of Havana, and can not longer be endured, as has been set forth by the president of the United States, in his message to congress of April 11, 1898, upon which the action of congress was invited: Therefore,

Resolved, First. That the people of the island of Cuba are and of right ought to be, free and independent.

UNCLE SAM--Don't be Afraid, Little Gal, I'll Protect You.

Second. That it is the duty of the United States to demand, and the government of the United States does hereby demand, that the government of Spain at once relinquish its authority and government in the island of Cuba and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters.

Third. That the president of the United States be and hereby is directed and empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States and call into the actual service of the United States the militia of the several states to such extent as may be necessary to carry these resolutions into effect.

The house was in a furore of excitement during the preliminary business. No attention was paid to it. The members crowded about Mr. Adams, acting chairman of the foreign affairs committee, who brought over the printed copy of the senate resolutions and read them aloud to half a hundred members in the main aisles.

The democratic members of the house foreign affairs committee have refused to join with the republicans on the resolutions drafted by them, and it is stated will report minority resolutions calling for immediate recognition of the present Cuban republic.

The report of the senate committee on foreign relations on the Cuban situation was made by Senator Davis, chairman of that committee, and was a very thorough review of the entire situation, and a strong presentation of the facts which has led the committee to its conclusions. The report takes up the Maine disaster as the leading topic for consideration and plunges into that question in its first sentence, which is as follows: "The destruction of the United States battle ship Maine of two of her officers and of 264 of her crew in the harbor of Havana, on the night of February 15, 1898, excited to an unprecedented degree the compassion and resentment of the American people."

Continuing, the report says: "Manifestations of that resentment were suspended, although the feeling was not allayed, by the self-restraint of our people, who determined to hold their judgment in suspense concerning their ultimate action until an official investigation should disclose the cause of that great disaster and enable them to direct or circumstantial testimony to impute the responsibility therefor.

"That investigation had been made. It was conducted with judicial thoroughness and deliberation. The difficulty of demonstrating by conclusive proof the efficient personal cause of that sinister event was the usual one of exposing plotted and mysterious crimes. No such difficulty, however, obscures its official and responsible cause."

The committee say that the explosion itself of the Maine was linked with a series of precedent transactions which can not in reason be disconnected from it.

"With animus by Spain so plainly apparent that no one can even plausibly deny its existence, but one reason for the conclusion of the investigating mind must come in considering the entire subject of the relations of the United States with that government. It is the opinion of your committee that the destruction of the Maine was compassed either by the official act of the Spanish authorities or was made possible by a negligence on their part so willing and gross as to be equivalent in culpability to positive criminal action."

"When property and life are destroyed by an act which the exercise of due diligence by the person whose duty it is to use it could have prevented the happening of such an event is sufficient proof that that diligence was not employed."

"The time of the explosions," says the report, "must have been calculated for the moment when the Maine should swing within the destructive radius of the mine."

Concluding this portion of its presentation the committee says: "The duplicity, perfidy and cruelty of the Spanish character, as they always have been, demonstrated still to continue by their manifestations during the present war in Cuba. All these circumstances considered cumulatively, warrant the conclusion that the destruction of the Maine was compassed either by the official act of the Spanish authorities (and the ascertainment of the particular persons is not material) or was made possible by a negligence on their part so willing and gross as to be equivalent in culpability to positive criminal action."

Senator Turpie presented the report of the minority of the committee as follows:

The undersigned members of the committee on foreign relations cordially concur in the report made upon the Cuban resolutions, but we favor the immediate recognition of the republic of Cuba as organized in that island, as a free, independent and sovereign power among the nations of the world.

It was signed by Senators Turpie, Mills, Daniel and Foraker.

The reading of the report occupied 47 minutes. Mr. Hoar demanded that the resolution lie over the rules until Thursday. The vice-president received his decision on the point of order. Mr. Foraker yielded to Mr. Turpie. Mr. Hoar demanded to know what the pending question was. Mr. Turpie presented a minority report from the foreign committee.

It looks as if the conservative senators would delay the Cuban resolution by debate.

Notwithstanding the decision of the vice president, Senator Foraker proceeded to discuss the Cuban question on its general merits.

All Cuban resolutions went over in the senate, but talk on Cuba continued nevertheless.

At 2:53 p. m., Mr. Adams, of Pennsylvania, acting chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, entered the house with the report. Instantly all was quiet. Members took their seats and silence came out of the confusion for the first time during the session of three hours. The republicans of the committee on rules, the speaker, Messrs. Henderson and Dalzell, immediately held a session to formulate a rule under which the house should operate.

There will be 20 minutes of debate on a side. At exactly 3:03 o'clock the speaker recognized Mr. Adams, acting chairman of the foreign affairs committee. He asked unanimous consent for the consideration of the resolutions which he submitted. Absolute silence prevailed as the resolutions were read.

The resolution is preceded by the following whereases:

Whereas, the government of Spain for three years past has been waging war on the island of Cuba against a revolution by the inhabitants thereof without making any substantial progress toward the suppression of said revolution, and has conducted the warfare in a manner contrary to the laws of nations by methods inhuman and uncivilized, causing the death by starvation of more than two hundred thousand innocent noncombatants, the victims being for the most part helpless women and children, inflicting intolerable injury to the commercial interests of the United States, involving the destruction of the lives and property of many of our citizens, entailing the expenditure of millions of money in patrolling our coasts and policing the high seas in order to maintain our neutrality and,

Whereas, this long series of losses injuries and burdens for which Spain is responsible has culminated in the destruction of the United States battle ship Maine in the harbor of Havana and in the death of 260 of our seamen.

Resolved, etc., That the president is hereby authorized and directed to intervene at once to stop the war in Cuba to the end and with the purpose of securing permanent peace and order there, and establishing by free action of the people there of a stable and independent government of their own in the island of Cuba, and the president is hereby authorized and empowered to use the land and naval forces of the United States to execute the purpose of this resolution.

The members of the house foreign affairs committee in a report signed by five democrats and Mr. Newlands, silverite, have agreed to the following resolutions as a substitute for the majority report. It follows:

Resolved, That the United States government hereby recognizes the independence of the republic of Cuba.

Second. That, moved thereto by many considerations of humanity, of interest and of provocation, among which are the deliberate mooring of our battle ship, the Maine, over a submarine mine and its destruction in the harbor of Havana, the president of the United States be, and hereby is, directed to employ immediately the land and naval forces of the United States in aiding the republic of Cuba to maintain the independence hereby recognized.

Sec. 3. That the president of the United States is hereby authorized and directed to extend immediate relief to the starving people of Cuba.

By a strict party vote the house ordered previous question on Cuban resolutions, thus cutting debate to 20 minutes on a side.

The minority report was rejected by a vote of 90 to 151 by the house. The substitute was defeated by a vote of 150 to 191. Mr. Dinsmore then moved to recommit with instructions to report back an amendment recognizing the independence of the Cuban republic. The vote on the motion to recommit was taken by ayes and noes. It was lost, 146-190.

The house of representatives then after one of the most exciting and memorable days in its history, by a vote of 209 to 19, adopted a resolution which nine-tenths of its members believes makes war with Spain inevitable. It is a fact which was grimly commented upon Wednesday by members as they spoke of the future, that every war in which the United States has engaged in commenced in April, and that Wednesday was the anniversary of Old Fort Sumter, which aroused the patriotic fervor of the north and made the four years of civil strife a certainty.

THE SPANIARDS

Will Repel Every Attack, Direct or Indirection the Sovereignty of Spain in Cuba.

LONDON, April 14.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Mail telegraphing at 5 o'clock Wednesday evening says:

"Lieut. Gen. Correa, minister of war and Count Xiquena, minister of public works, both told me in a conversation Wednesday afternoon that the government was firmly resolved to repel every attack, direct or indirect, on the sovereignty of Spain in Cuba. They said also that they were sure that this line of conduct on the part of Spain would certainly be supported by the European powers, more especially because the negotiations were based on an acknowledgement of Spanish sovereignty in Cuba.

"They told me that the conduct of Spain would be adjusted to that of the United States and that in face of the fact of the continuance of military and naval preparations in the United States, Spain was fully justified in carrying on her preparations. Finally the minister said to me:

"Our resolution at the cabinet council was taken unanimously and we shall maintain it with all the necessary energy."

KEY WEST, FLA.,

And Not Chickamauga, Will Be the Front of the Army.

CHICAGO, April 13.—A special to the Tribune from Chattanooga, Tenn., says:

Key West, and not Chickamauga, is to be the front of the army. The change has been made in a twinkle. The two companies of the Twenty-fifth infantry, which expected to encamp as a regiment at Chickamauga, have been suddenly ordered to proceed with all haste to Key West, Fla. An engine with steam up and cars waiting will stand on a siding near the depot Thursday, when the regiment is expected to arrive.

Believe a Conflict is Inevitable.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 14.—Key West is on the qui vive Wednesday and hungry for news of the next move on the international chess-board. Opinions vary as to the outcome, many people holding the belief that, following the decisive attitude of congress, Spain realizing she has no alternative but war, will sacrifice all to avoid a resort to arms. The majority however consider that Spain has delayed too long to withdraw, and believe a conflict is now inevitable.

Jefferson's Birthday.

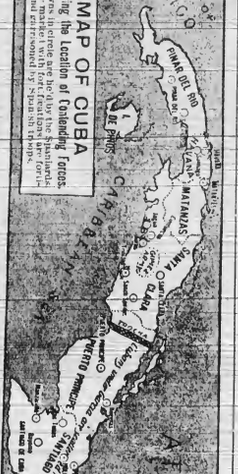
WASHINGTON, April 14.—The one hundred and fifty-fifth anniversary of the birthday of Thomas Jefferson was celebrated here Wednesday night by a dinner given at the National Rifles armory under the auspices of the National Association of Democratic clubs. About four hundred representative democrats from all sections of the country were present, including many senators and representatives.

Students' Naval Reserve Battalion.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., April 14.—At a meeting held for that purpose Wednesday night a naval reserve battalion of 100 men was formed in the University of Michigan. It is expected that within a week the membership will be increased to 200.

Wheat Reaches $1.09 1-2.

CHICAGO, April 14.—The war crisis caused the most active wheat market here Wednesday that has been seen in many weeks. May sold to $1.09¼, the highest point yet reached. July sold to 88¾c, an advance of 2⅞c over Tuesday's price.



STRONG FEELING

At Key West That the Army Branch is Being Neglected so Far as That Place is Concerned.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 15.—While no detail of labor or expense is being spared in rushing the navy to the greatest possible fitness for aggressive and defensive operations, there is a strong feeling here that the army branch is being neglected so far as this place is concerned. The army officials at the barracks here, where two batteries of artillery are stationed, complain bitterly that they are being handicapped by somebody's lack of wisdom, and cite as an instance of this fact that despite the stress of the war situation, four ten-inch and two eight-inch guns for the fortification guns were shipped from New York on the slow schooner Daisy Farlin. Contrary winds might easily have delayed the schooner two or three weeks, but fortunately she made the voyage in thirteen days. It might have been done in three days however had the guns been shipped by rail to Tampa or Miami. The Daisy Farlin arrived here on Tuesday last.

Capt. Morrill, who commanded the post, being short of men for police and manual duty, made a requisition for more, and in consequence two companies of the 25th infantry have been ordered here from Fort Missoula, Mont. With them will come Lieut. Col. Daggett, of the infantry who, by virtue of rank, will supersede Capt. Morrill as commander. The latter has wired to Washington protesting against this as unjust.

The work of fortifying Key West is progressing without interruption. A number of Nordenfelt rapid fire guns, bought by the government in Europe, and of 12-inch mortars, is expected here daily. The carriages for the latter have already arrived.

LONDON PAPERS

Speculating Upon the Effect of War Upon Securities.

LONDON, April 16.—The morning papers are filled with dispatches from the continent, nearly all of the same tenor. The belief that war is inevitable is universal, as well as the feeling of hostility to the United States. The papers contain also numerous articles speculating upon the effect of war upon securities, the markets and other interests.

The Times says editorially: "Spain's note to the powers can have no effect except perhaps to delay the issue. The powers certainly will not intervene, while if they did neither the United States nor Spain would listen. It is doubtful whether, even if President McKinley regained his authority over the situation, he could now stem the tide of popular sentiment in America for war."

The Daily Chronicle from what it calls a "well known correspondent," signing himself "Anglo Saxon," prints a remarkable letter advocating an overt Anglo-American alliance to compel the liberation of Cuba without war by an overwhelming display of force. Commenting editorially on this letter, the Daily Chronicle thinks it "an opportune moment to seek to bring about such an alliance or entente, especially in view of the common interests of the United States and Great Britain in China."

Rockville Light Artillery.

ROCKVILLE, Ind., April 15.—The Rockville light artillery will reorganize. Application to the governor and Gen. McKee has already been filed.

The Emperor and the Prince.

PEKIN, April 15.—The emperor of China has consented to treat Prince Henry of Prussia on a footing of equality. His majesty has agreed to return the prince's visit and will sit at the same table with him, in the summer palace, where his royal higness will be the guest of honor.

Dresden Mills Burned.

ZANESVILLE, O., April 15.—The Dresden hosiery mills, the largest in the state, located at Dresden, this county, were burned to the ground Thursday morning. Loss, $25,000; insurance, $15,000. The mills will not be rebuilt.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Spring is the Time

When Impurities in the Blood Should Be Expelled

America's Greatest Medicine is the Best Spring Medicine.

In winter months the perspiration, so profuse in summer, almost ceases. This throws back into the system the impurities that should have been expelled through the pores of the skin. This and other causes makes the blood impure in spring. Boils, pimples, humors and eruptions then appear or some more serious disease may take its start. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the remedy for impure blood in all its forms, as proved by its marvelous cures of blood diseases. It is therefore the medicine for you to take in the spring. It expells all humors, and puts the whole system in good condition for warmer weather.

GEORGIA LADIES
TELL THE TRUTH.

Mrs Mayor Shince.

Bullards, Ga., writes: Eight years ago I had Slow Fever 3 months. Five Doctors attended me, but I continued to grow worse until I commenced taking Dr. M. A. Female Complaints.

There are two critical and even dangerous periods in female life, when the greatest care is necessary.

The first, when the girl passes from childhood to womanhood; if through ignorance or neglect this important development is interfered with or thwarted, even in the smallest degree, they are liable to some malady frequently proving most serious, such as hysteria, fits or even consumption; while at the second period, called "change of life," there is often much distress and danger. At both these periods of life Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine is invaluable, and it is recommended that a dose of it be taken twice a week for some time, between and during the menstrual periods, and for stressing the point we strongly urge the use of Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, a dose at bedtime.

R. J. Redsek

Scville, Ga., says: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine in my family for 20 years with success in many cases of Indigestion and Sour Stomach. I think it superior to "Thedford's Black Draught" and "Zeilin's Regulator," and I shall recommend Dr. M. A. S. L. M. as long as I live.

Hysteria

Is caused by natural or acquired feebleness of constitution, mental sufferings and, chiefly, derangements of the sexual system, such as menstrual irregularities, delayed development of the generative organs, or strong sexual propensities. During a fit, the patient's clothes should be loosened; she should have an abundance of fresh air. The sudden, copious and continuous application of cold water to the head and face will cut the fit short. Between the paroxysms, Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine should be taken to correct torpidity of the bowels, and a course of treatment by Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine which is specially adapted to remove the uterine disorders.

DIFFICULT TASK

Of Adjusting the Differences Between the House of Representatives and Senate

ON THE CUBAN RESOLUTIONS BEGUN

The Senate Passed Resolutions Recognizing the Independence of the Cuban Republic.

Prominent Republicans in the House Consider This a Direct Slap at the President and Will Bitterly Oppose Such a Measure.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Monday the difficult task of adjusting the differences between the two houses of congress on the Cuban resolutions began. The rock upon which the two houses split is the recognition of the independence of the existing republic which was incorporated in the senate resolutions. Were that clause of the senate resolutions eliminated nothing could have prevented immediate concurrence by the house, as the great majority of the republicans of the lower branch of congress are eager for a conclusion. But the action of the senate declaring for the recognition of Cuba's independence against the direct and specific recommendation of the president has given the conservatives a rallying cry from the standpoint of party loyalty which proved very effective Saturday. One of the most prominent republican leaders on the floor of the house dominated that portion of the senate resolutions a direct "assault" upon the president which no loyal republican could endorse. And upon this theory Speaker Reed and his lieutenants have been proceeding Sunday in their campaign against concurrence in the senate resolutions. All day long the speaker's rooms at the Shoreham have been like the headquarters of the commander-in-chief of an army. He has consulted with his lieutenants, Messrs. Dingley, of Maine, Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, Cannon, of Illinois, Grosvenor, of Ohio, and Payne, of New York. He has seen Messrs. Joy, of Missouri; Lorimer, of Illinois; Heatwole, of Minnesota, and other leaders of the republican opposition and through other agencies has had a thorough canvas made of the republican side of the house. Sunday night he was confident the republicans of the house could be marshalled against yielding to the senate on the main issue.

Some of the arguments used with those, who, like Mr. Cooper (Wis.), Mann (Ill.) and Bromwell (O.) are disposed to take the shortest cut out of the woods and by agreeing, end the matter, have been such as to shake the convictions of these gentlemen. The chief complaint of those who want to concur is that non-concurrence means delay, complications, possibly a reopening of diplomatic negotiations and possibly further concessions by Spain which will embarrass the United States when the time for action arrives. These members have been labored with separately. The arguments against recognition have been reiterated and reinforced in the light speeches in the senate. Especially potent has been the argument advanced by Senators Allison and Morgan that if we recognize the independence of the existing government Gen. Gomez might at any time negotiate a peace with Spain which would leave the United States in the lurch. When France allied herself with us in the revolutionary war it was for the purpose of gaining our independence, but we were held to the compact by a stipulation that no peace with Great Britain should be negotiated without France's consent. More than this, it is claimed that there are evidences that the senate will yield the recognition of independence if the house stands firm. Notwithstanding the large majority for the resolution Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, Sunday urgently counseled the house leaders to reject tenuously the senate's proposition. He assured them that the senate would not hold out. But possibly the strongest argument brought to bear was that the president himself could not approve any resolution which contained such an invasion of his prerogative and which so plainly violated every precedent of international law. This strong intimation of a presidential veto, which would involve an entirely new start and the delays incident to it had a powerful influence, although in certain quarters it asserted that a presidential veto should be overridden. The suggestion that the president might sign the resolution and send a message to congress saying that the clause recognizing the independence of Cuba was ultra vires—beyond the jurisdiction of congress was frowned upon by the president's friends. Those who were in favor of concurrence in the senate amendment were not particularly active Sunday, but some of them are showing determination. At one time Sunday it was said that 33 republicans had agreed to vote for concurrence but this could not be confirmed and the conservatives are confident that not half that number will break over the traces. They realize however, that the chief danger lies in a possible stampede. If 25 republicans join the democrats and populists in voting for concurrence, the resolutions go to the president as passed by the senate. Should the little band of republicans who will vote to concur make the result doubtful, it is feared that many others who are held only by consideration of party loyalty will go over in a body. Some of them have made their acquiescence in the programme mapped out contingent upon the ability of the republicans to carry it out. If the resolutions are to be concurred in they say they can not afford to be left out at the death. They say they could not justify a course with their constituents.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The brilliant oratory and the exciting scenes of Friday in the senate added to the public interest in Saturday's proceedings. The additional fact that the senate Friday night determined to take a vote Saturday upon the pending resolution lent an added interest to the senate proceedings. This was the fourth day of the debate upon the war resolutions. So far the only radical differences of opinion developed are upon the advisability of the recognition by the United States of the independence of the Cuban republic. All senators approve action, the only differences being as to the methods to be employed, the general desire being to place the United States in a favorable position before the people of this country as well as before the civilized nations of the world.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—After 48 hours of oratory, the senate Saturday night passed the following resolutions:

1. That the people of the island of Cuba are and of right ought to be free and independent, and that the government of the United States hereby recognizes the republic of Cuba as the true and lawful government of that island.

2. That it is the duty of the United States to demand, and the government of the United States does hereby demand, that the government of Spain at once relinquish its authority and government in the island of Cuba and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters.

3. That the president of the United States be, and hereby is directed and empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States, and to call into service of the United States militia of the several states to such extent as may be necessary to carry these resolutions into effect.

4. That the United States hereby disclaim any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over said island, except for the pacification thereof; and assert its determination when that is accomplished, to leave the government and control of the island to its people.

IT IS RUMORED

That the Pope is Endeavoring to Persuade Spain to Recognize Cuban Independence.

LONDON, April 18.—The Rome correspondent of the Times says: "In vatican circles the opinion is still held that an outbreak of war may yet be prevented, and a rumor is afloat to the effect that the pope is endeavoring to persuade Spain to recognize the independence of Cuba. Among continental diplomatists a certain degree of irritation is observable at what is alleged to be the attitude of England. Some of the powers, which have special reasons to fear the consequences of Spanish defeat, are evidently of the opinion that Europe has lost a good opportunity of affirming her interests as a compact political organization in opposition to the interests of America. At some future time, it is thought, England may rue her failure to cooperate with the other powers in creating a precedent for united European opposition to American high-handedness. It is not noticeable however, that a somewhat inadequate knowledge of the present state of feeling in America prevails in quarters where these opinions are entertained."

DUST EXPLOSION,

Followed by Fire, Destroys a Grain Elevator at Charlestown, Mass.

BOSTON, April 18.—The roof of the grain elevator at Hoosac Tunnel docks, Charlestown, was blown completely off by a dust explosion at 4 o'clock Sunday morning, and the fire that followed not only destroyed the remaining portion of the immense structure, consuming nearly the entire contents, over 400,000 bushels of grain, mostly wheat. The steamer Cambroman which had just finished loading at the dock, was towed out without injury, but some of the small tenements adjoining a building used as a distillery by Chapin & Trull were damaged more or less by the debris from the roof.

The loss is estimated by the fire underwriters at nearly $6 0,000; well covered by insurance.

Jefferson Davis Memorial Window.

RICHMOND, Va., April 18.—The Jefferson Davis memorial window was unveiled Sunday in St. Paul's cathedral, the church Mr. Davis attended while president of the confederacy. There was an immense crowd present. The service was very simple, the sermon being preached by Rev. Dr. William Dame, of Baltimore. Mrs. Davis, her grand-daughter, Miss Hays, and Consul General Lee and family, accompanied by Miss Cisneros, attended the ceremonies.

LEE'S TESTIMONY

Regarding the Destruction of Our Battle Ship Maine in Havana Harbor.

Gen. Blanco Had Nothing to Do With the Blowing Up of the Vessel—He Wept at the Palace Over the Terrible Deed.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—The testimony of Gen. Lee, given to the senate foreign relations committee, was made public Thursday.

The most interesting portion of the consul general's testimony, that relating to the Maine, was lengthy. Lee said he was informed that the Spaniards had placed two rows of torpedoes at the mouth of the Havana harbor by Morro castle, within the last two months, or subsequent to the Maine disaster, and that the switchboard was in a room in the castle. He said, however, that he had no information of the placing of any torpedoes before the Maine was destroyed.

The letter of Gen. Weyler brought to light by Correspondent Laine was referred to. Lee thought the letter genuine. This belief was based on a telegram of which he knew. It came from Weyler and read: "Grave circumstances cause me to ask you to destroy the last letter of February 18." Gen. Lee said that this telegram had never before been published.

With reference to the responsibility for the destruction of the Maine, Gen. Lee said:

"I am satisfied the explosion was from the outside. I have always had an idea about the Maine that, of course, it was not blown up by any private individual, or by any private citizen, but was blown up by some of the officers who had charge of the mines and electrical wires and torpedoes in the arsenal there, who thoroughly understood the business."

Gen. Lee said he did not believe Capt. Gen. Blanco had anything to do with it, or even any knowledge of it. His reason for this belief was that he saw Blanco just after the disaster, and tears were coming from his eyes. He regretted it as much as anyone in Havana.

Lee said he thought the explosion was the work of some of the subaltern officers who had been under Weyler.

Gen. Lee said he had seen a copy of a telegram from Adm. Manterol, dated in Havana prior to the explosion, to the Spanish commission in London, asking the commission to "hurry up the electrical cables." Whether that referred to wire for submarine mines or torpedoes he did not know.

He continued: "I heard two or three days afterward," said Gen. Lee in answer to a question by Senator Frye, "that there was a great deal of rejoicing among some of the officers. All reports I got said they were drinking champagne, quite a thing to do in honor of the event, and in different portions of the city officers were making merry."

He said that he had not heard any threats of or allusions to the destruction of the Maine previous to the explosion.

Senator Lodge asked if he had heard of an attempt on the Montgomery.

Gen. Lee answered that he had heard talk to that effect, but it was found, he believed, on investigation that it did not amount to anything.

In reply to a question by Foraker, Lee said he was sure no novice could have destroyed the Maine. The work was well done and by an expert.

Continuing, he said: "I never have been certain that the submarine explosive was placed there prior to the entrance of the Maine into the harbor. It might have been done afterward. The Maine was anchored to a buoy by some little chain. A vessel swinging around that way sometimes gets at various places all around the circle. When she would swing off that way, with the bow next to the buoy, and the boats plying about the harbor all the time, anybody could go pretty well in front of her, on a dark night, and drop one of these submarine mines of 500 pounds.

"They have fingers, as it were, and, as the boat goes around, it would touch the fingers, which makes contact and explodes the mine. That might have been done after the Maine got in there. One or two men in a boat could drop it off the stern of the boat on a dark night. The harbor is full of little boats. A mine weighs about 500 pounds, and I suppose it would take probably three or four men to handle it."

The Cubans he said were all for free Cuba. The reconcentrados' condition, he said, in reply to another question, were almost as bad as Weyler's days.

"Suppose Havana was blockaded?" said Senator Mills, "so that no provisions could go in, would the people there have any way to get any?"

"None whatever," responded Gen. Lee. "The town would surrender in a short while."

Gen. Lee said that all but about 300 or 900 Spaniards of the population of Cuba were Cubans.

Lee, in speaking of the physical condition of the Spanish soldiers, said that it was very poor.

Spanish Parliament to Open Next Wednesday.

MADRID April 15.—A cabinet council has decided to reopen the Spanish parliament on Wednesday next, instead of April 25. The queen regent at the cabinet council signed the national subscription decree to increase the navy.

Spain Advised to Declare War.

LONDON, April 15.—The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Mail says: Several European powers, including Austria, are reported to have advised Spain to declare war, because further delay or concessions would be likely to provoke a revolution.

Submarine Torpedo Boat.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—It is stated that negotiations are under way for the purchase of the Holland submarine boat Plunger. The department is now awaiting the report of the board, which was ordered to inspect this novel craft.

THE REGULAR ARMY

Ordered to the Southern Coast, Mostly to New Orleans, Mobile and Tampa.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—An order was issued late Friday ordering the entire regular army to assemble on the coast, mostly in Florida.

The order was issued at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. It directs the First, Second, Third, Sixth, Ninth and Tenth cavalry, and all light batteries to proceed at once to Chickamauga, the First, Seventh, Eighth, Tenth, Eleventh, Twelfth, Eighteenth, Twentieth and Twenty-third infantry to New Orleans; the Second, Third, Fourth, Sixth, Thirteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth, Nineteenth, Twenty-second and Twenty-fourth infantry to Mobile; the Fifth, Ninth and Twenty-first infantry to Tampa.

The officers who will command will be Gen. Shafter, at New Orleans; Gen. Coppinger, at Mobile; Gen. Wade, at Tampa, and Gen. Brooke, at Chickamauga.

THE POWERS

Will Not Intervene Between the United States and Spain.

ROME, April 16.—The Popolo Romano Friday says it understands the powers of Europe will intervene between the United States and Spain in favor of the latter country, and it adds, according to information gathered in well-informed quarters, the intervention will take the form of a naval demonstration in which all the powers will participate.

LONDON, April 16.—A special dispatch from Rome, referring to the rumor of a proposition to make an international naval demonstration off the island of Cuba, says Austria is taking the lead in the matter, but it is understood Great Britain and Germany are not favorable to the suggestion.

The Spanish ambassador made a long visit to the British foreign office Friday, and later the Austrian ambassador called.

The British foreign office does not believe the powers will make a naval demonstration.

An ambassador says efforts towards a naval demonstration could not succeed, Great Britain having refused to join in such a movement.

The Austrian ambassador admits he has given up hope of Europe preventing war.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The powers will not be allowed to meddle in the affairs of the United States and Spain. It can be authoritatively stated that in case the diplomatic representatives of the powers in Washington shall present a second joint note offering to mediate between the two countries, this government will decline diplomatically, but firmly.

PARIS, April 16.—The Temps Friday afternoon warns the powers against hasty action and says:

"Europe must not forget that she has a great interest in America. It would be simply disastrous to provoke war between the two continents, and above all it is necessary for the powers to come to an understanding and act in concert. Any nation which alone assumed the responsibility of supporting Spain and making an enemy of the United States, would do the greatest injury to its most essential interest."

Knows Nothing of Crandall's Arrest.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Chief Wilkie, of the secret service, is in the city and knows nothing of the reported capture of an alleged layer of Spanish mines or torpedoes in Cuban waters. The secret service never has done anything in the way of apprehending the persons connected with the affair.

Torpedo Boat Morris' Trial.

BOSTON, R. I., April 16.—The torpedo boat Morris had a builders' trial Friday and developed a speed of 23¾ knots with only 75 pounds of steam. Her contract calls for 22 knots with 235 pounds of steam.

THE PROGRAMME

After the President is Empowered to Use the Army and Navy.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The cabinet meeting Friday was devoted to a general discussion of the Cuban situation, but without anything of importance resulting therefrom. The government has received no intimation of the preparation of any note on the part of the powers, and members of the cabinet do not think the effort obviously making by Spain to concentrate the powers in her favor will result in their agreeing on any particular line of action. The present position of the administration is that of awaiting congressional action without attempting to influence it or postpone its decision. The president, it can be stated, is not at all likely to veto any resolution that congress may adopt on the Cuban question. The administration does not believe congress will pass a resolution for the recognition of independence of the insurgents, but if it should a veto of it would be very improbable. It is said, however, that the president might regard it as an encroachment on his prerogative, the constitution clearly making it the duty of the executive to recognize the independence of a nation. At the same time the cabinet has not discussed the course to be pursued in the event of congressional declaration for independence.

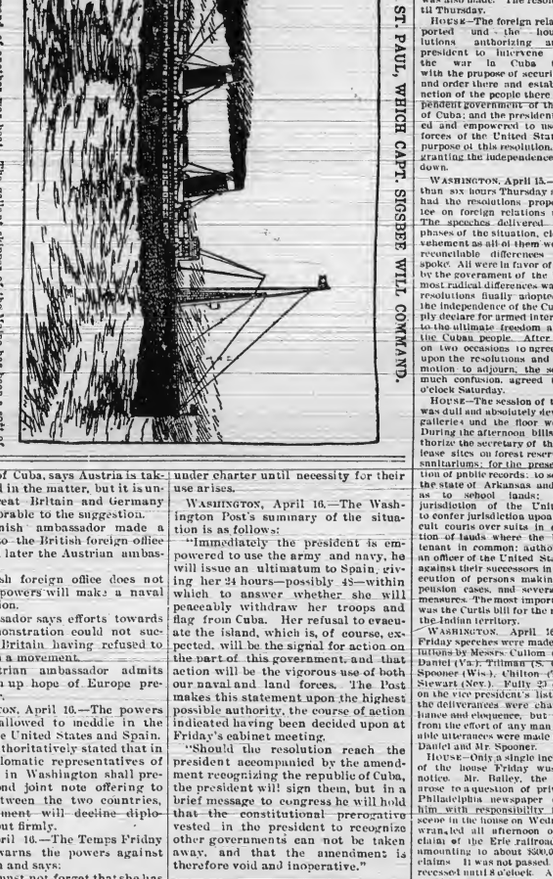
The navy department has decided to charter the steamships St. Louis, St. Paul, Paris and New York, of the American line. This decision was reached Friday afternoon, the department having come to the conclusion that this plan would be wiser than that formerly under consideration, which contemplated the purchase outright of the St. Paul and St. Louis. The Paris and New York will be held under charter until necessity for their use arises.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The Washington Post's summary of the situation is as follows:

"Immediately the president is empowered to use the army and navy, he will issue an ultimatum to Spain, giving her 24 hours—possibly 48—within which to answer whether she will peaceably withdraw her troops and flag from Cuba. Her refusal to evacuate the island, which is, of course, expected, will be the signal for action on the part of this government, and that action will be the vigorous use of both our naval and land forces. The Post makes this statement upon the highest possible authority, the course of action indicated having been decided upon at Friday's cabinet meeting.

"Should the resolution reach the president accompanied by the amendment recognizing the republic of Cuba, the president will sign them, but in a brief message to congress he will hold that the constitutional prerogative vested in the president to recognize other governments can not be taken away, and that the amendment is therefore void and inoperative."

War Sooner Than Dishonor.



MADRID, April 14, via Bayonne, France, April 16.—The queen is quoted as saying she prefers the horrors of war to the tarnishing prestige of the army or the impairment of the rights of the crown. Don Carlos is urging the Carlists to embark in war against the United States and threatens to overthrow the government if Spain is further "humiliated."

Wheat Jumped to $1.15.

CHICAGO, April 16.—May wheat opened up 1⅝c at $1.13 Friday, and immediately moved up to $1.15, making a new high point for the season. But the advance was not maintained; the bulls became scared, and seemed to dump everything overboard, the price declining 2c at a time to $1.10½ by 11 o'clock, with but few rallies.

Mr. Gladstone's Condition.

LONDON, April 16.—The bulletin issued Friday morning regarding the health of Mr. Gladstone announced that he was holding his ground and was suffering less.

Capt. Charles D. Sigsbee is to have command of another war boat, a fast sea-dog since his stanch ship was blown into flinders on February 15. There never was any doubt that he would be given another ship pretty soon, but now the navy department has decided to place him in charge of the St. Paul, of the American line, when it has been converted into a cruiser. Its length over all is 554 feet and between perpendiculars 536 feet; its extreme breadth, 64 feet; its depth, 42 feet, and displacement at a 26-foot draft 16,000 tons.

THE AUXILIARY CRUISER ST. PAUL, WHICH CAPT. SIGSBEE WILL COMMAND.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—SENATE—The president's message on the Cuban question was read in the senate soon. It was referred to the committee on foreign relations and at 1:15 the senate adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—The president's message was read in the house Monday in the presence of a vast assemblage and referred to the committee on foreign affairs without debate. There was absolutely no demonstration either of approval or disapproval from the crowded galleries throughout or at the conclusion of the reading. After some district business had been transacted the contested election case of Fairchilds vs. Ward, from the Eighteenth New York district, was taken up. After two hours' debate the majority report in favor of Mr. Ward, the sitting member, was adopted, 138 to 42. At 4:55 p. m. the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—SENATE—For nearly three hours Tuesday the senate had the Cuban question in its several phases under discussion. Three resolutions bearing upon the question were introduced, one by Mr. Lindsay (Ky.) directing that the contemplated operations against the Spanish army in Cuba be in concert with Gen. Gomez, the supreme command to be vested in the commander of the United States forces, to the end that the independence of the Cubans be secured; the second by Mr. Wilson (Wash.), directing the president at once to take such steps as will secure to the Cuban people an independent republican form of government; and the third by Mr. Allen (Neb.), declaring the existence of war in Cuba and directing the president to take steps to stop it and secure to the people of the island a stable and independent government. Following the introduction of resolutions speeches were delivered by Mr. Pettus (Ala.), Mr. Mason (Ill.) and Mr. Butler (S. C.). Consideration of the sundry civil bill was resumed, but no progress was made.

HOUSE—Gen. Grosvenor (O.) late Tuesday afternoon in reply to an attack upon the policy of the administration, interpreted the recommendations of the president's message to mean a request for authority to use the army and navy of the United States to establish on the island of Cuba a government independent of Spain. It was regarded as an exceedingly important and significant announcement, in the brief debate Tuesday the opening guns of the contest that begins Wednesday were fired. Broadsides were exchanged and then the house adjourned. Mr. Lentz, in the democratic, who, drew the fire of Gen. Grosvenor last Thursday returned the assault again Tuesday, attacking what he termed the "vacillating" policy of the president, the recent midnight conference at the white house with Senator Elkins and John J. McCook and asserting that the president's recommendations really meant that the United States should coerce the Cuban insurgents into an acceptance of Spain's scheme of autonomy. Mr. Hepburn (rep. Ia.) made a spirited and indignant reply denouncing the intimation of such a policy as little short of scoundrelism.

WASHINGTON, April 14.—SENATE—The foreign relations committee Wednesday sent a report to the senate on the Cuban question. It directs and empowers the president to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States to compel Spain to withdraw its land and naval forces from the island and waters of Cuba and to relinquish its authority and government in the island. A minority report declaring recognition of Cuban independence was also made. The resolutions went over until Thursday.

HOUSE—The foreign relations committee reported and the house passed resolutions authorizing and directing the president to intervene at once to stop the war in Cuba to the end and with the purpose of securing permanent peace and order there and establishing by the free action of the people there of a stable and independent government of their own in the island of Cuba; and the president is hereby authorized and empowered to use the land and naval forces of the United States to execute the purpose of this resolution. A minority report granting the independence of Cuba was voted down.

WASHINGTON, April 15.—SENATE—For more than six hours Thursday afternoon the senate had the resolutions proposed by the committee on foreign relations under consideration. The speeches delivered upon the various phases of the situation, eloquent, spirited and vehement as all of them were, disclosed no irreconcilable differences among those who spoke. All were in favor of action in some form by the government of the United States. The most radical differences was as to whether the resolutions finally adopted should recognize the independence of the Cuban republic or simply declare for armed intervention with a view to the ultimate freedom and independence of the Cuban people. After vainly endeavoring on two occasions to agree to a time for a vote upon the resolutions and after voting down a motion to adjourn, the senate finally, amid much confusion, agreed to adjourn until 8 o'clock Saturday.

HOUSE—The session of the house Thursday was dull and absolutely devoid of interest. The galleries and the floor were almost deserted. During the afternoon bills were passed to authorize the secretary of the interior to rent or lease sites on forest reservations for hotels or sanitariums; for the preservation and protection of public records; to settle the accounts of the state of Arkansas and the United States as to school lands; to regulate the jurisdiction of the United States courts; to confer jurisdiction upon United States circuit courts over suits in equity for the partition of lands where the United States is a tenant in common; authorizing suits against an officer of the United States to be continued against their successors in office; for the prosecution of persons making false affidavits in pension cases, and several other important measures. The most important measure passed was the Curtis bill for the relief of residents of the Indian territory.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—SENATE—During Friday speeches were made on the Cuban resolutions by Messrs. Cullom (Ill.), Berry (Ark.), Daniel (Va.), Tillman (S. C.), Wolcott (Col.), Spooner (Wis.), Ashton (Pa.), Pettus (Ala.), Stewart (Nev.). Fifty-three senators are on the vice president's list for speeches. All the deliverances were characterized by brilliance and strength. There is no lack of interest from the effort of any man to say that the notable utterances were made by Mr. Wolcott, Mr. Daniel and Mr. Spooner.

HOUSE—During a single incident at the session of the house Friday was worthy of public notice. Mr. Bailey, the democratic leader, arose to a question of privilege to reply to a Philadelphia newspaper which had charged him with responsibility for the disorderly scene in the house on Wednesday. The house was called all afternoon on a bill to refer a claim of Jerome Kingsley for mail service amounting to about $300,000 to the court of claims. It was not passed. At 4:45 the house recessed until 8 o'clock. At the night session the house passed 36 private pension bills and adjourned at 10:30 until Saturday.

Troops Will Move Monday.

OMAHA, Neb., April 16.—It has been learned that there will be no movement of troops before Monday from the department of Missouri. Maj. Pond, acting quartermaster, will proceed at once to Mobile to select quarters. Gen. Coppinger and staff will leave Omaha Sunday for Mobile.

Infantry Ordered to Tybee Island.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 16.—Gen. W. M. Graham, commander of the department of the Gulf, Friday ordered a company of infantry to Tybee island at once. Company H, Fifth infantry, under Capt. Bailey, will leave Fort McPherson for Savannah at 8 o'clock Friday night.

Knights May Take the Field.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 16.—Telegrams have been sent from the headquarters of the Knights of Pythias in this city to the lodges throughout the state asking how many men can be placed in the field in the event of war.

STATE NEWS.

Georgetown is now operating under standard time.

Morgan Bohanan was shot and killed by Horace Kesler, at Bagdad, Shelby county.

A "tiger" just started at Bracht was blown up with dynamite by angered citizens.

The County Judge of Madison county refused to renew license to sell liquor at Clay's Ferry.

Five colored graduates were turned out at the Louisville National Medical College last week.

The Graves county grand jury returned 275 indictments, 150 of which were for gambling.

George Arnold, of Lancaster, has invented a surgeon's sewing machine for sewing wounds.

The Homeopathic College at Louisville graduated 13 doctors last week, four of whom are women.

The residence of John Shipp, of Owen county, was destroyed by fire. Origin of the fire not known.

A. P. Norton, of Christian county, has purchased the great race horse, Ornament. Price—$20,000.

The Confederate Veterans' Association of Kentucky paid out $999.15 last year for the relief of comrades.

T. B. Pickering, J. H. Pickering and C. T. Bragg, of Caldwell county, have left for the Alaska gold fields.

A company of volunteers is being organized at Brookville to help avenge the death of the Maine's sailors.

Rev. Lew G. Wallace, of Mt. Olivet, will be an applicant for Chaplain of the penitentiary under the law recently enacted.

John P. Fults, ex-County Attorney, of Jefferson county, is believed to have met death in the avalanche at Chilkoot Pass, a few days since.

J. C. Vananda, assistant managing editor of the New York Sun, married Miss Louise Drane, daughter of the late Judge Geo. C. Drane.

A large number of citizens of Whitley county have decided to file a suit to test the constitutionality of the act of the Legislature taking that county out of the Third Appellate district.

There is talk of again construct ing a levee about Newport to provide against a recurrence of the flooding of that city and the subject will be made a leading question at the coming congressional race.

An overcoat worn by Judge Grider, of Bowling Green, caught fire while he had it on and he made the insurance company settle the loss. His policy reads loss by fire of house household and kitchen furniture and wearing apparel.

The Frankfort correspondent of the Louisville Times says that "of a long list of prominent Kentuckians who have tendered their services to Gov. Bradley, in case of open hostilities with Spain, Hon. W. C. Owens is the only one who asks for no commission, and leaves his rank to be determined."

The Rev. W. H. Felts, who has been in jail the past two months at Leitchfield, charged with bigamy, was found guilty and given 6 years in the penitentiary. Eight of the jury were in favor of giving him nine years, the limit. Felts married a Miss Campbell, last February. Since then it has been ascertained that he married a Miss Nichols in Arkansas in 1896, who it is said, is still living and undivorced.

Some of the County Clerks of the State were notified by the Chairman of the State Board of Equalization that the Franklin county grand jury is in session, and that their names and continued unexplained neglect of duty would be reported to same if they did not send in the books, transfer sheets, etc., required for the use of the board, and which were due months ago. The State Board was at a standstill in the midst of its session, and was not able to get through its annual meeting in the usual time because of the delays caused by slow clerks.

Somewhat of a sensation was created at Shelbyville during the progress of "The Old Maids' Convention," an entertainment given by the ladies of the city for the benefit of the Methodist church, by Rev. W. F. Taylor expressing his disapproval of several pieces on the program before the audience, and stating that in case the proceeds from the entertainment were accepted by the church officers he would offer his resignation as pastor. The church was recently erected at a cost of about $20,000, to which a society of ladies subscribed several thousand dollars. The church officers have not yet taken action in the matter.

CROP AND STOCK.

Several growing crops of wheat in Madison county have been sold at 75 to 80 cents.

Glanders have appeared among the horses of Nelson county, and there is great uneasiness in consequence.

British landlords are said to own 20,000,000 acres of land in the United States, an area larger than that of Ireland.

Five hundred and twelve head of horses were exported from Chicago market the week ending March 26, to various markets.

About 500 cattle at Paris on Court day and generally sold at from 4 to 4½c per hundred; more than fifty head broke mules on sale and quite a number sold at from $50 to $120 per head.

About 250 cattle at Stanford on court day but few were sold, as buyers and sellers were too far apart. A few steers sold at five cents and a bunch of heifers at four cents. Little or no butcher stuff was on the market.

One of the largest deals in corn in recent years was a purchase, last week, in St. Louis by a Baltimore house of 1,000,000 bushels for export. It is reported that the same house has been engaged for some weeks past in purchasing corn for export, and that other grain merchants in Baltimore are operating in western markets for the same purpose. Something like 5,000,000 bushels of grain is scheduled for export from Baltimore during the next month and the bulk of it is corn.

The Webster Record says: The cattle market is one of the liviest things in this section of the country now. An ordinary, common, every day steer is almost worth its weight in free silvar in the present state of the cattle market. It has been discovered that there is a great scarcity of cattle on the market and the price is liable to stay up in the pictures for some time to come. This is good news for the farmers and stock raisers, but it is rather hard on the fellow who has to run up against 20 cent beef at the butchers'.

One of the most profitable adjuncts to a farm is the blacksmith shop. And not the least useful work that can be done by that farmer is horse shoeing. The setting of a shoe is a comparatively simple matter, and can be mastered by any intelligent farmer. There is no reason why a farmer may not learn to set a shoe as well as any blacksmith, and this knowledge ought to be included in the practical education of every man who expects to make farming his life business. Even if it does not prove to be desirable for the farmer to shoe his own horses he will then have the satisfaction of knowing when the work is properly done by the horse shoer.—Farm and Trade.

It will not take to exceed two months to do the job for Spain, thinks ex-President Harrison.

Foraker wants to adhere to the Monroe Doctrine in the scrap with Spain, but the President says nix.

The Democrats and Senator Foraker are on excellent terms when the Cuban question is before the Senate.

The prospects for war on the floor of the House, Monday, were eminently better than those indicating a conflict with Spain.

It has been charged for a long time that some of the members of Congress have very little regard for the constitution, and when one of them used it last week to hurl across the chamber at another member, the county was not greatly surprised at such proceedure.

RELIGIOUS ITEMS.

Rev. S. S. Deering, of Nicholasville, the venerable Methodist divine, is 85 years old Sunday, and is remarkably active for one so far advanced in life. Bro. Deering is perhaps the oldest Methodist preacher now living in Central Kentucky, and in his younger days confronted many hardships in preaching the Gospel.

A new Catholic Church is to be built in Carlisle, to cost about $10,000. The congregation is steadily growing, and the old church building does not meet their wants. Rev. Father Hickey has had charge of this church for a number of years.

At McMinneville, Ohio, the other day, a revivalist asked all those in the congregation to rise who had read a passage in the book of Hezekiah. About a dozen arose, some of them long time church members. The evangelist said. "Why, God bless you, there's no such book in the Bible!" There was a roseate flush over spread some cheeks that had been sallow for years.

At a recent meeting of the Baltimore Conference, Rev. Dr. Joe Young, ex-Kentuckian, was assigned to Trinity Church, Baltimore.

APRIL THE MOST FATEFUL MONTH

In connection with the present national crisis, it is of interest to note that April is the fateful month of American history.

The war of the revolution began in that month, the battle of Lexington having been fought April 19.

Washington was inaugurated and our constitutional government began April 30, 1789.

The war of 1812 was declared formally on the 19th June, but the first important act of our government which preceded and led to it was the act passed April 4, laying an embargo for 9 days on all British vessels in American ports.

The occupation of Mexico by this country began in the fall of 1845, but the first blood actually shed in the Mexican war was on April 26, from which date the military history of the conflict really began.

The Black Hawk, Cherokee and Seminole wars were declared in April.

The firing on Fort Sumpter, which ushered in the civil war, was on April 12, 1861, and Lee surrendered at Appomattox, four years later, on April 9. Lincoln was assassinated April 14.

And now the question of war or peace with Spain, the gravest issue since the civil war, is to be settled in April, 1898.

The annals of history present no stranger series of coincidences than these.

FROM CARROLL COUNTY.

Wm. Strickland says that tobacco plants are all right as far as he sees and hears, and that some peaches are left.

The Fiscal Court made an appropriation of not to exceed $2,000 to build a new iron bridge over Mill Creek, at English.

Wm. Snyder, of Milton, was in town Monday and says that the peach crop in his section was not damaged much by the recent cold spell and thinks there will be a good crop this year.

The barn of Clarence Nash, of near Batesville, containing fifteen head of horses and all his farming implements, was consumed by fire last Wednesday night. There was no insurance on the stock or implements, and only $150 on the barn. It is thought that it was set on fire by a tramp, named Alexander, who was tried here the next day for lunacy and sent to the asylum at Lakeland.

D. B. Wallace arrived home last night after a three weeks' business trip in St. Paul, Minn., Chauncey, and Cincinnati, Ohio. He enjoyed the trip hugely and is in the best of health.

John William Miles, of the Steeles Creek neighborhood, was brought here Monday and tried on a writ of lunacy. He has not been in his right mind for some time and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andy Miles, thought it best to have him put in an asylum.

A petition has been circulated by our best citizens asking F. A. Laidley, Superintendent of the Louisville and Cincinnati Mail Line Co., to reinstate Capt. Chas. Williams, in his old position, as pilot, on board his steamers, as they, the petitioners, do not think Capt. Williams was in any way responsible for the act for which he was suspended, viz: The sinking of the steamer Telegraph at Fern Grove, Ind., several months ago, by running into the bank on a densely dark night.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier]

Last Monday was horse show day in Williamstown and more fine stock was exhibited on the streets of the town than has been seen here since the slump in horse flesh several years ago.

Rev. E. Petty, representative from this county to the General Assembly of Kentucky spoke at the court house last County court day in defense of the Goebel election bill, and Mr. Gray spoke against it.

Jacob Hedger, of Downingsville, took from the poor house Monday on order from the County Judge the twelve year old daughter of Mrs. Shelton and will adopt her into his family, promising to do a good part by her.

The County Judge of Grant County received a notice from the State Board of Equalization on Monday afternoon that the Board had decided to raise the assessed value of Grant county 35 per cent. on land and personalty subject to equalization, and 12 per cent. on town lots.

Ellie Preston while out driving Sunday on the Dry Ridge & Mt. Zion turnpike met with what might have been a serious accident. Near Wm. Conrad's his horse became frightened and threw him out. The horse ran to Sherman before it was stopped.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[Herald.]

At eleven o'clock Tuesday morning the house of John Shipp, near Ep, was destroyed by fire and his wife was burned to death. At a quarter past ten Mr. Shipp and his hired man drove by the house with a load of oats. Stopping the wagon at the gate Mr. Shipp went to the house for something. When returning to the wagon a few minutes later, Mrs. Shipp asked him where he would be at dinner time. He told her that he would be within hearing, and to ring the bell. Three quarters of an hour later Mr. Shipp and his helper saw the house afire and ran with all speed. When they got there the roof had fallen in. Mr. Cubboge, a neighbor, had reached the house a few minutes before. Not seeing his wife anywhere Mr. Shipp was nearly crazed and it was with difficulty that he was restrained from rushing into the burning building. Later the body of Mrs. Shipp was found in the front part of the house, so badly charred that it was almost unrecognizable.

Last Monday a little son of Fred Uhlman, back of Vevay, Ind., was brought here to have Mr. G. W. Forsee's madstone applied, he having been bitten the day before by a rabid dog. His face was fearfully lacerated. The stone would not stick, due possibly to the fact that the little fellow had been kept full of whisky from the time he was bitten.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27, 1898. NO. 27.

Declaration of War.

First—That war be and the same is hereby declared to exist and that war has existed since the 21st day of April, A. D. 1898, including said day, between the United States of America and the Kingdom of Spain.

Second—That the president of the United States be, and he hereby is, directed and empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States and to call into the actual service of the United States the militia of the several states to such an extent as may be necessary to carry this act into effect.

THE trouble with Spain has sidetracked the attack that was but recently being waged on the civil service law.

OF the several present when the President signed the Cuban resolution Secretary of State, John Sherman was not one.

"IF I can swim, no matter how, what is it to me who sinks?" is a very narrow platform, but a great many people stand on it.

Sir Mark Anthony Tulte, Baronet, who died recently in County Tipperary at the age of ninety years, spent more than half a century of his life in trying to perfect a flying machine.

SHOULD a war ship of the present day right a man-of-war of ancient times, its peculiar construction would cause it to be pronounced a terrible sea serpent, and the modern vessel would flee for safety.

A museum in Berlin has secured possession of Luther's Bible, which he used in his study. Its margins are covered with notes in the reformer's handwriting. It was printed in Bale in the year 1509, and is said to be in an excellent state of preservation.

THE largest proportion of single persons is found in Ireland and Scotland, and smallest in the United States. In Ireland 67 per cent., in Scotland 65 per cent. but in the United States only 59 per cent are in that condition.

ALREADY has Congress began trying to put up the bars against the influx of unmeritorious pensions applications at the close of the war with Spain. For the experience the country now has on the pension question it has paid well, and now proposes to profit by it.

IT was unfortunate for the proposed Senate Cuban resolution that Mr. Bryan appeared in Washington only a few days before it was voted on in the House, as his presence, and endorsement of the resolution, gave Speaker Reed and other of its opponents a successful pull on several Republican members in lining them up against the resolution, who, in all probability would have voted for it had Mr. Bryan been absent from the East.

It is asserted that local mule dealers have combined with St. Louis firms to advance prices 25 per cent. On last Saturday 200 mules were purchased for the Government here at $8 40, and 800 in St. Louis at $93 a head. On the same day a meeting of dealers was held here to shut off competition in bidding. Eighteen hundred more mules were ordered, and it was decided to get a 25 per cent advance for them.—Kansas City Spc. N. Y. Sun.

ABOUT the first move after the adoption of the Cuban resolution was a recognition of the government of the insurgents—the republic which the President claims does not exist. This recognition consisted in the United States dealing with the representatives of the Cuban republic, a fact to which Senator Foraker was not slow in calling the attention of the country, holding that it constitutes an official recognition of the independence of Cuba.

"THE independence of the Cuban Republic," says the New York Journal, "is not recognized. We are about to intervene in Cuba while ignoring the thing that made our intervention possible. Why is it that there was no American fleet at Key West five years ago, and nobody was proposing then to send an army to Cuba. It is because Gomez and Garcia had not been fighting in the jungles for three years at that time, and exhausting with their band of heroes the entire resources of the Spanish kingdom. The Cuban Republic has brought Spain to her knees; its work has furnished our occasion for intervention, and now we propose to ignore it."

WHAT IT'S ABOUT.

Causes That Led to the Present Cruel War in Cuba.

The failure of Spain to carry out the promises made by Campor coupled with excessive taxation, led to the present rebellion.

When the Cubans laid down their arms in 1878, royal decrees of autonomy were issued, but it soon became apparent that it was the shadow and not the substance of self government. All the provisional Government was in reality an empty form, and the system of Government which was in effect prior to 1868 was still in vogue. That system comprised—

First—A tariff which by differential duties forces Cuba to buy to Spanish advantage and her own disadvantage and sell (with an export duty for Spain's benefit) where she can.

Second—A scheme of internal taxation laid in crushing weight on every phase of industrial life.

Third—A complete system of control and espionage over the details of business, with countless fees and explanations.

Fourth—The distribution and expenditures of practically the total collected revenue remains with Spain.

Upon a population of 2,000,000 of people a debt of nearly $200,000,000 had been fixed, almost $200 per capita, besides a system of taxation inconceivable to the American mind in its extent and oppression. Some examples are given:

The smallest retail stores are taxed $300.

For large stores the tax is greater.

Every income is taxed.

The clerks in the stores must pay 2½ per cent of their salary to the Government and an additional 6 per cent. for the cost of collecting it.

Every social gathering was taxed.

Before a funeral could be held a tax must be paid.

Before a marriage a tax must be paid.

There is a tax for dinner parties and another for dances.

A tax had to be paid for every repair.

For every servant the employer had to pay a tax.

Every letter on a sign is subjected to a tax.

Every window is subjected to a tax.

There are excessive import and export taxes.

The import tax on American flour is prohibitory. For instance, simply that Cuba shall buy an inferior quality produced in Spain at enormous profit. When the Spanish wheat crop failed in 1893 cheap American flour was purchased, sent to Spain and reshipped to Cuba.

Besides all these taxes, the extortions of blackmailing Government officials had to be submitted to.

These were not concealed, but done with a barefacedness that was incredible.

It was small wonder, then, that the leaders of the ten years' war, when they found they had been deceived, bided the time when they could rise and again throw off the shackles of the mother country.

BELIEVING that Senator Hanna could direct the Executive's course in all things, the RECORDER was sanguine that there would be no war between this country and Spain, but the will of the boss was overridden and the war has begun. The Senator's influence could not out weigh that of the entire country.

THE civil war cost 303,000 lives. Of this number 93,089 were slain in battle. The vast army which succumbed to disease was no less than 184,331, while the remaining 20,000 or so died of wounds received. Since the birth of Christ 4,000,000,000 men have been slain in battle. Before the beginning of the Christian era the losses cannot be estimated, owing to the very indistinct and inaccurate accounts that have been handed down.

KENTUCKY'S quota of the first call for volunteers will be 3,400.

COVINGTON, KY., April 20, 1898.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

The Enterprise as blue, the grass as green, [illegible] around Covington as it did a Gr[illegible] on the rocky hillsides of Wo[illegible]; and the millionaire and the [illegible]per partake of the same bill of fa[illegible]—smoke and cinders for breakfast, dust and ashes for dinner; mud and water for supper.

Boone county is well represented in Covington, the city of churches. Out of a population of now nearly 60,000, she has twenty-five places of worship.

B. L. Rice, of Union, is a resident of this city, and has two sons in business here, one at Eilerman's clothing store and the other at Scales' hardware store. Chas. Acra, a cousin of O. and D. M. Snyder, is an old Boone county boy, and is janitor of the I. O. O. F. building with a good salary attached. Robt. Reed, another Boone boy, holds down a good job at the Lath Works on W. Third St. The smiling countenance of Sifter Rich, of Big Bone, is seen out[illegible]ts of this city ever[illegible]day. R. H. Sandford, an old Burlington boy, stands guard at the front end of a Main St., electric car. Dr. J. C. Terrill, another of Boone's citizens, has a splendid practice, and a strong pull with the Democrats in Covington, and R. R. Revill, son of J. C. Revill, of Burlington, who is deputy Circuit Clerk under Mr. Miller, is one of the most popular young men in Covington.

We see our old friend, Judge E. H. Baker, every once in a while. The Judge has been in poor health for some time. He is very popular in Cincinnati, and a bosom friend and near neighbor of Judge-elect E. J. Dempsey. Ed says he is going to have a voting precinct for Boone county people in the office of the Metropolitan Stables, on Sixth St.

WAR!

When the Fort Thomas troops marched through Cincinnati and Newport to the L. & N. R. R., depot every whistle in the three cities began to blow, and all the church bells to ring. The same program was repeated Wednesday morning when the report that President McKinley had signed the war resolutions. Every district school in Covington was dismissed and the children given an opportunity of seeing the soldier boys depart for the South.

My Supt., Mr. Stanley, is a Kentuckian by birth, an Indianian by adoption, a Buckeye by marriage and is chuck full of vim and vigor, and always ready to cheer the boys up. My Assistant Supt., Mr. Langley, is as loyal a little soul as ever wrote an application. He has traveled all over the world.

Covington could furnish for the war with Spain a good many street corner statues to stop Spanish bullets.

Covington is a world beater for children and dogs. The children are learned to fight the first thing when they can walk, and the dogs all bite. Beware of the dogs.

If this is news for the Boone county people, I will try it again.

J. B. TOLIN.

WHAT IT COSTS.

It costs a good deal to run the President of these United States. In addition to his salary of $50.000, he is given $36,064 to pay the salaries of his subordinates. His private secretary is paid $3,250, his assistant secretary $2,250, his stenographer $1,800, five messengers each $1,500, a stewart $1,800, two door keepers each $1,200, four other clerks at good salaries, one telegraph operator, two ushers at $1,200, a watchman at $900, and the man who takes care of the fires receives $864, a year. In addition to this is given him $8,000 for incidental expenses, such as stationery, carpets and the care of the presidental stables. Under another heading there is given him nearly $40,000 more. Of this $12,500 are for repairs and refurnishing the White House, $2,500 for fuel, $4,000 for the greenhouse, $15,000 for gas, matches and the stable. The White House therefore costs the country considerably over $125,000 a year.

THE study of war maps has begun on an extensive scale.

Pith of the Press.

At last Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll locates hell in the devastated island of Cuba.—Boston Herald.

Secretary Sherman's department has about reached the stage of innocuous desputude.—Philadelphia Record.

President McKinley should forthwith give a Major-General's commission to Thomas B. Reed.—Boston Herald.

Leading in war would be quite a departure for John Wanamaker. John's specialty is leading in prayer.—Washington Post.

Blanco's "armistice" has reached Piner del Rio, and both sides are counting up the killed and wounded.—Philadelphia Press.

We trust the Administration will not turn up another batch of ambiguity for Mr. Grosvenor to explain.—Washington Post.

Cannot President McKinley see that the one thing for him to do is to give us a real Secretary of State in this emergency?—Boston Post.

When Spain releases her clutch on Cuba perhaps Captain General Tom Reed will release his clutch on Congress for a minute or more.—Chicago Journal.

If General Weyler is coming over to take command of the Spanish forces in Cuba he would better hurry up or the fuss will all be over before his arrival.—Chicago Record.

Mr. Wolcott need not be unnecessarily alarmed over the horrors of war. He will not have to volunteer for service against the "brave Spaniard," of whom he talked.—Denver Republican.

In spite of himself Mr. Dingley's hat got a temporary prominence corresponding to that of Mr. Simpson's socks, Mr. Reed's sash of long ago, and Mr. Bailey's frock coat.—N. Y. Evening Sun.

The Senate voiced the sentiments of the people; the House registered the decrees of Hanna, the Wall street stock gamblers and the Spanish bondholders. The Senate needs no defense.—Hamilton (Ohio) Democrat.

In its most important act, therefore, Congress not only does not follow Mr. McKinley's suggestion, but directs him to do something he has uniformly shrunk from doing, and which he has taken good care not to propose.—Chicago News.

We have had many political "campaigns of education," and Vice Consul Springer, who has recently returned from Havana, is of the opinion that if we are to have a brush with Spain it will be a "war of education" for the rest of the civilized world.—Chicago Tribune.

Mr. Dingley is now called upon to explain the failure of Mr. Dolge, of Dolgeville, a well protected woolen manufacturer, who was given everything he asked of the tariff tinkers. Evidence that a high tariff cannot always save a man's business is accumulating.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The friends of Spain and the Spanish bondholders will not despair of a dishonorable peace, even after Mr. McKinley has been empowered and instructed to proceed at once to war. They have never failed yet to influence the course of events in his vicinity, and they mean to die hard, if at all.—Washington Post.

Bismark said not long ago: "Let me tell you that Spain has not a ghost of a chance against America, and I will be the most surprised man in the world if, with the present military inefficiency, Spain will permit herself to be plunged into such an unequal strife." Bismark will not believe in war until he hears the guns.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

EACH United States soldier should be supplied with a pair of wire pliers with which to destroy Weyler's labyrinth of wire fences in Cuba.

An unmarried woman has been elected mayor of Kendrick, Idaho, and it is feared that the affairs of that town are going to be miss managed.

A pretty young woman has been elected mayor of an Idaho town. Here is a chance for some enterprising politician to marry his way into office.

The Nile will soon be virtually a British river as far south as Khartoum, at the junction of the White Nile and the Blue Nile, nearly 1,700 miles from the mouth. It is probable that the head waters will go with the main stream.

The United States is something of a coaling station itself. Last year there was more coal dug within our boundaries than ever before. Nearly 200,000,000 tons of bituminous coal and more than 50,000,000 of anthracite were the nation's product.

There is but one Protestant church in Cuba, and that is a small Protestant Episcopal congregation of about 200 members in Havana, which is supported by contributions from the American Church Missionary society, which has its headquarters in New York.

Empress Victoria of Germany has bestowed the golden servants' cross upon 144 German servant girls, each of whom has lived for 40 years in the same family. In America a service of 40 years by one domestic would embrace a short acquaintance with representative families in all the states of the union.

It was a happy thought which inspired Secretary Long to rename the Morgan line steamers El Norte, El Sud, El Rio and El Sol, which have been purchased for auxiliary cruisers, the Yankee, Dixie, Prairie and Yosemite. The names chosen are typical of the four principal sections of the country.

The extensive use of bicycles has considerably increased the consumption of leather. Every wheel has a saddle, and each one is covered with leather, tanned for the purpose from a cowhide. Every saddle requires at least a foot of leather, and it is estimated that more than a million feet are cut up annually for bicycles.

Think of it! Somebody is counterfeiting copper cents. At the present price of the raw material there is a profit of ten cents on every 100 coins turned out. It is difficult to see how the skilled labor required for this work can earn even laborers' wages at this business—to say nothing of the cost of distributing the coins and the dead certainty of soon being put at work in prison on no wages at all.

Miss Amelia Sommerville, a Gotham actress, appears to be a peculiarly circumspect and self-restrained young woman, with more than the usual regard for the proprieties of life. As we understand it, she absolutely refused to marry again until a full 24 hours had elapsed after the receipt of the decree of divorce that she had secured. It is always well to have all appearance of haste eliminated from affairs of this description.

Someone writes to ask at what age a girl is to be considered "an old maid." The only possible reply is: "Never." To describe any woman, of whatever age, as an "old maid" is both inaccurate and discourteous. Many women, freed from the cares and troubles of married life, are delightfully young and fresh at 40 or even 50. Indeed, a truly charming woman does not depend upon her age at all for her charm. The mere prettiness of youth is a foolish and evanescent thing in comparison. Let us have done with talking about "old maids."

Much has been forcibly said on the subject of properly prepared food as a preventive of intemperance. A medical authority remarks that unless a person is decently fed, warmed and clothed he can hardly get into a right mind to respond to moral, spiritual or legal suasion. The "submerged classes," it is urged, will be less strongly tempted when their bodies and nerves are properly nourished, and some element of good cheer brought into their lives. While the idea is not new, it is one that cannot be dismissed in practical temperance movements.

THE WAR IS ON.

Minister Woodford Handed His Passports Before Presenting Ultumatum.

All Diplomatic Relations Between the Two Countries Are Ruptured—It is Thought in Washington No Declaration of War is Now Necessary.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—Diplomatic relations between the United States and Spain are at an end. It is expected that from now on events will move with amazing rapidity up to the climax of actual war. Judge Day, assistant secretary of state, early Thursday morning received a cablegram from Minister Woodford, at Madrid, stating that he had been handed his passports and had been notified that official relations between the United States and Spain were ended.

His cablegram said that he had been given the passports before he had had an opportunity to present the ultimatum transmitted to him for submission to the Spanish government, the delivery of the ultimatum to Minister Polo having been accepted by the Spanish government as a formal announcement on our part.

Judge Day at once hurried to the white house where he found President McKinley about to enter a carriage to take Mrs. McKinley to the railroad station where he intended to see her off on a short trip to New York. The news that diplomatic relations between the United States and Spain were formally at an end was so important that the president bade a hasty good bye to his wife on the white house portico and repaired immediately to the upstairs part of the house where he and Judge Day held a conference, the result of which was the dispatch of Secretary Porter to the capitol to communicate the news to the senate committee on foreign relations and also to leading members of the house. It is presumed that this was done in order to facilitate any action deemed necessary by congress.

By a hasty summons Senator Davis, of Minnesota, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations; Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, a member of the committee; Senator Allison, of Iowa, a leader in that body, and others were brought to the white house, where they joined Assistant Secretary Day and the president shortly after 10 o'clock in a conference whose purpose is to map out the immediate policy of the United States.

The conference broke up shortly after half-past ten o'clock. Judge Day accompanied by Senator Lodge going over to the state department. The assistant secretary would say nothing regarding the conference further than to authorize the statement that public announcement would be made later in the day. Chairman Davis, of the senate foreign relations committee was laconic and not explicit, simply remarking: "We've taken the trick."

Senator Cullom, of Illinois, of the foreign relations committee, was at this conference also, and at 11 o'clock, on leaving the white house, said that the handing of the passports to Minister Woodford constituted the Spanish reply and ended all peaceful relations. While an effort might be made in congress to make a formal declaration of war, there was no occasion for it, and in his opinion there probably would be none. He added: "There is enough of a state of war now existing."

Everything now, he suggested, would go ahead without preliminary action of a formal declaration of war by congress. The next step, he said, would be to call out the troops.

The president did not indicate to the senators and members of the house with whom he talked Thursday that he considered a declaration of war necessary, and it is understood that he has been advised by some of those whose advice he most relies upon that no declaration is necessary. Some of the leading senators consider that the congressional resolutions and the ultimatum sent to Spain are all that is necessary to give notice to the world that a state of war exists, while others say a manifesto to the powers advising them of the condition of affairs might be well.

The best information is that the president is disposed to regard this advice and the probabilities now are that he will not ask congress to make a formal declaration of war.

The navy department Thursday, aside from giving the orders to the squadron, continued the work of adding to the navy and purchased another ship at Norfolk as an auxiliary craft and some small yachts. The news of the actual beginning of war was received with gravity at the department and there were many speculations as to the destination of the Spanish squadron. One suggestion was that it is heading to cut off the fine battle ship Oregon now on its way from the Pacific coast around to join Capt. Sampson's command.

There is also some fear that the Oregon may be taken at an unfair advantage without knowledge of the existence of war by the Spanish topedo destroyer Temmerire, which is now lying at Buenos Ayres.

MADRID, April 22.—A semi-official note issued at 3:30 p. m. says the Spanish government considers the ultimatum of the United States constitutes a declaration of war. The semi-official note adds that the Spanish fleet is already on its way to meet the fleet of the United States.

Senor Polo in Canada.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., April 22.—Senor Polo y Bernabe and staff arrived here Thursday afternoon, crossing from the American side in carriages. There was no reception of any kind on reaching British soil, and after registering the minister and party took lunch. The length of their stay here is problematical. Senor Polo will not be interviewed.

Old Glory Burned at Valencia.

VALENCIA, April 22.—The students here Thursday made a noisy demonstration, and burned an American flag in the presence of a large crowd.

A PROCLAMATION

By the President of the United States Declaring the Blockade of Cuban Ports by American War Vessels.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The following proclamation announcing a blockade of Cuban ports was issued Friday.

BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES:
A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, By a joint resolution passed by the congress and approved April 20, 1898, and communicated to the government of Spain, it was demanded that said government at once relinquish its authority and government in the Island of Cuba, and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters; and the president of the United States was directed and empowered to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States, and to call into the actual service of the United States the militia of the several states to such extent as might be necessary to carry such resolution into effect; and,

Whereas, in carrying into effect said resolution, the president of the United States deems it necessary to set on foot and maintain a blockade of the north coast of Cuba, including all ports on said coast between Cardenas and Bahia Honda, and the port of Cienfuegos on the south coast of Cuba;

Now, therefore, I, William McKinley, president of the United States, in order to enforce the said resolution, do hereby declare and proclaim that the United States of America have instituted and will maintain a blockade of the north coast of Cuba, including ports on said coast between Cardenas and Bahia Honda, and the port of Cienfuegos on the south coast of Cuba, aforesaid, in pursuance of the laws of the United States and the law of nations applicable to such cases. An efficient force will be posted so as to prevent the entrance and exit of vessels from the ports aforesaid. Any neutral vessel approaching any of said ports or attempting to leave the same without notice or knowledge of the establishment of such blockade will be duly warned by the commander of the blockading forces who will indorse on her register the fact, and the date, of such warning, where such indorsement was made; and if the same vessel shall again attempt to enter any blockaded port she will be captured and sent to the nearest convenient port for such proceedings against her and her cargo as prize, as may be deemed advisable.

Neutral vessels lying in any of said ports at the time of the establishment of such blockade will be allowed 30 days to issue therefrom.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington, this 22d day of April, A. D. 1898, and of the independence of the United States, the one hundred and twenty-second.

WM. McKINLEY.

By the president, JOHN SHERMAN, Secretary of State.

SECRETARY SHERMAN,

It is Reported, Will Resign From the Cabinet—Judge Day is Tired of Public Life and May Retire.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—The Post, Saturday, will say: There is every reason to believe that Secretary Sherman will resign from the cabinet within a few days.

It is felt by the friends of the secretary that the present crisis is too severe a tax upon his failing strength, and for this reason he will retire to private life. His successor will be Assistant Secretary Day, in all probability, but it can be stated that Judge Day has no desire to remain in public life. It is the president's natural desire to promote Judge Day to the position which Mr. Sherman will vacate, but if he persists in his desire to leave official life, there will be a reorganization of the department to the extent of a new secretary and a new assistant secretary.

LIBERAL CABINET

Accused of Bringing On a War Without Making Preparations to Carry it Out.

LONDON, April 23.—The Madrid correspondent of the Daily Telegraph says: In well informed parliamentary circles a pessimistic view is taken as to the upshot of the war. Even the politicians who are patriotically supporting the government accuse the liberal cabinet of having brought about the war and of having made no preparations to carry it on. Those who have studied the question affirm that the war will be of short duration and that when it is terminated those who are responsible for it will be called to account.

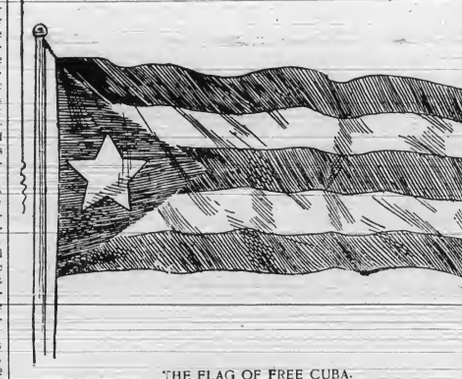
To Inspect Lake Vessels.

NEW YORK, Apr l 23.—It is reported that a detail of the naval auxiliary board will in a few days visit Buffalo and Cleveland to inspect a large number of lake tugs, yachts and steamers.

Reward for the First Spanish Flag.

CHICAGO, April 23.—The following telegram has been sent to President McKinley by Editor Michaelis, of the Frei Presse: "We have opposed a war with Spain, believing that the Maine case could be settled by arbitration, and that the Cubans, who derailed trains, burned hospitals and murdered officers sent to them with a bag of rice, are not worth a drop of American blood. But since war has actually begun we will rally around the stars and stripes, and we offer $100 to the union soldier who captures the first Spanish army flag.

ON TO HAVANA.



The North Atlantic Squadron Leaves Key West for the Purpose of Blockading Cuban Ports.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 23.—The North Atlantic squadron, except the monitors Terror and Puritan and the smaller cruisers, sailed from Key West at 5:45 o'clock Friday morning headed for the Florida Straits. The skies were growing gray with the coming dawn when the formidable family of destroyers quietly and unostentatiously steamed away, presumably for the shores of Cuba.

Besides the two monitors left behind are the gunboat Helena, cruisers Marblehead, Dolphin and the torpedo boat Cushing.

The first streaks of the morning light were crossing from the east and two bells just sounded from the ships when tiny, and to unfamiliar eyes, an almost imperceptible line of fire appeared on the sky above where lay the flagship. A moment or two after and the signal staff of the Cincinnati, lying off Fort Taylor, in the inner harbor, flashed into colored light, acknowledging the call.

The Puritan and Helena joined in the incandescent conversation, and soon the skies were kaleidoscopic as ship after ship answered. New lights ticked messages fraught with the gravest import and creative of history. What words, of course, no one ashore knew but the few who watched with straining eyes from sea and docks, needed no interpreter to tell that it meant hostile action.

The message was not long in delivery, but sunrise had fully come as the last letter flickered and went out. Then the witnesses saw that the movement had actually begun under cover of the night. The big ships could still be discerned in the distance, but the others had moved toward them, the flagship drawing other ships of the squadron to her.

The Wilmington and Amphitrite had slipped from their anchorage and advanced within hailing distance of the flagship. It was just 5:42 when the New York, without unnecessary display, moved pompously and slowly toward the outer waters of the gulf.

To those ashore it looked as if the New York was somewhat in advance of the line, with the Iowa and Indiana following on either side, but separated from her by a good stretch of water. As the line advanced toward the horizon the ships spread out until perhaps there was a distance of three miles between the tips of the crescent. The ships of the inner harbor had slipped out one by one and stopped at various stations until the entire formation was ready to move. The exact order of the ships could not be ascertained from the shore. From the highest point in Key West the line was semi-circular. The ships that followed the three leaders were the cruisers Cincinnati, Detroit, Nashville, the gunboats Wilmington, Castine, Machias, Newport, monitors Amphitrite, the Mangrove, Mayflower and torpedo boat Foote. Why the powerful monitors Puritan and Terror did not accompany the fleet could not officially be learned but it is said they may follow shortly. The Marblehead is taking on water and will doubtless join the squadron in a day or two.

WOODFORD'S TRAIN

Attacked by a Mob at Valladolid—Attempt to Arrest the Minister's Private Secretary.

BIARRITZ, France, April 23.—Gen. Woodford and Capt. Hi-s have arrived here on their way from Madrid to Paris. When the train on which they were traveling reached Valladolid a mob attempted to storm it. The crowd shouted, "Death to the Yankees," and broke the windows of the cars. The civil guard came to the rescue and dispersed the mob with some difficulty.

When the train neared the French frontier an attempt was made to arrest Gen. Woodford's private secretary on the ground that he is a Spanish citizen. Gen. Woodford protested against the proceedings and they desisted.

Two Spanish Ships to Be Seized.

NEW ORLEANS, April 23.—Orders have been issued to intercept and seize the Catalina and Miguel Joves, the Spanish ships which left here Friday night. The Louisiana naval reserves was put into service Saturday, part going to Mobile and the main body to the mouth of the river.

Spanish Passenger Steamer Captured.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 23.—At 2:20 a. m. an incoming tug reported that the New York has captured a Spanish passenger steamer plying between Havana and Porto Rico. The torpedo fleet is coming in.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—SENATE—The senate Saturday night passed the following resolutions by a vote of 67 to 21 after a lengthy debate: Resolved, By the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, in congress assembled, 1. That the people of the island of Cuba are and of right ought to be free and independent, and that the government of the United States hereby recognizes the republic of Cuba as the true and lawful government of that island. 2. That it is the duty of the United States to demand, and the government of the United States does hereby demand, that the government of Spain at once relinquish its authority and government in the island of Cuba and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters. 3. That the president of the United States be, and hereby is directed to use the entire land and naval forces of the United States, and to call into service of the United States militia of the several states, to such extent as may be necessary to carry these resolutions into effect. 4. That the United States hereby disclaim any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction or control over said island, except for the pacification thereof; and assert its determination, when that is accomplished, to leave the government and control of the island to its people.

HOUSE—The house held a short session Saturday, and at 1:35 p. m. adjourned until Monday morning.

WASHINGTON, April 19.—SENATE—The senate Monday passed the minority report of the foreign relations committee with the Foraker and Teller amendments, recognizing the Cuban republic, and for armed intervention in the Island. The resolutions were returned from the house with the Foraker amendment recognizing the independence of the Cuban republic. It was then sent to conference and on being returned to the senate was concurred in.

HOUSE—The house debated the Foraker amendment to the senate committee on foreign relations report on the Cuban joint resolutions and passed the report with the Teller amendment at 1:15 Tuesday morning, after having been passed upon by a conference committee.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—SENATE—Comparatively little business was transacted in the senate Tuesday, all of the senators being fatigued on account of their long vigil Monday night over the Cuban resolutions. Consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill was resumed, and the wide latitude of debate permitted under the rules of the senate afforded opportunity for some explanations to be made concerning the action of the senate upon the Cuban question. Mr Cockrell (Mo.), and Mr. Bacon (Ga.) explained the action of the democrats in voting against the conference report in the early hours of Tuesday morning and the colloquies that ensued between them and some of the republican senators were spicy and interesting. A running fire of debate was precipitated which was participated in by Mr. Mantle (Mont.), Mr. Cannon (Utah), Mr. Hale (Me.), Mr. Spooner (Wis.) and others, the discussion lasting about three hours.

HOUSE—The house presented a most desolate appearance when it convened at noon after the weary all night session. While the journal was being read, Mr. Hager (rep., Ia.), chairman of the committee on enrolled bills, brought in the Cuban resolutions which had been enrolled under his personal direction. The speaker immediately signed them, and as soon as the reading of the journal was concluded at 12:16 p. m. he announced his signature. There was no demonstration. The enrolling clerk at his side seized the resolutions and hurried with them across to the capitol. Mr. Dingley stated that in view of the fact that the house had been sitting all night and that the members were weary he would move to adjourn. Accordingly at 12:3 p. m. the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—SENATE—During the five hours of discussion in the senate Wednesday afternoon of its recent action upon the Cuban resolutions, in the course of which several executive sessions were made to secure quorums, a brief statement concerning the recognition of the Cuban republic's independence. He said: "I think quickly, speedily, possibly even now, on the very day when the ultimatum has been sent to Spain, pursuant to the resolutions that passed here, this government has practically recognized the republic of Cuba, and I think possibly at this time we have all known by Thursday that that government is being officially dealt with by the representatives of this government as it should be."

HOUSE—The house Wednesday passed the bill empowering the president to call out the volunteer forces and providing for their organization. The bill was drafted at the war department. Introduced in the house Tuesday and considered and reported by the committee Wednesday. No such exception could have been possible except under the stress of war pressure. The bill is permanent in its character. The principal change made in the bill as introduced was that the appointment of all regimental officers are to be made by the governors of the states. This action conforms to the practice of the civil war.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—SENATE—The most important act of the day was the passage of the army organization bill, which was passed by the house Wednesday, and which is now anxiously awaited by the president. The senate committee made several amendments in the measure, the most important of which is to reduce the term of enlistment from three to one year and to appoint two assistant surgeons for each regiment in place of one. The other amendments are unimportant in character, and the bill, which is designed to temporarily increase the military establishment in time of war, was after considerable useless discussion and waste of time sent back to the house for concurrence in the amendments made by the senate. After these amendments had been agreed to Friday morning the bill will be hurried to the white house for the approval of the president, so that upon the authority of the measure thus laid before him he can issue his call for volunteers.

HOUSE—Representative Hull, of Iowa, chairman of the house committee on military affairs, reported back to the house Thursday the army reorganization bill with a number of amendments. It gives 38 instead of 100 privates to each infantry company, and makes this important proviso authorizing the call for troops: "Provided, That in the event of a call by the president for either volunteers or the militia of the country, the president is authorized to accept the quotas of troops of the various states and territories, including the District of Columbia, as organized under the laws of the states and territories, including the District of Columbia. There is also a provision that nothing in the act is to be construed to authorize a permanent increase of the commissioned staff or force of the regular army beyond that now provided by present law, except as to the increase of 25 majors.

He Was Waiting.

A young theological student who is about to depart for the missionary fields told an amusing story on himself the other evening that gives an insight to the ease that led to his determining to preach the Gospel to the heathen. He had called on a young lady, and her little brother posted himself in an armchair facing a handsome gilt clock. He had been there half an hour, when the young lady said: "Bobbie, why don't you go to the nursery?" "I am waiting," replied Bobbie. "What are you waiting for, my dear?" BOMBARDMENT

Of the City of Havana Began at Daylight on Monday Morning.

THE WAR IS NOW ON IN EARNEST

Rear Admiral Sampson Notified the Terrified City That Hostilities Would Open.

Gen. Blanco Made Hasty Preparations for the Defense, and Havana Was In an Uproar All Day Sunday.

HAVANA, Cuba, April 25.—The United States fleet will begin the bombardment of Havana Monday.

Rr. Adm. Sampson has sent notice of his intention to Mr. Gollan, the British ambassndor here, who, acting under instructions from his government, is in charge of the United States consulate in Havana.

Mr. Gollan has told Capt. Gen. Blanco that real war is about to begin. The city is terror-stricken.

Adm. Sampson's notice simply stated that he intended to begin the bombardment. It is not known whether his ships will confine themselves to the batteries, and, after silencing them, take Havana with his sailors and marines, or will try and compel surrender by shelling the city itself.

Gen. Blanco visited all the batteries as soon as he was told of the intention of the American commander. He is Sunday night at the Santa Clara, where are the guns that are most depended upon as defenders. He will remain there all night. The first shot is expected at daybreak.

There was no rest in the city Sunday night. The streets are crowded. Troops are being moved hither and thither to strengthen the defenses.

Gen. Pando, who hastened to the remote batteries as soon as the United States fleet arrived here, returned to the city Sunday night. I was told that he had a narrow escape from capture by a rebel band, and that report was accompanied by another to the effect that the insurgents are moving in toward the city, so as to be ready to dash in and assist the United States forces should they invade the city. No troops can now be spared from the main defenses to drive them back.

CRUISER DETROIT

Captures the Spanish Vessel Catalina Within Twelve Miles of Havana.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 25.—The Catalina was captured about 4 o'clock Sunday morning 12 miles from Havana. She was taken by the cruiser Detroit. When the first shot was fired, her captain made a desperate effort to escape his pursuer, and the chase was prolonged for eight miles. Finally a solid shot brought her to. She is carrying a cargo of 60,000 bundles of staves.

The Catilha which is the property of Izquierdo y Ira. of Cadiz, was built in 1893 and was last serviced in New York in October of that year. She is 415 feet in length, 48 feet in breadth and 21.5 feet in depth of hold. She is a steel vessel with two bulkheads. According to the bureau Veritas, her gross tonnage is 3,291 and her net 3,591.

TWO MORE

Spanish Vessels Captured by Our Fleet in Cuban Waters.

NEW YORK, April 25.—A dispatch to the Press from Key West says: The gunboat Wilmington Sunday captured the Spanish cruiser Candida, with a deck-load of charcoal intended for Havana, where it is extremely valuable for fuel.

The Cushing is bearing down on a schooner to the southeast. The breeze is slow, and while she has on all sail, the Cushing will overhaul her shortly. She has the start, but the Cushing has the steam.

The torpedo boat Porter Sunday captured the Spanish schooner Antonio, laden with sugar for Havana. The Antonio was sent to Key West with a prize crew of four men under Naval Cadet Dubolse.

FIRST SHOT FIRED.

Spanish Merchantman Buenaventura Captured by the Gunboat Nashville.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 23.—The Spanish merchantman Buenaventura was captured shortly after 7 o'clock Friday morning by the United States cruiser Nashville. The fleet at that time was only a short distance from the shore. Smoke had appeared on the horizon, away to westward, and by 6 o'clock it was plain that this came from a merchantman. By 7 o'clock she was seen to be a two-masted, black-hulled ship, with white upper works and black smokestacks, having the colors of the Spanish flag painted around it. A Spanish flag was flying to the breeze above the taffrail.

The squadron had been steaming dead slow, say six knots, but at 7 o'clock the Nashville suddenly left the line, and at full speed headed toward the Spaniard. A moment later a gun was fired from the port battery of the Nashville and the shot struck the water a few hundred yards away. The Spaniard was half a mile from the Nashville, and she held her way, making no sign of having given the shot any attention.

For two minutes the Nashville held her way in the chase, and then tried another shot, that passed apparently within a rod of the Spaniard's bow and clipped spray from the crest of the waves for a mile beyond.

The officer on the Spaniard's bridge at once reversed her engines, while a man ran aft and hastily lowered her flag.

At 7:15 the Nashville brought to alongside the Spaniard, having every gun, big and little, in the starboard broadside pointed at her.

Then a whaleboat was lowered, and Ensign Magruder, with a boarding crew of six men, was sent to take charge of the prize.

She was found to be the Buenaventura, plying between New York, Havana and West India ports. She had a cargo of lumber on deck forward, that was stowed so as to give her a list to port. Meanwhile the torpedo boat Foote had run down in the wake of the Nashville, and brought to beside the Buenventura. For the next half hour there was a good deal of filling and backing by the Nashville and the Foote, as they lay about the Spaniard. Ensign Magruder took charge of the Spaniard's papers and sent a report regarding them to the Nashville. These were eventually sent to the flagship by the torpedo boat Foote.

She brought orders that the Buenaventura was to be held, and a few minutes later the Nashville headed toward Key West and was followed by the Buenaventura.

It was observed, however, that when the Nashville and Buenaventura had run a mile or so toward port, they were stopped by signal from Adm. Sampson, and for 15 or 20 minutes they hung on wind. Then they headed away once more for port.

As the Buenaventura lay awaiting orders from Adm. Sampson her crew hung listlessly over the rail or walked about her deck and gazed at her captors.

The Spanish officers were on the bridge most of the time, but one, apparently the captain, went to and from the bridge to the deck and down below. An American sailor had the wheel. Another stood on the bridge, near Ensign Magruder, and the others guarded the main deck. The sailors are carrying muskets on board, and Ensign Magruder has side arms.

The sailors on the bridge and at the wheel had bayonets in their belts, and the men on deck kept their muskets in hand. One of these on deck was seen to examine his musket look occasionally, and to handle the weapon carelessly at frequent intervals. The crews on the Nashville and Foote and prize crew were entirely sober, however, during the time occupied in waiting to start for port.

GALVESTON, Tex., April 23.—The steamer Buenaventura, captured by the United States gunboat Nashville, is a tramp steamer hailing from Bilgoa, Spain. She belongs to the Sarrinaga line. On March 29 she arrived at Pascagoula, Miss., from Havana, and was on the way to Pensacola, Fla., to load for Holland when captured.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 23.—The cruiser Marblehead, the monitor Puritan, the Algonquin and the Mangrove sailed Friday afternoon to join the fleet. The only ships of the squadron now remaining here are the Dolphin, the Terror and the Helena, all of which are likely to move within a few hours.

ALPHONSO XII.,

A Spanish Mail Steamer, Captured by the Flagship New York—The Vessel is Valued at $1,000,000 and Had a Valuable Cargo and 1,000 Spanish Soldiers Aboard.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 23.—It is believed here that the prize capture of the flag ship New York is the Alfonso XII., (a mail steamer, not the war ship of that name). The Spanish ship tried to run away, but the New York gave chase, firing shot after shot, until the Spanish ship hove to and surrendered.

KEY WEST, April 23.—Adm. Sampson gave one of the swift cruisers special orders to look out for the Alfonso XII., now nearing Havana from Barcelona, Spain. She is the crack vessel of the Compagnie Espanol Transatlantique and is worth $1,000,000. She carries a valuable cargo of supplies and ammunition for the Spanish army and a regiment of soldiers 1,000 strong. She will prove a valuble prize, and, despite the soldiers, is expected to fall an easy victim.

Capt. Sampson Promoted.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—Secretary Long said Friday afternoon that Capt. Sampson had been appointed an "acting rear admiral." It is supposed he will be named later as "rear admiral."

A DECREE ISSUED

By the Spanish Government Declaring War Between Spain and the United States,

OWING TO OUR DETESTABLE CONDUCT

The Enterp... Maintain Their Right to Grave Recourse to ... privateering.

One Month Given United States Ships to Leave Spanish Ports—Five Rules That Spain Will Observe During the War.

MADRID, April 25.—The following decree was gazetted Sunday:

"Diplomatic relations are broken off between Spain and the United States, and the state of war being begun between the two countries, numerous questions of international law arise which must be precisely defined, chiefly because the injustice and provocation come from our adversaries, and it is they who, by their detestable conduct, have caused this grave conflict."

The royal decree then says Spain maintains her right to have recourse to privateering and announces that for the present only auxiliary cruisers will be be fitted out. All treaties with the United States are annulled; 30 days are given United States ships to leave Spanish ports and the rules Spain will observe during the war are outlined in five clauses, covering neutral flags and goods, contraband of war, what will be considered a blockade, the right of search and what constitutes contraband of war, ending with saying foreign privateers will be regarded as pirates.

Continuing, the decree reads:

"We have observed with the strictest fidelity the principles of international law, and have shown the most scrupulous respect for morality and the right of government. There is an opinion that the fact that we have not adhered to the declaration of Paris does not exempt from the duty of respecting the principles therein enunciated. The principle Spain unquestionably refused to admit then was the abolition of privateering. The government now considers it most indispensable to make absolute reserve on this point, in order to maintain our liberty of action and uncontested right to have recourse to privateering when we consider it expedient.

"Following is a summary of the more important of the five clauses outlining the rules Spain will observe during the war:

1. By organizing immediately a force of cruisers, auxiliary to the navy, which will be composed of vessels of our mercantile navy.

2. Neutral merchandise, except contraband of war, is not seizable under the enemy's flag.

3. A blockade to be obligatory must be effective, viz., it must be maintained with sufficient force to prevent access to the enemy's littoral.

4. The Spanish government upholding its right to grant letters of marque, will at present confine itself to organizing, with the vessels of the mercantile marine, a force of auxiliary cruisers which will co-operate with the navy according to the needs of the campaign and will be under naval control.

5. In order to capture the enemy's ships and confiscate the enemy's merchandise and contraband of war, under whatever form the auxiliary cruisers will exercise the right of search on the high seas and in the waters under the enemy's jurisdiction, in accordance with international law and the regulations which will be published.

6. Defines what is included in contraband of war, naming weapons, ammunition, equipments engines and in general all the appliances used in war.

7. To be regarded and judged as pirates, with all the rigor of the law are captains, masters, officers and two-thirds of the crew of vessels which, not being American, shall commit acts of war against Spain, even if provided with letters of marque issued by the United States.

FIVE FLEET SHIPS

In New York Harbor Ready for Service in the War—Will Sail Monday.

NEW YORK, April 25.—Five fleet ships probably will move out of New York harbor Monday, ready for service in the war.

The auxiliary cruiser Yankee, formerly the Morgan line steamship El Monte is ready to sail, manned by the New York naval reserves, and in command of Lieut. Commander Willard S. Brownson. She may be used as a scout to patrol the Atlantic coast and keep a sharp lookout for Spanish war ships.

The cruisers San Francisco and New Orleans also are reported as being ready to leave Monday and they will go to Hampton Roads to join the flying squadron.

Under Commander Caspar Goodrich the American liner St. Louis will steam out and the Harvard, formerly the New York, will go at the same time in charge of Capt. A. S. Barker. The destination and duties of these two swift vessels are unknown.

Cruiser San Francisco Out of Dry Dock.

NEW YORK, April 25.—The cruiser San Francisco was floated out of dry dock in the Brooklyn navy yard Sunday, just at dusk as the lines of the converted Wasp, formerly the yacht Columbia, were cast off, and she left the yard, presumably for Hampton Roads to join Commodore Schley's fleet.

Prince Albert Called Home.

BRUSSELS, April 25.—The count of Flanders has telegraphed his son, Prince Albert of Belgium (heir presumptive to the Belgian throne, now traveling in the United States, to return to Belgium immediately.

A NAVAL OFFICER

Thinks Our Docking Facilities in the South Atlantic is Limited.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—"I hope," said a prominent naval officer Wednesday who has given much thought to the subject, "that the plan of operations decided upon by the department will not include an attack by our fleet on Morro Castle and the forts at Cabanas as the first stroke of the campaign. If we do this many of our ships are sure to be crippled and sent home for repairs. Our docking facilities on the South Atlantic coast are so limited that the vessels would either have to be sent far north to be repaired or else await their time for docking in the south. The Spaniards are taking the cue and are displaying much military sagacity in the movement of their ships. They are concentrating them in their home ports and, if our fleets are disabled by attempting to reduce the fortifications at Havana, they will steam over here and inflict irreparable damage upon them. It seems to me the proper thing for us to do would be to attempt to land a large force of men in Cuba, surround the fortifications and starve out the Spaniards, meanwhile keeping up a blockade of the harbor and the coast by our fleet of ships. I think with an army of 20,000 men, supplemented by the insurgents' strength on the island, we could be able to do this. You will remember that during the late war our fleets suffered considerably in the attack on the forts in Charleston harbor, whereas when the soldiers holding them ascertained that Sherman was coming with an army from the inland they began to evacuate when he was 100 miles away. These points have been brought to the attention of the strategic board which is now formulating a plan of campaign.

SMALL RIOT

Between the Colored Troops and Citizens at Key West, Fla.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 21.—An affray occurred Wednesday which shows that considerable feeling exists against the colored troops, or rather their presence here. Sergt. Williams, of Company G, Twenty-fifth infantry, was with a brother soldier examining a revolver at a street corner when a policeman asked him to put the weapon away.

According to the story of the police, Sergeant Williams refused and challenged the policeman to compel him. The policeman drew his revolver, but the weapon missed fire. Meanwhile the soldier blazed away. He was overpowered before any one was hurt. During the struggle to overcome the Negro several white men struck him in the face.

Williams was locked up at the city hall. The police say Col. Daggett had issued an order forbidding the troops to carry sidearms. The streets were well filled at the time and it was fortunate that no one was killed. The escapade has raised feeling to a high pitch and race trouble is feared.

Twenty minutes after Williams arrest 25 soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry, fully armed with rifles and fixed bayonets, surrounded the house of Sheriff Knight and demanded that he release the prisoner. The sheriff was alone and ill. The Negro troops gave him five minutes to comply with their demand and he decided that discretion was the better part of valor and gave up his man.

Col. Daggett when the latter feature of the affair was brought to his attention, said he would investigate it thoroughly and if the report was true, would discipline every man severely.

The Daily Mail on the Situation.

LONDON, April 21.—The Daily Mail sade editorially Thursday morning: "When one reads the stirring words of the queen regent and notes the fine enthusiasm of her subjects one may feel more than a passing regret that such a Quixote temper should be wasted on a cause so hopeless and so unworthy a great nation. Spain will fall from among the peoples of the earth unhonored, if not unwept. America may have a hard and costly task, but the cleansing of Cuba is a piece of scavenging that will live in history."

Don Carlos' Movements.

OSTEND, April 21.—Don Carlos, the Spanish pretender, accompanied by a numerous suite, has arrived here. It is understood that the pretender will remain at Ostend for some time to come. Ostend is a seaport town of Belgium, in West Flanders, on the North sea, and only about 60 miles from England, where the followers of Don Carlos have been very active recently, under the leadership of the earl of Ashburnham. Ostend has regular steam communication with London and Dover.

The Contract Let.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The contract for supplying the post office department with envelopes during the ensuing four years was Wednesday given to the Purecell Envelope Co., of Holyoke, Mass. Their bid was $467,206 per year. It is estimated by Third Assistant Postmaster General Merritt that under this contract the government will pay during the four years $1,090,000 less than formerly.

Col. Cook's Retirement.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 21.—The retirement of Col. H. C. Cook, commanding at Fort McPherson and now on his way to Tampa, Fla. at the head of the Fifth infantry, has been ordered by the medical board of the department of the gulf on account of disability.

Gen. Brooke in Chattanooga.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 21.—Maj. Gen. Brooke and staff arrived in the city Wednesday afternoon. At 3:30 550 cavalry troops from Fort Jefferson, Mo., came in. Fifty-five cars of artillery from Fort Myer arrived Wednesday evening. Several thousand troops will arrive Wednesday night and Thursday.

Submarine Boat Receives an Official Test.

NEW YORK, April 21.—The submarine boat Holland was tested officially Wednesday under the direction of a naval board of inspection and proved an undoubtec success.

FOREIGN POWERS

Will Oppose the Policy of the Spaniards to Commission Privateers.

Action of the United States in Announcing That There Will Be No Privateering on Her Part Received With Great Favor.

WASHINGTON, April 23.—There are strong indications that if the Spanish government persists in the present announced policy of commissioning privateers to prey upon commerce, effective influences will be brought upon her by several of the great commercial powers, particularly Great Britain and Germany, to stop this privateering, or to make it practically ineffective or harmless. The action of the United States government in declaring that it would not resort to privateering has been received with great satisfaction in the foreign embassies and legations here. Negotiations along this line had been pending here for some time, and are now shifted to Madrid, where the British charge d'affaires is making strong representations to Premier Sagasta to prevent privateering. Whether this will be concerted by Spain is doubtful, as her chief reliance for protracting a war is through commissioning privateers to harass American merchant ships, or neutral ships carrying American goods. But it has developed that this course by Spain, while nominally directed against the United States, would operate more injuriously against the shipping of Great Britain, Germany and the other commercial powers, as the bulk of commerce to and from this country is carried in foreign ships. British ships it is estimated, carry 80 per cent. of the commerce between the United States and Great Britain, while German and France merchant ships also handle considerable portions of the trade. This has given these powers a material interest against privateering, which would subject to search and seizure any of their ships carrying American goods. These interests are so great that it is regarded as certain in the best posted diplomatic quarters that if Spain does not relinquish privateering voluntarily she will practice it at her peril as against Great Britain, Germany and possibly some other powers. It is understood that the British government has not determined upon its final line of action, except that British merchant ships shall be protected at any hazard, even if British war ships are called upon to establish a protective patrol across the Atlantic. It is thought to be probable, however, that no defensive step of this character will be taken until an actual search or seizure of a British or German merchantman by a Spanish privateer has occurred, in which case, it is expected, the Spanish government will be held accountable, and exact limitations placed upon her privateering. So far as France is concerned, her commercial interests are against privateering, but her sentiments are toward allowing Spain to prosecute about the only effective means of warfare at her disposal. Russia, Austria, Italy and nearly all of the nations of Europe and South America, some 40 in number, are signers of the treaty of Paris against privateering, but this binds them alone and does not require them to exert influence on Spain to stop this mode of warfare. It is the direct commercial interest of Great Britain and Germany which lead them to limit or put an end to this policy.

The action of the United States is received with great favor, aside from its bearing on the approaching conflict, as it is said to give American adherence for the future to the abolition of privateering, although this country has refused that adherence for the last 42 years. The present action, while not accompanied by any formal signing of the treaty of Paris, is accepted by the foreign establishments here, and is so made known to foreign governments, as a full adherence of the principles of that treaty.

The first article of the treaty of Paris of 1856 is in these words: "Privateering is and remains abolished."

The original parties to the declaration were Great Britain, France, Russia, Prussia, Austria, Sardinia and Turkey. Other countries followed later in accepting it, the United States and Spain alone holding out against it. The United States now accedes, leaving Spain alone in a resort to privateering.

THE SUPPORT

Of the Colored People of the Country Tendered to the President.

WASHINGTON, April 22.—The support of the colored people of the United States to the country in the coming war was formally tendered the president Thursday by a representative delegation from that race. Headed by ex-Gov. Pinchback, of Louisiana, they presented an address in which attention was called to the valuable services of colored troops under Jackson in 1812 and during the civil war, when they fought for the preservation of the union.

In closing the address stated: "To support you in your determination to extend liberty on this continent and to maintain the honor and dignity of our country, we tender you the moral and physical support of 9,000,000 colored Americans."

Remarkable Statement.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., April 22.—At the county W. C. T. U. convention just held here a report from the evangelistic department showed the remarkable fact that there were in the state of Indiana 43,000 homeless children and 18,500 young men in the various jails and prisons.

Trampled on Old Glory.

LONDON, April 22.—Mail advices from the Grand Canary islands, dated April 12, say it was rumored there that the stars and stripes had been torn down from the American consulate by the rabble and trampled upon.

SPAIN'S MINISTER

Handed His Passports and He Leaves Washington—The Cuban Resolutions Made a Law and McKinley Sends an Ultimatum to Spain.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Cuban resolution is now a law of the land and the ultimatum to Spain an accomplished fact. The president at 11:24 o'clock affixed his signature to the joint resolution of congress requiring Spain to evacuate the island of Cuba. The ultimatum meanwhile had been prepared at the state department by Assistant Secretary Day, and at 11:30 o'clock announcement was made at the white house that it had been signed by the president and had been sent to the Spanish government. The ultimatum was brought over to the white house about 10:50 o'clock by Assistant Secretary Day who went over it with President McKinley before the latter affixed his signature. After the public announcement, Assistant Secretary Day said that the ultimatum had been transmitted Wednesday morning to Madrid, addressed to United States Minister Woodford who will deliver it to the Spanish government.

As soon as the final determination to send it had been reached, and it had been started on its way to Madrid, Senor Polo de Bernabe, the Spanish minister, in accordance with diplomatic courtesies, was furnished a copy of the paper by the colored messenger of Assistant Secretary Day.

It was said at the white house that the terms of the ultimatum would not be made public here until Thursday.

The Spanish minister's request for his passports, sent immediately on the receipt of the ultimatum was as follows:

LEGATION DE ESPANA,
WASHINGTON, April 20, 1898.

Mr. Secretary—The resolution adopted by the congress of the United States of America and approved Wednesday by the president is of such a nature that my permanence in Washington becomes impossible and obliges me to request of you the delivery of my passport. The protection of the Spanish interests will be entrusted to the French ambassador and to the Austrian-Hungarian minister. On this occasion, very painful to me, I have the honor to renew to you the assurances of my highest consideration.

[Signed] LUIS POLO DE BERNABE.

Assistant Secretary Day has directed that Polo's passports be prepared and sent him at once. No instructions were sent to Woolford, the department not regarding Polo's letter an answer to our ultimatum. Minister Polo and staff left Washington at 7 p. m.

At 3 p. m. the Spanish legation archives were moved to the Austrian legation.

The Spanish minister goes to Canada. Toronto will be his temporary home.

The president, in the ultimatum to the Spanish government, transmits a copy of the resolutions passed by congress, which resolutions he states he has signed. He demands that Spain withdraw her army and navy forces from Cuban waters, as required by the terms of the act of congress (no date for the withdrawal being mentioned), and then states that if a satisfactory answer is not received here before Saturday next he will proceed at once to carry the resolution of congress into effect.

At 12:03 the house was notified that the president had approved the Cuban resolutions. It was greeted with a tremendous outburst of applause.

Chairman Hull, of the military affairs committee, asked unanimous consent in the house for the consideration of the bill authorizing the president to call out volunteers. He said he had just received a message from the white house urging the necessity for the passage of the bill Wednesday.

Although the text of the ultimatum was not made public it is known that with it is transmitted to the Spanish government through Minister Woodford a copy of the joint resolutions of congress, together with the statement that they have received executive approval. In compliance with their terms the president makes a demand upon Spain to withdraw her land and naval forces from the island and its waters, and in the event that a satisfactory response to this demand is not received by the president by Saturday next he will proceed with the armed forces of the United States to carry these resolutions into effect. The president does not name any hour of the day of Saturday prior to which Spain must make answer if at all to our demands, but a reasonable assumptions that any time up to midnight Saturday, will be regarded as a compliance with the terms of the ultimatum. One of the members of the cabinet in speaking of this feature said that the government would not hold a stop watch on Spain in this emergency and could well afford on our own account to give her three days to decide a question which may involve the destiny of the nation.

From this time on war preparations will go forward with renewed activity, and both the army and the navy will be put in position for active operations. There seems to be little doubt that the first move will be to blockade one or more of the Cuban ports, and as soon as an army of occupation can be transported to them a demand will be made for an unconditional surrender, and in the event of a refusal the work of reducing them by bombardment will be begun immediately.

Enlisting in London.

LONDON, April 21.—The rush of applicants for enlistment in the United States army and navy was continued Wednesday. Between 40 and 50 English and Irish sailors or soldiers, or would-be soldiers or sailors, applied for enlistment at the United States consulate Wednesday morning.

Order Countermanded.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 21.—The order issued by the war department Wednesday morning removing the Twenty-fifth infantry from Chickamauga to Mobile, was countermanded late Wednesday evening.

Walton.

April 24th.—The management of the Phoenix Hotel has passed into the hands of Raymond McHatton.

The public school entertainment on last Friday night was an immense success. The kids have been jubilating over it ever since the event.

Last week Mrs. Myers, of the Walton Academy, received from her old home Vermont, a ten pound package of butter, which, although it had been two weeks on the route, was found to be of an exquisitely agreeable flavor. The writer had the privilege of using some of it and can unhesitatingly affirm that it suited his taste to a t-y. In fact, all who tasted it were of the opinion that our butter makers might catch on the manner of making it to their own advantage. It was even hinted that a branch of education in that line might prove of some benefit to the pupils of the Academy.

Folk Lore teaches that where fruit trees have bloomed in the light of the moon even a heavy frost is not apt to kill, but when the bloom has not bursted forth it is easily "nipped in the bud." It also teaches that when christmas falls in the light of moon, there will be a good fruit year. The last christmas was in the light of the moon; and we can see if the tenet holds good this year.

A very sad event happened last week at the home of Mr. Edward Harris on the Verona Road. Some months ago little Fluffy came to bring joy to the household and was petted and carressed by all its inmates. On last Thursday one of the neighbors was shocked by the lamentatious and wailing which proceeded from the Harris mansion. Going to the house he found the whole family in the deepest distress and apparently inconsolable. Asking what was the matter was told that our darling little Fluffy was dead and that "Uncle Billy Wolf had just put her in the casket. Sympathizing neighbors joined the family in consoling their great loss. "Uncle Billy" made some very affecting remarks calculated to sooth their grief stricken hearts Takiug the casket under his arm and moving to the place of luterment little Fluffy was deposited in her last resting place. No cat that ever lived in Walton has been mourned and honored like unto this. "Uncle Billy" was fueral director, parson and sexton. Charge the foregoing obituary to Jimmie Holder.—He told me about it and had tears running from his eyes as big as croquet balls.

Late Saturday evening a gang of 8 or 10 negroes returning from "The Klondike" gave vent to their hilarity by shooting off pistols and riotous demonstrations making the welkin ring with hideous noise. Pieces of shirts and other articles of clothing found on the bank of Mrs. Arnold's pond attested that they had a monkey aud parrot time of it.

R. L. Newman came very near losing his house by fire, last Wednesday. The roof caught fire and the way John Glacken and Mr. Newman hustled to put it out was a caution, but they did so.

J. S. Houston came trotting along from Covington, last week, whistling and thinking, perhaps, how many hard earned dollar he could lay away from his day work, when the axle of his wagon broke and down he came "kerslap" in the middle of the road.

W M. Rachal after reading in the Post about how much cash a Rear Admiral of the Navy gets as prize money, has decided that he wants a job in the Navy too. We suggest that the title of "Colonel" on laud with happiness and plenty to eat is more to be desired than a Rear Admiralship and a pocket full of cash buried 40 fathoms under water.

The interment of Mrs. B. C. Norman took place, last Wednesday, at the cemetery near here. Rev. Davis conducted the services in a solemn and impressive manner. His words were well chosen and were a glowing tribute of respect to the dead. He said in particular that the name of "Aunt Bell" was a synonym of kindness, gentleness, affection and love to all who knew her.

Noah Tauuer, overseer of Golden Grange desires the RECORDER to say that Mr. Klebalm, of Cincinnati, will be present and address the grange on the educational movements of the order on the second Saturday in May. There are many reasons why a man would misspell the word "Crokinole." First, because it was manufactured by the man who invented the game and spelled according to his notions of "ompetime"; second, because he might have a friend that held his most sacred and qualified respect and confidence to tell him how to spell it exactly wrong; at the same time believing he was spelling it right. But can not see and never will be able to see why any man should be so far from headquarters in matters of every day, old fashioned horseology as not to know a corn-cob from a twist of tobacco.

A poor man comes along and asks a favor and is often refused; a man reputed to be rich strikes our town and we rush out in the rain to shake his hand and run here and there to get a horse, buggy and storm curtain in order that "Mr. Rich Man" may be hauled over the county and back to the station in time for the evening train, and lo, he clambers out forgetting to even say "thank you." Riches and good manners are some times strangers.

A few weeks ago when war was talked of and few expected to hear of any fighting, it was no uncommon thing to hear "I wish they would have war, if they do I'm going." But now since the cannon's boom, disturbs the peaceful repose of the tachypetidae, and the North Atlantic Squadron stirs up the briny deep, those warriors can not be found, another class having taken their place, "the "I'd go" kind "if I did not have a family" or "my business will not perunit me." FOR ALL WOMEN

Nine-tenths of all the pain and sickness from which women suffer is caused by weakness or derangement in the organs of menstruation. Nearly always when a woman is not well these organs are affected. But when they are strong and healthy a woman is very seldom sick.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Is nature's provision for the regulation of the menstrual function. It cures all "female troubles." It is equally effective for the girl in her teens, the young wife with domestic and maternal cares, and the woman approaching the period known as the "Change of Life." They all need it. They are all benefitted by it.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

THOS. J. COOPER, Tupelo, Miss., says: "My sister suffered from very irregular and painful menstruation and doctors could not relieve her. Wine of Cardui entirely cured her and also helped my mother through the Change of Life."

Lexington, Ky., April 20, 1898.

To those who may be contemplating breeding to a Jack, will say that I bred to Don Carlos, the property of Mr. J. E. Rouse, for six years, and consider him a good breeder of mules, his colts selling for as much money as any Jack's of this country. I have on hand now mules of all ages by him. Of course the better the mare the better the mule or colt by him. There are but few, if any, better bred Jacks than Don Carlos.

Uncle Sam fired the first gun.

The farmers dispatched a good deal of work last week.

Business about the court house was decidedly quiet all last week.

Ground has broken much better this spring than was anticipated.

The recently sowed tobacco beds will produce plants in time for planting.

If the weather is favorable throughout the week considerable corn will be planted.

If the fruit crop is in keeping with the quantity of bloom, it will be abundant this year.

The Sheriff went out Monday morning to assist Elbert Rouse's tenant to vacate the premises.

George Gohr, of Aurora, committed suicide by drowning in the Ohio river. Cause—financial trouble.

The farmers are very anxious for a week's favorable weather, which would place them well up with their work again.

The tide of patriotism is not so strong in Burlington as to sweep all the eligibles into the army to fight [illegible].

Tony Cook, of Bellevue, was in town one day last week with a supply of fish, among which were two 25 pound Buffaloes.

The morning and afternoon papers have been reaping a harvest for some time past, and it grows richer as time passes.

With the U. S. fleet in front and the Insurgents in the rear, the Spanish occupying Havana are in a position to get badly squeezed.

A very promising embryo porker belonging to W. E. Vest, was so badly mangled by a dog, the other day, that it had to be killed.

The State Board of Equalization refused to recede from its increase of 14 per cent. on lands and 8 per cent. on town lots in Carroll county.

John McConnell, of the Rabbit Hash precinct, is thinking of investing in a patent road grader. Of course he will buy it with his own money.

Happy Jack was in town Monday, braggling that his weight was 4 pounds more than it ever was and that he had passed his 81st year the 21st inst.

Harry Robert's horses ran off with the wagon, Saturday morning. One of the horses was hurt considerably, while the other escaped without a scratch.

Mr. Legrand Gaines passed through town, Friday with 30 nice yearling cattle, which he was taking home to graze for his son, Lee, of the Richwood neighborhood.

Spain got in her declaration of war first, but that will cut no figure in the final wind up. Her grit is to be admired, but her judgment is—you may say it yourself.

A dog belonging to W. E. Vest made some breaks, Sunday, that so alarmed its owner that he summoned the Sheriff, who sent it out of the world via the shot gun route.

The war with Spain is now a reality, and those who want to take a hand in interesting military exercises are given a chance by the President's call for 125,000 volunteers. Get your gun, Johnnie.

Perry Gaines, of Carroll county, brought a considerable drove of cattle to his uncle Legraud's to pasture. In the drove was a number of good animals that will be something fancy in the fall.

W. J. Rice took out of town Monday morning a four horse wagon load of barbed wire, for the purpose of constructing a Weyler trocha between him and an adjoining land owner, Mr. Dudly Rouse.

The trustee of the jury fund has received a draft from the State Treasurer, with which to complete the funds for paying those who served as grand and petit jurors at the last term of the Circuit Court.

We congratulate John Ulrich, of Aurora, on his splendid race for the Democratic nomination for clerk of the Dearborn Circuit Court. We are always glad to hear of the success of an old Boone county boy.

Quite a good sized crowd attended R. C. Rice's sale of household and kitchen furniture, and other articles, last Saturday afternoon, and everything brought good prices. The milch cow brought $39 75; buggy, $31 50.

J. E. Smith weighed to J. C. Bedinger, of Richwood, 30 hogs, average 137 and a fraction, at $3 75. Mr. Bedinger also received of Mr. Borders 9 that averaged 113 pounds at same price. J. F. Blyth delivered to him several nice hogs at $3 60.

John Schmidt, our shoemaker, has inherited $5,000 or $6,000 from the estate of a rich uncle who died in California some time last summer. Mr. Schmidt had heard of his uncle's death but not until recently did he know that he would come in for any part of his estate.

John N. Poston was appointed administrator of Elizabeth Poston, Monday. E. Manulug, Leonard Crigler and Webb McGlasson were appointed appraisers. The sale of the personal property will be at 1 o'clock, Thursday, May 5.

Our friend Hogan, a native of the Emerald Isle, said when he heard that an Irishman fired the first gun in the war with Spain, "The Irish are always at the front, but they will do the fighting and win the victory, but the Dutch will get the credit for it."

The RECORDER is in receipt of part 1, of the American Navy with introduction and descriptive text, and reproductions of photographs, published by Belford, Middlebrook & Co., Chicago. It contains much valuable information in regard to the U. S. Navy.

When Uncle Sam's soldiers go after the Spaniards in Cuba, Blanco will discover that he is not contending against a band of half-starved and poorly equipped Insurgents. He will discover further that the island is not large enough to contain both armies.

It is astonishing what a vast number of men there are who want to be commissioned to raise companies and regiments for the war with Spain. If all who desire them are granted commissions there will be as many commissioned officers as privates.

Kirb Tanner went fishing down on Gunpowder, last Saturday afternoon, and struck a school of very large black suckers, which he landed as fast as one man could string them, until he took the buck ague and got his line entangled in the top of a tree, and broke up his sport.

The Taylorsport and Delhi ferry has been reestablished by being equipped with a new power passenger boat that is both quick and safe. When teams wish to cross the boat is made fast to a flat, and being always ready, there is no delay. Since the big 4 R. R. has reduced its fair to 10 cents a trip, there are ten ride trip slips for $1. The route via this ferry is one of the best and cheapest to Cincinnati. Give them a trial.

The attention of our readers is called to the advertisement of the Dr. Klick Medical Co., of Cincinnati, in another column. Their Pocket Nose Inhaler and Germicide Inhalent is the latest and one of the most important discoveries in medical science. Dr. Klick is one of our most advanced physicians in the treatment of Throat, Nose and Lung diseases, and the Company of which he is the head is recommended to us as thoroughly reliable and trustworthy.

S. D. Rice, of McVille, is thoroughly convinced that the RECORDER is extensively read in this county. The proof came to him in this wise: In the issue of week before last it was stated that he had 1,000 bushels of corn to sell at 25c a bushel, when the price should have read "35 cents a bushel." In 24 hours after the paper was published an army of buyers besieged Mr. Rice, and reenforcements continued to arrive, and for a few days life was made a burden to him, and he seriously contemplated leaving the State to escape the annoyance of so many would be purchasers.

When farmer Al Rogers, who lives a few miles west of town heard that Congress had adopted the Joint Cuban resolution, he concluded that war with Spain was assured, and he decided that he preferred service in the cavalry rather than in the infantry, and that he might be ready for duty when the call comes, he put himself into training along with one of his young horses that had never been ridden, and the proceedings was intensely interesting to the spectators, as the horse dumped Al time after time, each fall being a little harder than the preceding one. The third fall was terrific and relieved Al of his patriotism to such an extent that he concluded that he was not intended for a soldier, anyhow.

A new scheme to rob farmers has bobbed up in Kentucky. A couple of men drive on the premises and present false papers, purporting to give State authority for examinations of wells, cisterns, &c., under the pure food laws. They inspect the water through a microscope and find all kinds of microbes, bacteria, cholera germs, and typhoid fever bugs, permit the farmer and his wife to look through the microscope where, of course, they see the menagerie that always has been and always will be contained in a drop of water. The frightened farmer folks are then advised to apply certain remedies which the fakers sell to them at a high figure (a little plug soda and nothing more) and then go on their swindling way. Look out for them.

Of the Cincinnati tobacco market the last issue of the Western Tobacco Journal says: "The continued light receipts and sales have given the poco market an upward tendency. The week's offerings have been taken at some advance and the bidding has been very spirited on all grades. Inferior grades have not advanced as much as the medium and better grades but still there is a strong demand for all, both old and new. Good mediums with body are the leaders, and the competion on these grades has moved them up fully 1 to 2 cents, also the best grades have been stronger, and sellers have been entirely satisfied. We consider the market in a very strong position, providing the war does not have a depressing effect."

During the recent flood all the rats from the overflowed sections fled to higher ground, and as a consequence people living in those localities were considerably bothered with the rodents. We were told that at the Poor Farm, near Vera Cruz, managed by Harrison Furnish, they were so numerous and hungry that they attacked and ate anything and everything of an eatable nature. Mr. Furnish had a row with a lot of pigs in a pen and the rodents attacked the young pigs and ate their ears and noses, and when the men on the place were attracted by the squealing of the pigs and learned the cause they secured clubs and sticks to drive the pests off, but the rats were so ravenous that they showed fight and it was with the greatest effort and the killing of numerous rats before they could be driven off.—Warsaw Independent.

DEATHS.

Elder W. S. Keene, pastor of the First Christian Church, of Winchester, and one of the most popular men in the city, died Monday night of heart disease, aged 56 years. He was a native of England and for many years was a sailor He fought through the war on the Confederate side, and was for several years a Baptist pastor. He afterward joined the Christian Church, and has filled the pulpit of some of the most prominent churches in the State, among them, the First Church of Covington, where he was pastor for fourteen years. He leaves a wife and grown daughter.—Kentuckian Citizen.

Elder Keene was well known in this county, where he served several of the Christian Churches as pastor. He was a very popular minister here as elsewhere.

John E. Walton, who, until the destruction of his residence by fire, a few months since, was a resident of this county, died at his home in Erlanger, on the afternoon of the 20th inst., aged 72 years and 12 days.

John E. Walton was born in Bracken county, April 8, 1826, and was the fifth of seven children born to Josiah and Margaret (Humlong) Walton. Josiah H Walton was born in Virginia in 1787 and was an early settler in Bracken county where he lived and died. His occupation was farming and tanning. Margaret Humalong was born in 1799. She was married to Mr. Walton January 9th, 1817, in Bracken county. John E. was brought up in Bracken county, on the farm, and received his education in the same county. In 1845, he moved to this county with his widowed mother, and settled on the farm where his son, William M. now resides. In 1871 he moved to the McGlasson homestead on Dry Creek, and near Erlanger.

John E. Walton and Miss Missouri, a daughter of William and Alice McGlasson, were married February 5, 1852. To this union were born five children, viz: Laura V., (wife of James Rogers), George F., William M., John J., Thos. J., Napoleon B., Daisey (wife of Homer Riggs), Margaret H. (wife of Dr. Jas. Rifle), and Alice (wife of Walter Zimmerman).

Mr. Walton was not a member of any church, but was a Christian in belief. The funeral services were conducted at the residence, last Friday, at 10 a. m., by Rev. Geo. N. Buffington, after which the remains were placed in the receiving tomb at Highland cemetery. The widow and children have the sympathy of many friends.

Mr. Walton was one of the most successful farmers ever in this part of the country, and at the time of his death owned over 5,000 acres of land in this State, Kansas and Missouri.

Died—On the 19th inst., Joseph F. Weaver, in the 61st year of his age.

The deceased was a son of the late G. W. Weaver, and was born February 20th, 1838, in the residence where he died. His wife was Miss Missouri Utz, daughter of the late Jonathan Utz, and she departed this life just four weeks before her husband died To Mr. and Mrs. Weaver was born one child, W. C. Weaver, who has a wife and one child. They made their home under the parental roof, a happy, loving family until a few months since when disease, the precursor of death, invaded the home and finally carried off the loving mother and grandmother, to be followed, in four short weeks, to the silent tomb by the indulgent father and grandfather.

Mr. Weaver was a useful man in his neighborhood, and his many good deeds had endeared him to everyone with whom he was ever associated. He was ever ready to aid in any good cause, and was never known to refuse the needy when seeking assistance. A member of no church, but his entire life was that of a model christian, and its influence for good will live long in the community so sorely grieved by his death.

The remains were laid to rest by the side of those of his wife, last Thursday, in the presence of a large number of friends, who assembled to pay their last tribute of respect to the departed, and after the reading of a chapter in the Bible by D. E. Castleman, the earth closed over all that was mortal of the good citizen, beloved and honored neighbor, and loving parent.

We desire to extend to our many friends our sincerest thanks for their kind and unceasing attention rendered our mother and father during their fatal illness, and hope and trust that such grief as ours shall never fall to the lot of any of them.

We also desire to publicly express our appreciation of the faithful manner in which Dr. Furnish administered and watched over our father and mother during their illness.
W. C. WEAVER AND WIFE.

DEMOCRACY'S FATHER

Jefferson's Birthday Anniversary Observed in Chicago.

John P. Altgeld Contrasts the Acts of Democracy's First President with Those of Grover Cleveland.

The [illegible] hundred and fifty-fifth anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson was celebrated in Central Music hall, Chicago, by 2,000 democrats, among whom were ex-Gov. Altgeld, of Illinois, and other political leaders. Mr. Altgeld was the principal speaker of the evening, and in his speech he said:

"We have met to celebrate the birthday of the first president elected by the democracy of America. This, taken in connection with the unhappy conditions of our country, as left by the last presidential term, as we find them to-day, makes it proper to say something about both of these men—the one the founder and the other the destroyer of the democratic party. To compare is impossible, but contrast may be instructive, especially to the young men of the land.

"While Virginia was yet a British colony a young man named Thomas Jefferson, who hailed from the landed gentry, was a member of the legislature. He had been highly educated, was well read, was all human affairs, and was a member of the bar. Although born an aristocrat, he saw that all civilization rested on the hand that toils. He saw that all just governments of the earth rested on restrictive policies which cowed the nobler instincts and higher aspirations of men.

"He felt that if man was to enjoy freedom he would work out a higher destiny. He saw that all men were the world equal, and that institutions which created inequality were a curse to the state, and he devoted his life toward securing equality for mankind, liberty and justice. The agitation in behalf of independence had begun. Nearly all the rich—the powerful—the fashionable and all that hangs to these classes were tories who looked with contempt on those men who talked of liberty and independence; the latter were called a rabble of demagogues and agitators.

Pioneer in Reform.

"Jefferson did not do like some men who subsequently became distinguished. He did not allow others to do all of the earlier, unpopular and dangerous work of educating and formulating public sentiment, but he became the guiding spirit of this movement.

"He assisted in forming the celebrated committee of correspondence for disseminating intelligence among the colonies and bringing them into closer relationship. In 1774 he was elected a member of the continental congress and drew up the famous "summary view of the rights of British America," which, though rejected then as being too radical, was adopted by some colonies and was extensively published here and in England. He had drafted the most important document issued by the congress, and especially the answers to the English government. And when the cause of independence had ripened, his brain conceived, his heart shaped and his hand wrote the declaration of American independence, a document which has given immortality not to those who did not write but sign their names to it—a document which was the greatest charter of human rights ever given to mankind.

"The colony of Virginia had in the meantime adopted a new constitution, for which he had written the preamble, and in October, 1776, he resigned his seat in congress and devoted himself to bringing about a radical revision of the laws of the colony. Virginia had an established church, and any man who did not conform to it and attempted to worship God according to the dictates of his conscience was not only prosecuted but persecuted.

Supports Religious Freedom.

"He secured the establishment of religious freedom in the colony, overthrew also the abolition of the feudal and aristocratic system of primogeniture and entail—that system under which the oldest son took all the land, which, thus, from generation to generation, and he founded a free common school system which was subsequently copied in most of the states. For his course on this question the clergy of the state angrily denounced by those who considered themselves the better classes, consisting of the rich, the influential and the powerful, as a democrat, as an agent of Satan, an enemy of Christian institutions and a dangerous man. But he never wavered and succeeded in bringing the laws of the land more nearly in line with the spirit of justice. He hoped that he had eradicated every fiber of ancient or future aristocracy.

"He considered slavery a moral and political evil, and said concerning it that he trembled for his countrymen when he remembered that God was just.

"After the revolution he founded the University of Virginia, which has given this country hosts of great men, and it is still one of our greatest institutions of learning. The service he rendered to his state alone entitle him to an enduring fame and the gratitude of mankind. He served two years as governor of the colony, and then declined re-election and retired to private life, but reentered congress in 1783, and reported the treaty of peace with Great Britain, acknowledging the independence which had been declared in 1776. He next secured the establishment of the decimal system of coinage, abolishing the English system of pounds, shillings and pence.

"Subsequently he was sent abroad to assist in negotiating treaties of commerce, and then was made resident minister to France. Here he spent three or four years. Here he published his famous 'Notes on Virginia.'

Democratic All Through.

"One feature of his character at this time is especially noticeable. He was and always a democrat. In recent years we have sent men abroad who have knelt before and tried to ape the aristocracy, some of them even denouncing the country which had given them a commission, but in every line of Jefferson's utterances during that time, in all of his letters, there was that bold expression of his opinion, that aristocracy and absolutism were a curse to the world, and that the hopes of humanity lay in a broad and free democracy.

"He was still abroad when our federal constitution was adopted. He expressed his hearty approval of most of it, but felt alarmed over the provision which created the federal judiciary. Here was a branch of government that was unrepublican and undemocratic, that rested upon an aristocratic, or rather a monarchistic basis. The judges, who would have all the principles and weaknesses of other men, were not to be selected by the people, they were to hold office for life, and would not understand the needs or the wrongs of the people, but would be influenced by class interests with which they came more constantly in contact. He urged with great earnestness that such a tribunal would go on extending its jurisdiction by day and by night until it should absorb the whole field and become the tomb of liberty. I am sorry to say, my friends, that it has already been demonstrated that these forebodings were prophecies.

In Washington's Cabinet.

"After the constitution was adopted and Washington was elected president, it became necessary to have the young republic establish as friendly relations as possible with the different governments of the earth. As we were then weak and unknown, and as our government was considered but an experiment, and was sneered at by the influential classes of the world, it was a most delicate and difficult task to secure for us even respectable treatment from foreign governments. Mr. Jefferson returned from Europe and President Washington appointed him to the office of secretary of state, the one which at that time was the most difficult to be filled. Hamilton was also in Washington's cabinet, and except as to bimetallism stood for exactly the opposite of all of those principles, convictions and theories of government which were represented by Jefferson. Hamilton was secretary of the treasury and made an able and exhaustive report on the financial question. He submitted a copy of it to Mr. Jefferson, and in referring to that feature of it relating to the two metals, said: 'To annul the use of either of the metals as a money is to abridge the quantity of the circulating medium, and is liable to all the objections which arise from a comparison of the benefits of a full with the evils of a scanty circulation.' In answering this letter Mr. Jefferson wrote to Hamilton as follows: 'I concur with you that the unit must stand on both metals.'

Against Banks of Issue.

"Jefferson was opposed to the funding and other financial schemes of Mr. Hamilton because they would lead the country into those unnecessary debts which appeared to be in the interest of stock jobbers and speculators. He abhorred a bank of issue as being destructive of the welfare of the country and especially did he oppose the creation of a United States bank. In a letter to Adams, in 1814, he said: 'I have ever been an enemy of banks, not of those discounting for cash, but of those foisting their own paper into circulation. My zeal against these institutions was so warm and open at the establishment of the Bank of the United States that I was derided as a maniac by the tribe of bank mongers who were seeking to filch from the public their swindling and barren gains. The evils they have engendered are now upon us and the question is how we are to get out of them.'

"At this time the American people became divided into two [illegible] ore called federalists were headed by Hamilton and were strong in favor of American independence, but did not comprehend or understand democratic government, or democratic principles. They believed in following the example of European governments; they believed in the government by wealth secured by corruption, and with them the revolution simply meant the overthrow of the foreign aristocracy and ruling force and the substitution of a home aristocracy and ruling force, and they had the impudence to denounce Jefferson as a demagogue. They believed in having government control nearly all of the affairs of the citizens. Under their theory the citizens existed by permission of the government.

Founds the Democracy.

"The anti-federalists, or democrats, then called republicans, headed by Jefferson, and believed in a system of government that should interfere as little as possible with the affairs of the private individual; they believed that all power rested in the people; that instead of the people existing by permission of the government, the government existed by their will and the agent of the people. They were bitterly opposed to anything like a ruling aristocracy or governing class. They believed that mankind were capable of self-government and that the highest development of man could only be attained in free institutions.

"When Washington retired from the presidency he was succeeded by John Adams, a federalist of the narrowest type. During his administration the principles of the democratic party began to take form. The whole tendency was against the masses of the people and in favor of the central power. The infamous alien and sedition laws were passed during this administration. Frightful strides were made toward strangling the spirit of democratic institutions and establishing in their stead the aristocratic principles of the past. Justice became the watchwords and they brought to us the best muscle and brain of the world. The spirit of man, being thus unchained, encouraged by its aspirations and efforts, leaped forward and gave the republic a career that was without a parallel in all history.

"Jefferson's far-seeing eye perceived the advantages of extending our domain, and under what was known as the Louisiana purchase we acquired that vast territory which lies west of the Mississippi river, reaching from New Orleans northwest to the Pacific ocean. This was fiercely opposed by the federalists. But it at once changed the character of America. Instead of being on the Atlantic coast of North America we became the great American republic. It was during the eight years of Jefferson's administration that the foundations of our greatness were laid and that our destiny was shaped. The great mass of men who [illegible] the world's work, who love freedom and hate oppression, who love justice and despise hypocrisy, had been cemented together. The great democratic party was founded. That party ruled the republic for 24 years, Jefferson being succeeded by Madison and he being followed by Monroe. The Monroe doctrine that we hear so much of in recent times was not officially promulgated to the world by President Monroe, who was a pupil and disciple of Jefferson.

Jefferson Still Poor.

"My friends, find a principle of government that has helped to make us distinctive and great and you will find it was of democratic and Jeffersonian parentage. Glancing at the whole of the century during which the breath of Jefferson was animating the nation, we find that none of these great men indulged in dollar worship, hankering or grafting. They stood for definite principles and resolutely carried them out. Office came to them incidentally, there was no deception of consequence, no false pretenses made to secure election and broken afterward, no efforts to mislead and no betrayal. Jefferson entered public life wealthy, and served his country faithfully. He retired from the presidency poor and died in poverty. In the light of more recent events I am impelled to exclaim: 'Thank God, this great man retired from office poor.' There was nothing to sully his character, nothing to dim the luster of his star."

Cleveland's Political Career.

Mr. Altgeld then spoke of the first experience Cleveland had in politics, and said that he betrayed his benefactor in order to obtain the nomination for district attorney. When he was elected mayor of Buffalo he befriended all corporations under whose influence he had fallen and fought all others. He was elector governor of New York on account of a split in the republican party. He was nominated for president in 1884 as the agent of the monopolies and trusts of the country.

Mr. Altgeld severely characterized Mr. Cleveland's first administration and said that it was all in favor of trusts and monopolies.

In 1892 Altgeld said that Cleveland again came to the front through the influence of trusts and was severe on his actions during that administration. Cleveland was the enemy of labor, Altgeld said, and mentioned his action in the strike of 1894, and his use of the federal troops in objurgative terms. Then he spoke of the bond issues he had made, and, continuing, said:

Venezuela Episode.

"While all these transactions were going on the country heard, with a blush of shame, reports that some of the Wall street stock speculators were carrying the president of the United States on their books, and were, as a silent partner, in some of their transactions, one speculator frequently boasting that he had set aside certain blocks of stock in pending schemes for the president. Time passed and as his administration began to draw toward a close and its real character began to be understood by the public, and the disgust and indignation of the American people was everywhere heard, the country was startled with a proclamation issued by the president threatening war with England. It came so unexpectedly that people could not understand it.

"There had for 25 years been pending a dispute between England and Venezuela in regard to the Monroe doctrine, the territory of the two countries. There was nothing new in the situation. It had been, and was still, the subject of correspondence between those two governments, but the president, without ascertaining the facts in the case, issued his proclamation promulgating the Monroe doctrine. Our people knowing the Monroe doctrine as were at first pleased to hear it referred to, but when the astonishment subsided, they began to ask what it was all about, then the absurdity of the performance—as the French opera-like statesmanship of it all became apparent, the president not knowing as the people were, did not know whether the Monroe doctrine was involved. Congress let him down easy by providing for the appointment of a commission to find out whether there were any facts in the entire case which were of interest to us. That commission was appointed, reported, and it is now a matter of doubtful whether it ever will, and the entire episode is almost forgotten.

Another Solution.

"The managers of the administration, seeing that the country was condemning by word and act its scheme and system of bond jobbing and money making by the aid of the federal administration must come to an end unless something was done, and knowing that the American people favored the Monroe doctrine, hit upon the brilliant idea of having the president issue this proclamation, believing that it would arouse the patriotism of the country, cause a movement among the people in his favor, so as to enable these managers to renominate him for the fourth time and reelect him for the third term. But the patriotism of the American people had run its limit and the scheme failed. The term drew to an end and Mr. Cleveland, who originally entered into public affairs poor, now retired the possessor of great wealth.

"He had thrice been nominated and twice elected president by the great democratic party of the country. He had outraged on every one of its tenets. He had trampled every one of its principles into the ground and he had succeeded in destroying its hopes. A year before the national election, when the democrats began to cast about, they found that everything they held sacred had been turned over to the enemy, the country was weary and the situation was hopeless.

Party in Despair.

"Many stalwart democrats doubted whether they could carry a single township in the Union, and the Republicans had been put on horseback by the so-called democratic president, and we were being cursed for it. In their despair the democrats of America once more went night and overthrew this false god with all of the money-making priests who hung about his altars. Then they kindled new fires upon the altars of liberty, they raised again the banners of Jefferson and they went forth and fought the greatest battle for justice and humanity ever fought on this earth, and, as Monday, you see their tents all over the country. They are in the field, they are eager and anxious for the fray, they are determined to redeem this land at all hazards, and to-day behold Grover Cleveland joining hands with Mark Hanna for the destruction of the party that made him. We see him joining hands with the forces of moral debauchery that are ruining our country, but the carousal of the stall-fed classes, the long night of dissipation is nearing an end, and it is dawning and Monday will soon enter upon the morning of a new and glorious career.

Contrast Summed Up.

"Glancing now at the administrations of Mr. Cleveland, we see the palsied hand of greed shaping the policy and marring the destiny of a great nation; we see golden gods, bonded institutions and the money interest preaching gospels: we see the dollar made the master and man made the slave; we see toil disheartened and humanity weary; we see justice trampled in the dust, its priests and high priestesses sanctified; we see patriotism sold and find honor on the market; we see people betrayed and democracy crippled, and, finally, we see it all ended in the contempt of the honest and the curses of the poor. But when we turn to Jefferson we breathe a different atmosphere, we stand beneath a different sky and see a different sun. Here are the altars of liberty—equality and justice—from which radiate those forces that encourage the toiler, that cheer the patriot, that ennoble a people and that build a state.

"Here we see a man who courted not the rich, who served humanity, who faced obloquy, who stood for principle, who believed in equality and who shirked no duty, and, finally, we see him loaded with benediction, his memory encircled with glory and his name enshrined in immortality. Oh, my countrymen, comparison is impossible, but contrast is instructive. Since his day generations of public men equally learned, equally able and equally industrious, have lived and have gone, whose names are forgotten and whose ashes are lost. They did nothing for humanity; they traded in influence, they juggled in politics, they were time servers, and they have come away with a firmer resolve to maintain His standard and to carry His Gospel to the ends of the earth. So, after seeing the degradation wrought in our country by the precepts of Hamilton and the acts of Cleveland, we gather again at the altars of Jefferson to get a new inspiration, a stronger faith, a higher ideal, a loftier purpose, and let us go away with a firmer resolve to maintain his standard and to carry the principles of democracy not only to the ends of the earth, but to the end of time."

The Chinese Painter.

While the bark Cape City was at Hong Kong a Chinaman was engaged to paint the necessary name on each bow. He produced on one bow the legend "Capecity," without a space between the two words. Then he noted that the "Y" was nearest to the ship's stern, and, remembering this fact, he afforded an excellent example of how severely logical his race can be, for in a little while he had painted on the other bow the striking permutation: "Ytiecpac," to his own delight and the crew's amazement.—Chambers' Journal.

Have the Price of a Smoke.

Ten per cent of the entire population of Chinatown, San Francisco, are opium smokers, and their funds must be very low when they cannot each indulge in two opium drunks every week.

DR. TALMAGE'S SERMON.

Storm Clouds May Be Dispelled by Bravely Facing Them.

Every Cloud Has a Silver Lining If We But Have Courage to Look For It—Hopeful Words on Life's Ills and How Best to Meet Them.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was: Job xxxii., 21: "And now men see not the bright light which is in the clouds."

Wind east. Barometer falling. Storm-signals out. Ship reeling maintopsail. Awnings taken in. Prophecies of foul weather everywhere. The clouds congregate around the sun, proposing to abolish him. But after awhile he assails the flanks of the clouds with dazzling artillery of light, and here and there is a sign of clearing weather. Many do not observe it. Many do not realize it. "And now men see not the bright light which is in the clouds." In other words there are a hundred men looking for sunshine. My object will be to get you and myself into the delightful habit of making the best of everything.

You may have wondered at the statistics that in India, in the year 1875, there were over 19,000 people slain by wild beasts, and that in the year 1876 there were in India over 20,000 people destroyed by wild animals. But there is a monster in our own land which is year by year destroying more than that. It is the old bear of melancholy, and with Gospel weapons I propose to chase it back to its midnight caverns. I mean to do two sums of addition—to set you right. The sum in addition—a subtraction from your days of depression and an addition to your days of joy. If God will help me I will compel you to see the bright light that there is in the clouds, and compel you to make the best of everything.

In the first place you ought to make the very best of all your financial misfortunes. During the panic a few years ago you all lost money. Some of you lost it in most unaccountable ways. For the question: "How many thousands of dollars shall I put aside this year?" you substituted: "How shall I pay my butcher, and baker, and cloth-ier, and landlord?" You had the sensation of rowing hard with two oars, and yet all the time going down stream.

You did not say much about it because it was not politic to speak much of financial embarrassment, but your wife knew. Less variety of wardrobe, more economy at the table, self-denial in art and tapestry. Compassion; retrenchment. Who did not feel the necessity of it? My friends, did you make the best of this? Are you aware of how narrow an escape you made? Suppose you had reached the fortune toward which you were rapidly going? What then? You would have been as proud as Lucifer?

How few men have succeeded largely in a financial sense and yet maintained their simplicity and religious consecration! Not one man out of a hundred. There are glorious exceptions, but the general rule is that in proportion as a man gets well off for this world he gets poorly off for the next. He loses his sense of dependence on God. He gets a distaste for prayer meetings. With plenty of bank stocks and plenty of government securities, what does that man know of the prayer, "give me this day my daily bread?" How few men largely successful in this world are bringing souls to Christ, or showing self-denial for others, or are eminent for piety? You can count them all upon your eight fingers and two thumbs.

One of the old covetous souls, when he was sick, and sick unto death, used to have a basin brought in—a basin filled with gold, and his only amusement and the only relief he got for his inflamed hands was running them down through the gold and turning it up in the basin. Oh, what infatuation, and what destroying power money has for many a man! Now, you were sailing at 30 knots the hour toward these vortices of worldliness—what a mercy it was, that honest defalcation! The same divine hand that crushed your storehouse, your bank, your office, your insurance, lifted you out of destruction. The day you honestly suspended in business made your fortune for eternity.

"Oh," you say, "I could get along very well myself, but I am so disappointed that I can not leave a competence to my children." My brother, the same financial misfortune that is going to save your soul will save your children. With anticipation of a large fortune, how much industry would your children have without much habit of industry there is no safety. The young man would say: "Well, there's no need of my working; my father will soon step out and then I'll have just what I want." You can not hide from him how much you are worth. You think you are hiding it; he knows all about it. He can tell you almost to a dollar. Perhaps he has been to the county office and searched the records of deeds and mortgages, and he has added it all up, and he has made an estimate of how long you will probably stay in this world, and is not as much worried about your rheumatism and shortness of breath as you are. The only fortune worth anything that you can give your child is the fortune you put in his head and heart. Of all the young men who started life with $40,000 capital how many turned out well? I do not know half a dozen.

The best inheritance a young man can have is the feeling that he has to fight his own battle, and that life is a struggle into which he must throw body, mind and soul, or be disgracefully worsted. Where are the burial places of the men who started life with a fortune? Some of them in the potter's field; some in the suicide's grave. But few of these men reached 35 years of age. They drank, they smoked, they gambled. In them the beast destroyed the man. Some of them lived long enough to get their fortunes and went through them. The vast majority of them did not live to get their inheritance. From the gin shop or house of infamy they were brought home to their father's house, and in delirium began to pick off loathsome reptiles from the embroidered pillow, and to fight back imaginary devils. And then they were laid out in highly upholstered parlor, the casket covered with flowers by indulgent parents—flowers suggestive of a resurrection with no hope.

As you rest this morning at your breakfast table, and looked into the faces of your children, perhaps you said within yourself, "Poor things! How I wish I could start them in life with a competence! How I have been disappointed in all my expectations of what I would do for them!" Upon that scene of pathos I break with a paean of congratulation, that by your financial losses your own prospects for Heaven and the prospect for the Heaven of your children is mightily improved. You may have lost a toy, but you have won a palace.

"How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!" "It is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of Heaven." What does that mean? It means that the grandest blessing God ever bestowed upon you was to take your money away from you. Let me here say, in passing, do not put much stress on the treasures of this world. You can not take them along with you. At any rate, you can not take them more than two or three miles; you will have to leave them at the cemetery. Attila had three coffins. So fond was he of his life that he decreed that first he should be buried in a coffin of gold, and that then that should be inclosed in a coffin of silver, and that that be inclosed in a coffin of iron, and then a large amount of treasure should be thrown in over his body. And so he was buried, and the men who buried him were slain, so that no one might know where he was buried, and no one might there interfere with his treasures. Oh, men of the world, who want to take your money with you, better have three coffins!

Again, I remark, you ought to make the very best of your bereavements. The whole tendency is to brood over these separations, and to give much time to the handling of mementos of the departed, and to make long visitations to the cemetery, and to say: "Oh, I can never look up again; my hope is gone; my courage is gone; my religion is gone; my faith in God is gone! Oh, the wear and tear and exhaustion of this loneliness!" The most frequent bereavement is the loss of children. If your departed child had lived as long as you have lived do you not suppose that he would have had about the same amount of trouble and trial that you have had? If you could make a choice of your child between 40 years of annoyance, loss, vexation, exasperation and bereavements, and 40 years in Heaven, would you take the responsibility of choosing the former? Would you snatch away the cup of eternal bliss and put into that child's hands the cup of many bereavements? Instead of the complete safety into which that child has been lifted would you like to hold it down to the risks of this mortal state? Would you like to keep it out on a sea in which there have been more shipwrecks than safe voyages? Is it not a comfort to you to know that the child, instead of being besoiled and flung into the mire of sin, is swung clear into the skies? Are not those children to be congratulated that the point of celestial bliss which you expect to reach by a pilgrimage of 50 or 60 or 70 years, they reached at a flash? If the 10,000 children who had entered Heaven had gone through the average of human life on earth are you sure all those 10,000 would have finally reached the blissful terminus? Besides that my friends, you are to look at this matter as a self-denial on your part for their benefit. If your children want to go off in a May-day party, if your children want to go on a flowery and musical excursion, you consent. You might prefer to have them with you, but their jubilant absence satisfies you. Well, your departed children have only gone out in a May-day party, amid flowery and musical entertainments, amid joys and hilarities forever. That ought to quell some of your grief, the thought of their glee.

So it ought to be that you could make the best of all bereavements. The fact that you have so many friends in Heaven will make your departure very cheerful. When you are going on a voyage everything depends upon where your friends are—if they are on the wharf that you leave or on the wharf toward which you are going to sail. In other words, the more friends you have in Heaven the easier it will be to get away from the world. The more friends here, the more bitter good-bys; the more friends there the more glorious welcomes.

Some of you have so many brothers, sisters, children, friends in Heaven that I do not know hardly how you are going to crowd through. When the vessel came from foreign lands and brought a prince to our harbor the ships were covered with bunting, and you remember how the men-of-war thundred broadsides; but there was no joy there compared with the joy which shall be demonstrated when you sail up the broad bay of Heavenly salutation. The more friends you have there the easier your own transit. What is death to a mother whose children are in Heaven? Why, there is no more grief in it than there is in her going into a nursery amid the romp and laughter of her household. Though all around be dark, see you not the bright light in the clouds—that light the irradiated faces of your glorified kindred?

So, also, my friends, I would have you make the best of your sicknesses. When you see one move off with elastic step and in full physical vigor, sometimes you become impatient with your lame foot. When a man describes an object a mile off, and you can not see it at all, you become impatient of your dim eye. When you hear of a well man making a great achievement you become impatient with your depressed nervous system or your dilapidated health. I will tell you how you can make the worst of it. Brood over it; brood over all these illnesses, and your nerves will become more witchy and your dyspepsia more aggravated and your weaknesses more appalling. But that is the devil's work, to tell you how to make the worst of it; it is my work to show you a bright light in the clouds.

Which of the Bible men most attract your attention? You say, Moses, Job, David, Jeremiah, Paul. Why, what a strange thing it is that you have chosen those who were physically disordered! Moses—I know he was nervous from the climate he gave the Egyptian. Job—his blood was vitiated and diseased and his skin distressfully eruptive. David—he had a running sore, which he speaks of when he says: "My sore ran in the night and ceased not." Jeremiah had enlargement of the spleen. Who can doubt it who reads lamentations? Paul—he had a lifetime sickness which the commentators have been guessing about for years, not knowing exactly what the apostle meant by "a thorn in the flesh." I do not know either; but it was something sharp, something that stuck him. I gather from all this that physical disorder may be the means of grace to the soul. You say you have so many temptations from bodily ailments, and that if you were well you think you could be a good Christian. While your temptations may be different, they are no more than those of the man who has an appetite three times a day and sleeps eight hours every night.

From my observation I judge that invalids have a more rapturous view of the next world than well people, and will have higher renown in Heaven. The best view of the delectable mountains is through the lattice of the sickroom. There are trains running every hour between pillow and throne, between hospital and mansion, between bandages and robes, between crutch and palm branch. Oh, I wish some of you people, who are compelled to cry, "My head, my head! my foot, my foot! my back, my back!" would try some of the Lord's medicine! You are going to be well anyhow before long. Heaven is an old city, but has never yet reported one case of sickness or one bill of mortality. Consumption for the eye. No pneumonia for the lungs. No pleurisy for the side. No neuralgia for the nerves. No rheumatism for the muscles. The inhabitants shall never say, "I am sick." "There shall be no more pain."

Again, you ought to make the best of life's finality. Now, you think I have a very tough subject. You do not see how I am to strike a spark of light out of the flint of the tomb stone. There are many people who have an idea that death is the submergence of everything pleasant by everything doleful. If my subject could close in the upsetting of all such preconceived notions, it would close well. Who can judge best of the features of a man—those who are close by him, or those who are afar off? "Oh," you say, "those can judge best of the features of a man who are close by him!"

Now, my friends, who shall judge of the features of death—whether they are lovely or whether they are repulsive? You? You are too far off. If I want to get a judgment as to what really the features of death are, I will not ask you; I will ask those who have been within a month of death, or a week of death, or an hour of death, or a minute of death. They stand so near the darkness, they can tell. They give unanimous testimony, if they are Christian people, that death, instead of being demoniac, is cherubic. Of all the thousands of Christians who have been carried through the gates of the cemetery, gather up their dying experiences, and you will find they nearly all bordered on a jubilate. How often you see a dying man join in the psalm being sung around his bedside, the middle of the verse opening to let his ransomed spirit free—long after the lips could not speak, looking and pointing upward.

Some of you talk as though God had exhausted himself in building this world, and that all the rich curtains He ever made hung around this planet, and all the flowers He ever grew He has woven into the carpet of our daisied meadows. No. This world is not the best thing God can do; this world is not the best thing that God has done.

One week of the year is called blossom week—called so all through the land because there are more blossoms in that week than in any other week of the year. Blossom week! And that is what the future world is to which the Christian is invited—blossom week forever. It is as far ahead of this world as paradise is ahead of Dry Tortugas, and yet here we stand shivering and afraid to go out, and we want to stay on the dry sand, and amid the stormy petrels, when we are invited to arcors of jessamine and birds of paradise.

One season I had two spring times. I went to New Orleans in April, and I marked the difference between going toward New Orleans and then coming back. As I went on down toward New Orleans, the verdure, the foliage, became thicker and more beautiful. When I came back the further I came toward home the less the foliage, and less and less it became until there was hardly any. Now it all depends upon the direction in which you travel. If a spirit from Heaven should come toward our world he is traveling from June toward December, from radiance toward darkness, from hanging gardens toward icebergs. And one would not be very much surprised if a spirit of God sent forth from Heaven toward our world should be slow to come. But how strange it is that we dread going out toward that world when going is from December ly storm to the snow of Edenic blossom—from the arctics of trouble toward the tropics of eternal joy.

THE MONEY STANDARD.

How Silver Was Demonetized Without the Knowledge of the People.

We adopted the gold standard without any party ever asking for it. Isn't it strange that we should abandon a thing we had for 81 years and take up a system that was purely experimental, so far as our country is concerned, and do that without any party of any name ever asking to have it done?

Do you believe in our form of government? Do you believe that our government derives its just powers from the consent of the governed? If you do, then I want to ask you do you believe it is right for a legislative body to make a great and sweeping change without the American people ever having considered or discussed or decided upon the subject?

They did it in 1873. Not only was the change made without any party asking for it, but the change was made without the American people knowing it. We abandoned bimetallism and substituted the gold standard without the American people knowing that it was being done. I will go further than that. Not only did congress do this without the knowledge of the people, but congress did it without the members of congress knowing what was being done.

Now, you say that is not possible. Well—it was done, and I think I can show you that it is not impossible, even as a matter of reason. We were not using at that time either gold or silver. We were using paper. The bill that demonetized silver did not purport in its title to demonetize silver.

It was a bill to codify the mint laws. The American people did not discuss it. The members of congress stated they did not know when the bill passed that it demonetized silver. Mr. Blaine was speaker of the house; he said he didn't know it. Prominent men on both sides of the house, in both parties, said they didn't know it. You say that is hard to believe.

Now, let me show you how easy it is to believe it. We have had something like it recently. If anybody tells you that it is impossible to get a bill through congress without the members of congress knowing what the bill contained, you ask who put section 22 into the Dingley bill?

Now, there was a bill of importance—a bill that the people were studying—members of all parties examining it and reading it and talking about it, and yet it passed the house and passed the senate, and was signed by the president, and then they all said, who put that section 22 in that bill?

And the fraud was so apparent that the attorney general wrote an opinion nullifying the section. Oh, that we had had a McKenna to nullify the gold standard on the same ground in 1873!—William J. Bryan.

HANNA'S TRICKERY.

Under Course of the Administration Throughout the Whole Cuban Affair.

McKinley, Hanna & Co. have tricked congress and the people ever since the active discussion of the Cuban question came to the front.

When the consular reports were demanded they were withheld and the accounts of Spanish atrocities published in the anti-republican newspapers were denounced as lies and set down as the output of "sensational journalism."

At last the consular reports have been submitted, and in them is to be found the plain proof that the republican administration has lied to congress and the people for the purpose of preventing discussion and of securing a dishonorable peace.

One week after the destruction of the Maine Consul-General Lee cabled the government as follows:

"Copper cylinders ammunition found intact in ten-inch forward magazine, starboard side, this morning. Seems to show that magazine not exploded. Evidence beginning to prove explosion on port side by torpedo."

Mark Hanna, the personal friend of the president, and the man who boasts that he made McKinley, said two days after the receipt of Lee's dispatch:

"I think the destruction of the Maine was an accident, just as I thought at first. I have held all along it was an accident, and I have seen nothing presented to make me change my opinion."

Of course, Hanna knew all about Lee's message, and therefore he lied when he said he had seen nothing to make him change his opinion.

But the most flagrant instance of trickery and double dealing is to be charged to Secretary of the Navy Long. It was a week after the reception of Gen. Lee's telegram when Long gave out this famous announcement:

"The element of Spanish responsibility for the Maine explosion may be considered eliminated."

Wall street heard what Long said, or, rather, knew what he was going to say, in advance of the public, and Wall street men made fortunes out of their advance knowledge.

In an administration convicted of trickery and falsehood fit to control the Cuban situation?—The house, under Czar Reed, says "Yes." The people say "No."—Chicago Dispatch.

——There is no doubt that the shuffling Cuban policy of the national administration has contributed to the marvelous increase in the democratic vote. But the democratic tide began to rise before the quarrel with Spain became acute. It was coming our way, whatever had occurred. Progress in the right direction has simply been wonderfully accelerated by the dissatisfaction of the country with McKinley's pro-Spanish policy.—Chicago Chronicle.

——Mark Hanna is reported a regular attendant at cabinet meetings nowadays. First thing he will take to signing state papers and vetoing acts of congress.—Kansas City Times.

WATCH THEM CLOSELY.

Two Glorious Old Patriots Who Have Been Playing a Little Game of Their Own.

During the progress of the coming struggle and directly after its termination let us not forget to keep an eye on those two glorious old patriots—the genius of the republic—Mark Hanna and Steve Elkins. By observing them closely we may be able to get a line upon what they have been playing for during these last two months.

There have been various conjectures as to "what there was in it" for Messrs. Elkins and Hanna. No one, of course, has credited them with anything save mercenary motives. But precisely what turn their greed and acquisitiveness had taken has been a good deal of a puzzle. One thing has been evident right along—the two patriots have been in terror lest the Maso government should be recognized. They have, it is true, fought every proposition looking to war, but when the pressure became overwhelming they surrendered that point.

But they have never ceased to oppose with the energy of despair every attempt to give the insurgents the standing of a nation. They have brought to bear every possible influence—political, social and financial—to defeat recognition. They have haunted the white house day and night; they have utilized the full power of the administration; they have left no stone unturned, no trick untried in order to defeat formal acknowledgment of Cuban independence. And they have succeeded. The Maso government is not recognized by the joint resolution.

But what are they going to get out of it? That is what we shall discover if we watch the events of the next few weeks. Meanwhile we can only conjecture, and conjecture is poor and unsatisfactory nimsement. Mr. Polo y Bernabe might tell if he were disposed to talk. So might the Rothschilds. There are a dozen theories equally plausible and equally discreditable—which would fit the case. We shall have to await facts, and the facts sooner or later will be disclosed.

If not during the war, certainly soon after the conclusion of peace, we shall know, pretty nearly, why two senators of the United States strained every nerve in an attempt to compromise a national insult, why they defeated the recognition of Cuban independence and why they stand to-day the targets of contempt and scorn for the whole country.

It is all coming out pretty soon, and it is going to make mighty interesting reading.—Chicago Chronicle.

FURELY PATRIOTIC.

Praiseworthy Conduct of Democrats in Congress in the Pending Trouble with Spain.

Democrats in congress have manifested a truly democratic patriotic spirit in regard to the situation in which the country has been placed by the imbroglio with Spain. They have not taken advantage of the opportunity to make political capital out of the troubles experienced by the republican administration. They have developed a broad patriotism which has been but the expression of the true American spirit which exists in the democratic party. This patriotism has been acknowledged more or less grudgingly in one or two instances by republican newspapers but the Washington Post, an independent journal most ably conducted, speaks frankly in praise of the democrats in congress. Among other things the Post says: "These democrats have presented the spectacle of a sincere and patriotic convertism—of a high-minded and admirable moderation. They have done absolutely nothing to embarrass the republican administration in its efforts to reach an honorable solution of the pending difficulties, and have in no case sought to make petty party capital of a delicate and critical national emergency. They have shown that there is in their ranks as noble a love of country as may be found in any of our political subdivisions, and they have extorted from their most determined opponents a tribute of unadulterated and unfeigned admiration. On the occasion of the vote to sustain the president and his contemplated course they were as prompt, as ardent and as unanimous as were the republicans, and ever since, through all the intricate and perilous evolutions of the episode, they have set the example of a patriotic temperance and a splendid self-restraint. The country will never again doubt the devotion of the democratic party to the flag, the union, and its institutions. The republican demagogue who, in any future political campaign, attempts to play upon that false and foolish note will find himself repudiated as an impudent and vicious mountebank." These are words that republicans should remember, but republicans will not remember them, and when the next campaign opens the same old slanders will be retailed by republican spellbinders that have been retailed by them for the last quarter of a century.

The People Ignored.

Congress called on the president for the report of the American consuls in Cuba on conditions existing on the island, especially the want, privation and starvation among the reconcentrados. These reports have been sent in, and the statement is authorized they will not be made public, as congress has all the essential facts. It strikes us congress and the people should have all the facts. They should go to the civilized world. Neither should congress nor the people be treated like children, incapable of gauging important facts.—Pittsburgh Post.

——As a straw, it may be mentioned that the republican legislature of Ohio refused to indorse Mr. McKinley's Cuban policy.—Atlanta Constitution.

FUNERAL RITES.

Our infant baptism is Persian, with the font and the singeing of the child's brow. Our throwing three handfuls of earth on the coffin and saying "Dust to dust" is Egyptian.

Among the Sikhs an entire family wears mourning when a child is born. The Bhutus or Hindoo gypsies burn the adult dead, but bury their dead children.

Of the world's population millions die each day. Every good Sikh must die upon the bare ground. No matter what his rank or age or agony, no rug must intervene between him and his mother earth when he breathes his last.

In Cuba a bereaved family wears mourning upon which there is no hint of sheen, and they keep the windows of their house shut and darkened for six months. They destroy the value of the clothing on the dead and often hack the coffin before burial. This, of course, that there may be nothing in the grave worth a thief's desecrating avarice.

Among the orientals funerals are more important than births and almost as important as their wedding festivities. An eastern funeral means a great time for the priest and dervishes, and the beggars gather in numbers to receive charity from the mourners. The fine frenzy of the dancing dervishes when a funeral is in progress is something to see.

Our tolling of the church bells at a burial is the survival of an old and still observed pagan custom of beating metal gongs during a funeral, that the dreadful noise might frighten and drive away the malignant spirits that hover over the dead body, hoping to snatch its soul and carry it to hell. One of the most necredited industries in Holland is the breeding of funeral horses. Over 800 are sent to England alone each year.

THOSE WHO WRITE.

The title of Mr. George Moore's new novel is "Evelyn Innes."

Mr. Henry Savage Landor is said to have received $25,000 as an advance on royalties for his book recounting his attempt to penetrate into the sacred city of Thibet.

Mr. Henry B. Fuller, whose novels have found and charmed a large circle of the best readers, has nearly ready for publication a book containing four stories of transatlantic travel, to which he gives the fitting title "From the Other Side."

It is understood that Mr. Gladstone has chosen Mr. John Morley as his biographer and literary executor and that many of his letters and private papers have recently been sent to Mr. Morley. It would be impossible to conceive of a man better qualified, in every way, to undertake the important and delicate task of writing the life and editing the literary remains of the distinguished statesman.

Jules Verne has completed a tale of adventure called "Le Sphinx des Glaces." In France Jules Verne is considered a worthy successor of Edgar Allan Poe. He tells the story of how Poe's works filled him with admiration and how he first derived his own inspiration for romantic story telling from the genius of the great American writer. It is a question if the stories of Edgar Allan Poe are not even more popular in France than either in England or America, thanks to the admirable translations of Baudelaire.

DOCTORS DON'T DENY IT.

The frank testimony of a famous physician.

When Dr. Ayer announced his Sarsaparilla to the world, he at once found the physicians his friends. Such a remedy was what they had looked for, and they were prompt to appreciate its merits and prescribe it. Perhaps no medicine—known as a patent medicine—is so generally administered and prescribed by physicians as Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla for blood diseases, and diseases of the skin that indicate a tainted condition of the blood. Experience has proved it to be a specific in such diseases, and sores of long standing, old ulcers, chronic rheumatism, and many other like forms of disease have yielded to the perseveringuse of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla after other medicines had utterly failed. The testimonials received from physicians to the value of this remedy would fill a volume. Here is one leaf signed by Rich'd H. Lawrence, M. D., Baltimore, Md.

"It affords me pleasure to bear testimony to the success which your preparation of Sarsaparilla has had in the treatment of cutaneous and constitutional diseases arising from a vitiated condition of the blood. Were it necessary, I might give you the names of at least fifty individuals who have been cured of long-standing complaints simply by the administration of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. One very remarkable instance was that of a quite old woman who had lived at Catonsville, near this city. She had been afflicted with the rheumatism for three years, and had taken as she had informed me, more than one hundred dollars' worth of medicine to obtain relief, but without any beneficial result. I advised her to try a bottle of Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Before her that it if failed to do her good I would refund the money. A short time afterward, I learned that it had cured" [illegible] a neighbor of hers similarly afflicted, was also entirely relieved of his complaint by its use. This is the universal result of the administration of your Sarsaparilla. It is without exception, the best blood purifier with which I am acquainted."

There is no other similar medicine can show a similar record. Others have imitated the remedy. They can't imitate the record. Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has the friendship of the physician and the favor of the family, because it cures. It fulfills all promises made for it. It has healed thousands of people of the most malignant diseases that can mutilate mankind. Nothing has ever superseded it and nothing ever will until a medicine is made that can show a record of cures greater in number and equal in wonder to those wrought by Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Dr. Ayer's Curebook, a story of cures told by the cured, is sent free on request by the J. C. Ayer Company, Lowell, Mass. Write for it.

THE REAL CULPRIT.

He Kept Quiet and Let the Poor Letter Carrier Take All the Blame.

"Hi there!" called a somewhat excited woman to the postman who was passing on his morning round. "Where's that letter I sent three weeks ago to my sister in Buffalo? She never got it and has written to know whether I'm mad at her or some of us are sick."

"I know nothing about it, madam."

"Of course you don't. I suppose the post master-general would say the same thing. My own private opinion is that this government is running at mighty loose ends. I put a stamp on that letter to pay for having it sent. I was directed as plain as print. It is lost or stolen and my own sister is blaming me for neglecting her. It's all politics, that's what it is, putting in a lot of raw hands every four years, and I don't propose to stand it. I'm going to find out whether you mail men can defraud your customers and make family trouble just because you don't know enough to look after your business."

"But I never saw your letter, my good woman."

"I don't care anything about that. Neither did my sister ever see it. I'll not sleep till I write the president and give him a piece of my mind. The idea of paying an army of men to lose letters. It's ridiculous. It won't be long before some of you are looking for other jobs, or I miss my guess."

During this conversation the woman's husband dove frantically into his pockets, ran hatless through the back gate, put that letter into a mail box and made a fine show of temper while helping his wife abuse the government.—Detroit Free Press.

MRS. PINKHAM TALKS ABOUT "CHANGE OF LIFE."

Women are Urged to Prepare for this Wonderful Revolution in the Economy of Their Life Blood—Mrs. Watson Tells How She Was Helped.

At no time is woman more liable to physical and mental dangers with hours of suffering than at the "Turn of Life."

The great want in woman's system is ability to properly adjust itself to the new conditions. The outlet, monthly, of blood is now being diminished and carried into the body for the supply food of its later years.

Daughters, you can now to some extent repay your mother's early cnre. She must be spared every possible exertion. You must help her bear her burdens and anxieties. This critical time safely over, she will return to renewed health and happiness.

That so many women fail to anticipate this change thus happily, is owing not merely to lack of care, but to ignorance.

There is, however, no excuse for ignorance when experienced advice can be yours free of all cost. Write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., she has helped great numbers of women successfully through the Change of Life, and she will help you.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the best tonic for uterine changes. It works harmoniously upon all these overwrought organs, invigorates the body and drives off the blues.

OUR NAVY IN BRIEF.

The United States is the fifth naval power in the world. The navies of Great Britian, France, Russia and Italy rank ahead in the order named. Germany and the United States are about tied.

Our present effective fighting forces consist of four battleships of the first class, two armored cruisers, fifteen gunboats, six double-turreted monitors, one ram, one dynamite gun-boat, one transport and eight torpedo boats.

The Iowa weighs nearly 12,000 tons, and as twenty tons is the average load of a freight car and twelve cars is a good load for a locomotive engine, it would take 50 locomotives to haul the great steel structure.

The powder used is brown and in chunks the size of a caramel. A charge for the biggest gun weighs 500 pounds and is hoisted to the breech by a derrick, the powder being sewed up in a burlap bag.

Armor plates are tested by firing steel projectiles weighing from 100 to 1,500 pounds at them from guns charged with 500 pounds of powder and at a distance of about a city block.

Our battleships have a speed of about fifteen to seventeen knots an hour. Cruisers make nineteen to twenty-four knots, while the monitors can travel only five to seven knots.

The biggest guns in the navy are forty-nine feet long, big enough for a man to crawl into; four feet in diameter at their largest part and weigh 135,000 pounds or thereabout.

There are six rear admirals in active service. The offices of vice admiral and admiral are not filled, so there is no head of the navy excepting Secretary Long.

Barnacles from on the hull of a ship, impeding its speed. A six months' cruise will decrease the speed of a ship 15 per cent and it must go into the dry dock.

Sixty-one merchant vessels belong to the auxiliary navy. These ships are subsidized and by contract must be given to the United States on demand.

Some of the guns in the navy can fire a shot twelve miles, farther than a man can see, for the guns are aimed and sighted by machinery.

The amount expended by the navy department in 1897 was $34,562,547. This is a larger sum than has been expended in any year since 1866.

In a battle the woodwork and all articles of wood are either stowed below or thrown overboard, lest the men be injured by splinters.

The origin of the navy department may be said to date from October 13, 1775, when Congress authorized the equipment of two cruisers.

The fastest vessels in the navy are the torpedo boats Porter and Dupont, each of which can travel 27.5 knots an hour.

Battleships cost from $2,500,000 to $3,750,000 and cruisers from $600,000 to $3,000,000. A good torpedo boat cost over $100,000.

Battleships are for heavy work; cruisers are for commerec destroyers; monitors are useful for coast defense.

The Indiana could be outside Sandy Hook and throw 1,200-pounds shots into New York at the rate of four a minute.

Those artists who show smoke in their pictures of naval battles are wholly wrong. Smokeless powder is used.

All of the cruisers are named in honor of cities, and the battleships except the Kearsage, in honor of States.

Marines are the police on board ship. Originally they were employed to prevent mutiny among the sailors.

The guns of a battleship can carry from six to twelve miles, hurling a shot weighing a half ton.

Only 60 per cent. of the enlisted men are Americans, and a smaller per cent. yet are native born.

A big battleship has on board an electric plant capable of lighting a city of 5,000 inhabitants.

The boilers of the Iowa have a heating surface of eight acres and hold thirty tons of water.

Great Britain has 294 torpedo boats and torpedo-boat destroyers. Uncle Sam has only eight.

Projectiles thrown by naval guns are shaped much as the bullet shot by an ordinary rifle.

Five hundred and twenty-six men and forty officers are required to man the cruiser New York.

Battleships are covered with armor of nickle steel from five to seven inches thick.

We have four armored battleships—the Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts and Texas.

A submarine torpedo boat, to be known as Plunger, is now under construction.

At present the total enlisted force of naval malitia is 3,970 officers and men.

CROP AND STOCK.

The Quartermaster General of the Army has been instructed to purchase 1,000 horses for transportation purposes. The purchase will probably be made at St. Louis or Kansas City.

Buffalo gnats have made their appearance in Daviess county, and several horses and some cattle have been killed by these pests here and in the city. In the low flats of surrounding counties they are exceptionally bad, and are killing stock in large numbers.

Cholera is killing so many hogs in the county that farmers will vaccinate the remaining living porkers, says the Nelson Record. Hog cholera, it is said, prevails in the Fairfield section to an alarming extent. The disease has existed in Nelson county for two years and the loss to farmers has been immense.

The Austrians have discovered another American germ. The shipments of American clover seed worth $3,900 were returned to New York from Hungary recently on the ground that they were infected with cuscuta epithynum, commonly called dodder. The leading agricultural journals of Austria are urging the government to shut out American seeds altogether.

Lexington cattle buyers allege that a spring lamb "corner" is in progress. Tom Green, of the Cincinnati firm of Embry & Greene, is said to be the man that is engineering the "coup." It is estimated that there are between forty and fifty thousand lambs in middle and southern Kentucky and it is said that Mr. Green now owns at least 20,000 of them. It is further stated that he will soon get control of about 15,000 of the remainder. Mr. Green is buyer for a New England provision company. He has paid an average price of five cents for all the lambs he has bought.

Aunt Betsy Edwards, of Metcalf county, is 100 years old, but walks two miles to church every Sunday.

The Mason Fiscal Court at its recent term voted $3,403 40 for guarding toll gates in this county, which the taxpayers will have to settle.—Maysville Public Ledger.

Rody Akins, a colored woman, of Harrison county, is thought to be the oldest person in the State. She is aged 112 years. She is nearly bent double, but still does her own cooking.

Arch Whitaker, a farmer of Madison county, shot and perhaps fatally wounded a white man named Gill, who, with a negro, had raided his hen house. The negro made his escape.

Oscar A. Young, a farmer of Letcher county, brooding over going to war, killed himself and wife. He did not want to be separated from his wife in case of hostilities and took this means of preventing it.

Squire James Adams, a prominent farmer of silver Creek, Madison county, has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. His assets consist of fine farming lands. The liabilities are placed at $29,000. He will probable pay out in full.

In the Circuit Court at Frankfort Judge Cantrill overruled the demurrer of 120 corporations to the indictments against them for failure to report, &c. This means that the companies will have to go to trial and if they are fined anything like the limit, they will have to pay into the State fines aggregating at least $100,000.

The Covington Circuit Court-room, by order of Judge Tarvin, has been decorated with a handsome silk American flag. The flag is the one that was presented to the Jefferson Club by Ed Sprague, and forms a background for the Judge's bench. Judge Tarvin has also ordered a flag to be unfurled on the Covington Courthouse.

The local Board of Pension Examiners at Lexington, were notified by John J. Creekbaum, aged 60 that he desired his papers be returned to Washington and his pension be applied to the war fund. He was drawing $6 per month, and application had been made for an increase. Creekbaum was a private in Company F. First Ohio Volunteers.

Capt. P. M. Blackerby, Chief of Police of Versailles, and Mr. John F. Cohen, a popular young lawyer, will enlist a company of volunteers for Cuban service. Capt. Blackerby issued a call on young men of Woodford county for 150 volunteers for four months. Blackerby is Captain of the Versailles Uniform Rank, Knights of Pythias, and is acting under orders from Col. Marmaduke B. Bowden, of Louisville.

The Newspaper Soldier.

Last week a well known citizen of another county arrived in Frankfort and after transacting his business entered the Executive Department to tender his services to the Governor in case war was declared against Spain. He was ushered into the Governor's office, where he immediately stated the object of his visit, it being to have his name entered as a volunteer in case of war. Gov. Bradley turned him over to his Private Secretary, Fred Roberts, to be enlisted immediately. This volunteer immediately took a back track when he was informed that he could be sent to the front immediately. He said he did not desire to be sworn in right away, as he would have to go to his home and settle up his affairs before he left. It was then suggested that his name be recorded so that he might be in the first installment of soldiers called into service, and he said "no; that he had better let it alone until he went home and settled up affairs, and that he would consider his entrance into the service." Of course Gov. Bradley was disappointed and entered his objection to this manner of enlistment; but he finally consented that the newspaper soldier should have an opportunity to go home and tell his dear ones that he had enlisted for and during the Spanish war. It is useless to say that his name was not printed to raise a regiment to fight against the Spanish over Cuba.—Argus.

The Louisville Commercial has reversed its position on the civil service law, and it now calls the law a fraud. It has been only a few months since the Commercial declared that a convention that failed or refused to endorse the civil service law was not composed of Republicans.

Isaac Plummer, who has been a very sick man at the County Poor House, for the past two months with little chance of recovery was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital, in Covington, by Dr. A. D. Webb on Wednesday morning. The doctor says that Mr. Plummer can be cured in a few weeks at that hospital; but that his case was hopeless if we left him at the poor house. The expenses at the hospital will be $3 per week, and this amount will be paid by the county.

Attorney W. W. Dickerson, accompanied by the County Judge and Clerk, L. M. Gross, went down to the residence of the late Thomas McBee, on last Friday and qualified the widow of the deceased as executrix of decedent's last will and testament. Mrs. McBee is 84 years old, hale and hearty. She lived with her husband in the same house in which she now resides, for more than 54 years prior to his death. The real estate of decedent consists of several hundred acres of very desirable land most ot which is disposed of by the the will. The personal property is small. Mrs. McBee qualified with F. M. Franks and J. J. Leary as her bondsmen.

The saloon-keepers got together and agreed not to admit anyone into their places of business nor sell a drop of spirits on Sunday. This is as it should be.

Lee Crouch returned Friday night from Georgetown, where he has been engaged the past season with Mr. Hughes, tobacco buyer for Liggett & Meyers. He informs us that they have handled about 2,000,000 lbs., during the season, for which they paid from 10 to 14 cents all round. He further explains that the crop in the Blue Grass far exceeds that in the fertile hills of Carroll.

The house of Anderson Sherman, who resides on Wright's Ridge, in the Locust preeinct, was consumed by fire Monday night. The family did not save any of their clothing or household effects. The meat house and all the meat was a prey to the fiery elements. The fire occurred between 11 and 12 o'clock at night and the bed clothing had caught before the family knew of their perilous position, therefore they had barely time to escape with their lives, shoeless and nothing but their night clothes on. It is thought the fire originated from a defective flue. Loss about $800, no insurance.

Postmaster-General Gary has resigned and Charles Emory Smith, editor of the Philadelphia Press has been appointed and qualified as his successor. It is believed that two or three other cabinet officers contemplate vacating. It is evident that the President is not surrounded with the ability that present conditions require, and if he could strengthen his cabinet in several places the strain on him would be lessened considerably.

Gen. Woodford has twice allowed himself to be outwitted in the game of diplomacy. Instructed to demand the recall of Dupuy, he permitted the Spanish Cabinet to accept the Minister's resignation before acting, and given the President's ultimatum he permitted himself to be surprised with his passports. When it is remembered in addition to this, that he was firmly convinced that he could talk the Spanish into peace one is bound to acknowledge that Gen. Woodford is not a success in the diplomatic field.—C. J.

The First Premium Stallion,
DEXTER B.

Walton's on the Bellevue pike on Friday, Saturday and Sunday; at Union on Tuesday and Wednesday, and at Burlington on Thursday of each week, at $10 to insure a live colt.

DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.

Dexter is a large bay stallion, 16 1-8 hands high, 10 years old. He has made five races in his class and won four and second in the other—time, 2:25.

Dexter was sired by Mambrino Star; he by Mambrino Prim; he by Bod Dedlock. 1st dam by Ned Forest; 2d dam by Cassius Clay; 3d dam by a thoroughbred race mare. By this mare I have five colts—three mares that can trot a mile in less than 3 minutes and two stallions in 2:20.

I will give a premium of $10 for the best colt of this horses' get to be shown at the Florence Fair in 1899.

Jos. D. KENNEDY,
Covington, Ky.

The Well known Combined Harness and Saddle Stallion,
Jim Crow,

Will make the season of 1898, at my place, 1½ miles east of Burlington, Ky., on the Florence & Burlington pike, at $8 to insure a living colt.

JIM CROW is from the noted Morgan family of horses, tracing back to Justin Morgan of 1792. Jim Crow is 16 hands high, has good style and great power; he has always been very successful in show rings as a general purpose horse, and he transmits these qualities to his colts, as they have also been successful in the show rings

The Celebrated Mule Jack,
DON CARLUS,

Will stand at the same place at $8 to insure a living colt, money due when colt comes or mare parted with.

This Jack is black, 15 hands high, has all the best qualities as a mule jack. He is from imported stock on both sides and is the grandson of imported Starlight who sold for $3,000. Don Carlus has proven himself a superior breeder, being the sire of some of the best mules in Fayette county, Ky.

I will give a premium in the fall of 1899, of $5 for best mare mule and $5 for best horse mule of this jack's get.

☞ Liberal reduction on two or more mares owned by one or in clubs of six mares.

Registered Guernsey bull JESSON 3662, will be found at same place at $1 for a living calf.

Caution to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur. For pedigrees in full or further particulars call on or address

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 4, 1898. NO. 28.

Commodore Dewey gave the Spaniards a crushing defeat last Sunday, destroying their warships at Manila, and killing and wounding many of their men. It is reported that the city has surrendered to Dewey. The American loss was small—none of her battleships were lost, and none were seriously injured. The battle was fought under unfavorable circumstances, and it required a commander of the very highest type to take the chances that Dewey accepted. He is now the hero of the age.

THE Spaniards charge the Americans with being a set of cowardly pirates.

THE Spaniards do not understand why it is that this country proceeds so slowly with the war.

SPAIN is doing a great deal of boasting for a government whose territory has been almost wiped out.

ALREADY are the Spaniards claiming a brilliant victory in every little brush they have had with the United States.

JUDGE DAY is now at the head of the State Department, but he has been there for all intents and purposes for some time.

BLANCO does not think the Americans will venture to land troops in Cuba. When they do take a notion to land Blanco can not prevent ti.

THE Havana blockade is for the purpose of starving the Spaniards into surrendering, but the reconcentradoes will have to suffer as well.

WHEN the entire line-up is reported Kentucky will show that she did her part toward avenging the destruction of the Maine and her men.

JOHN SHERMAN is out of official life. The John Sherman of fifteen or twenty years ago would prove a very valuable acquisition to administration councils at this time.

AN exchange states that 300 bales of horses' manes and tails, to be used for upholstering furniture, have been landed at Philadelphia by the British steamships Maine and Michigan from London, where they were shipped from Siberia.

SHERMAN adheres to the statement that there was no reason for his resignation as Secretary of State. Does he want to make the impression that his leaving the office was the result of something of the same nature that caused him to vacate the office of United States Senator?

A CABINET office appears to be a very unhealthy position. Postmaster General Gary and Secretary of State Sherman have each resigned their positions because of ill health, and it is said that Secretary of the Treasury Gage is annoyed by poor health and contemplates resigning. It would not be a bad idea for cabinet officers to submit to a medical examination previous to being appointed and confirmed.

THE Spanish public is taught to regard the people of the U. S. as a rich but heterogeneous aggregation, in government little better than a mob with an army insignificant in numbers inefficient in war, and a clumsy and weak navy. They believe that war against the the United States would be a grand national frolic with booty and glory enough to rehabilitate Spain among the great powers, but if Uncle Sam goes after the Spaniards in earnest he will soon teach them they have formed a very incorrect opinion of his people.

On the Western hemisphere Spanish is the prevailing language of countries having in the aggregate an area of 4,965,000 square miles, populated by 40,568,000 persons. With the exception of Brazil, Spanish is the prevailing language in every country in South America. Just as England is the mother country of the United States, so is Spain the maternal parent of all this vast territory. Though Spain practiced cruelties upon nearly all these countries in their infancy, such as England was never guilty of in the colonies, they are still friendly toward their mother country. They have not the ambition or progressiveness to make them a rival in trade with Spain as we are with England, which is a partial explanation of how easily old grievances are forgotten. Should the war be prolonged there is scarcely any doubt that some of the little fellows in South America would become annoying.—Times Star.

Morning Star Lodge No. 16, I. O. O. F., of Petersburg, did itself proud last Tuesday evening, in her celebration of the seventy-ninth anniversary of Odd-Fellowship in this country. Several lodges responded to the invitation to be present and participate in the festivities, and, when the procession was ready to move, about seven o'clock, 200 members of the order were in line. The line of march included the principal streets, and with the two brass bands and the display of fireworks at numerous points passed by the procession, the usually quiet little city was given a decidedly gaily appearance.

Elder J. W. Howe, than whom there is not a more interesting fraternity lecturer, was the principal speaker of the occasion, and the Methodist church, the use of which had been kindly granted for the lecture, was packed with Odd-Fellows and the friends of the order. The lecture occupied considerably over an hour, and the audience was so thoroughly interested, that when the speaker at first desired to close his remarks, "go on, go on," was heard from every part of the house, and to satisfy the hearers the lecture was continued.

The principles inculcated by Odd Fellowship were never more beautifully and touchingly explained than on this accasion, and many of the technical and unfounded objections to the order, were met and their fallacies exposed, in many instances, in a manner that rendered them ridiculous. Morning Star Lodge is to be congratulated on having obtained the services of Bro. Howe, and his lecture will certainly bear good fruit, and renew enthusiasm on the part of the members who heard it.

At the conclusion of the exercises at the church everybody was invited to Gordon's Hall where a sumptuous spread with which to refresh the inner man was in waiting. It was evident that no person was slow to accept this invitation, and in a short time the commodious hall was accommodating several hundred persons, each of whom seemed to have brought an appetite that was capable of doing justice to the contents of the tables.

At the proper time the Master of ceremonies, Hon. T. B. Mathews, rapped for order, and stated that speechmaking was in order, and as he called the lodges their chosen representatives responded, and for an hour or more there was an exuberance of oratory that proved one of the interesting features of the evening. This part of the programme was concluded by a very nice speech by Rev. Harris, who is not a member of the order, but who is thoroughly in sympathy with its teachings. The closing ode was then sung, and another important and highly creditable event in the history of the town of Petersburg was of the past.

NOTES.

Five hundred people were fed.

Dr. J. M. Grant looked like he never felt happier.

Everybody in Petersburg gladly welcomed the visitors.

T. B. Mathews is a most excellent master of ceremonics.

Dick McWethy, always agreeable, was unusually so that evening.

Five or six members of Harmony lodge were on hand in good time.

Several Aurora ladies came up with the members from that town.

J. W. Berkshire was on the reception committee, and was kept hustling.

Col. Stott was hunting up his acquaintances to extend the hand of welcome.

The display of fireworks from the roofs of the distillery and Gordon's Hall was very attractive.

Aurora and Lawrenceburg lodges were represented, the former having much the larger delegation.

Gordon's Hall is well equipped for public occasions, and the town could not do without it now.

B. F. Jarrell was working hard to the end that everything should be in keeping with the occasion.

The audience was decidedly anti-Spanish, evidence of which fact cropped out on two or three occasions.

Alline lodge sent 23 members, just about as many passengers as the Swan could accommodate comfortably.

W. W. Grant, of Bellevue, was delighted with the exercises. He is an enthusiastic, Mason, Odd-Fellow and K. P.

Morning Star has several young members who will prove an honor to the order. The lodge is now enjoying a boom.

It was regretted that R. Y. Randall [illegible] been an earnest Odd-Fel[illegible] very long time, was not able [illegible] present.

Orland Snyder enjoyed the music, the procession, the exercises at the church, the supper, the speeches—in fact everything.

Morning Star Lodge enjoys the distinction of having as a member a Past Grand Master, and the Secretary of the Sovereign Grand Lodge.

S. G. Botts, who was made an Odd-Fellow in Morning Star Lodge forty-nine years ago, made the audience a short talk. There are very few if any older Odd-Fellows in this State than he is.

Of course Charlie Schramm was here, there and everywhere, looking after the comfort of the visitors, making each individual feel that the occasion was intended for his or her especial enjoyment.

Bro. Hewitt had long since established his reputation as [illegible] after dinner orator, but on this occasion he excelled himself. His eulogy on woman was the grandest effort of his life, and it is evident the audience considered him the "Old-man-Eloquent."

Elder W. S. Keene had been invited to deliver an address also, and in referring to his death at the beginning of the exercises at the church, the master of ceremonies, T. B. Mathews, paid the departed brother a glowing triyute, as did also Elder Howe at the beginning of his lecture.

When old Gomez receives that big consignment of rapid-fire Maxim field guns and modern rifles for the insurgents the only thing lacking to complete his happiness will be the presence of Butcher Weyler as his opponent in the field.—St. Louis Republic.

Fitzhugh Lee is to have a division for the invasion of Cuba. If he is not forbidden by Sunday-school strategy to take his division to Cuba he may be relied upon to anticipate yellow fever in ending the power of Spain in that island.—N. Y. World,

Secretary Gage's retirement from the cabinet, on account of ill health is being freely predicted in Washington. No member of the cabinet who lacks the physical and mental vigor to sustain the executive burdens incident to the war period ought to hesitate about placing his resignation in the hands of the president. It is the course of simple fairness to the president.—Louisville Commercial.

"Hell Let Loose."

The dynamite cruiser Vesuvius, which has just left Newport to join the squadron off Havana, is an experiment in warfare which will be watched with great interest by naval authorities all over the world, and will undoubtedly be given an opportunity to demonstrate her merits before the war is over. She is supposed to be more effective in battle than any of our battleships, cruisers or torpedo boats, the most destructive agency in the entire world, and she is the only craft of her kind in existence, but her efficiency has been so stubbornly questioned that the Government has not duplicated her. If she should prove equal to the promises her defenders have made every nation in the world will add similar vessels to their fleet. She is small, swift and easily handled, and carries three pneumatic guns, each of which discharges 500 lbs., of nitroglycerin every five minutes. Nitroglycerin has five times the explosive power of gun cotton and twenty-five times the explosive power of ordinary powder. No ship could stand a moment against an explosion of this kind, even though it occurred in the water 100 yards from her hull. Capt. Zalinski, who invented the gun has described the effect of their discharge as "Hell let loose," and even that does not seem to do full justice to the destruction that would be caused by scattering three-quarters of a ton of dynamite every five minutes in a city or fortress or among a flect of vessels. The projectiles are so arranged that when they strike anything they will explode and scatter the dynamite they contain in a shower over a large surface. They can also be made to explode automatically by clockwork. Imagine seven or eight such shells dropped into a city like New York or even Havana, or in the midst of a fleet of warships. So long as her guns are in condition for use no vessel would dare attack the Vesuvius without inviting total destruction. If this little craft was pursued it is only necessary for it to stand still and await the proper moment, when the discharge of one or all of its guns would annihilate its pursuer. A cruiser or battleship might as well sail straight over Niagra. But the critics of this little craft insist that she will be absolutely unserviceable in rough water and her machinery is so delicate and complicated it will be apt to get out of order when it is needed the most. She will join the squadron before Havana about Friday or Saturday, and the voyage from Newport will be a fair test of her sea going qualities.

It has been suggested that the Vesuvius can be made useful in destroying mines that have been placed in the harbors of Havana and other cities, because her projectiles can be fired under water as well as in the air. If she should drop one of her shells into Havana harbor, for example, to be exploded as soon as it touches the bottom, the detonation would be so great as to discharge all the mines or torpedoes that might be anchored within a certain distance around it. It is also suggested that she can easily be protected from heavy seas by sailing on the lee side of a monitor or battleship. Her guns are elevated at an angle of 18 degrees, so that they could fire over any ship that might be beside her for protection.—Washington telegram to Chicago Record.

THE great nutritive powers of chocolate are now so generally recognized that it has been adopted for campaign use in the armies and navies of almost every European government. The increased consumption in Europe within four years is 35 per cent., and American consumption has during the same period increased 50 per cent.

It has hitherto been the custom of the children attending the public schools in Austria and Hungary to kiss the hands of their teachers on arrival and departure. This has now been forbidden by a ukase just issued by the imperial board of education, which bases its decision on a declaration of the sanitary council.

A MANUFACTURER of chafing dishes recently made the statement that he believed gas and coal consumption in New York would soon be very materially reduced by use of that convenient means of cooking light meals. "Where one was sold a year ago scores are sold now," he said, "and the demand is increasing at a remarkable rate."

THE Boston subway work is nearly completed. According to present prospects, the total cost of improvement will fall considerably within the engineer's estimate. The total cost of the subway to date is $1,042,213; the original estimate being $5,000,000. A tunnel under the harbor of East Boston is again being discussed, at an estimated cost of $2,400,000.

THE pope does his private writing with a gold pen, but his pontificial signature is always given with a white-feathered quill which is believed to come from the wing of a dove, although persons who may seen it say it must have come from a larger bird. The same quill has been in use for more than 40 years. It serves only for important signatures, and is kept in an ivory case.

ORANGE juice is one of the best dressings for black shoes or boots. Take a slice or quarter of an orange and rub it on the shoe or boot; then, when dry, brush with a soft brush until the shoes shines like a looking glass. This is an English recipe. Another fruit dressing is for tan shoes, the inside of a banana skin. Rub the skin over the shoe thoroughly, wipe off carefully with a soft cloth briskly.

THE United States has won a signal diplomatic trinmph, which can not fail to exert a powerful influence upon the duration and eventful result of the Spanish-American war. This country and England, at the proposal of the United States, have entered into a convention whereby coal is declared to be contraband of war. This agreement puts Spain at a tremendous disadvantage, as compared with America.

THE Canadian government is sending out a military force to the Yukon to establish the capital of the district, which, it has been decided, shall be placed at Selkirk, instead of at Dawson City. Lady Aberdeen has recently established a new order of nurses in Canada, known as the Victorian Order, and four of the women who belong to it are going with the expedition. Miss Faith Fenton, a well known Canadian journalist, will also be a member of the party.

JOHN WANAMAKER, the merchant prince of Philadelphia, offers to raise a regiment and go with it to the front, but he proposes to his employes that if they wish to enlist against Spain their positions shall be reopened to them when they return; that in the meantime their salaries shall continue, and that an insurance of $1,000 will be carried on each one of them while they are engaged in military service. Rich men may not be experts at going through the eye of a needle, but they are not totally depraved, nevertheless.

A CURIOUS custom at the Havana theaters is the throwing of doves at the performers by the audience. The birds have their feet tied with ribbons, and the people have become so dexterous in tossing them that they go straight to the person for whom they are designed. So great is the destitution there now that rich people passing into the theater with these tokens to bestow upon their favorite artists, are frequently entreated by the starving populace, who crowd about the doors, to give the birds to them for food for the sick ones at home.

THE rubber tree is usually tapped four times during the first year of its maturity, and the intervals of rest are gradually diminished until it can be tapped monthly. The rubber tree is the milch cow of the vegetable kingdom; its yield continues to increase with frequent and skillful milking until it reaches its maximum. Properly cared for, a tree will yield steadily up to its fortieth year; in some instances, as long as 50 or 60 years. The yield of gum, as well as the market price, is variable; but a healthy tree should yield a revenue of $15 to $30 per annum.

BOMBARDED

The Forts at Matanzas Harbor.

The Engagement Lasted For Over an Hour.

The New York, Puritan and Cincinnati Were Engaged.

The Object Was to Prevent the Completion of Earthworks at Punta Gorda.

There Was No Loss of Life on Our Side But the Spaniards Suffered.

The Enemy's Shells Fell Short of the American Vessels.

The Puritan Sinks a Spanish Gunboat ---The Land Batteries Silenced.

About Three Hundred Shots Were Put on Land From the Three Ships at a Range of From Four to Seven Thousand Yards.

ON BOARD THE FLAG SHIP NEW YORK, OFF MATANZAS, April 28.—The New York, the Puritan and the Cincinnati bombarded the forts at the mouth of Matanzas harbor Wednesday afternoon. There were no casualties on our side, but it is believed that the hail of iron which pounded in the forts must have caused loss of life to the Spaniards, though nothing is known definitely.

The engagement commenced at 12:57 and ceased at 1:15. The object of the attack was to prevent the completion of the earthworks at Punta Gorda. A battery on the eastward arm of the bay opened fire on the flagship and this was also shelled. About 12 5-inch shells were fired from the eastern forts but all fell short. About five or six light shells were fired from the half completed battery. Two of these whizzed over the New York and one fell short. The ships left the bay for the open sea, the object of discovering the whereabouts of the batteries having been accomplished. In the neighborhood of three hundred shots were put on land from the three ships at a range of from four thousand to seven thousand yards. Rr. Adm. Sampson, when asked if he was satisfied with the result, said:

"Yes, I am. I expected to be."

The half completed Spanish earthworks and battery were apparently all plowed up by the shells.

All the ships engaged showed excellent marksmanship throughout the engagement, and when they were firing at the shortest range nearly every shell took effect. The forts which were bombarded were on a low-lying point and were considered merely earthworks.

They did not make a good target, yet, when the big guns were fired at the shortest range portions of the fort could be seen flying in the air at every shot.

The flagship returned to Havana and the Puritan and Cincinnati were left on Matanzas station.

While the New York, Puritan and Cincinnati were reconnoitering in force for the purpose of locating and destroying the formidable defenses being constructed, the flagship was fired on by the batteries on Point Rubal Caya and Point Maya, guarding the entrance to the harbor. The New York instantly replied.

The Puritan steamed in behind the New York and engaged the fortification on Point Maya, while the New York went to starboard close up to the land and poured her shells into Rubal Caya. The Cincinnati, which had remained well astern, under orders, signaled for permission to engage and received it, and soon was firing her guns at the fort on the west side of the bay. It took the three ships just 13 minutes to silence the batteries.

Immediately the fort at Matanzas opened fire, the Puritan returned the fire from an eight-inch gun. The first shot missed. The second shot struck the fort on the eastern end and crumbled five tons of solid masonry. Fort Morcillo answered with Krupp guns. The other forts about the harbor joined in the firing. By this time the New York was in range. She opened fire about three miles away, but came no closer. The shells from the small gunboat hit the Puritan, but the projectiles were not heavy enough to do damage. The Puritan fired from both turrets at once, and the gunboat sunk.

The American ships soon had the range of the forts and nearly every shot told. The war ships steamed slowly away, so as not to give the forts a stationary target. It is believed there was loss of life.

The bombardment was at about 1,300 yards. The ships could have thrown more metal, but the captains preferred to be leisurely about it. The Spanish marksmanship was wretched. The Puritan's enormous turret guns did awful damage. The projectiles were visible in their flight. When hit the masonry of the fort crumbled to powder. Sand batteries went up in clouds when struck. Only a few shells struck the town and those accidentally. The New York and Puritan avoided shooting at anything but government property.

About 1 o'clock a gun on the western side of the fort that had been best served was dismounted by a discharge from the New York. All of the gun's crew must have been killed. Many Spaniards must have been killed. Not one American was injured. By night the forts were silenced but did not surrender.

The Spaniards used explosive shells and some of the shrapnell fell on the New York.

The peace of the blockade has been broken. Blood has been spilled. It was Spanish blood and the red fluid attested that the Dons really mean to defend their title to Cuba. Matanzas, the scene of much of the ghastly suffering imposed by Weyler, saw the first engagement. Hundreds of starving reconcentrados, deprived now by Blanco of supplies contributed by Americans, heard the big guns of Uncle Sam's ships thunder forth a salute to liberty. At the sound they hastened to the heights near the city of Matanzas, and from that point of vantage watched the duel between the war ships and the shore batteries.

For some time the New York used only her smaller guns. But pretty soon the heavy boom of her big gun amidships reverberated among the hills. After the firing had continued for some 10 minutes the Puritan was signalled to get into the game. She took a position on the port side of the New York and about a mile and a half from the east shore batteries. There she promptly drew the attention of the first two batteries on the west shore. At the first the Puritan used only her secondary battery to get the range of the batteries, which were almost invisible, their locality being indicated, however, by the smoke. By this time the firing was quite rapid from both the New York and Puritan.

The flag ship lay so that she presented a broadside to both shores, and she used her guns after a few range-finding shots with excellent results. The accuracy of her gunners was continually attested by clouds of sand and water which arose around the shore batteries. The Spaniards replied steadily, but with no effect. Meanwhile the Cincinnati was impatient to take a hand. Finally Capt. Chester received permission to bring his ship into action. He adroitly chose a position less than 2,000 yards from the west shore batteries, and it soon developed that, while exposed fully to his fire, they could not train their guns on the cruiser.

Until the end of the engagement the Cincinnati maintained an effective fire on the Point Maya, or east shore batteries. This combined and destructive fire soon gave the men on shore enough.

In less than 20 minutes from the time they opened fire on the New York their fire had been silenced. The result of the engagement created the greatest enthusiasm among officers and men and increased, if that is possible, the desire to take a crack at Morro Castle. Within ten minutes after the engagement had ended a special dispatch boat was alongside the New York. Congratulations were extended to Adm. Sampson, who returned his compliments. He requested the vessel to carry the official dispatches reporting the battle to Key West.

All told the United States ships fired 86 shots at the forts. This is by actual count from our dispatch boat. The forts fired probably 25 shots. The bombardment developed that the largest pieces mounted by the Spanish at Matanzas are eight-inch guns, and the best opinion is that there are not more than five or six guns there. But far more important than the destruction of the Matanzas batteries is the conclusion about the future which may be drawn from the bombardment.

The conclusion is that Havana is absolutely at the mercy of the United States fleet whenever we choose to open fire. Adm. Sampson Wednesday, with guns which amount to less than one-tenth of his fighting force, silenced practically the three batteries in 20 minutes. He steamed right in on them as close as he could get, and not one of our ships was touched. What is to be said of a gunner that can not hit a mark as big as the New York at 2,000 or 3,000 yards? The incident has greatly encouraged the naval officers and they believe that when they bombard Havana they will destroy all the defense in about one hour.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—So far as could be learned the officials of the administration were not notified of the bombardment of Matanzas Wednesday morning. The navy department keeps a full fledged telegraph office open in the building all night and a confidential officer remains at the department all night to translate the messages as received. There was considerable business done over the wires till early morning hours, but none of the dispatches were sent either to the white house or to the secretary of the navy.

THE WAR CAMPAIGN.

In Ingress to Cuba for Relief of Reconcentrados to Be Opened—Flying Squadron to Be Held as a Reserve Force—Regulars to Go to Cuba and Volunteers to Chickamauga.

NEW YORK, April 30.—A special to the World from Washington says: It is stated on the highest authority that as the newly formed preparations for actual hostilities stand they contemplate these operations:

1. The opening of [illegible] for the relief ship which [illegible] supplies to the reconcentrados, and the co-operation of the United States naval forces with those of the insurgent. This invasion, which is to be conducted purely as a relief expedition, may land at Matanzas. The Sampson squadron is to be urged to make way for and to protect the relief expedition.

2. The preventing of the Spanish fleet now at Manilla, in the Philippines, from joining forces with the Spanish fleets at Cape Verde islands and in Cuban waters. The instructions to commander Dewey are not to shell Manilla unless the fortifications assail the American fleet. A rigid blockade, similar to that established at Havana, is to be enforced against Manila. An engagement, if any occurs, will be precipitated by the Spanish fleet under command of Adm. ("Fighting") Montejo.

3. The flying squadron is to be held at Fort Monroe as a reserve fleet, but is to be drawn upon if necessary to protect unfortified cities. The squadron will reinforce Commodore Watson squadron. This is the original plan mapped out more than three weeks ago by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt.

4. The guarding of the approaches to cities on the north and middle Atlantic coasts by regular war ships and auxiliary cruisers. The original plan contemplated the performance of this duty by vessels manned by naval reserves, but a change was compelled by advices of the sailing of a Spanish fleet from Cadiz with instructions to bombard unprotected cities of the northern Atlantic coast. Hence the dispatching Friday of the auxiliary cruisers New Orleans and San Francisco to guard approaches to the Massachusetts and New York coasts.

5. Hurried preparations for the transportation of the land forces now at Chickamauga to either Tampa or New Orleans for embarkation to Cuba. These orders are new, and it is expected that Gen. Miles will leave Washington on Sunday to assume actual command of the land forces.

6. The maintenance of the state militia forces which have reported "ready" in an advanced organized condition, with the view of calling them to follow the regular army forces now mobilized at Chickamauga.

SPANISH FLEET

Leaves Cape Verde Islands, the Effective Force Going West and the Non-Effectives Proceeding to Another Anchorage.

LONDON, April 30.—The Evening News Friday afternoon publishes a dispatch from St. Vincent, Cape Verde islands, saying the Spanish cruiser Maria Teresa, Almirante Oquendo, Vizcaya and Christobal Colon, accompanied by the Spanish torpedo boat destroyers Pluton, Terror and Furor, had, at the hour the dispatch was filed (9 o'clock Friday morning) just sailed in a westerly direction, presumably going toward Cuba.

The dispatch adds that the Spanish torpedo boats Azor, Rayo and Ariete and the Spanish transports San Francisco and Ciudad de Cadiz sailed at the same time in a northerly direction, probably going to the Canary islands.

The Evening News, commenting on its dispatch from St. Vincent, says:

"The import of the cablegram is that the whole effective fighting force of the squadron has been dispatched west, while the non-effectives and the non-combatants are proceeding to another anchorage.

"Well informed naval authorities are aware that the torpedo boats could not traverse the Atlantic at the present time as they have not sufficient coal capacity for a voyage to Cuba and the risk of coaling in mid-ocean is too great.

"This long-delayed move is most significant. Its significance lies in the fact, which can hardly be over emphasized, that it is practically Spain's first move since the outbreak of hostilities."

ST. VINCENT, Cape Verde Islands, April 30.—Friday afternoon there was a collision among the vessels of the Spanish fleet and some of them have returned here.

Portugal's Neutrality Decreed.

LISBON, April 30.—A decree announcing the neutrality of Portugal was published in the Gazette Friday. The proclamation forbids the equipment or entry of privateers in Portuguese waters, and permits the entry of belligerents into Portuguese ports for a brief stay only.

Still Cruising in the Straits.

LONDON, April 30.—According to a dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Gibraltar the Spanish war ships Pelayo, Carlos V. and Alfonso VIII., together with several gunboats are still cruising in the Straits.

TROOPS AT TAMPA

Receive Orders to Be in Readiness for Immediate Departure.

It is Thought a Junction Will Be Made With the Insurgent Army in Cuba Before the Rainy Season Sets in on the Island.

TAMPA, Fla., April 29.—The news of the bombardment of Matanzas forts by Adm. Sampson reached here Thursday afternoon, and soon afterward Col. Melville A. Cochran, commanding the First provisional brigade of the Tampa division, received a telegram from Washington instructing him to hold his command in readiness for immediate departure, with rations for 30 days. This is the first authentic information regarding the future movements of the troops here.

The Tampa division embracing the troops at this point and at Port Tampa has been divided into two brigades. Col. Cochran, the senior ranking officer in the camp, has been appointed commander of the first brigade, and Col. John Poland, the next ranking officer, to the second brigade. The first includes the Fifth, Sixth, Ninth and Thirteenth regiments. The second brigade is composed of the Fourth, Seventeenth and Twenty-first regiments, these being termed provisional brigades. The staff officers have not as yet been appointed, but Col. Cochran has chosen Capt. Turner, of his regiment, Sixth, as adjutant; Col. Poland has selected Capt. Wrenn, of the Seventeenth, to fill that position in the Second brigade. The order from Washington relating to the movements of the First brigade referred to, is being whispered about among the officers in the rotunda of the hotel. Although no definite orders as yet have been received, it is expected the second brigade will receive a similar message from Washington within a few hours. Officers here expect that all the troops now stationed at Chickamauga will be here in a few days. These troops consist of 3,600 cavalry, ten batteries of artillery of 500 men and 2,500 infantry, or a total of 6,600 men. On the arrival of these troops it is quite likely that they will be organized into brigades and regiments for transfer to Cuba.

It is well known that the much dreaded rainy season on the Island does not set in for several weeks and officers believe that the purpose of the army and navy authorities in Washington is to effect a junction with the Cuban army before that time or else land 10,000 or 12,000 regular troops there and make a rush upon Havana.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—A sudden change in the plans of the administration with regard to the campaign in Cuba was apparent Thursday night after a conference at the white house between the president, Gen. Miles and Brig. Gen. Shafter, who will be in command of the army of invasion. Orders have been issued for the immediate mobilization of the troops at the ports of departure, and it now seems to be the intention of the president to take advantage of the inroads made at Matanzas Wednesday and land troops in that vicinity at once. Several large transports were chartered Thursday afternoon.

At the conference Thursday night both Gen. Miles and Gen. Shafter insisted that nothing could be done in Cuba until the troops had been landed and were in position to co-operate with the fleet. The president, it is said, was impressed with the representations made and promised speedy and effective campaign. He said the fleet should strike no blow at Havana until the land forces were ready to follow up the attack. Gen. Shafter reported that he had trustworthy advices that the Spanish army was badly demoralized and that a much smaller army of energetic Americans, aided by the insurgents, could easily drive the Spaniards, who since their entrance into Cuba had done no hard fighting and had been reduced by sickness until their fighting strength was such that they could not stand punishment such as he hoped to be able to give them. It was reported after the conference that an order would be issued Friday to the commanders of troops notifying them to be ready to move at 24 hours notice. Those at Chickamauga are to be immediately sent to Mobile and Tampa, from which point they will be taken in transports to the Cuban coast in the vicinity of Matanzas.

THE CONFEREES

Of the House and Senate Reach an Agreement on the Naval Appropriation Bill.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The conferees of the two houses reached an agreement on the naval appropriation bill before adjourning Thursday night. All the senate increases in the way of monitors and torpedo boats were adopted. The increases include four monitors at $1,250,000 and 16 instead of 12 torpedo boat destroyers. All the other important additions made by the senate are retained. The language in regard to the enlistment of seamen was arranged so as to provide for 1,000 more marines. A provision was inserted giving the secretary of the navy authority to enlist volunteers up to the rank of commander. This was done so that the department could avail itself of the services of the officers of the American liners chartered by the government. The conference will report Friday.

ST. LOUIS, April 29.—General Manager William B. Doddridge, of the Missouri Pacific, announced Thursday night that the positions of any of the employes of the road who enlisted would be reserved for them until the hostilities ended.

Just What He Wanted.

One of the first men to reach San Francisco with a hoard of Klondike gold was an Irishman named Finnegan, who had been very poor before he struck it rich, and who, consequently, was unfamiliar with many ordinary uses of a life of luxury.

"Oy say, yez kin bring me two dozen eyesters," he said, airily, as he took a seat in one of the finest restaurants in Frisco.

The oysters were soon set before him, and Finnegan, looking about him for something to put on them, and hardly knowing what the something should be, spied a bottle of Tobasco and proceeded to season the bivalves, not wisely, but too well.

Impaling an oyster on his fork, he thrust it into his mouth, then leaped to his feet with a terrific roar of pain and began dancing about and yelling like a madman.

"See here!" cried the proprietor, rushing to the table, "keep still, or I'll put you out!"

"I-p-p-put me out, is it? Oi wish yez would put me out!" yelled Finnegan. "Me insides is blazin' loike a match factory!"—Harper's Magazine.

Fabulous Wealth.

The "inexhaustible mineral wealth" of newly found mining regions largely run by syndicates and promoted by transportation companies is in too many instances really a fable. The products of industry in legitimate fields of enterprise nearer home are far surer and promise more stable rewards. TEXAS LADIES
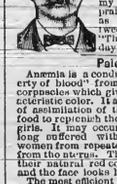
SPEAK THE TRUTH.

Mrs. Lucilla Sokel



Do Leon, Tex., writes: I am a widow, and can strongly recommend Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine, it having Saved my Life 6 years ago, when I was down with Liver Complaint and Kidney Disease. I think it a far better medicine than that made by "Zeilin" and "Black Draught."

Gestation.

During the period of gestation the tension upon the muscles and ligaments of the womb is greatly increased and the blood vessels are taxed to their utmost. If there is any tendency to uneasiness or pain, we recommend frequent warm injections of our Mexican Female Remedy and two or three doses, every day, of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine. This treatment will strengthen the ligaments, will assist in holding the uterus in place, lessen pain, make the uterus more pliable and elastic and prepare the organs for the final effort. It also lessens the danger of death to child and mother, and fortifies her against liability to convulsions, flooding and other dangerous symptoms, and with ordinary prudence guarantees a rapid recovery.

J. W. Tillison

Celeste, Tex., says: Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine is the best in the world for Biliousness, Indigestion and Torpid Liver. Have used it for years, and recommend it to my friends, and they all praise it. This liver is as much difference between it and "Zeilin" and "Black Draught" as between day and night.

Paleness.

Anæmia is a condition often called "poverty of blood" from deficiency of the corpuscles which give to this fluid its characteristic color. It arises from insufficiency of assimilation of the proper materials of food to replenish the blood, as in chlorotic girls. It may occur in persons who have long suffered with headache, or in women from repeated discharges of blood from the uterus. The lips and tongue lose their natural red color and become white and the face looks like wax.

The most efficient remedy for this condition is Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine. The improvement produced by its use is frequently almost magical; the enfeebled heart becomes strong and equable in its action, digestion improves, the lips and cheeks lose their pallor, and the eye becomes bright and the step elastic.

A VICTORY!

The Spaniards Suffer a Terrible Defeat in Manila by Americans.

A Large Number of the Enemy Killed and Wounded.

Three Vessels of the Spanish Squadron Sunk.

Other Vessels of the Fleet Were Sunk to Prevent Capture.

The Commander of the Don Juan Austria Killed.

The American Loss of Life Was Small, and Our Ships Are All Right.

Great Rejoicing in Washington Over the Result of the First Naval Engagement.

It is Thought in Official Circles That Commodore Dewey's Decisive Victory Foreshadows an Early End of the War.

HONG KONG, May 2.—Advices from Manila state that Commodore Dewey opened a strong cannonade against the Spanish guarding the harbor Sunday morning. After severe fighting he retired to place his wounded in safety, then returned to the attack. After gaining a decisive victory he retired in the offing, without the loss of a vessel, though his list of killed and wounded is said to be heavy. The cruiser Don Juan de Austria was blown up and her commander killed. The cruiser Maria Cristina was burned and several smaller ships of war were sunk. The Spanish admiral, Montejo, was compelled to tranfer his flag from the Cristina to the Isla de Cuba. The Spanish fleet was practically annihilated and Manila is panic-stricken. It is believed here that the capture of the city is a matter of but a few hours.

LONDON, May 2.—Reliable news is received here that the Spanish fleet was completely defeated off Cavite in the two naval engagements Sunday morning.

LONDON, May. 2.—The Exchange Telegraph Co. Sunday afternoon sent out a dispatch saying it is stated that Commodore Dewey has defeated the Spanish fleet. It adds that the Spaniards lost 2,000 men and that Commodore Dewey lost two ships and 500 men.

MADRID (via Paris), May 2.—A dispatch has been received by the Spanish minister of marine saying that the American fleet was obliged to retreat after a terrible engagement at Manila. The dispatch says the Spanish losses were heavy and that the American ship were severely damaged.

LONDON, May 2.—A special dispatch from Madrid Monday morning says the Spaniards fought splendidly, the sailors refusing to leave the burning and sinking ships. The captain of the Reina Christina went down with the vessel.

LONDON, May 2.—While it is quite clear that the Spanish squadron has suffered a crushing defeat at Manila, the dispatches leave unclear the intensely interesting question whether the American squadron has suffered material damage.

All news thus far comes from Spanish sources, but it seems evident that Commodore Dewey has not captured Manila. Unless he is able to make another attack and capture the town he will be in an awkward position, having no base upon which to retire and refit.

Probably, therefore, the United States squadron will be obliged to make for San Francisco as the entrance to Manila bay was heavily mined with torpedoes.

Commodore Dewey displayed great pluck and daring in making for the inner harbor.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—Washington rejoiced Sunday night.

Not since the dark days of the great civil conflict of a third of a century ago have the people of this city been so profoundly moved by war news as they were Sunday evening.

The first battle of the Hispano-American war has been fought and victory lies with Adm. Dewey's squadron under the stars and stripes.

That was enough to set the people of Washington almost in a frenzy of enthusiastic rejoicing. For days they, in common with the people throughout the country, have been awaiting news from the Philippine islands, as everything pointed to a battle at Manila that might be a decisive conflict of the war. When the news came indicating a great victory for the American squadron the enthusiasm of the people was let loose and the streets of the city have rung with cheers throughout the night. The first news of the battle received in Washington came in a brief cablegram from Madrid about eight o'clock Sunday evening. As night wore on the cable continued to sing the news of victory for the squadron of Adm. Dewey and the interest grew into tremendous excitement.

Ordinarily Washington is the quietest of cities on sunday but as bulletin after bulletin was posted in front of the newspaper offices, each successive one conveying information more gratifying than its predecessor, the crowds in the streets became uproarious. Good, as well as bad, news spreads rapidly, and by ten o'clock the streets were crowded with people, all discussing the one exciting topic of the hour. Hundreds gathered in front of the bulletin boards and every scintilla of news—and it was all glorious—was received with enthusiastic cheers. While victory had been expected, the news of it coming as it did come from Spanish sources gave vent to the patriotism of the people which had been pent up for days. It was a spontaneous outburst of patriotic feeling that scarcely knew bounds. Adm. Dewey's name was on every lip and his praises were sung in the rejoicings of the people.

Thus far no official advices have been received by the government. The president in company with several of his advisers read the bulletins in the library of the white house early in the evening but later in the night he went to his office on the second floor of the executive mansion, where until a late hour he continued to peruse every dispatch with deepest interest. The news was evidently of the most gratifying character to him, but no statement could be obtained at the executive mansion concerning the battle or its possible consequences.

Officials of the navy department were reticent in discussing the conflict in the absence of official information, but they made no pretense of concealing their great gratification. Secretary Long declined to comment upon the subject, but it was evident that he felt relieved. It has been known for days at the navy department that a conflict at Manila was inevitable, and while no great fear of the result was expressed, there was yet a deep concern in the heart of every official. Sunday night's news removes a great weight from the minds of all.

When Secretary Bliss was shown the first dispatch, briefly recounting the victory of the American squadron, he unhesitatingly expressed his gratification at the result and gave utterance to the hope that Adm. Dewey's fleet had not suffered greatly. Senator Hanna and Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, of New York, who were with Secretary Bliss at the time, were delighted with the advices and made no concealment of their pleasure.

Secretary Alger declared that it was a "glorious victory," but, in common with other officials of the administration, declined to make extended comment upon it.

Navy and army circles, after manifesting throughout the day the greatest eagerness for news from the Philippines, received with intense joy the advices telling of the victory of Adm. Dewey's fleet. Their satisfaction that the defeat of the Spanish had been overwhelming was strengthened by reason of the news coming first almost wholly from Madrid, and they were quickly unreserved in expressing their gratification upon the signal triumph of the American forces.

At the Army and Navy club a large company was gathered and read and commented upon the story of the engagements, as it was presented in the bulletins at the club. Down town at their homes and wherever seen, the officers were free in giving vent to the pleasure they felt at the news and declaring the confidence which they had entertained throughout that the American ships, their officers and men would demonstrate their superiority over the Spanish fleet in Philippine waters. The absence of any statement of specific injury to the American vessels, in the Madrid advices, was construed as convincing indication that they had not suffered appreciable injury, and this was especially pleasing to the naval students of the news. Not only was the preservation of the American ships and men considered in itself a happy outcome, but it was commented upon as indicating clearly that Adm. Dewey and his associate officers and the men under their command had discharged splendidly their several duties in directing and executing the fight. In this connection it was pointed out as little less than marvelous that the American squadron escaped without severe injury, because, notwithstanding the disparity in the naval forces, the Spanish fleet, assisted by the shore batteries, should have been able to inflict severe damage to its foe before itself being destroyed. Its failure to do so was explicable only upon the hypothesis of perfect and swift work by the Americans. An opinion freely expressed Sunday night by naval officers is that the very decisive victory of Adm. Dewey's fleet will mean probably an early end to the war, without further naval battles of importance. The American fleet, it is suggested, is now supreme in the waters of Spain's Pacific possession and indications were strongly towards the slipping of the Philippines from her control. It was said that only by quickly yielding to our demands in Cuba could this loss possibly be averted. Spain, it was argued, was confronted with a situation which promised naught save disaster in case she elected to force more fighting. The superiority of a superior fleet has been demonstrated in the Pacific, and the same, it is contended, would be inevitable in the Atlantic in case the clash comes. From whatever point of view considered, the policy of more fighting upon the part of Spain, promises nothing but more Spanish misfortune. Navy officers think this view must prevail with the Spanish government and believe any end of the war, upon the basis of Cuban independence is to follow soon and that too without further notable opportunity for the American navy to prove its power and distinguish itself.

Judge McComas, senior elect from Maryland, after expressing his joy over the result of the conflict struck a key note of the expected result of the cannonading at Manila Sunday, when he said: "It was likely to have a [illegible] effect, not only in Spain, but [illegible] Europe. He expressed the belief that it would turn the tide of European sentiment toward the United States.

The idea advanced by Judge McComas was expressed by others Sunday night. It is regarded by some as likely that the decisive victory gained by Adm. Dewey's squadron may open the eyes of Spain to the seriousness of the conflict upon which she has entered. In official circles it is regarded as almost certain that trouble of a most critical kind will confront the Sagasta government within Spain's own borders. It is pointed out that the Spanish people have been led to believe that their navy was invincible, and the bitter disappointment that will ensue over the result of the first engagement of the war is likely to precipitate internal dissentions, if not a revolution.

Another result of Adm. Dewey's victory it is thought may be action on the part of the powers of Europe to induce Spain to abandon what is regarded as a hopeless contest for her. Representations may be made to Spain that she would better relinquish her hold upon Cuba than to risk losing all her West Indian possessions and the Philippines as well. It is believed to be not unlikely that the representations will indicate that, since Spanish honor has been satisfied by a conflict, Spain can now yield to the inevitable and accept the good offices of the powers to bring about an adjustment.

In the dispatches from Madrid the statement was made that Adm. Dewey effected a landing on the west side of Manila bay for the men of his fleet who were wounded in the engagements. It was asserted in official circles that this landing had a two-fold purpose. It was not only that the wounded might have better care than they could receive on shipboard, in the face of other probable engagements, but also to carry out what was known to be Adm. Dewey's purpose, to effect a junction with the insurgents as soon as possible. The insurgent forces practically surround Manila on the land sides of the city, and with the intention of securing control of Manila as soon as possible, Adm. Dewey was to obtain a footing on the island at the earliest practicable moment. As soon as the junction of American and insurgent forces, the one on sea and the other on land, is effected, a demand is likely to be made for the surrender of the city, and, in the event of refusal, a combined attack would be made upon it. The result of such an attack in the absence of a Spanish fleet and effective shore batteries, seems a foregone conclusion.

No news of a definite character is given concerning the loss sustained by Adm. Dewey's squadron, and it is scarcely likely, in the opinion of experts of the navy, that authentic information will be received until Adm. Dewey has opportunity to communicate officially with the department. It is regarded as probable that immediately after the engagements of Sunday Adm. Dewey sent the revenue cutter McCulloch back to Hong Kong with dispatches and that the first information from him will come from that point.

The distance from Manila to Hong Kong is a trifle over 600 miles and it will take the McCulloch about two days to make the trip.

THE TOPEKA,

Formerly the Diogenes, Which Sailed From Falmouth, Eng., April 10, Arrives Safely at New York.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The United States cruiser Topeka, formerly the Diogenes, commanded by Lieut. J. J. Knapp, which sailed from Falmouth, Eng., April 10, arrived safely in port Sunday morning after a rough passage of 12 days. The Topeka entered the narrows at 6 a. m., where she slowed down for the health officers' inspection, then proceeding to the man of war anchorage off Thompkinsville. As she steamed up the bay the vessel presented an odd appearance. She has a high sided black painted hull and two yellow funnels, from which the paint had been washed off by heavy weather. She is brig-rigged, giving her heavy appearance aloft without fighting tops, in fact at a distance she presents the appearance of a big cargo steamer rather than a war vessel. The cruiser's deck is entirely bare of guns, all her equipment being stowed in the hold.

Lieut. Knapp reported having experienced a very rough passage. From the time of leaving the channel up to the banks a succession of strong west gales were encountered. After passing the banks the wind hauled to the southeast and blew a strong gale for four days with a very rough sea. The Topeka behaved well throughout and sustained but trifling damage about the decks.

Eleven Spanish Prisoners.

MADRID, May 2.—Hilgo cables that the American war ships blockading Cienfuegos captured a Spanish merchant steamer. A colonel, surgeon, six officers and three non-commissioned officers were held as prisoners. Civilian passengers were liberated.

Manzanillo Reported Captured by Cubans.

LONDON, May 2.—A dispatch to the Evening News from Kingston, Jamaica, says that Santiago de Cuba is blockaded, that the Cubans captured Manzanillo, and that 3,000 Americans have landed on the southern coast of Cuba under the Cuban Gen. Lacret.

IN EVENT OF WAR

Hawaiian Islands May Be Put Under the Protection of the American Flag.

England Favors This Course Rather Than Permit Another Power to Control Her Line of Communication With Australia.

NEW YORK, May 2.—A special to the Press from Washington says:

When President Dole, of Hawaii, left this country recently after his visit to aid in the annexation proceedings before congress he carried with him the draft of a bill which promises to make history. It is for passage by the Hawaiian congress and provides, in the event of a war in which the United States may need the Hawaiian islands for a base of supplies, that the islands shall be put under the protection of the American flag.

It was prepared with the knowledge of members of the senate committee on foreign relations and had the approval of the administration in certain conditions, one condition that it should not be submitted to the Hawaiian congress unless there was a war. When President Dole left this country war with Spain had not been declared, but was deemed probable.

No conditions are to be imposed on the United States should the American flag be raised over the islands. If a consideration was named, an appropriation would be required which would need congress' action and probably cause complications. A majority in the senate and house are in favor of the annexation of Hawaii, and the project has failed so far only two-thirds vote in the upper body. In an emergency the president can exercise what is known as the "war power."

He can accept the privilege granted by the Hawaiian government for a base of supplies in the Pacific ocean, and to guard the islands completely the flag of the United States would be raised as a barrier against which foreign meddling would not be permitted. It would not surprise well known legislators to hear by the next steamer from Honolulu either a confirmation or strong indication of the fulfillment of this important news.

The operations of Commodore Dewey in the Philippine Islands are significant in connection with the expected establishment of a protectorate or sovereignty over Hawaii.

The Hawaiian Islands are on a line drawn from the Philippines slightly northward to San Francisco. From the Philippines to Honolulu the distance is more than 4,000 miles. From Honolulu to San Francisco it is 2,100 miles. The necessities of the United States demand this resting place. British necessities are so great in commerce that if the United States does not control this Pacific station Great Britain must in self-protection assume control.

Honolulu promises to become the resort of a tremendous fleet of ocean steamers, mostly British. All collier ships have to stop there, and the present Hawaiian government will not be able to maintain proper police and sanitary conditions. The expectation in the English foreign office is that the United States will respond to Hawaii's invitation.

England favors this course rather than to permit another power to control her line of communications with Australia. The British ministry has assured the state department that it views with favor Hawaiian occupation by America.

Spain Will Not Resort to Privateering.

NEW YORK, May 2.—It is stated on high authority, says the Madrid correspondent of the Herald, that the Spanish government's reservation of its right to issue letters of markque does not necessarily imply that she will have recourse to privateering. The government, indeed, has no intention at present of doing so. She has simply reserved the right should circumstances such as the destruction of the Spanish fleet, compel her taking such a course.

Minister Woodford Leaves for Home.

PARIS, May 2.—Gen. Woodford, United States minister to Spain, sailed from Havre Saturday on La Touraine for New York. Before his departure he said that Italy and Austria are the only two countries now holding communications regarding the future of Spain. There is not at present, he added, any movement for peace.

Nothing Reliable From Manila Before Monday.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—There was no possibility of hearing from Manila Saturday. The navy department says it will be Monday or later before reliable news comes.

The Paris Arrives at New York.

NEW YORK, May 2.—The United States auxiliary cruiser Yale, formerly the American line steamship Paris, eluded the spanish war ships and arrived at her dock Saturday morning with her 150 passengers. She was sighted off Fire island at 9:47 o'clock Saturday morning. The liner, about which such deep anxiety has been felt, sailed from Southampton one week ago Friday at 4 p. m. She was in command of Capt. Watkins, and carried, besides her passengers, a cargo made up mostly of munitions of war for the United States navy.

THE AMENDMENTS

To the War Revenue Bill Voted Down in the House on Friday—The Vote Was 181 Yeas to 131 Nays.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—The House Friday passed the war revenue bill, with only the amendments agreed upon by the republican members of the ways and means committee added. In order to accomplish this a parliamentary maneuver was necessary, as the whole time for amendments was exhausted by the minority trying to amend the bond feature of the bill. Mr. Dingley offered as a substitute an entirely new bill containing these elements after the bill had been reported back to the house. This was an old parliamentary trick frequently resorted to years ago. The Morrill tariff law was passed in this way in its original form after it had been loaded down with amendments in committee of the whole. Many amendments were offered to the bond feature of the bill ranging from a proposition for the substitution of an income tax provision to an authorization for an issue of $150,000,000 greenbacks. But all were voted down. At the last minute the democrats decided to offer the motion to recommit with instructions to report back the income tax proposition as an amendment to the bill instead as of a substitute for the bond provision. This was due to the fact that a number of democrats had declined to vote to strike out the bond provision. The motion was defeated [illegible]. Four republicans voted with the democrats and populists on this vote. But on the final passage of the bill (which was carried 181-131) the democrats and populists with six exceptions, voted solidly against the bill. The democrats who voted for the bill were Messrs. Cummings, McClellan and Griggs, of New York; Fitzgerald (Mass.); McAleer (Pa.) and Wheeler (Ala.). Two republicans, Messrs. Linney (N.C.) and Thorp (Va.), voted with the opposition. Quite a number of democrats declined to vote.

Three sets of officers who will be prominent in the organization and mobilization of the volunteer army, have now been appointed, viz: The mustering officers, who will swear the volunteers into the service of the government, the surgeons will examine them, and the quartermasters, whose business it will be to attend to the issuance of camp equipage, arms, etc., and to provide for their transportation. The preliminary steps therefore are well under way for the organization and equipment of the 125,000 men called for by the president. It was expected that by Friday some of the state troops might possibly have been formally sworn into the service of the United States, but at the close of office hours it was stated that no reports showing this to have been accomplished had been received. In most instances, however, the mustering officers have to travel considerable distances to reach the states where they are to perform their duties, which will delay for some time the enlistment of the guards as soldiers of the United States. A few additional changes of appointment of troops to the states were made Friday, but as far as practicable the war department officials are adhering to their first decision not to increase.

The rendezvousing points in half a dozen states were changed because of representations that have been made that these were for the best interests of the service. Secretary Alger was very busy considering the many applications in the volunteer army that have been filed with the department, and it is expected by Monday of next week a list of nominations for these will be sent to the senate.

Gen. Miles and his assistants were in conference at various times during the day respecting military operations that are to be undertaken in the occupation of Cuba. They all maintain the strictest reticence concerning the result of these deliberations and have adopted the policy of making nothing public regarding them, even the regular army movements are not divulged and none of the officers would confirm the reports published Friday that the infantry at New Orleans and some of the troops at Chickamauga are to proceed without delay to Tampa. Gen. Shafter, who commands the brigade at New Orleans, left Friday night, accompanied by his adjutant, Col. Babcock. The Cuban representatives in New York were at Gen. Miles' headquarters Friday, and were consulted in regard to various steps which would arise in connection with the co-operation of United States troops with the insurgent forces in Cuba.

The military department has depots of supplies at New Orleans, Mobile, Tampa and Chickamauga, adequate it is said for the immediate means of the secretary.

Gen. Greely, the signal officer of the army, has recommended the formation of an independent regiment of signal men.

Paris Sighted Off Fire Island.

NEW YORK, April 30.—At 2:47 a. m. the American liner Paris was sighted east of Fire island.

The vessel has been rechristened the Yale and will be transformed into an auxiliary cruiser. She left Southampton April 22 at 2:15 p. m., and the next day was reported to have been captured by a Spanish war ship. She proved the prediction of Capt. Wm. Angell, that she would show her heels to any cruiser afloat.

The Parrot Saved Their Lives.

AKRON, O., April 30.—Fire early Friday morning in the J. K. Simmons block on Howard street damaged D. Forbstein's tobacco store $10,000 and spreading to the Masonic temple did $12,000 damage to lodge rooms. The public library was slightly scorched. A parrot owned by J. H. Todd gave the alarm and he and his wife narrowly escaped.

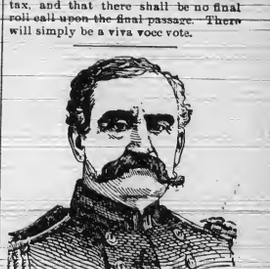
Mr. Bland's Amendment Defeated.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Mr. Bland's amendment to issue $150,000,000 of greenbacks was defeated by a vote of 106 to 147.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

Every Endeavor Being Made to Organize Them Into an Army.

Tax on Chewing Gum Reduced—Tax on Beer is Extended to Cover Beer "Stored"—A Tax on All Pay Telephone Messages.



WASHINGTON, April 29.—Every endeavor is being put forward by the war department to organize the volunteer army and increase the regular army to its full war strength, measures which require a large amount of detailed and laborious work. It is the confident expectation of the officials that rapid progress will be made with this work, and that in the course of several weeks affairs will have so shaped themselves that the volunteers and regulars will be in fairly good organized condition—almost if not ready for their mobilization at the more central points prior to their active work in the field. Notwithstanding that the apportionment of troops among the states and the designation of their rendezvous were made after careful consideration, efforts to have them changed are still being made and Secretary Alger and Adjt. Gen. Corbin were Thursday again busy considering applications in this direction.

The republican members of the ways and means committee held a meeting Thursday at which [illegible] ments to the war revenue bill were agreed to. These will be offered in the house Friday. Many of them were mere verbal amendments, but there were some of considerable importance. One of these exempts mutual and co-operative life insurance companies from taxation. The tax on insurance companies is transferred from the policies to the premiums. In this the amendment conforms to the law of 1866. The tax on marine, inland and fire insurance policies is extended to cover employers' liability associations, title insurance companies, glass and all other special insurance companies, of which many classes have grown up in the past few years.

Railroad telegraphic messages and all other leased wire messages are exempted by an amendment limiting the tax to messages on which the companies charged are to be paid or to be collected."

The tax on chewing gum is reduced from one cent on a five-cent package to one-quarter of a cent. The tax on beer is extended to include beer "stored." The amendment was deemed necessary to cover beer in storage. The license of dealers in leaf tobacco is reduced from $24 to $12 on those whose sales do not exceed $10,000 per annum, and from $48 to $24 on dealers whose sales exceed that amount. The most important amendment was one which levies a tax of one cent on all pay telephone messages costing below 25 cents. The original provision exempted messages for a distance below 30 miles. Mr. Tawney, of Minnesota, estimates that this amendment, which will cover all city and suburban business, will raise $5,000,000.

There have been some conferences between the republican and democratic leaders on the question of the final vote on the war revenue bill. If some of the democrats should vote against the bill on its final passage on account of the bond provision, it is feared that their action might be misunderstood abroad where it is important that a solid front be presented. It seems likely now, therefore, that the opposition will content itself with a record vote on the proposition to strike out the bond and substitute the income tax, and that there shall be no final roll call upon the final passage. There will simply be a viva voce vote.

REAR ADMIRAL BUNCE.
(Commandant of the Navy Yard at Brooklyn, N. Y.)

Terror Collides With the Hornet.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 29.—While cruising off Matanzas Wednesday night the Terror and the Hornet collided. Both ships had their lights out. In the darkness the Terror struck the smaller vessel amidships. The commander of the monitor thought he had rammed the Hornet and kept right ahead, for fear that if he reversed his engines he might put out his ram and cause the Hornet to sink. He commanded the crew of the Hornet to jump aboard the monitor. All but the engineers' crews obeyed. The latter being below, saw that no harm was done and stuck to the ship. The Hornet finally swung free. She was not damaged.

After American Merchant Vessels.

LONDON, April 29.—It is reported in Madrid, says a special dispatch Thursday afternoon from the Spanish capital, that a Spanish squadron of nine war ships, sailed from Manila on Monday last, to take up positions off Subig bay where they will await the passage of American merchant vessels, for the purpose of capturing them.

Richwood.

May 2.—The many friends of the Hon. Reuben Conner will be sorry to hear of his illness At this writing there seems to be a change for the better.

Quite a number of lovers of good literature and music attended Prof. Cook's entertainment at Beaver, last Friday night, and gave a glowing account of the musical talent and literary qualifications of Prof. Cook's pupils.

Mrs. Mary Dixon, wife of Henry Dixon, died on the 27th ult., aged 66 years. Mrs. Dixon's maiden name was Carpenter, being a daughter of Jeremiah Carpenter. She was married to Mr. Dixon over 50 years ago, and lived in this neighborhood most all of that time where she had a host of friends, both young and old. Her funeral services took place Friday at the Hopeful Lutheran Church, of which she was a member for a number of years. She leaves a husband, four daughters—Mrs. W. H. Smith, Mrs. Ben Surface, Mrs. James Dobins, Mrs. E. Hografe, and two sons, Everett and William.

Union.

H. G. Blanton, of Erlanger, was shaking hands with friends here, Sunday.

Mrs. Philip Fall spent several days visiting friends in Covington last week.

Mrs. Elizabeth Huey and Mrs. Dr. Cronch were visiting in Bullittsville, last week.

Miss Alma Baker, of Covington, spent Saturday and Sunday with Miss Nanuie Bristow.

Mr. and Mrs. S. L. Webb, of Erlanger, were the guests of James A. Huey and wife, Sunday.

Mr. Jack Gibson thinks the war will be cut short if our Flying Squadron can get a whack at Spain's ships.

Mrs. Harriet Taliaferro, J. L. Frazier, H. W. Riley and Harry Riley have been on the sick list, the past week.

In a difficulty between Tobe Marshall and Lee Adams on Gunpowder, last Saturday night, Lee was knocked senseless by a blow on the head with a stick.

Mr. Jeff Utz, of Hathaway, was shopping in Union, one day last week, and we were sorry to find him so reduced in flesh and having such a tough time with rheumatism.

Earnest Clements talked about wanting to enlist and go to war sometime ago, and Friday packed his grip and pulled out for the south, where he hopes to enlist and be a soldier boy.

Messrs. J. M. Wilson, Wm. Wilson and C. T. Rice were called upon to purchase wall paper and have it put on this week as their share in house cleaning, and yet they think it a hardship.

Mrs. J. W. Kennedy has under course of construction a lovely quilt; it has either 26 squares and 26 pieces to the square or 126 squares and 126 pieces to the square. I was told, but can not remember exactly.

Mrs. W. M. Rachal gave a picnic on the lawn at Sardis Saturday evening in honor of her Sunday School class. Cake and sherbet were served after games of various kinds had been enjoyed, and the young folks were delighted.

At the next regular meetiug at the Baptist church, which is the 2d Saturday in May, a deacon will be ordained and all day services will be held, with a basket dinner at the hall. All members are requested to be present and help make the occasion one of unusual pleasure.

The religious editor of the Blade says if he thought the Richwood cor. was in earnest about one Mr. Whitson going around Union on his account it would be in order for him to say that the average Florence man would steer clear of religion in any shape, but knowing he was joking, he wont say it.

House cleaning is in order now. The whitewasher's voice is heard in the land and the paper hanger and painter looks not in vain for a job. The average housekeeper would enjoy cleaning house if she could visit in New York while it was being done and return to find every thing in apple-pie order.

Walton.

May 2.—The voice of the Whippowill is heard in the land, and planting of beans, corn and other seeds easily affected by frost may be pushed to a finish. There is little, if any, danger of frost after the notes of this harbinger of sure enough spring weather is heard.

The town has only furnished one volunteer, but he was esteemed a prize by an Ol io and Kentucky examiner. Some time ago Eugene P. Demolsy, 19, went to the city determined to join a regiment that would be likely to bear a part in the military matinees about to occur in this Western Hemisphere. At Cincinnati he was examined for U. S. N. G., and the surgeon pronounced him the best applicant of 650 whom he had received. The Ohio companies were so full that Eugene was fearful of his not getting in, went over to Covington and enlisted with Capt. Sherrer of the Second Ky. Infantry. Here the examining surgeon said, "Young man you are of the kind we want as you fill the bill in every particular and have the best chest and lungs I have ever tested." A. M. Ewards, his uncle, was also seized with the war fever and loudly proclaimed his intention of going, but his atty., W. W. Dickerson, said no that he must stay at home until his legal matters were settled up, and so Dolph will curb his military ardor and remain here. Some of his enemies say that because his brother S. L. is drawing a pension he is envious and wants one also. Thus do evil minded persons dampen the blaze of patriotic heart burnings.

It seems as if everybody who can afford it is brightening up with paint and whitwash. The Deposit Bank has received a very artistic finish at the hands of Joe Reed. T. F. Curley, the Watson Bros., and Eliza Gorman have greatly improved the appearance of their places of business — Gorman's particularly. The streets and sidewalks are in "statue quo," that is to say in the same miserable condition they have been in for lo! these many years.

Many of your readers would like for you to publish the game law. It has never been enforced in this precinct, and the time is close at hand when our birds will need protection. There are some parties who make a business of trapping song birds and capturing their young. Squirrel trees are also marked and preparation made for capturing their young, all of which it is thought will be an infraction of the game laws against the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth.—[Will next week.—ED.]

Bullittsville.

May 2.—We have nothing startling to relate in this communication. The farmers are busy with their planting and the ladies with their spring cleaning.

Miss Bernice Duncan and Miss Zayda Gaines spent Friday night with Mr. and Mrs. Porter in their beautiful home in Covington, and attended a social given by the First Baptist church. They report a royal time.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. T. Gaines entertained several of their friends at dinner on Sunday. Your correspondent had the good fortune to be one of the list. They have two lovely daughters just budding into womanhood and they are most delightful entertainers.

The war fever is returning to a normal state in our midst. Only two of our citizens have awakened sufficient patriotism within their breast to induce them to offer their services to Uncle Sam in his heroic effort to help an oppressed people. I have been told that Messrs. Lee Pepper and William Estes [illegible] tendered their [illegible] government and have been enrolled.

Miss Zayda Gaines has her friend Miss Katherine Coolidge, of Avondale, visiting her. Miss Coolidge has other friends besides Miss Zayda around here. In fact every one who has had the privilege of meeting her is her friend. She has a wonderful gift in making herself agreeable and attractive to all who approach her. She is very beautiful and possesses one of the sweetest and highest cultivated voices it has ever been our privilege to listen to It is as soft and clear, as the sound of a silver bell.

Your correspondent had the good fortune to dispose of two horses last week. One was his pacing mare, Trilby, and the other a roan gelding owned by Jas. T. Grant. He secured in part payment for Trilby a type writing machine which is developing into quite an elephant upon his hands After racking his brain as to the best disposition to make of the machine he concluded that if he could secure an acceptable type writer he could do his own printing in his family. The latest returns indicate that he has not succeeded in finding any one that desires the position.

The Executive Board of the North Bend Association held a most delightful meeting with the Bullittsburg Baptist Church, two days last week. Bros. G. J. Jones and R. F. Swindler delivered very able addresses, Tuesday, upon "The Missions of the Churches of Christ." Wednesday, Dr. S. M. Adams read a very interesting paper on the spirit of missions, "Its identity with the Spirit of Christ." After which Bro. T. L. Utz stepped to the front of the rostrum and gave the audience the pleasure of listening to one of his interesting and characteristic talks upon the "Cultivation and growth in Spirit of Missions, in Ministers and Churches and its Chrystallization into action." All present coucede that Bro. Utz outdid himself in this effort. He makes no pretentions at wonderful flights in oratory, but he has the happy faculty of impressing those who hear him with his earnestness and zeal in the cause he has espoused. Language is inadequate to do justice in describing the dinner furnished by the ladies of the church each day, hence I shall not make the attempt. The visitors from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Porter, and Mr. Alexander, of Covington.

Your correspondent had the pleasure of spending Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Porter at the home of Esquire Clinton Gaines, and has devoted the greater portion of his time since in singing their praises.

Limaburg.

A. F. Crigler is quite feeble at present.

James W. and Legrand Utz entertained a large number of young people last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Delph are improving slowly.

James M. Utz finished planting garden on the 2d inst.

Some of the ladies have planted a deal of garden truck.

Mrs. Jeptha Tauner was visiting Mrs. Mary E. Crigler, Saturday.

Farmers about here are under full headway planting corn. Some are done.

James Crisler, of Gunpowder, passed through, here the other day, enroute to Uncle Joe Brown's. Jim looks as though the fine spring weather is having a good effect on him.

Hathaway.

May 2.—The whip-poor-will's song is heard.

R. L. Huey is done planting corn.

Several fine young colts in this neighborhood.

Mrs Emily Presser went to the city one day last week.

Miss Essie Boggess was on the sick list several days last week.

W. L. Stepheus and wife spent last Sunday with his parents of Buffalo.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley filled his regular appointment last Saturday and Sunday.

Raymond Smith was the guest of Cage Stephens last Saturday and Sunday.

Jno. McAtee is at home from the Louisville Seminary at which place he has been studying for the ministry.

Joe Kifer and wife and Will Turley and wife, of Gallatin county, were visiting John D McNeely, last Friday and Saturday.

Rev. Riteman, of the German, Baptist church, of Louisville, visited Big Bone church, last Sunday, and gave a very impressive talk upon the condition of his church and asked aid.

The angel of death has come into our midst, and has taken one of our beloved neighbors, Miss Harriet Wood's. She died after a lingering illness, of that dreadful disease, consumption. She was an earnest believer in the Lord Jesus Christ. There was grief and weeping and achiug hearts in her home. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. S. M. Adams, Sunday, April 24th, at her grandfather's, Robt. Wood's after which the remains were interred in the Linden Grove cemetery.

Gunpowder.

May 2.—Corn planting is the watchword with the farmers at this time.

Mr. Daniel Clegg, of Cincinnati, is the guest of his son, Ed, of Pleasant Hill.

Rouse Bros., are busy hauling logs. It is no uncommon thing to hear Spinner at all hours of the day or night hauling logs.

Busby & Kirkpatrick are progressing nicely with their combined farming and blacksmithing, Lee in the shop and Will on the farm.

W. N. Surface has taken up his old trades, that of hauling hay to market, having made three trips to the city last week, two with hay.

What has become of the wool buyers? None have made their appearance in this neighborhood. If they have they have been very quiet.

J. M. Utz is preparing to build a corn crib on the Corbin farm. His excuse for building is that the timber blew down and he does not know what else to do with it.

L. H. Blankenbeker has bought and is feeding a nice lot of Yorkers. The cause of his making this venture was that the rats are destroying his corn, so he says, but I think the force of habit had something to do with him, it being customary for E. H. to be employed all the time.

Sunday evening was the time appointed to reorganize the Sunday School at Hopeful church, and the following officers were elected: Supt Rev. Leutz; Asst-Supt., J. S. Surface; Secty., H. L. Tanner; Treasurer, Homer Macmander; Chorister, Ezra K. Tanner; Organist, Leila V. Floyd. Now, that the school is organized again with good officers, let as many of the young folks as can, attend; and with the older ones for leaders, make a good Sunday School. May it be successful in its undertaking.

Gasburg.

May 2.—Corn planting is progressing rapidly.

Eugene Witham's children have been seriously sick for some time.

Preparations are being made for a large acreage of melons and sweet potatoes.

Clifford Terrill has gone to Mobile, Alabama, to visit his kindsman, Dr. J. D. Terrill.

Tobacco plants are plentiful, and some will be large enough to set in a few days.

Communication with the Bellevue country is again suspended on account of high water.

Fruit of all kinds will be plentiful, excepting apples. They will make a very light crop.

The enumeration of this district shows fifty three scholars, being an increase of one from last year.

Paris Parker and Ethel Terrill, of this vicinity, will graduate from the Aurora High School, next month.

Verona.

May 2.—Rev. Dr. Adams, of Walton, preached at New Bethel, Sunday.

Farmers very busy planting corn.

Mrs. Margaret Kennedy is very poorly at this writing.

Prospects for a good wheat crop are very flattering at present.

Jacob Showers came home, last Saturday, to see his family.

N. B. Hamilton is one of the early birds who has planted corn.

Aunt Peggy Sleet, who is in her 98th year, has been very poorly the past week.

The writer had the pleasure of entertaining Bro. Adams, of Walton, last Sunday.

Judge Roberts has improved the looks of his place here by building a new wire fence.

War with Spain is all the talk here that is calculated to disturb the quietude of our community.

Miss Rose Adams, of Hamilton, was the pleasant guest of J. G. Kennedy and family, Saturday and Sunday.

Pt. Pleasant.

May 2.—Virgie Gottleib, of Ludlow, was the guest of Miss Lula Souther, Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Edna Cowen, of Burlington, was the guest of Miss Mary Riddell last week

Born to Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Riggs, of Rushville, Ind., on the 29th inst., a daughter.

E. S. Mathews recently made a sojourn to Long Branch, (Ky.)

Miss Lilla Dolwick spent Sunday with Miss Grace Russell.

Miss Josephine McNeal is the guest of Frank Russell.

Rev. G. W. Watkins filled his appointment at Florence, Sunday.

Glad to announce that the Sunday school of the Lutheran church is very large this spring.

Our prayer meeting meets every Tuesday night Let every one attend. It will do you good.

Misses Carrie Clore, Dora Hafer, Grace Bullock and Clara Hossman, were the pleasant guests of Miss Bessie Crigler, Saturday afternoon and Sunday. They spent a very pleasant time swinging and playing charades.

Florence

May 2.—Mrs. Richardson, whose death occurred on Friday, was burried at the Florence cemetery, Sunday.

Mrs. L. C. Yager, of Covington, who was the guest of Mrs. W. P. Carpenter, has returned home, accompanied by her mother and sister-in-law, Mrs. Yager, of Florence, and Mrs. Castleman, of Glencoe.

Married—Louise Barbara Oelsner to Martin H. Cahill, Wednesday, April 27th, at St. John's Orphanage. Miss Louise looked lovely in her bridal robe of white Tafeta silk, with garniture of mousselin de soi pico ribbon and pearl pasmenterie. The attendants were Miss Mary Cahill and Mr. John Rich.

Among the many elegant presents were a handsome onyx clock, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Oelsner; silver berry bowl, John Rich; dozen silver knives and forks, Mr. and Mrs. Rich; silver butter dish, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hals; three lovely banquet lamps from friends at Florence and Covington; some service china and a great many other household dainties, too [illegible] if we [illegible] to mention. Beaver.

May 2.—Wm. Rogers, of Walton, was in town last week, on business.

As the war progresses we can find fewer and fewer of those who are anxious to engage in the fun.

Prof. Cook closed his school with an entertainment, last Friday night, but as the honor of writing it up was delegated to another, we say no more lest there be a mixture.

News around here is like froghair—rather scarce, and only for the carelessness of some of our young people we would have but little to write. William Worth says, "True love is a beautiful insanity," and certainly the young man who wrote the following letter must have been most beautifully insane. (We omit the heading and the salutation.) "I hope that you are happy in your palatial home, and that you will brighten it and bless it by being and doing everything that becometh a daughter in whom the soul of the parent delighteth. I hope much to see your petite figure flitting about our street and our hearth-stone when the blossoms come again. Come, my dear, and be one of the rare exotics whose beauty and perfume shall help to make delicious the closing days of our school year, which days will be the last week of the month of showers. While it is true that the redeemed are represented as those who go up through great tribulation, yet I could ever wish thee couch of flimy down: as drink the nectar of the sweet angels food; as airs the geutlest zephyrs that play about the velvet cheek of dimpled cherubim." If we can succeed in getting hold of the answer, you may expect it in the sacharine future.

Dennis-Myers Nuptials.

Married.—Rev. W. K. Dennis and Miss Jenuie Myers, April 27th, 1898, at the Florence M. E. Church, Rev. G. W. Buffington officiating.

We read the above notice with feelings akin to awe. Having been present at the wedding I will venture to tell those of you who were less fortunate all about it. All around, it was a beautiful wedding. The church was tastefully decorated by loving hands—showing in this act, how dearly loved is our pastor and his charming bride. A house crowded to over-flowing was also a token of the respect and appreciation for the happy couple. At 5 o'clock p. m., the doors were thrown wide and as the beautiful stralus of "Mendiessohn's Wedding March" made the air musical with its harmony, our dear brother and sister wended their way to the altar to take their solemn vows. Standing before the flower-wreathed chaucel in the presence of God they vowed eternal affection and fidelity. Upon leaving the church Mr. and Mrs. Dennis entered the waiting carriage which conveyed them to Cincinnati, followed by good wishes for future happiness from all.

Dearest Jenuie — playmate of my childhood, confident of my girlhood and a dear good friend of the present, may your days always be as bright as the noonday sun; and to him who has taken our darling to be the companion of his life, may much happiness be his to combined with rich successes in God's service, and may you both be ever blest both in this world and the world to come, is the prayer of

"TETTE."

Dewey's victory over the Spaniards will be far reaching in its effects, besides showing to the world that our navy knows a thing or two about fighting. The victory is so complete as to bring praise to the brave commodore from all the world except Spain.

State of Kentucky, Boone County Court, regular term 7th day of March, 1898, Hon. C. C. Roberts Judge, presiding:

Wheresa, seventy-five of the legal voters of the Bellevue voting precinct of Boone county, State of Kentucky, having on March 5th, 1898, lodged and filed with me as County Judge of said County, a petition asking for an order of election in said voting precinct, to be held on Saturday the 7th day of May, 1898, upon the question as to whether or not the prohibition and local option laws now in force in said precinct shall become inoperative, and said seventy-five being more than 25 per cent. of the legal voters in said voting precinct at the general election held last November. Therefore, an election is now ordered and directed by C. C. Roberts, Judge of the Boone County Court, to be held on the 7th day of May, 1898, in the said Bellevue voting precinct, on the question as to whether or not the prohibition and local option laws now in force in said precinct shall become inoperative, and Elmer Beall, Sheriff of Boone County, and John Moody and Ben A. Kirtley, Judges, and Cyrus Kelly as clerk of election in said voting precinct are ordered to open the polls at the regular voting place in said precinct on said 7th day of May, 1898, and conduct said election according to law, and take the vote on the question for and against the prohibition and local option laws now in force in said precinct shall become inoperative, and said sheriff will duly advertise the time and place of said election under the provisions of Section 2555 of Kentucky Statutes.

To those who may be contemplating breeding to a Jack, will say that I bred to Don Carlos, this Jack of Mr. J. E. Rouse, for six years, and consider him a good breeder of mules, his colts selling for as much money as any Jack's of this country. I have on hand now mules of all ages by him. Of course the better the mare the better the mule or colt by him. There are but few, if any, better bred Jacks than Don Carlos.

It is with deep regret that we announce the death of our uncle, John E. Walton, at Erlanger, Ky., on Monday. He had been suffering with Bright's disease for several years, which with his advanced age, almost 80 years, had caused him to be quite feeble. Deceased was a native of this county, being born near Germantown and moved in early manhood to Boone county, where he lived the remainder of his life. He had been successful in business affairs and leaves a competency to his wife and seven children who survive him. He was a good citizen and will be remembered by many of the older citizens around Germantown.—Bracken Chronicle.

PERSONAL MENTION.

J. C. Revill was in Cincinnati, last Thursday.

Atty. P. E. Cason has been on the sick list for several days.

Dr. W. H. Blanton and wife are citizens of Erlanger again.

J. O. Huey and wife, of Erlanger, were visiting Watt Brown and wife, last Sunday.

James M. Conner, of Cincinnati, was meeting many of his old friends here last Monday.

J. C. Clore returned from Florida, last Saturday, and appears to be enjoying robust health.

Mrs. Dr. Crouch and Mrs. Elizabeth Huey, of Union, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gaines, Friday.

O. J. Ryle spent several days last week in the Hathaway neighborhood, disceminating the war spirit.

Messrs. Elbert Rice and Park Gilmore, of Covington, were calling on young lady friends in Burlington, Sunday.

Mrs. Lottie Davenniville, of Newport, was visiting her mother and sisters at this place, two or three days last week.

A. W. Smith and wife, of the Verona neighborhood, were visiting his father, Dr. J. F. Smith, last Saturday and Sunday.

S. C. Johnson, of Walton, attended court, Monday. He is among the few farmers in this county who are done planting corn.

Wash Gedge, who is with Jos. Deiterman, manufacturer of furniture, &c, in Covington, was in town, Monday, in the interest of his house.

Chas. A. Gaines, of Utzinger, was in town Monday, seemingly entirely recovered from rheumatism with which he has had a serious time this winter.

W. J. Rouse, editor of the Monroe City (Mo.) Democrat, and a nephew of Noah, W. H. and James M. Barlow, is visiting his relations in this county. He is a very pleasant young gentleman.

Arthur Rouse, Esq., of Burlington, on his way home from the Law School at Louisville, stopped en route to visit his friends, the family of Capt. John Butts, spending Sunday and Monday here.—Carrollton Democrat.

B. L. Rice is now one of the firm of W. B. Clark & Co., who have control of the Banner stock yards, 15th and Russell streets, Covington. They handle all kinds of stock and vehicles which are sold at public auction or private sale.

J. M. Lassing, Chas. Schramm and the writer had a very pleasant visit to Chattanooga, last Sunday, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Y. Chapin lost no opportunity to make their brief sojourn in their city exceedingly pleasant. Mr. and Mrs. Chapin, with their two interesting children, occupy a beautiful home on the most popular residence avenue in the city, and they are never more contented than when entertaining their friends. We may have more to say next week in regard to our visit.

Cuba

Is 760 miles in length and from 20 to 135 miles in width.

Has over 200 good ports.

Was discovered by Columbus in 1492.

Has 200 rivers, but one of which, the Canto, is navigable.

Is 130 miles from the cost of Florida and 4,000 miles from Spain.

About four-fifths of the island consists of low lands.

Most all metals and minerals applicable to industry are found on the island.

The average temperature of the hottest month in Havana is 82 degrees and of the coldest 72 degrees.

As far as known it has had but one snow since its discovery, on Christmas day, 1856.

There are but two seasons there, the wet and the dry. The rainy season begins in May and ends in November. During this time the rain falls in torrents nearly every day.

The wild dog is the largest native animal on the island.

The inhabitants are mostly of Spanish and African descent.

The largest city is Havana with a population of 250,000.

The chief industries are tobacco and sugar raising.

COUNTY COURT.

The following business was transacted by the county court, Monday:

A. A. Murat and J. N. Dickerson each qualified as notary public.

W. C. Weaver was appointed as administrator of J. F. Weaver.

R. C. Tilly filed a petition signed by more than 25 per cent. of the legal voters, asking the Court to order a vote taken on the local option law in the town of Petersburg.

The following shows to what amount of road money each voting precinct in the county is entitled, and each road precinct is entitled to one-foruth of the amount apportioned its voting precinct, except in Burlington, where each road precinct is entitled to one-fifth:

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, April 29th, 1898.

Complaints of tardiness on the part of the administration in pushing the war against Spain are growing louder each day, as indications increase that the administration is expecting a very long war, instead of a very short one. The speech of Representative Dingley, who probably voiced the sentiments of Mr. McKinley on the bill to provide war revenues for the government, which has just passed the House, indicated his belief that war would last for years. He could not be properly answered, because nobody cared to get up and say things they knew to be true that would be construed by Spain and Europe as meaning that there was a division of sentiment among Americans as to this war. The same feeling has prevented public criticism of the remarkable state of unreadiness in which the War Department was found to be when Mr. McKinley finally gave up his jack o'lantern hope of securing the freedom of Cuba through peaceful negotiations. The people do not want a long war, and do not believe that there is any occasion for one. Fitz Lee, who is good military authority, and who has carefully been over the ground has said with 20,000 men and the cooperation of the navy Havana could be taken in 15 days. That many troops, three-fourths of them regulars, could be landed in Cuba in 48 hours after an order was issued, and the navy is already there. But there is no such order. Instead, there is a lot of talk about the necessity of the 125,000 volunteers just called out remaining several months in camps of instruction, and of the probability of the Spaniards being allowed to remain in Cuba until fall, unless the insurgent army can drive them out, or the blockade starves them out. Mr. McKinley calls this a war for humanity, but a continuation of the blockade of Cuban ports without capturing them will result in starving as many women and children to death as Butcher Weyler's policy did. The Spanish army in Cuba isn't suffering for food—they prepared for the blockade—but non-combatants are.

Under the law for the reorganization of the regular army, which went into effect this week, the total will at once be enlisted up to 60,000 men, and the war-pay of privates and non-commissioned officers will be increased 20 per cent.

One of the strongest points in our system of government is emphasized by the present situation in Washington. In the State, War and Navy Department buildings, in which are located the fighting branches of the government, the hurry and bustle of war is seen on every hand, while the other department buildings, in which business relating to the industrial and commercial progress of the country, such as the management of our great postal system, the granting of patents, looking after public lands, &c, is going on just as though there never was such a thing as a war, and so they will continue to go whether the war lasts three weeks or three months. The fighting branches of the government will attend to the war without encroaching upon the business of the other branches.

In announcing by proclamation the principles upon which he will wage the war, which Congress has authorized, Mr. McKinley has certainly carried mild treatment of Spanish interests to an unnecessary extreme—an extreme that will wipe out the expectations of prize-money entertained by the brave sailors that man Admiral Sampson's blockading squadron, by releasing nearly, if not all af the Spanish vessels they have captured since the blockade was established. This proclamation gives all Spanish merchant vessels in American ports or bound to or from American ports immunity from capture until May 21, inclusive. It would be possible to make some nations surrender by treating them and their interests with consideration, but Spain is certainly not one of them. What Mr. McKinley doubtless intended to be an act of extraordinary generosity and forbearance will be charged to his fear of them by the ignorant Spanish. There is only one way to deal with a Spaniard—fight him and lick him; then he will be ready to entertain the idea of a foe displaying magnanimity toward him.

Republicans in their absurd attempt to monopolize all the patriotism are charging that because some Democrats oppose the issue of $500,000,000 in bonds provided for in the war revenue bill the House has passed they are opposed to giving the administration all the money it will need to conduct the war. Nothing could be further from the truth. There is not a Democrat in either branch of Congress who is not in favor of votiug all the money that may be needed to vigorously fight the war to a successful conclusion. That many of them agree with the populists and silver Republicans in believing an issue of bonds to be unnecessary, and that it would be better to raise the money by an income tax and other ways of direct taxation, is true. The bond issue is likely to be fully discussed in the Senate, and, although it will probably not be made a party question by the Democratic Senators, it will not be surprising if most of them vote against bonds, unless the nature of the war news changes their present opinions.

Judge Roberts lead a fishing party that visited Gunpowder, last Friday, to concentrate what fish there is in the stream.

[COMMUNICATED.]

Dedicated to the Soldiers and Sailors of the United States engaged in the war with Spain.

Cuba rebelled again against Old Spain in 1895,
And declared for "Independence or death,"
Against the whole Spanish nation.
Hurrah, for Cuban liberty and the natural rights of man!
Spain, the time has come and you must account
For the blood of our sailors, citizens and the Maine.
The noble Campos in command of the Spanish forces,
Could make no headway against the the patriot bands
In their defensive warfare for their native land.
Hurrah, &c.—
Then came the vicious murderer Weyler,
A demon incarnate in human shape,
Possessed of all the known Spanish traits.
Hurrah, &c.—
For two long years or more the devil,
Under Weyler's rule, using him as a tool
Spread death and devastation on fair Cuba's soil.
Hurrah, &c.—
Peaceable intervention was to Spain mentioned,
By our Ex-President, Grover Cleveland
Which was then contemptuously rejected by Spanish imbecility:
Hurrah, &c.—
While the brave old Gomez, with his patriot bands,
Were being attacked by superior forces on every hand,
Was against great odds holding their own and making good stands.
Hurrah, &c.—
After President McKinley took office in the year 1897,
He intimated to Spain, the barbarous cruelties must cease
And Cuba be given a stable government with peace.
Hurrah, &c.—
Weyler was recalled in apparently official disgrace,
And the good Blanco was given his place,
With the evil appointees of Weyler holding on.
Hurrah, &c.—
We had Lee and other true men at places in Cuba,
Occupied by the Spanish, Civil and Military forces
Each of whom well knew the Spanish love of foul deeds.
Hurrah, &c.—
On a peaceable call in Havana harbor,
Our ship Maiu was placed by a Spanish officer,
Under the protection of the whole Spanish nation.
Hurrah, &c.—
Through designs of Spanish official treachery,
Concieved and planned in hellish plots,
The crew and Maine were blown to destruction.
Hurrah, &c.—
Wherefore our ultimatum and descent in armed array,
Upon the Spanish possessions that lie over this way,
So look out Dons, we are coming very strong.
Hurrah, &c.—
You say we will not fight and are a set of cowardly pigs,
All the people of this country are brimming full of fight,
Our Army and Navy have their bristles up and are headed your way.
Hurrah, &c.—
We are coming after you in true Yankee Doodle style,
With the blood of the oppressed, the murdered and the Maine in our eye,
So get yourselves in shape, Dons, because there will be terrible times.
Hurrah, &c.—

GLORIOUS CHRISTIANITY.

A Religion That Offers No Apology and Deals Vigorously

With the Ills of the World—The Invasions of Vice Must Be Boldly Met and Promptly Repulsed by the Forces of This New Belief.

This discourse of Dr. Talmage is revolutionary for good in families, and churches, and nations, and especially appropriate for this time. Text, Acts 17: 6: "These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also."

There is a wild, bellowing mob around the house of Jason, in Thessalonica. What has the man done so greatly to offend the people? He has been entertaining Paul and his comrades. The mob surround the house and cry, "Bring out those turbulent preachers! They are interfering with our business. They are ruining our religion! They are actually turning the world upside down!"

The charge was true; for there is nothing that so interferes with sin, there is nothing so ruinous to every form of established iniquity, there is nothing that has such tendency to turn the world upside down, as our glorious Christianity. The fact is that the world now is wrong side up, and it needs to be turned upside down in order that it may be right side up. The time was when men wrote books extolling them "Apologies for Christianity." I hope that day has passed. We want no more apologies for Christianity. Let the apologies be on the part of those who do not believe in our religion. We do not mean to make any compromise in the matter. We do not wish to hide the fact that Christianity is revolutionary, and that its tendency is to turn the world upside down. Our religion has often been misrepresented as a principle of tears, and mildness, and fastidiousness; afraid of crossing people's prejudices; afraid of unking somebody mad; with silken gloves, lifting the people up from the church pew into glory, as though they were Bohemian glass, so very delicate that with one touch it may be demolished forever. Men speak of religion as though it were a refined imbecility; as though it were a spiritual chloroform, that the people were to take until the sharp cuttings of life were over. The Bible, so far from this, represents the religion of Christ as robust and brawney ransacking and unsetting ten thousand things that now seem to be settled on firm foundations. I hear some man in the house say, "I thought religion was peace." That is the final result. A man's arm is out of place. Two men come, and with great effort put it back to the socket. It goes back with great pain. Then he gets well. Our world is horribly disordered and out of joint. It must come under an omnipotent surgery, beneath which there will be pain and anguish before there can come perfect health and quiet. I proclaim, therefore, in the name of my lord Jesus Christ—Revolution!

The religion of the Bible will make a revolution in the family. Those things that are wrong in the family circle will be overthrown by it, while justice and harmony will take the place. The husband will be the head of the household only when he is fit to be. I know a man who spends all the money he makes in drink, as well as all the money that his wife makes; and sometimes sells the children's clothes for rum. Do you think that he is fit to be the head of that household? If the wife have more nobility, more courage, more of all that is right, she shall have the supremacy. You say that the Bible says that the wife is to be subject to the husband. I know it. But that is a husband, not a muscline caricature. There is no human or divine law that makes a woman subordinate to a man unworthy of her. When Christianity comes into a domestic circle, it will give the dominancy to that one who is the most worthy of it.

As religion comes in at the front door, mirth and laughter will not go ont of the back door. It will not hople the children's feet. John will laugh just as lond; and George will jump higher than he ever did before. It will steal from the little ones neither ball nor bate, nor hoop nor kite. It will establish a family altar. Angels will hover over it. Ladders of light will reach down to it. The glory of Heaven will stream upon it. The books of remembrance will record it, and tides of everlasting blessedness will pour from it. Not such a family altar as you may have seen, where the prayer is long, and a long chapter is read, with tedious explanation, and the exercise keeps on until the children's knees are sore, and their backs ache, and their patience is lost, and for the seventh time they have counted all the rungs in the chair; but I mean a family altar such as may have been seen in your father's house. You may have wandered far off in the paths of sin and darkness; but you have never forgotten that family altar where father and mother knelt, importuning God for your soul. That is a memory that a man never gets over. There will be a hearty joyful family altar in every domestic circle. You will not have to go far to find Hannah rearing her Samuel for the temple, or a grandmother Lois instructing her Timothy, in the knowledge of christ, or a Mary, and Martha, and Lazarus gathered in fraternal and sisterly affection, or a table at which Jesus sits, as at that of Zaccheus, or a home in which Jesus dwells, as in the house of Simon the tanner. The religion of Jesus Christ coming into the domestic circle, will overthrow all jealousies, all jauglings; and peace, and order, and holiness will take possession of the home.

Again: Christianity will produce a revolution in commercial circles. Find me 50 merchants and you find that they have 50 standards of what is right and wrong. You say to some one about a merchant, "Is he honest?" "Oh! yes," the man says, "he is honest, but he grinds the faces of his clerks. He is honest, but he exaggerates the value of his goods. He is honest, but he loans money on bond and mortgage, with the understanding that the mortgage can lie quiet for ten years, but as soon as he gets the mortgage he records it and begins a foreclosure suit, and the sheriff's writ comes down, and the day of sale arrives, and away goes the homestead, and the creditor buys it in at half price." Honest? when he loaned the money he knew that he would get the homestead at half price. Honest? but he goes to the insurance office to get a policy on his life, and tells the doctor that he is well, when he knows that for ten years he has had but one lung. Honest? though he sells property by the map, forgetting to tell the purchaser that the ground is all under water; but it is generous in him to do that, for he throws the water into the bargain.

Ah! my friends, there is but one standard of the everlasting right and of the everlasting wrong, and that is the Bible, and when that principle shall get in its pry under our commercial houses, I believe that one-half of them will go over. The ruin will begin at one end of the street and it will crash! crash! crash! all the way down to the docks. "What is the matter? Has there been a fall in gold?" "Oh, no." "Has there been a new tariff?" "No." "Has there been a failure in crops?" "No." "Has there been an unaccountable panic?" "No." This is the secret: The Lord God has set up His throne of judgment in the exchange. He has summoned the righteous and the wicked —— come before him. What was 1857? A day of judgment! What was 1873? A day of judgment! What was the extreme depression of two years ago? A day of judgment! Do you think that God is going to wait until He has burned the world up before He rights these wrongs? I tell you nay! Every day is a day of judgment.

The fraudulent man piles up his gains; bond upon bond, United States security above United States security, emolument above emolument, until his property has become a great pyramid; and as he stands looking at it, he thinks it can never be destroyed; but the Lord God comes, and with His little finger pushes it all over.

You build a house and you put into it a rotten beam. A mechanic standing by says: "It will never do to put that beam in; it will ruin your whole building." But you put it in. The house is completed. Soon it begins to rock. You call in the mechanic and ask: "What is the matter with this door? What is the matter with this wall? Everything seems to be giving out." Says the mechanic: "You put a rotten beam into that structure, and the whole thing has got to come down." Here is an estate that seems to be all right now. It has been building a great many years. But 15 years ago there was a dishonest transaction in that commercial house. That one dishonest transaction will keep on working ruin in the whole structure, until down the estate will come in wreck and ruin about the possessor's ears—one dishonest dollar in the estate demolishing all his possessions. I have seen it again and again; and so have you. Here is your money-safe.

The manufacturer and yourself only know how it can be opened. You have the key. You can touch the lock and the ponderous door swings back. But let me tell you that, however firmly bolted your money-safe may be, you can not keep God out. He will come, some day, into your counting room, and He will demand, "Where did that note of hand come from? How did the estate demolishing all his possessions. I account for this security? Where did you get that mortgage from? What does this mean?" If it is all right God will say: "Well done, good and faithfull servant. Be prospered in this world. Be happy in the world to come." If it is all wrong He will say: "Depart, ye cursed. Be miserable for your iniquities in this life; and then go down and spend your eternity with thieves, and horse jockeys and pickpockets."

You have an old photograph of the signs on your street. Why have those signs nearly all changed within the last 20 years? Does the passing away of a generation account for it? Oh, no. Does the fact that there are hundreds of honest men who go down every year account for it? Oh, no. This is the secret: The Lord God has been walking through the commercial streets of our great cities, and he has been adjusting things according to the principles of eternal rectitude.

The time will come when, through the revolutionary power of this Gospel, a falsehood, instead of being an exaggeration, equivocation and evasion; will be branded a lie! And stealings, that now sometimes go under the head of percentages and commissions, and bonuses, will be put into the catalogue of state prison offenses. Society will be turned inside out and upside down, and ransacked of God's truth, until business dishonesties shall come to an end and all double dealing; and God will overturn, and overturn, and overturn; and commercial men in all cities will throw up their hands, crying out, "These that have turned the world upside down are come hither."

The religion of Jesus Christ will produce a revolution in our churches. The noncommittal, do-nothing policy of the church of God will give way to a spirit of bravest conquest. Piety in this day seems to me to be salted down just so as to keep. It seems as if the church were chiefly anxious to take care of itself; and if we hear of want, and sequlor and heathenism outside, we say, "What a pity!" and we put our hands in our pockets, and we feel around for a two-cent piece, and with a great flourish we put it upon the plate, and are amazed that the world is not converted in six weeks. Suppose there were a great war, and there were 300,000 soldiers, but of all those 300,000 soldiers, excepting 10 men, were in their tents, or scouring their muskets, or cooking rations. You would say, "Of course defeat must come in that case." It is worse than that in the church. Millions of the professed soldiers of Jesus Christ are cooking rations, or asleep in their tents, while only one man here and there goes out to do battle for the Lord.

"But," says some one, "we are establishing a great many missions, and I think they will save the masses." No, they will not do it. They are doing a magnificent work, but every mission chapel is a confession of the disease and weakness of the church. It is making a dividing line between the classes. It is saying to the rich and to the well conditionvd: "If you can pay your pew rents come to the main audience room." It is saying to the poor man: "Your coat is too bad and your shoes are not good enough. If you want to get to Heaven you will have to go by the way of the mission chapel." The mission chapel has become the kitchen, where the church does its sloppy work. There are hundreds and thousands of churches in this country—gorgeously built and supported—that, even on bright and sunshiny days, are not half full of worshipers, and yet they are building mission chapels, because, by some expressed or implied regulation, the great masses of the people are kept out of the main audience room.

Now I say that any place of worship which is appropriate for one class is appropriate for all classes. Let the rich and the poor meet together, the Lord the Maker of them all. Mind you that I say that mission chapels are a necessity, the way churches are now conducted, but may God speed the time when they shall cease to be a necessity. God will rise up and break down the gates of the church that have kept back the masses; and woe be to those who stand in the way! They will be trampled under foot by the vast populations making a stampede for Heaven.

I saw in some paper an account of a church in Boston in which it is said, there were a great many plain people. The next week the trustees of that church came out in the paper and said it was not so at all; "they were elegant people and highly conditioned people that went there." Then I laughed outright; and when I laugh I laugh very loudly. "Those people," I said, "are afraid of the sickly sentimentality of the churches." Now my ambition is not to preach to you so much. It seems to me that you must be faring sumptuously every day, and the marks of comforts are all about you. You do not need the Gospel half as much as do some who never come here. Rather than be priding myself on a church in front of which there shall halt 50 splendid equipages on the Sabbath day, I would have a church up to whose gates there should come a long procession of the suffering and the stricken and the dying begging for admittance. You do not need the Gospel as much as they. You have good things in this life. Whatever may be your future destiny, you have had a pleasant time here. But these dying populations of which I speak, by reason of their want and suffering, whatever may be their future destiny, are in perdition now; and if there be any comfort in Christ's Gospel, for God's sake give it to them!

Revolution! The pride of the church must come down. The exclusiveness of the church must come down! The financial boastings of the church must come down! If monetary success were the chief idea in the church, then I say that the present mode of conducting finances is the best. If it is to see how many dollars you can gain, then the present mode is the best. But if it is the saving of souls from sin and death, and bringing into mighty populations of our cities to the knowledge of God, then I cry, Revolution! It is coming fast. I feel it in the air. I hear the rumbling of an earthquake that shall shake down, in one terrible crash, the arrogance of our modern Christianity.

The sea is covered with wrecks, and multitudes are drowning. We come out with the church life-boat, and the people begin to clamber in, and we shout: "Stop! Stop! You must think it costs nothing to keep a life-boat. Those scats at the stern are one dollar apiece, those in the middle fifty cents, and those seats in the stern two shillings. Please to pay up, or else flounder on a little longer till the mission-boat, whose work it is to save you penniless wretches, shall come along and pick you up. We save only first-class sinners in this boat."

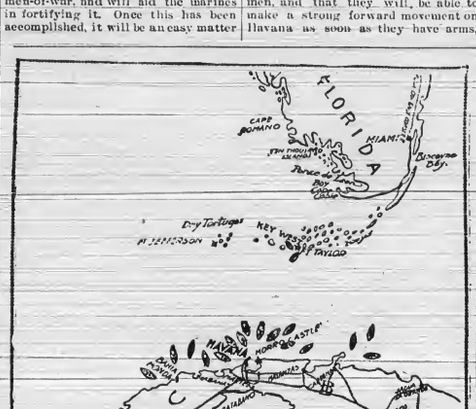
The talk is, whether Protestant churches or Roman Catholic churches are coming out ahead. I tell you, Protestants, this truth plainly: That until your churches are as free as the Roman Catholic cathedrals they will beat you. In their cathedral the millionaire and the beggar kneel side by side. And until that time comes in our churches we can not expect the favor of God, or permanent spiritual prosperity.

In that future day of the reconstructed Church of Christ, the church building will be the most cheerful of all buildings. Instead of the light of the sun strained through painted glass, until an intelligent authority looks green, and blue, and yellow, and eggper-colored, we will have no sure things. The pure atmosphere of Heaven will sweep out the fetid atmosphere that has been kept in many of our churches boxed up from Sunday to Sunday. The day of which I speak will be a day of great revivals. There will be such a time as there was in the parish of Shotts, where 500 souls were born to God in one day, such times as were seen in the country when Edwards gave the alarm, when Tennent preached, and Whitefield thundered, and Edward Payson prayed; such times as some of you remember in 1857, when the voice of prayer and praise was heard in theater, in warehouse, and blacksmith shop, and factory, and engine house; and the auctioneer's cry of "a half, and a half, and a half," was drowned out by the adjoining prayer meeting, in which the people cried out: "Men and brethren, what shall we do?"

The average duration of human life in European countries is greatest in Sweden and Norway and lowest in Italy and Austria.

MANY VESSELS

Endangered by a Terrible Storm on the North Carolina and Virginia Coasts.



NORFOLK, Va., April 28.—A terrific storm is raging on the Virginia and North Carolina coasts Wednesday morning. The wind is blowing 60 miles an hour from the northeast and many vessels are in danger of being wrecked. Capt. Perry, of the British steamship Castledale, from Tampa, reports passing a derelict bark named Cadle completely stripped and her long boat lying on the deck. The fate of the crew is unknown. A big, three-masted schooner, with part of her masts gone and rails smashed in, is signaling for help at Chickamacomico life saving station and she will surely be driven ashore.

The cruiser Montgomery and transport Panther, which left here Tuesday for Key West, were also in danger, but it is known that they rounded Cape Hatteras before they encountered the storm. Nothing has been heard of them, but it is believed they are safe. The storm did considerable damage in Norfolk and vicinity.

BOYS IN BLUE

To the Number of Fifteen Thousand to Be Landed in Cuba—Supplies for Insurgents.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—President McKinley, Secretary Alger, Maj. Gen. Miles, Adjt. Gen. Corbin and Brig. Gen. Shafer, who has been selected for the command of the 15,000 troops to be landed in Cuba, were in conference Wednesday. Final arrangements will then be perfected for conduct of the proposed plan. As at present determined upon, it is understood that the military will be transported to the Cuban base in vessels convoyed by men-of-war, and will aid the marines in fortifying it. Once this has been accomplished, it will be an easy matter to ship into the interior an ample quantity of supplies of all kinds for the use of the Cuban insurgents.

HOW THE WESTERN END OF CUDA IS BLOCKADED.

SECRETARY ALGER

Favors the Recruiting of Several Regiments of Yellow Fever Immunes for Service in Cuba.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The secretary of war is strongly in favor of amendment of the existing volunteer law that will permit recruiting at least half a dozen special regiments of yellow fever immunes for services in Cuba. One such regiment has already been recruited in Louisiana, and Senator Caffery, Wednesday, presented a letter at the war department from the son of Gen. Hood, by whom the regiment was organized tendering its services to the government. Under the existing law there can be only three extra regiments recruited. One of these is already appropriated to Dr. Wood and ex-Secretary Roosevelt for his cowboys, who are already being designated in the department as "Teddy's Terrors." Great pressure is being brought to bear from various quarters to secure the other two regiments.

The secretary of war, it is understood, holds that the practical value of immune regiments is greater than the sentimental and political claims of various applicants for regimental honor. He wants 6,000 immunes provided for and asked Senator Caffrey if they could be raised in the gulf states. The senator replied that he could realize 20,000 volunteers in New Orleans alone, as practically all the natives had had the fever and all would volunteer.

Killed Mother and Daughter.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 27.—John Brockaway was lodged in jail here Wednesday by Sheriff Mooney, of Miller county, for safe keeping. He shot and killed Mrs. Hogan and her daughter in Camden county because they refused to let him come into the house to see his wife, a daughter of Mrs. Hogan, whom he had married on April 17.

Soldiers Landed at Guanabacoa.

MADRID, April 28.—Private advices received from Cuba say that a force of 900 American and Cuban soldiers has landed at Guanabacoa under the leadership of the Cuban Chief La Cret. A column of Spanish troops has been sent to check the advance of the invaders.

To Destroy American Commerce.

MADRID, April 28.—There is a report in circulation here that some of the Spanish cruisers now gathered about Manila will be used later to scour the Pacific and destroy American commerce in those waters.

FULL EQUIPMENT

Of the Insurgent Army One of the First Things to Be Done—Cuban Leaders Confer With Gen. Miles.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Another conference has been held between Gen. Miles, commanding the United States forces, and representatives of the Cuban civil and military authorities. The latter included Senor Quesada, charge d'affaires of the Cuban legation, Brig. Gen. Nunez, and Lieut. Artiago, of the Cuban army. Lieut. Artiago has seen 17 months' service in the field, and Gen. Nunez has an intimate knowledge of all the ports of Cuba, having directed the movements of all filibustering parties. The conference brought about a full discussion of the plans of co-operation between the United States and Cuban forces. The details of this co-operation are guarded with the strictest secrecy.

The exploit of Lieut. Rowan in landing near Santiago has been known for several days to both the United States and Cuban authorities, as they co-operated in executing this move. The Cuban authorities here furnished the guides and necessary papers to see Lieut. Rowan through the Cuban lines. It is in execution of plans for a landing at Santiago and Sagua, points on the Cuban coast, one north and one south, respectively, with a view to effecting junctures with both Gen. Gomez and Gen. Garcia. Now that Lieut. Rowan is on his way to effect a juncture from Santiago, it is not improbable that another juncture will be made by way of Sagua. The first purpose of these movements, it is understood, is to bring about a full equipment of the insurgent forces, rather than to secure a joint movement between them and the United States troops. It is said that Garcia and Gomez together can muster 85,000 men, and that they will be able to make a strong forward movement on Havana as soon as they have arms, ammunition and medical supplies. The latter, and particularly quinine, is said to be greatly needed. The understanding among those best acquainted with the plans of co-operation is that the Cuban forces will advance on Havana and make a land siege in co-operation with the blockade now in progress by the United States warships.

In this connection there is renewed talk of a recognition of the Cubans, at least their belligerency and possibly their independence, and confident hopes were expressed Wednesday in high Cuban circles that recognition would be granted in the next two weeks. One of the first effects of this, it is said, would be to give the Cubans an official status at Washington, instead of their present unofficial status. The conferences now held with Gen. Miles and other officials are being productive of important results, and yet they are necessarily unofficial in character, owing to the unrecognized status of the Cubans. Now, however, that Gomez and Garcia are being recognized as material factors in the contest, and are being treated with by the war department, the desirability of their recognition, at least as belligerents, is being urged as warranting formal recognition. It is said the co-operation already established is in itself a recognition of the de facto existence of the Cuban army and of belligerency, and that the de jure recognition should follow. While these hopes are rewed in Cuban circles, it can not be learned that the administration has modified its attitude against recognition of any character.

In the event of Cuban recognition it is probable that President Palma, of the Cuban Junta, would be the first minister accredited from Cuba, with Senor Quesada as charge d'affaires at Washington, and Senor Albertini as first secretary.

Nomination of John B. Moore Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The senate has confirmed John B. Moore, of New York, to be assistant secretary of state.

Gen. Grant's Birthday.

GALENA, Ill., April 28.—Galena, the home of Gen. U. S. Grant, Wednesday celebrated the 77th anniversary of the great leader's birthday. Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris, accompanied by her daughter Vivian, represented the Grant family. Judge Emory Spear, a confederate veteran of Macon, Ga., was the orator of the day.

Panic in Havana.

KEY WEST, Fla., April 28.—A British steamer arrived here Wednesday with 130 refugees, whom she took out of Havana under the white flag. She reports a panic in Havana.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—SENATE—War and war measures were the only topics discussed by the senate Monday during more than four hours of the session. The body had scarcely convened when the message of the president urging congress to declare the existence of war between the United States and Spain was laid before it. Without comment the message was referred to the foreign relations committee. A house resolution declaring war between the United States and Spain was sent in. After several amendments were defeated the bill was passed. Consideration of the war appropriation bill was then resumed, the pending question being upon the amendment offered by Mr. Butler (N. C.) to regulate the price of armor. Amendments authorizing the secretary of the navy to enlist at any time after the passage of the act as many seamen, landsmen, and boys as he may deem necessary to man the ships of the navy for the use of the navy as a temporary force and appropriating $6,830,000 for that purpose, providing that hereafter all first class battle ships and monitors shall be named after the various states, were agreed to and the bill passed. The army reorganization bill was then taken up and passed.

HOUSE—The house Monday passed the bill declaring the existence of a state of war between the United States and Kingdom of Spain in a manner which can not fail to impress the world. The representatives of 70,000,000 people voted for it without a word of debate, without a dissenting vote and without a roll call, but with a solemn appreciation of the gravity of their momentous action. The speaker signed it at 4:40. The remainder of the day was devoted to the election case of Wise vs. Young from the Second Virginia district. The house declined to agree to the senate amendments to the army reorganization bill and it was sent to conference.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—SENATE—During the two hours' session of the senate Tuesday the conference report on the army reorganization bill was agreed to and the measure engrossed and signed. The remainder of the session was devoted to the passage of 73 private pension bills and numerous measures from the general calendar. Bills were passed as follows: To amend an act granting to the Arkansas, Texas and Mexican Central Railway Co. a right of way through the Indian territory; to enable the officers, warrant officers, petty officers and marines of the United States navy who may distinguish themselves in action or receive medals of honor, rosettes and ribbons; in reference to the civil service and appointments thereunder affording additional advantages to honorably discharged soldiers; to amend the navigation law relating to the licensing of officers of steam vessels; to place on the retired list of the army as sergeants four survivors of the Franklin Arctic expedition.

HOUSE—The war revenue bill was reported to the house Tuesday and by an arrangement made the debate will begin Wednesday and continue at night sessions until Friday. At 4 o'clock on that day the vote will be taken. The contested election case of Wise vs. Young, from the Second Virginia district, was decided Tuesday in favor of the contestant, Dr. Wise, who is a republican, by a party vote. Speeches for the contestant were made by Messrs. Crumpacker (rep., Ind.), and Grosvenor (rep., O.). J. Jones (rep., Va.), followed for the contestee. The senate amendments to the naval appropriation bill were non-concurred in and a conference requested. The speaker appointed Messrs. Boutelle, Hilborn and Cummings conferees. A bill was passed granting to the Santa Fe railroad Co. Arizona Railroad Co. a right of way through the Grand Canyon forest reserve. At 4:30 the house adjourned.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—SENATE—The senate was in session about an hour and a half Wednesday, during which time no important business was transacted.

HOUSE—The general debate upon the measure framed by the ways and means committee to meet the extraordinary expenditure for the war with Spain, will continue through Thursday, and on Friday at 4 o'clock the vote will be taken. There was a signal absence of that partisan rancor which has always heretofore characterized debates on revenue measures. Both sides, speaking through their respective leaders, Messrs. Dingley and Bailey, concurred in this necessity which existed for immediately raising of hundreds of millions to prosecute the war but the opposing doctrines which they held clashed at the first onset over the methods by which the revenue should be raised. The section providing for $500,000,000 of bonds became the target of the democratic and populistic opposition and Mr. Bailey in an hour's speech argued for an income tax which would raise $100,000,000 a year, the coinage of the silver seignorage and the issue of $38,000,000 of legal tender as an alternative proposition.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—SENATE—April Friday the senate was in the attitude of waiting for business to reach it. A few bills of no important character were passed, but no business of general interest was transacted.

HOUSE—The general debate on the war revenue bill closed Thursday night after eight and a half hours of speech making. The debate Friday lacked both spirit and interest. There was little discussion of the internal revenue features of the bill. The democrats continued their assaults on the bond feature and their advocacy of the income tax. The latter was ridiculed as a substitute proposition by the republicans. The authority to borrow money was defended by them as absolutely necessary. There is a difference of opinion on the democratic side as to whether the bill should be voted upon its final passage after the minority amendments are voted down. A number of democrats, led by Mr. McMillan (N. Y.), have announced their purpose of so voting, but the majority of the democrats believe they could not justify a vote for a bond issue. An effort is being made to avoid an aye and nay vote on the final passage to prevent an exhibition of this division and Thursday night it seemed probable that it would be successful.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—SENATE—At Friday's session of the senate the report of the conferees on the naval appropriation bill was presented and agreed to. The report as perfected carries a little more than $7,000,000. No other business of general importance was transacted. A bill granting permission to the Chattanooga Rapid Transit Co. to extend the Dry Valley road and extend its lines to Chickamauga National park was passed. At 1:35 p. m., on motion of Mr. Allison, the senate went into executive session and at 1:50 p. m. adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—The bill to provide additional taxes and loans in order to carry on the war through the house Friday by 181 to 120, very nearly a party vote, after many efforts to amend it. Mr. Dingley has no idea how long the senate will be in dealing with it. The proceedings were interesting all day. Fortunately there were no unpleasant, sensational scenes and no unseemly quarrels. A motion by Mr. Lewis (dem., Wash.) to make the bonds redeemable specifically in gold or silver coin at the option of the government was defeated—191 to 126. Another, by Mr. Shafroth, to make the bonds redeemable one-half in gold and one-half in silver, met a similar fate. Several other propositions of the same tenor were voted down. The vote was then taken upon the McMillin income tax substitute and it was defeated—154 to 143. Mr. Bland (dem., Mo.) offered as a substitute a provision to issue $150,000,000 treasury notes. It was lost—196 to 147. Mr. Lanham (dem., Tex.) moved to strike out the bond section and it was lost—193 to 131.

A North Carolinian Will Fight the Spanish Lieutenant.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 30.—The challenge to Gen. Lee and Capt. Sigsbee by Lieut. Carranza, of the Spanish navy, has aroused a North Carolinian. W. N. Ballard, of Asheville, formerly on the police force here, has written Gen. Lee requesting, in case the general does not desire to meet the Spanish officer on the field of honor, that he be allowed to take the general's place.

RATS OWNED THE CAR.

Chicago Railroad Official Has Trouble with the Rapacious Rodents for a Time.

The private car of a Burlington railway official, with headquarters in this city, has been infested for nearly a year with a brood of rats. It is not known how the vermin gained a foothold in the aristocratic vehicle, but they evidently became tired of the fare on the freight trains and picked out the private car as a "good graft." It is not unusual for rats or mice to get into dining and sleeping cars on railways, but this is the first instance on the Burlington at least that they have made their appearance within the sacred precincts of a private car.

It was during a trip in the west last summer that their presence was first noticed, but little attention was paid to them, as it was thought that they would stay but a short time. They were first noticed by their appearance in the kitchen, where they seemed to like the work of the private cook. Becoming bolder they invaded the remainder of the car. Poison and traps were set for them, but they were rats of experience, who knew the look and taste of the "rough" and who were too wary to venture inside the trap even when it was baited with imported cheese. They continued to live on the fat of the car and to make it very unpleasant for the occupants. The latter would awake in the night to feel four little feet running over the coverlids or to hear the gnawing of sharp little teeth eating away the woodwork of the car. For awhile the officials carried rat terriers on his trips, but the dogs never got a rat, and the official and his employes were in despair.

On one occasion, when the owner of the car had out with him one of his superiors and some members of the latter's family, the ladies were made hysterical by the presence of the rats and had to abandon the trip and return on a regular train. Finally the rats became so bad that the car was put in the shops and a novel side rat catcher was sent for. He brought both dogs and ferrets, which were used to working together in exterminating rats. In every nook and corner where rats can go the sharp-scented ferrets found their way, and it looked as though the rats would baffle them after all.

The car is provided with a double floor and it was decided that this was the only place where the rats could have concealed themselves. But there was no hole big enough for the ferrets' entrance; so a portion of the flooring was cut out. The ferrets were let in and in a moment seven big rats came one by one jumping out of a hole cut for a steam pipe. But they emerged to death, for as they came out a dog seized each and broke its back.—Chicago Chronicle.

Decline of Bull Fighting.

The wholesome change that the character of the Mexican people is undergoing is shown again by the movement headed by President Diaz and taken up by the better social element to abolish bull-fighting. That brutal sport is one of the handicaps which Mexico got from Spain. In the mother country it still flourishes, and any attempt to suppress it would be resisted as strongly by the ruling classes as by the common run.—Chicago Chronicle.

STYLES FOR THE TOTS.

Qaker gray is a prominent shade in the makeup of the juvenile's wardrobe this spring.

For blouses, shirt waists and little dresses for little men, wool taffeta is just the thing mothers have been looking for.

Coats for infants are made without the short shoulder cape of the winter, the place of which is taken by fancy sleeve pieces.

Crepon in white or light shades is very suitable and pretty for a dressy coat for a little child. Ribboned, quilled or gathered, is the favorite garniture for these.

Cotton or summer-weight cashmere stockings for girls or boys are brilliantly plaided. They look exceedingly stylish when worn with a white suit and sash and tie of plaid ribbon to match.

Jacket costumes are quite as popular for little women as for their mothers and elder sisters. The children follow the lead of the grown-ups in having their gowns strictly tailor made of smooth faced cloth. Plaid silk skirt fronts and blouses are worn with them.

New and effective for small boys' wear are the large pique collars cut in numerous points and trimmed with rows of narrow braid. They look equally well with a dark or a light blouse, and will not rumple nearly so easily as the lawn kind, with embroidered ruffles.—Leisure Hours.

A WOMAN'S BURDEN.

From the Evening News, Detroit, Mich.

The women of to-day are not as strong as their grandmothers. They are bearing a burden in silence that grows heavier day by day; that is sapping their vitality and clouding their happiness.

Mrs. Alexander B. Clark, of 417 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, is a typical woman of to-day. A wife with such ambition as only a loving wife can have. But the joys of her life were marred by the existence of disease.

Suffering as thousands of her sisters have suffered, she almost despaired of life and yet she was cured.

"I became blind."

"For five years I suffered with ovarian trouble," is Mrs. Clark's own version of the story. "I was not free one single day from headache and intense, lacerating pains in my neck and shoulders. For months at a time I would be confined to my bed. At times black spots would appear before my eyes and I would become blind. My nerves were in such a state that a step on the floor unsettled me.

"Eminent doctors, skillful nurses, the best food and medicine all failed. Then I consented to an operation. That, too, failed and they said another was necessary. After the second I was worse than ever and the world was dark indeed to me.

"It was then I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I heard that they had cured cases like mine and I tried them.

"They cured me! They brought sunshine to my life and filled my cup with happiness. The headache is gone; the twitching is gone; the nervousness is gone; the trembling has ceased, and I have gained twenty-six pounds. Health and strength is mine, and I am thankful to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People for the blessing."

These pills are a boon to womankind. Acting directly on the blood and nerves, they restore the requisite vitality to all parts of the body; creating functional regularity and perfect harmony throughout the nervous system. The pallor of the cheeks is changed to the delicate blush of health; the eyes brighten; the muscles grow elastic, ambition is created and good health returns.

Coarse and Brutal.

History states that a certain Roman official of some importance was killed one day by a falling tile while indulging in a parade. A young man of the family of Hur was charged with his death and brought into court. The judge, after hearing the case, turned to the prisoner and said:

"I sentence you to the mines for life."

"To the mines?" echoed Ben Hur.

"Yes, to the mines," retorted the facetious magistrate; "there are great mining facilities on the Mediterranean. You will find all the oar you want in the galleys."

At this brutal jest it is said the attorney for the prosecution laughed long and loud, but Ben Hur saw no joke in the galleys—he was not a printer.—Detroit Free Press.

A Peculiar Feeling.

The sensation of homesickness has been variously described, but never more graphically than by a little girl, who, miles away from home and mamma, sat heavy-eyed and silent at a hotel table.

"Aren't you hungry, dear?" asked her aunt, with whom she was traveling.

"No."

"Does your head ache?"

"No."

"What is the matter?"

The child's lip quivered, and she said, in a tone to grieve the heart: "I'm so seasick for home!"—Albany Argus.

Homeseekers' Excursions.

On the first and third Tuesdays in May and June, 1898, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway will sell round-trip excursion tickets (good for 21 days) to a great many points in South and North Dakota and other western and southwestern states, at practically one fare for the round trip. Take a trip west and see what an amount of good land can be purchased for very little money. Further information as to rates, routes, prices of farm lands, etc., may be obtained on application to any coupon ticket agent or by addressing George H. Heafford, General Passenger Agent, Chicago, Ill.

called Grain-O. It is a delicious, appetizing, nourishing food drink to take the place of coffee. Could be all grocers and liked by all who have used it, because when properly prepared it tastes like the finest coffee but is free from all its injurious properties. Costs about ¼ as much as coffee. 15 and 25c.

COULD NOT BE DONE.

It Was Utterly Impossible for That Boy to Respect His Father's Gray Hairs.

"Boys," began the Sunday school superintendent, impressively, "I hope none of you will ever get into the reprehensible habit of alluding to your father as 'the old man.' When you grow up, no matter how big or old you may be, you should always look up to and respect the silver hairs of your father, who has grown bent and gray working for you in your helpless infancy. Now, all of you who think you can do this please raise your right hands."

Up went every hand except one.

Sternly eyeing the delinquent, the superintendent solemnly observed:

"Why, young man, I am horrified—absolutely horrified—at, well as astonished at your behavior. Don't you wish to raise your hand and put yourself on record as being willing to respect the gray hairs of your father when you grow up to be a man?"

"No. No use trying. I can't do it nohow," unblushingly responded the lad.

"Why not, sonny?"

"'Cause he ain't liable to have no gray hair. Dad's bald," chirped the youthful philosopher, triumphantly, and amid a general titter the discomfitted superintendent gave it up and passed on to something else.—Tit-Bits.

"Say, Hiram, be you agoin' to town today?"

"Yes, Uncle Bill, I got to git the mare shod and do some high old shoppin' fer the wimmen folks besides. Can I git anything fer you?"

"Well, yes, you see your Aunt Lucy says she wants a heap of stuff to the store, but she don't reckon she'd trust me nor no one else to buy her the new caliker dress she's bent on havin', so she's got ter go and do the selectin' of it herself and if you just give her a lift there and back it'll save me bitchin' up."

"All right, Uncle Bill, I'll be mighty glad of the opportunity, fer I promised Mandy and wo'nree of the gals a genuine surprise all around if things panned out satisfactory on the sale of that wheat, which they did, and now I propose to keep my promise in good shape and Aunt Lucy, she knows just the very kind of colors the gals like in print goods and what ter select and how much fer each dress and I want them and Mandy to have the very best there is; the kind of dress goods I heerd Simpson say was always marked on the tags with the name of William Simpson & Sons. She says that's the kind that always looks bright and wears well and don't fade. I tell you what, Uncle Bill, they ain't nobody enjoys seein' well dressed wimmen folks around the house no better than me and when Aunt Lucy and I get through buyin' print goods and calico today I guess William Simpson & Sons 'll think the town ain't no slouch for well dressed gals and wimmen."

ATTRACTIVE WOMEN.

Fullness of Health Makes Sweet Dispositions and Happy Homes.

[EXTRACTS FROM MRS. PINKHAM'S NOTE BOOK.]

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill health, painful menses, pains in the side, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and begin its use. This truly wonderful remedy is the safeguard of women's health.

Mrs. MABEL SMITH, 345 Central Ave., Jersey City Heights, N. J., writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can hardly find words with which to thank you for what your wonderful remedy has done for me. Without it I would by this time have been dead or worse, insane; for when I started to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a terrible state. I think it would be impossible for me to tell all I suffered. Every part of my body seemed to pain some way. The pain in my back and head was terrible. I was nervous, had hysterics and fainting spells. My case was one that was given up by two of the best doctors in Brooklyn. I had given up myself; as I had tried so many things, I believed nothing would ever do me any good. But, thanks to your medicine, I am now well and strong; in fact, another person entirely."

If you are puzzled about yourself, write freely and fully to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and secure the advice which she offers free of charge to all women. This is the advice that has brought sunshine into many homes which nervousness and irritability had nearly wrecked.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; a Woman's Remedy for Woman's Ills

ASTHMA'S PROGRESS.

From Cold to Cure.

No relief in other remedies.

There are many medicines that palliate asthma. There are few that do more than relieve for a time the oppressed breathing of the sufferer. There are few diseases more troublesome and more irritating than asthma. It interferes alike with business and with pleasure. It prevents enjoyment of the day and makes the night a terror. A remedy for asthma would be hailed by thousands as the greatest possible boon that could be offered them. There is a remedy for asthma. Dr. J. C. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has cured hundreds of cases of this disease, and testimonials to its efficacy from those who have tried the remedy are multiplying with every year. The cases presented in the testimonials that follow, may be taken as exemplifying the quick and radical action of this great remedy.

"About a year ago, I caught a bad cold which resulted in asthma so severe that I was threatened with suffocation whenever I attempted to lie down on my bed. A friend recommending Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, I began to take it, and soon obtained relief, and, finally, was completely cured. Since then, I have used this medicine in my family with great success for colds, coughs, and croup."—S. HUTTER, Editor "Kolnik" Polish, Stevens Point, Wis.

"While on the Gasconade River, Ga., I caught a severe cold which resulted in asthma. After taking doctors' prescriptions for a long time without benefit, I bought made use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and was completely cured."—H. KITCHEL, Greenwood, Miss.

"Some time since I had a severe attack of asthma, accompanied with a bad cough and a general soreness of the joints and muscles. I consulted physicians, and tried various remedies, but without getting any relief. Finally I took Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and in a very short time was entirely cured."—J. ROSELLS, Victoria, Tex.

Dr. J. C. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is known the world over as one of the most effective medicines for the cure of coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough, asthma, bronchitis, and all affections of the throat and lungs. It is not, as are so many cough mixtures—merely a "soothing syrup," a temporary relief and palliative, but it is a radical remedy, dealing directly with disease and promptly healing it. In response to a wide demand Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is now put up in half size bottles, sold at half price—50 cents. More about Dr. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in Ayer's Curebook. A story of cures told by the cured. Sent free, on request, by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

The reunion of the Mexican Veterans at Harrodsburg has been postponed until September.

In several parts of the State it is reported that the rainy weather has caused the potatoes to rot.

Miss Christine Bradley, daughter of the Governor has offered her services as a nurse in the army.

Gus Luigart, of Fayette county, will manufacture his famous burgoo for the army. It will be canned.

In the last 12 years 31 buildings have been destroyed by fire on the farm of W. B. Gassett, in Harrison county.

The school census of Paducah this year will show about 5,000 children of school age an increase of about 500 over last year.

"Bud" Mullins was called to his door by John Vanover at Craftsville, and was shot and killed the result of an old feud.

Gov. Bradley wants to have one colored regiment from Kentucky on the second call for volunteers. The enrolled militia goes under the first call.

Rev. F. G. Bailey, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Glasgow, has been elected Captain of a company just organized to fight against Spain if their services are needed.

Geo. Jones, colored, of Danville, claims to be the boss hemp breaker. One day last week he broke 620 lbs., between sunrise and sunset and doing the work in good style.

A. T. Wood, of Mt. Sterling and O. H. Waddell, of Somerset, have been appointed by Governor Bradley as special Appellate Judges to consider the Appellate Judge salary law.

At Louisville the Humane Society interfered to prevent the marriage of Alfred Morrell, aged 90 years, and Bettie Gilen, aged 31. The old man was begging money for the purpose.

Simon R. Wright, a prominent farmer of Christian county, while directing his hired hands in their work, was attacked with cramp colic and died with convulsions in less than an hour.

An examination of the records of the Frankfort penitentiary discloses the fact that George Nod has served five terms, and his sentence was changed to life under the third conviction clause.

The Secretary of War changed the place of rendezvous for the Kentucky troops from Louisville to Lexington. This action was taken at the instance of the Governor and militia officers of the State.

It is said that Congressman D. G. Colson, of Eleventh District will not run again next fall, having accepted a majorship in the Second Regiment. This would leave Judge Barring, of Laurel, a clear field.

Elisha Grief, of Paducah, aged 45 years, met a horrible death at the Lack singletree factory. He was engaged in cleaning some machinery, when his hand was caught. One arm was wrenched entirely off, and his body horribly mutilated.

A daughter of A. J. Wilcox, of Whitley county, met with a horrible death. She was in a field where brush was burning, when her dress caught fire, and before assistance could reach her the flames had developed her body and she was burned to a crisp.

Hon. D. H. Smith has been declared the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Fourth district in accordance with rule adopted by the Democratic district committee, that if by April 20 there was only one candidate he should be declared the nominee.

A St. Louis lumber concern has received a contract to furnish 5,000,000 feet of hardwood lumber for an Eastern company, says the Breckinridge News. The order is being filled by eight saw mills in this county, and it is one of the largest contracts that have been given to North-western Kentucky mills.

Barnie Spencer, who was in jail at Murray for horse stealing, was visited by his wife. While in his cell the woman committed suicide by cutting her throat with a razor. Spencer cut his throat with a knife and died instantly. The double suicide was committed in the presence of the Jailer, who was powerless to prevent it.

Colonel Benton Halstead has been assigned to Covington as Special Pension Examiner. E. N. Martin, who has hitherto held this office for all Kentucky, will hereafter have the eastern half of the State in his territory. Halstead will have the western half. Colonel Halstead is a brother of Editor Murat Halstead.

The Mt. Olivet advance says Robertson county lost twenty per cent of her population in ten years, mainly because her tobacco land had been exhausted and the tobacco raisers emigrated to the Bluegrass. Since then the farmers left have engaged in fruit raising, diversified farming, all of which has been a benefit to the county. The Advance says that rents are getting so high in the Bluegrass that many of these people are returning to their old homes.

The Court of Appeals has affirmed Judge Morrow's decision in the case of Wellevoss vs Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias of Kentucky. During the meeting of the Grand Lodge at Somerset several years ago Wellenvoss, representing a Louisville lodge, was denied admission because of charges pending against him, one of which was the giving of the password to parties not entitled to it. He sued for an injunction to stop the proceedings of the lodge, but before the case was decided the body had adjourned. However, it was decided against him and he took it to the above court which also gave him the hot end of it.

The Glasgow News tells of an Allen county man who is literally full of business: "Sheriff J. E. Dalton, of Scottville, affords a living example of what one man can perform if possessed of the proper spirit of courage and industry. Besides acceptably filling the office of Sheriff, which within itself is sufficient to occupy all the time allotted to most men, he is actively engaged in buying and shipping stock, operates a flouring mill, is interested in and devotes a portion of his time to one of the largest mercantile houses at Scottville, conducts a farm successfully and is the power behind the throne in other industries of minor importance."

LAWS OF WAR.

For the most part Americans are little familiar with the laws of war.

War has its laws, far more stern than those of peace, it is true, but still laws are more or less rigid.

On this subject the provisions of a little book called "Instructions for the Government for the Armies of the United States in the Field," by Francis Leiber, issued in 1863, by authority of President Lincoln, becomes of interest. A striking paragraph of this reads as follows:

"The ultimate object of all wars is a renewed state of peace. No conventional restriction of the modes adopted to injure the enemy is any longer admitted, but the laws of war impose many limitations and restrictions on principles of honor, faith and justice."

According to this book it is lawful to starve hostile belligerents, whether armed or unarmed; to destroy the lives and limbs of all enemies whose destruction is unavoidable in prosecuting the war; to capture and destroy the enemy's property and his routs or channels of commerce, and to make use of all deceptions that do not involve the breaking of faith.

If our armies should invade Cuba, our Generals would probably proclaim martial law. This does not mean that all civil laws would necessarily cease. It would be in the discretion of the military commanders to say just how far they would go.

Spanish subjects would not necessarily, or even probably, be expelled from the United States, although they would be forbidden to communicate with their friends at home.

It is entirely permissible under the law of war, says this treatise, for an enemy to bombard an unfortified city without giving the least warning of his purpose, although he may, if he so desires, give time for noncombatants to be removed. This is ordinarly done, though if time were in question it might be easily disregarded. Flags, usually yellow, are put up in such cases to mark the location of hospitals, and the enemy is required to avoid firing on them.

Of course, it is an act of infamously bad faith for the attacked town to put up hospital flags though there have been occasions when the enemy has requested a town about to be bombarded to designate museums, libraries and art collections, by flags, so as to avoid their destruction.

The use of poison in any manner or of explosive bullets is absolutely prohibited, and who uses them puts himself out side the pale of civilization. The new dum-dum or mushrooming bullet, seems not to be prohibited though it is open to the same objection as the explosive ball.

Retaliation is allowable in case of dire necessity, though its practice is strongly deprecated by all civilized powers.

The Red Cross is supposed to be absolutely inviolable. All property belonging to the Government of the enemy may be seized and converted to use. Church and school property is generally held to be exempt from permanent confiscation though it may be temporarily used. Museums and art work may be carried off, and held pending the determination of their ownership by treaty of peace.

Private property, including money or other valuables, found on the persons of prisoners, says Mr. Leiber, is not to be confiscated except in case of extreme necessity. As a matter of fact, there will always be some robbery sometimes, but there is less robbery than in times of peace.

Correspondents, sutlers, etc., may be held as prisoners of war. Chaplains, doctors, nurses etc., are not, except in extreme cases. Prisoners may be shot if they attempt to escape, but cannot be legally punished after recaptured.

It is against the usages of modern war to refuse to give quarter except when in extreme danger though being incumbered by prisoners, or in case of troops who masquerade in the enemy's uniform or who fight without authorization by their government.

Flags of truce are inviolable, but firing is not required to cease on their appearance and should the bearer be killed by accident it furnishes no ground for complaint.

According to the United States laws, the persons of the residents of the countries they may invade are inviolate, and any violation of this, especially in case of women, is punishable with the most extreme rigidity. In our Civil War there was no occasion to exercise this last regulation as no case of its violation was ever reported.

It is permissible for the army to levy temporary loans or impose taxes, or billet soldiers in an invaded country.

In 1874 all the countries of Europe held a conference at Brussels and agreed to certain laws of war. The United States was not present and is not bound by these rules, but they are practically identical with those laid down in 1863.

FROM GRANT COUNTY.

[Courier]

There is a better prospect for a wheat crop than for years.

Is it not about time that Williamstown was having a system of electric lights,

It is rumored that there will be more than one marriage in high social life in Williamstown during the early summer months.

Thomas Scroggins, of near Heckin, is very ill from a hurt received in being thrown from a horse last week. He is slowly recovering.

Hurrah! for the Corinth volunteers. Four of her boys have offered their services to Uncle Sam and many more signify their willingness to serve.

Sensational rumors have been as thick in the atmosphere of Williamstown during the last week as war news. Strange things are happening in these parts.

The committee appointed by the County Judge to go before the State Board of Equalization and protest as witnesses against the proposed raise in the assessed valuation of the lands of Grant county were more than ordinarily successful. The Board had proposed to increase the assessed valuation of lands and personal property in Grant county 35 per cent on lands and personalty subject to equalization and 12 per cent on town lots. After wrestling with the Board for an hour or two they finally agreed to fix the raise at 25 per cent on lands and personality, and 10 per cent on town lots. The decrease means a saving to the taxpayers of Grant county of about 4,000 on the 1898 taxes.

FROM OWEN COUNTY.

[Herald.]

Some of the farmers have planted their crop of corn.

Several of the young men talk of volunteering as soon as volunteers are called for. They seem eager for a fight.

F. H. Brown & Son report the sale of four horses at their stables last court day to Brown Bros., Georgetown, at prices ranging from $27.50 to $52.50. Another horse was sold for $65.

Judge J. W. Greene snifled the battle from afar and could contain himself no longer, so he struck out for Chickamauga last week. He is undoubtedly having a good time, and writes back that he can see the old battlefield of thirty-five years ago from his hotel. Hardin Hackett is with him and they have been all over the old historic ground.

[News]

County Court was attended by a fair sized crowd. All interest seemed to be centered in war.

Jo Clifton, son of David Clifton, of New Columbus, is another Owen county boy who will fight Spain in the present war. He is with the 6th U. S. Infantry stationed at Tampa.

Owen county can furnish 1000 recruits, and if Uncle Sam wants them he needs but say so. Every time we hear of Spanish powder being burned there is a little fire started in every true American breast.

The vote on local option at Jonesville Monday went for license 33 to nothing. The town lays in both Grant and Owen counties, but it was incorporated in Owen county.

Several of the stragglers who generally put up at the county jail on county court nights set fire to the jail bedding last Monday night. The cries aroused Uncle Joe, the jailer, who extinguished it. The jailer might fool 'em a little bit hereafter by removing all the bedding, and let them take a naked cell.

Mr. Silas Kersey, living below Monterey was drowned Saturday afternoon while returning from Gestville in a small row boat. He and another man left there together, both under the influence of liquor and it is supposed that they met a steamboat and were capsized by the waves. The man with him, whose name we did not learn, managed to save himself. Mr. Kersey was about 65 years old.

The Courier-Journal does not pretend to know what the Administration's plan of campaign is, but it hopes the rumor that the President expects to starve out the Spaniards in Cuba without bloodshed is only rumor. War is war, and he should not engage in it who shrink from bloodshed. The attempt to starve the Spaniard would be actual starvation of the reconcentrados. We take it that the "peaceful" blockade is to be continued only until an adequate army can be landed in Cuba to attack Havana from the rear, while the fleets assails it from the front.—C.-J.

The First Premium Stallion,

DEXTER B.

Will make the season of 1898 at B. Walton's on the Bellevue pike on Friday, Saturday and Sunday; at Union on Tuesday and Wednesday, and at Burlington on Thursday of each week, at $10 to insure a live colt.

DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.

Dexter is a large bay stallion, 16 1-8 hands high, 10 years old. He has made five races in his class and won four and second in the other—time, 2:25.

Dexter was sired by Mambrino Star; he by Mambrino Prim; he by Bod Dedlock. 1st dam by Ned Forest; 2d dam by Casilus Clay; 3d dam by a thoroughbred race mare. By this mare I have five colts—three mares that can trot a mile in less than 3 minutes and two stallions in 2:20.

I will give a premium of $10 for the best colt of this horses' get to be shown at the Floreuce Fair in 1899.

The Well known Combined Harness and Saddle Stallion,

Jim Crow,

Will make the season of 1898, at my place, 1½ miles east of Burlington, Ky., on the Florence & Burlington pike, at $8 to insure a living colt.

JIM CROW is from the noted Morgan family of horses, tracing back to Justin Morgan of 1792. Jim Crow is 16 hands high, has good style and great power; he has always been very successful in show rings as a general purpose horse, and he transmits these qualities to his colts, as they have also been successful in the show rings

The Celebrated Mule Jack,

DON CARLUS,

Will stand at the same place at $8 to insure a living colt, money due when colt comes or mare parted with.

This Jack is black, 15 hands high, has all the best qualities as a mule jack. He is from imported stock on both sides and is the grandson of Imported Starlight who sold for $3,000. Don Carlus has proven himself a superior breeder, being the sire of some of the best mules in Fayette county, Ky.

I will give a premium in the fall of 1899, of $5 for best mare mule and $5 for best horse mule of this jack's get.

☞Liberal reduction on two or more mares owned by one or in clubs of six mares.

Registered Guernsey bull JESSON 3662, will be found at same place at $1 for a living calf.

Caution to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur. For pedigrees in full or further particulars call on or address

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXIII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, MAY 11, 1898. NO. 29.

Spain's loss since the war began exceeds $7,000,000.

Dewey has been thanked by Congress for his brilliant achievement at Manilla.

Several Kentuckians were with Dewey, but not one of them received a scratch.

The United States it is said will land between 60,000 and 80,000 men in Cuba at once.

It is said that the opinion prevails at all European centers that the war will be over in two weeks.

Dewey says he has Manilla completely at his mercy—can capture it in a few minutes at any time he desires.

The Kentucky troops will be rushed to Chickamauga as rapidly as possible. Not less than 50,000 will be in camp there in a few days.

It is believed that Spaniard spies are doing considerable work in this country, and that California, in particular, will have to suffer by them.

Dewey sunk 10 war ships, 2 torpedo boats, and destroyed nine batteries for the Spaniard, and had not a man killed and only 8 slightly wounded. About 1,200 Spaniards were killed or wounded.

Admiral Sampson has failed to locate the Spaniards, although he has been searching for them for several days. The fleet that was expected at Puerto Rico, was not there. It is feared that the Spanish fleet may appear at some unguarded point of our const.

ONE more victory like Dewey's and Spain will sue for peace.

THE Queen regent wants the powers to assist Spain to let go.

THE race for Congress in this district has taken a back seat for the present.

DEWEY was a Commodore when he won his great victory, but he has since been promoted, and is now a Rear Admiral.

"REMEMBER the Maine," was the battle cry of Dewey's men as they mowed down the Spanish men-of-war on the 1st inst.

RIOT and discord afflict the government at Madrid, and Weyler will have it continue until his ambitions are crushed, or he is made Dictator.

PROCRASTINATION on the part of those who control the officers in command of the army and navy, receives no commendation from the latter and their men. They want to go to the front and make quick work of what they have to do.

WEYLER is a bad man to be at large not only abroad but at home, and the terribly unsettled conditions of affairs in Spain are due to his bloodthirsty disposition. He will be Dictator in Spain in a few weeks unless there is a change in conditions.

THE Kentucky State guards have been mobilized at Lexington. They will be subjected to inspection and several of the boys will get transportation home, on account of their physical unfitness for soldiers. At the early stage of war Uncle Sam is very particular as to the class of men he enlists.

WHEN Commodore Dewey got out of hearing of Washington, D. C., he put his guns to work, and soon had the Dons going, and had Sampson been allowed to carry into execution his desires, the stars and stripe, would have been floating over Morro Castle many days ago. The army and navy have grown restless as a result of dilatory tactics.

As it is Admiral Dewey is a hero, but if the tide of the battle he won had been against him he would have been censured by the high and the low through out this land, and probably court-martialed. Dame fortune occasionally brings to the front great men in a very short space of time, and sometimes she is equally as successful in transferring them from the top of the ladder of fame to obscurity.

THE appointment of Fitz Lee and Joe Wheeler, ex-Confederates, to be Major Generals, is highly gratifying to a very large element in this country besides those who wore the gray in the late unpleasantness, and brings still closer together the two sections that were arrayed one against the other. The war with Spain has already demonstrated beyond cavil that this is one country and one people, ready to march to victory or to defeat under one flag.

SCENES IN THE SOUTH.

A Visit To Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge And Lookout Mountain.

NOTES BY THE WAY SIDE.

That which this column relates in its disconnected way, is the fruits of a day's stroll over some of the several historic localities that surround Chattanooga, Tennessee, and which acquired their conspicuous places in history by the dreadful carnage there wrought during our civil war. To enter into details is not our purpose, as the descriptive powers of the most talented writers fail to convey to the mind anything approaching an accurate conception of nature's sublime panorama there unfolded before the tourist as he passes from point to point, and to appreciate Chattanooga's environments you must see them. They are truly picturesque.

It was about 8 a. m., Sunday morning, the 1st inst., when a Boone county trio held a consultation in the rotunda of the Reed House, Chattanooga, and hastily adopted plans for the day, as they had to begin their journey towards the north at 9:15 p. m. J. M. Lassing was delegated to go out among the local Jehus (and they are numerous) and secure a turnout to be used during the day. Lassing was not long in making a dicker, and reported that in war times war prices invariably prevail, and that he had purchased a rig, and the only information he could give in regard to the vehicle was that it had rubber tires, and he was given a unanimous vote of thanks for the efficient manner in which he had discharged the difficult duty assigned him.

Shortly after 8 o'clock the party drew up in front of Mr. E. Y. Chapins' beautiful home, when Charles Schramm waited upon Mr. C., who was not ready to occupy the place in the carriage assigned to him, but suggested that we visit Orchard Knob, and the Driving Park, each of which is near his home, by which time he would be ready to accompany us. Orchard Knob is within the city limits, is a conical elevation of land of no considerable dimensions, and was Gen. Grant's headquarters during the battle of Missionary Ridge. It belongs to the Government and is being beautified, and when the work now in progress is completed, Orchard Knob will be a place that a visitor to Chattanooga should not fail to see. At the Driving Park several companies of Tennessee militia were located, and were enjoying real camp life. Many of these soldiers are frail specimens to attempt to contend with the hardships of camp life, to say nothing of the greater trials of forced marches, &c; but they are anxious to hear the musket's keen crack and the cannon's sullen roar—to leave their home and dear ones to serve their country on the bloody field.

Returning for the fourth member of our party we found Mr. Chapin ready, and, to add to the pleasures of the day, his wife had prepared and placed in his possession a basket containing an excellent lunch. The party now headed for Chickamauga Park, the field upon which one of the greatest battles during the civil war was fought. This Park lies in Georgia, eight miles from Chattanooga. The thoroughfare leading to it is an excellent road, and was occupied by vehicles its entire length, while the bicyclists were flitting by ever and anon. It looked as though everybody and all his neighbors were bent on spending the day at Chickamauga, but the rush to that old battle field that day was very unlike that from the same place one day over a quarter of a century since. Under ordinary circumstances the heat and excessive dust would have rendered our ride decidedly uncomfortable, but our attention was drawn from these annoyances by the numerous points of interest located by Mr. Chapin, who recited the thrilling incidents that will, for all time to come, cause them to be awe inspiring.

Chickamauga Park embraces 6,000 acres of land, nearly every square foot of which drank of the blood of as brave men as any country ever produced. It was purchased by the government and converted into a national park, that it may always be held sacred to the memory of the valiant men who forfeited their lives there in defense of principles they cherished more than life itself. The only change in the appearance of the battle field from the day brother met brother and father met son there in deadly battle, that wrought by the hand of [illegible] construction of a few roads [illegible] erection of the several monuments and tablets to mark the spot where some distinguished commander fell or opposing commands met and were nearly annihilated.

Since the government acquired ownership of the land, it has improved the old roads and made numerous new ones, so any part of the field is easy of access, and as you wind around over the hills, and across the valley, viewing the numerous batteries now occupying the positions from which they dealt death years ago, considered in connection with the several thousands of soldiers encamped there, you almost realize what a battle means.

Owing to the nature of the soil the open fields in the park are destitute of grass, and the timber that skirts the river and fringes the ridges is a scrubby growth. Several log houses, or, rather, huts, around which the blue and the grey struggled for supremacy, are yet interesting relics of the bloody past, and to those who participated in the exciting scenes enacted about them, are eloquent reminders. These houses are as carefully protected as the fine monuments that have been erected by several of the States that had men in the battle.

Ohio, Indiana and Illinois are the leading States in the matter of monuments, and every monument is a credit to the State erecting it. By means of these monuments and the numerous tablets, a good history of the famous battle can be obtained. Every inscription is of interest, no matter as to the action of what command it relates, as each and every one goes to form a thrilling entirety. The monument marking the place where Gen. Lytle was killed, occupies a commanding position well to the front, while the pyramid of cannon balls that indicate where Gen. Thomas had his headquarters, occupies a considerable depression in the ground with a towering hill between it and where the battle was waged. The General evidently exercised good judgment in locating his headquarters, as the route from there back to Chattanooga was the one over which the best time could be made in case of an emergency.

Several thousands of the United States regulars, infantry and cavalry were camping in the park and gave it a martial appearance. These soldiers, both white and black, are model men, physically, and are provided with the best arms modern times afford. Some of them have had considerable experience on the frontier, and claimed to be very anxious to go to the front in the scrap with Spain, and assert, in apparent good faith, that there were enough soldiers in the park to whip the Dons

Owing to limited time it was impossible to cover the entire park, and a departure was reluctantly taken to visit Missionary Ridge, at which place the Confederates were so unexpectedly dislodged by the Federals. The Confederates occupied the summit of this ridge and felt perfectly secure as they harrassed the enemy at its foot and in the surrounding country, but one day the Federals, under General Grant, concluded to attempt what had been considered an impossibility—to climb the mountain and drive the Johnnies away. They happened to select a most opportune time, as the force on the hill had been weakened to reenforce another point. Up the hill the blue coats started and climbed and continued to climb despite the showers of rebel bullets that greeted them, until the position but a few hours before considered impregnable, was theirs, the Confederates having retreated precipitately. To ascend Missionary Ridge when not being shot at is a great task, and the men who did it while subjected to a galling fire were more than brave.

The National Cemetery was the next place visited. This is the last resting place thousands of the Federal soldiers who composed the Army of the Cumberland. It is a beautiful place and is frequently visited by persons yet in search of friends who were last heard of in the service in the vicinity of Chattanooga, and many a poor woman has read the inscriptions on the silent marble slabs, or inquired, in vain, of the keeper for information which she hoped would lead to the discovery of the grave of a missing husband or a son. The most affecting appeal to the visitor's sympathy comes from that section of the cemetery where the modest slab bears simply a number and the word "unknown." There are thousands of these graves, and they receive the same tender attention that is accorded the others.

Lookout Mountain was not reached until late in the afternoon, consequently many of its attractions were necessarily slighted. That portion of the mountain top known as Point Lookout belongs to the government, and the Inn and adjacent grounds belong to a widow named Whiteside. She has constructed an inclined plain by which to reach the top of the mountain, and it is now the popular route with those who would not likely refuse an invitation to participate in a balloon ascension. The incline is very long, and for a considerable distance before the car arrives at the power house on top of the mountain its course appears to be perpendicular. It is a ride a person is anxious to begin but more anxious to conclude, and friend Lassing was assured, before starting up, that the brakes on the car were in good working order and amply able to control its movements in case the cable should part.

At the top of the mountain is located the Mountain Inn, a magnificent building of immense dimensions, and a very popular hostlery with tourists. From the top of this mountain, besides being able to see seven States, there is an enchanting view of the Cumberland river, the city of Chattanooga and the very large valley. Standing on Point Lookout, the roof of the Lookout House is but a few feet below, the building occupying a picturesque position on the mountain side, and reached by a narrow gauge railway as it pursues its tortuous route to the summit of the mountain, racking the nerves of its passengers who hold their breath, as it shoots the sharp curves in its narrow passage carved out of the side of the solid stone thousands of feet above the valley. Schramm said he made one trip over that road, and his nerves had never returned to their normal condition.

The engagement known as the battle above the clouds, is generally believed to have occurred on top of Lookout Mountain, which was not the case, the battle being fought on the side of the mountain a considerable distance from the top, and by no means above the clouds. The name was the offspring of some romantic mind, and is misleading.

The trip down the mountain was made at 6:30, and thus ended a very busy and profitable day of sight-seeing. Here it is proper to add that the day's jaunt was rendered much more interesting by Mr. Chapin's presence than it otherwise would have been. He is perfectly familiar with the history of every point of interest in Chattanooga and vicinity, and he has the happy faculty of imparting his information in an impressive manner. It is not necessary to say that the quartette did not become so interested as to neglect the bountiful lunch prepared by Mrs. Chapin. It received due attention at the proper hour, and had a most refreshing effect, and the cordial greeting accorded the party upon its return to Mr. Chapin's before visiting the mountain, was of the famous Kentucky type, and will be long remembered.

Chattanooga is located on the Tennessee river and near the foot of Lookout mountain and is growing in importance. Her commercial interests have been extended very considerably in the last few years, and her people believe she has a great future in the commercial world. She has many large factories now in operation with prospects of several more in the near future. The people expect from 20,000 to 25,000 soldiers to be quartered at Chattanooga Park during the summer, and their presence will benefit the town very largely in a financial way.

STATE NEWS.

At Frankfort Officer Gordon shot Thos. Dunn, a negro who was resisting arrest and had fired several shots.

Near Creech, Harlin county, a vicious mule kicked Wm. Griffith's 6-year-old daughter, killing her instantly.

At Mt. Sterling James Mitchell quareled with his wife and struck her with his fist over the heart, killing her instantly.

Thomas Parker, living in the northern part of Scott county, near Corinth, was found in the outskirts of that village Sunday evening by Geo. F. Wright, hanging to the limb of a tree by a piece of hickory bark. When discovered life was extinct. The bark was about 4 feet long and the dead man had one hand on the tree and one foot on the fence. Parker had been mentally deranged for some time.—Georgetown Times.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

New York has acquired a new county, making 61 in all. It is called Nassau, and contains 352 square miles taken from Queens county.

The test of a man's condition after dinner at a certain college used to be to make him say "Cissie Fitzgerald" three times. Now, however, it is to make him say "reconcentrado" once.

Seven troupes of mandolin and guitar players, called Spanish students, and really Spaniards, were traveling in this country when the war talk began. They have all transformed themselves for professional purposes into Italians and Mexicans.

Prof. Benjamin Howard is the only American who has been able thus far to reach the Siberian island of Saghalien, where the worst Russian criminals are sent. He asserts that the commonly accepted tales of the horrors of this prison are exaggerated.

Gaust is the smallest republic in the world. It has an area of one mile and a population of 140. It has existed since 1648, and is recognized by both Spain and France. It is situated on the flat top of a mountain in the Pyrennes, and has a president, who is elected by the Council of Twelve.

Chemists of the Glueose Sugar Refining company in Chicago claim to have discovered a process for vulcanizing the oil from corn in such a manner as to produce rubber. They say this will revolutionize the rubber trade and give them control of at least the manufacture of bicycle tires.

The oldest bank note probably in existence is preserved in the Asiatic museum, St. Petersburg. It dates from the year 1399 B. C., and bears the name of the imperial bank, date and number of issue, signature of a mandarin, and contains a list of punishment inflicted for forgery of notes.

Just as those Nebraska volunteer women were preparing to take the train for the rendezvous at Chickamanga it was discovered that the first lieutenant's war gown was an old tennis suit made over, and in the wild confusion that followed this exposure the company decided to disband.

So many people talk about Spain being a great fighter on the ocean. Just ask those persons to name some of the great naval battles in which Spain was victorious. There is not one case since the engagement with the Turkish fleet in Lepanto gulf, three centuries ago. That is the last big battle they ever won at sea.

Rev. Charles E. Stowe, the son of Harriet Beecher Stowe, has just given to the Connecticut Historical society the petition started by the duchess of Sutherland and signed by thousands of English women, asking the women of America to do all possible towards securing the abolition of slavery in this country.

Scientists are wondering what great invention will come out of this war. The war of 1812, they say, developed steam power, the war with Mexico developed the revolver, and the war of 1861 developed the ironclad. Each one has been a revolution in methods. What revolution are we to have as a result of the present war?

The important news comes from Danbury, Conn., where 80 young women employed in a hat factory have given notice "that they will go to war in place of the local militiamen if the latter will turn over their uniforms to them." If the governor of Connecticut wants a full representation from his state we do not see how he could do better than to accept this offer.

It gives us pleasure to call attention to the regular daily addition to the rumors of the war. Forgetful of the fact that St. Vincent, Cape Verde islands, is a few hundreds of miles south of Havana, a Chicago paper announces that the Spanish flotilla "has sailed south from St. Vincent, presumably en route to Cuba." And yet geography is taught even in the primary schools.

Jose Mundet, a rich Spaniard residing in New York, has renounced his allegiance to Spain and become a citizen of the United States. He said, in his examination before the court, that the brutal policy pursued by his country in Cuba had destroyed the last vestige of love and respect for her and that henceforth he will fight against his native land if his adopted country should need his services.

John Sherman's resignation as secretary of state was expected. He is entitled to honorable retirement from public life in which he has been a conspicuous figure since he was a delegate to the national whig convention held in Philadelphia in 1848 to nominate a presidential candidate, who was Gen. Taylor. Sherman was secretary of that convention and Schuyler Colfax was his assistant. From that time John Sherman was very much in public life.

The vexed question of the Alaska boundary may be submitted to arbitration. Joseph Chamberlain, the British colonial secretary, is authority for the statement that the two governments are considering the question of such a reference. It is to be hoped that a settlement can be reached speedily. Americans may not be much interested in the question just at present, but the continuance of the dispute is a source of no little friction and a menace to the friendly relations now existing between this country and Great Britain.

ANOTHER CAPTURE.

The French Steamer Lafayette Seized Off Havana, But Was Released by Order of the Government.

KEY WEST, May 7.—The big French liner Lafayette of Santanzarie with a full complement of passengers and a general cargo bound from Coruna, Spain, April 23, was captured off Havana shortly before sundown Thursday night by the Annapolis. The Lafayette was heading directly into Havana and was captured only after an exciting chase. After being boarded once by an officer of the Annapolis she attempted to run for it, but was again compelled to heave to. The Wilmington, Newport and Morrill participated in the capture. For over two hours Capt. Hunter, of Annapolis, the temporary flag officer, and Capt. Todd of the Wilmington, exchanged signals. After the examination of the Frenchman's papers had been made a prize crew from the Annapolis was placed aboard of her and she was sent to Key West under the escort of the Wilmington. A very delicate international question is thought to be involved because of the long consultation which resulted in sending her to Key West.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Any international difficulty connected with the seizure of the French steamer Lafayette has been removed by the prompt release of the vessel immediately upon notice of her capture reaching the state department. The explanation for this action on the part of the administration is given in the statement which follows and which was issued from the white house Friday night:

"The Lafayette was released in pursuance of orders which were issued by the navy department previous to her seizure, but which had not been received by the commanding officers of the vessels that made the capture. The facts are that on April 29 the French embassy made an informal inquiry as to whether the Lafayette, which left St. Nazaire, France, for Vera Cruz, by way of Havana, before war was declared or information of the blockade received, would be allowed to land at Havana certain passengers, her mail bags and the dispatch bag of the consul general of France, and to take some French passengers on board. An assurance was given that if this privilege should be granted, the steamer would be forbidden by the French consul to land goods.

"The matter was duly considered, and it was decided that, without regard to the strict law of blockade, and as an act of courtesy, the request of the French government should be acceded to. Orders were accordingly sent on the second day of May. When information was received of the capture of the steamer and of her having been brought to Key West, those orders were communicated to the captors with instructions to release the steamer and to see that the orders were duly delivered, so that they might be carried into effect. No demand was made either by or on behalf of the French government, directly or indirectly, for the steamer's release.

"The Wilmington escorted the Lafayette to Havana Friday night."

RIOTING IN SPAIN.

It Threatens to Break Into a Revolutionary War—The Sagasta Ministry Afraid to Act.

NEW YORK, May 7.—A special to the Journal and Advertiser from Madrid says: Riot still ramps and raves through Spain, and continually threatens to break into revolutionary war.

More and more it is apparent that the Sagasta ministry is afraid to act heroically. The mobs are temporized with where it is feared that shooting will lead to more serious disturbances.

In Gijon, province of Oviedo, the killing of women by the troops during the rioting of the fisher-women and tobacco girls has caused a tremendous demonstration. The Guardia Civil has joined the rioters, many of the guards having sweethearts among the disaffected women.

The Octroi duties were merely an excuse for the outburst. The price of bread and the interference with the tobacco work was enough to start the women, but the men were incited from below—by agitators who are working for the downfall of the government.

And the Gijon massacre, instead of putting down the riot, has increased its violence. Cries against the throne are open. Mutterings of revenge against the soldiery are on all lips. One party of rioters has attacked the Casa Blanca and almost demolished it. The infantry fears to venture from the barracks.

The artillery made an attempt to capture the gun carried off by deserters the day before, but their effort was half-hearted and they retired under a shower of hot water, stones, dead animals and addled eggs.

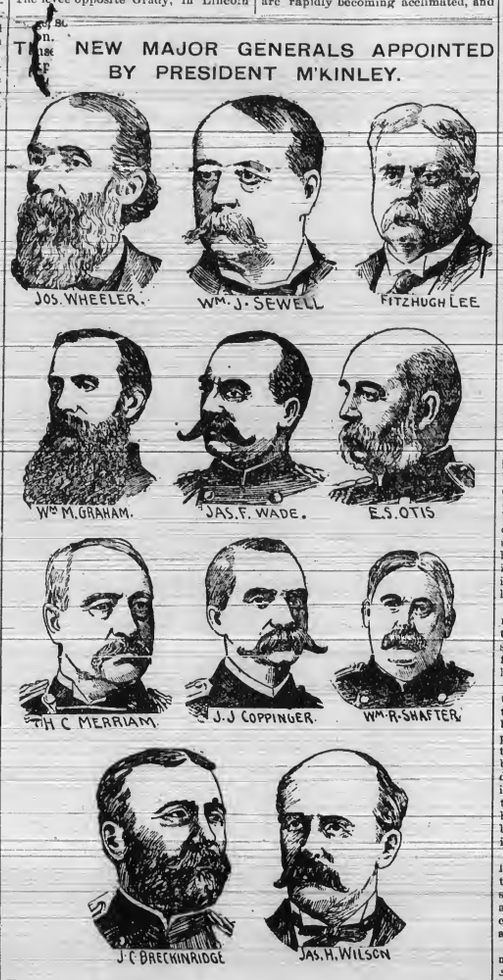
The gun has been taken into the back country, and desperate men are collecting around it, and a band of cutthroat bandits, who are ripe for spoil. Weyler's secret emmissaries are whispering that he is the friend of the poor, and that he will make bread cheap, reduce taxes and humble the hated Americans.

Cartagena bubbles and seethes with revolution. Thirty miles away in Murcia a great army of miners and their sympathizers, estimated at from 7,000 to 10,000 men and women, has been tumultuously shouting "Death to the thieves!" "Down with Sagasta!" "Who stole our tax money?"

The Volunteer Army.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—It was announced at the war department Friday that the volunteer army will consist of seven corps, each in command of a major general, but that nothing had yet been settled as to their organization and places of rendezvous.

Gen. Walcutt's Funeral.



COLUMBUS, O., May 7.—The funeral Friday of Gen. Charles C. Walcutt, of the war of '61, was attended by a brigade of Ohio troops, G. A. R., civic orders and public officials. It was the largest public funeral in many years.

FLOOD IN ARKANSAS.

Incalculable Damage to Property and an Unknown Number of Lives Lost—Situation Growing Worse.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 7.—The Arkansas river is on a rampage and has left its bank, doing incalculable damage to property and causing the loss of an unknown number of lives. The situation is serious now and is growing worse every hour.

At 6 o'clock the gage showed 24.1 feet at Little Rock, a foot above the danger line and was rising very fast. The high water is increasing at Webber Falls and the Verdigris and Illinois river are rushing great torrents into the Arkansas. At Van Buren miles of country are inundated, farms in some instances being eight feet under water. Several farm houses have been swept away above Little Rock and in one instance an entire family were drowned. Below the city the situation is very alarming and many of the big cotton plantations have already sustained heavy damage. The levee opposite Grady, in Lincoln county, has broken and that town is threatened with destruction.

A boat sent down the river to rescue the people living along the river below Pine Bluff is unable to make the return trip. About 100 people were rescued. At one place the rescuers learned that a family of four were entirely cut off by the water and were in great danger, but they could not be rescued on account of the swift current.

At Newport White river is on a big boom and is rising two inches an hour.

THE SPANIARDS

Reported to Have Beheaded an American Major and Two English Newspaper Men in Cuba.

TAMPA, Fla., May 7.—Word was received here Friday that Maj. W. D. Smith, who was guiding several newspaper men to the camp of Gen. Gomez, had been captured by the Spaniards and executed. Col. Dorst, one of the three American officers recently sent to confer with the insurgents, brought the news. Maj. Smith and his party landed near Cardenas April 25. He was accompanied by Mr. Nichols and Mr. Hare, who represented English papers. Nothing so far has been learned of the fate of the newspaper men, who were British subjects, but it is feared they were killed. According to the information brought by Col. Dorst, which was gained from a Cuban officer, the Spanish troops beheaded Smith as soon as they discovered he was an American.

INVASION OF CUBA.

Preparations for Embarkation of United States Troops Almost Complete—Seven Transports at Port Tampa.

TAMPA, Fla., May 7.—Preparations for the embarkation of the United States troops are rapidly being completed, seven of the transports to be used in carrying the soldiers and their horses and supplies to Cuba are now at Port Tampa. They are the Comal, Alamo, Berkshire, Florida, Whitehall, Seneca and Decatur. H. Spiteering is the last named arriving Sailed from Baltimore. Nearly all of the ships have been given a full load of coal. The Florida, Berkshire and Allegheny had a large force of carpenters working on them all day erecting stalls for the accommodation of the cavalry and artillery horses and the pack mules and will be in readiness for loading by Saturday.

Rations enough for 7,000 men for 30 days are expected to arrive Saturday. In spite of the intense heat the men were given long drills Friday. They are rapidly becoming acclimated, and when the time comes for shipment as bronzed and trained a lot of men as ever shouldered guns will break camp and embark.

Blockading Squadron, Off Havana.

May 7.—There has been a feeling of unrest in the blockading squadron and some natural criticism, owing to the failure to receive orders to occupy some port of Cuba. The supposed nature of the order recently received by Rr. Adm. Sampson has lessened this tension.

If the advantageous circumstances, what present render Sampson's fleet so fit to fight would only continue indefinitely, naval officers could possibly find some explanation for the delay, but it is urged against this view, that every 24 hours spent at sea detracts somewhat from the fighting capacity of up-to-date warships.

Then, too, in a short time the rainy season will commence, and military operations will then be conducted at a disadvantage. At present there are many places suitable for landing troops under the guns of the fleet when the danger of yellow fever is nil, where a naval and military base can be easily established, and whence a fair sized army can operate with every chance of success. No doubt of ultimate victory is harbored by any naval officer, nor does any petty jealousy of the army prompt criticism of the campaign.

Hostilities Against Gomez.

MADRID, May 7.—An official dispatch from Havana says: "Since April 30 hostilities have been pursued against Gomez with the greatest activity and vigor.

DEAD SPANIARDS.

Several Killed by Shells From the Wilmington's Guns Near Mariel.

Communication With the Insurgents Established After a Sharp Fight in Which 16 Spaniards Were Killed and Several Wounded.

KEY WEST, Fla., May 6.—The United States dispatch boat Leyden, sent to Cuba by the United States government early in the week, returned here from Cuba at 4 o'clock Thursday morning with four of the six Cuban scouts who left here on a mission last Monday. The other scouts were landed with those who have returned, and communication was established with the insurgent forces under Gen. Pedro Delgado.

The Leyden was twice fired upon. She bears bullet marks on her smokestack. The Spaniards who opened fire on the dispatch boat were driven back by the insurgents.

NEW YORK, May 6.—A Key West special to the Evening Post, dated Thursday, says:

The government tug Leyden, which returned here Thursday morning, successfully landed scouts and ammunition for the insurgents under the guns of the gun boat Wilmington. The Spanish cavalry and infantry were repulsed three times. Three rifle bullets went through the smokestack of the Leyden. The Spanish loss is not considered to have been large.

It is officially reported that none of the Americans or Cubans of the expedition were killed or wounded.

Four Spanish war ships are reported to be off Barbadoes prepared to intercept the battle ship Oregon. A naval battle is expected.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The Mail and Express, Key West correspondent cables the following account of the landing of a small expedition from the tug Leyden in Cuba.

The tug left Key West Monday afternoon. At daybreak Wednesday her men made the first attempt to land an interpreter to confer with a party of Cuban insurgents who were waiting on the beach. While this conversation was being held the people of the Leyden discovered about 50 Spanish cavalrymen coming down from a hill toward the shore, as if reconnoitering.

The Leyden signalled danger to the insurgents and the latter took to the bushes. Up to that time eight cases of Winchester rifles had been landed. Seeing the cavalrymen the Leyden's boat returned alongside lying about a quarter of a mile off shore. The cavalrymen leveled rifles at the tug but hesitated about firing. The insurgents in the meantime had opened fire, driving the cavalry back up the hill, the latter firing as they fled.

The cavalry returned shortly with reinforcements. They paid no attention to the insurgents, but began a sharp fusillade at the tug. Bullets flew around the tug so fast that the lookout aft came down.

The Leyden, seeing no chance to land the ammunition just then, picked up the men she had landed and steamed back to the flagship off Havana, reporting it would be impossible to land the cargo unless protected. The gunboat Wilmington was immediately ordered to help the Leyden. On returning to the landing point the Wilmington held off shore about a mile and a half, the Leyden going in close to the beach. The tug was signaled by the insurgents that the coast was clear.

Manned by four men, a boat then left the Leyden with ammunition and two large boxes of dynamite. When a short distance from the beach a man aloft on the Leyden sang out that the cavalry were coming down to the beach again in strong force.

The Leyden then signalled the Wilmington and the latter came a trifle closer to shore, and with stern facing the beach, fired four shots from her four-inch rapid-fire gun. The cavalrymen retreated and the boat's cargo was landed.

While waiting to attack the cavalrymen the Wilmington fired a blockhouse further down the beach. There were some fifty Spanish regulars sitting on top of this blockhouse watching the Leyden and the insurgents.

The Wilmington's first shot went wild. The 12th and last shot was a bull's eye. When the smoke cleared away the block house, the men and all had disappeared as though swallowed up. The Spanish colors that had flown from the house were seen high up in a tree, where a shot had driven them.

The Leyden and Wilmington returned to the flag ship, and the former then came here. There are dozens of holes in the tug's smokestack from the cavalrymen's bullets.

May Wheat $1.50.

CHICAGO, May 6.—May wheat rose 20 cents on the board of trade Thursday. It closed at $1.50 per bushel, the highest point since 1888. The excitement in the wheat pit during the closing hour was intense. At 12 o'clock it dropped back to $1.37. Leiter announced that he sold two million bushels of No. 3 red wheat to a French syndicate at $1.47 per bushel.

Fast Time to Colorado.

A new through Sleeping Car line between St. Louis and Colorado Springs will be established over the Wabash Rock Island Short Line, May 15th, 1898. The time will be the fastest made with through service between these two points by many hours. A through Sleeper will leave St. Louis on Wabash train No. 3, at 9.20 a. m., arriving at Colorado Springs the next morning at 11.00, with a direct connection for Denver, arriving at 11.30 a. m. This is the fastest regular through service ever established between St. Louis and Colorado. Returning, the Sleeper will leave Colorado Springs at 2.45 p. m., and arrive at St. Louis the next evening at 6.15.

Patrons of this line will avoid the only unpleasant feature heretofore attendant on Colorado travel, inasmuch as the trip through Missouri's fertile fields will now be by daylight, and the unattractive portion of Kansas will be traversed during the night, with the mountain scenery to greet the tourists in the morning.

The fast time of this line will naturally commend the Wabash Route to intending Colorado tourists.

Particulars will be gladly furnished on application.

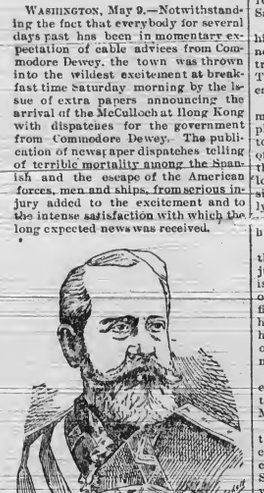
OFFICIAL REPORT



Commodore Dewey Sends An Account of the Engagement at Manila.

SPANISH SHIPS WERE DESTROYED

One Hundred and Fifty of the Enemy Were Killed and Many More Badly Wounded.

Our Ships Were Not Injured and Not An American Was Killed—The President Cabies Congratulations—Dewey Acting Admiral.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Notwithstanding the fact that everybody for several days past has been in momentary expectation of cable advices from Commodore Dewey, the town was thrown into the wildest excitement at breakfast time Saturday morning by the issue of extra papers announcing the arrival of the McCulloch at Hong Kong with dispatches for the government from Commodore Dewey. The publication of news paper dispatches telling of terrible mortality among the Spanish and the escape of the American forces, men and ships, from serious injury added to the excitement and to the intense satisfaction with which the long expected news was received.

VICE ADMIRAL MONTEJO.
(The Spanish Commander Who Suffered Defeat at Manila.)

There was an instant rush of newspaper men to the navy department to secure further information from official sources, and perhaps dismayed by the number and impetuosity of the newspaper contingent, the officials of the navigation bureau, where cipher dispatches are transcribed and translated, promptly closed and locked their doors against invasion. One of the officers of the bureau had been on duty every moment of the 24 hours for several weeks past waiting to receive cablegrams of importance.

Secretary Long at 10:30 o'clock read the following to newspaper men as Dewey's dispatch:

MANILA, May 1.—The squadron arrived at Manila at daybreak this morning, immediately engaged the enemy and destroyed the following Spanish vessels: Reina Christina, Castilla, Ulloa, Isle de Cuba, General Lezo, the Duero, Correo, Velasco, Mindanao, one transport and the water battery at Cavite. The squadron is uninjured and only a few men were slightly wounded. The only means of telegraphing is to the American consul at Hong Kong. I shall communicate with him. DEWEY.

It is said at the navy department that advices also show that Dewey's forces were not sufficient to make a landing but that this in no way interfered with the complete control he exercises over the city and its fortifications.

Shortly before noon Secretary Long left the navy department for the white house and an official confirmation was made that a second dispatch from Commore Dewey had been received. The secretary carried this with him to the white house, and pending the conference with the president there was intense eagerness among the waiting crowd to learn the contents of the second dispatch. Senators who saw the president secured brief intimation that Dewey's victory was overwhelming and that he had a large number of Spanish prisoners in his possession. At 12:30 Secretary Long came from the president's private room, carrying the copy of the second message from Dewey, but in order to give equal facilities to the great crowd of people waiting to gain information he held it until he reached his private office. Then his secretary, Mr. Finney, brought the message to the large reception room where a hundred or more anxious newspaper correspondents and curious observers took the dispatch as Mr. Finney read it. It was as follows:

"CAVITE, May 4, 1898.

"LONG, Secretary Navy: I have taken possession of the naval station at Cavite, Philippine Islands, and destroyed its fortifications. Have destroyed fortifications at the bay entrance, paroling the garrison. I control the bay completely and can take the city at any time. The squadron in excellent health and spirits. The Spanish loss not fully known, but very heavy; 150 killed, including the captain of the Reina Christina. I am assisting in protecting the Spanish sick and wounded. Two hundred and fifty sick and wounded in hospitals within our lines. Much excitement at Manila. Will protect foreign residents.

DEWEY."

As the last word of the dispatch was uttered, several of the onlookers, including Senator Hanna, called for three cheers for Dewey. They were given with a will, and the usual official serenity of the navy department for the moment was broken by a round of cheers which fairly shook the building.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—By direction of the president, Secretary Long sent the following cable dispatch to Commodore Dewey: Washington, May 7.—Dewey, Manila: The president, in the name of the American people, thanks you and your officers and men for your splendid achievement and overwhelming victory. In recognition he has appointed you acting admiral, and will recommend a vote of thanks to you by congress. (Signed) Long.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Secretary Long, after reading the dispatch from Commodore Dewey, said: "It was a most wonderful naval achievement and reflects the greatest credit on our officers and men. The fire from our ships must have been so effective that the Spanish were in a manner stunned. They could not recover themselves until the battle was lost."

Secretary Alger said after the cabinet meeting that he hoped to send 10,000 troops to Manila, to sail from San Francisco in a few days.

Gen. Miles says that he can send as high as 10,000 men, if so many are needed, to Commodore Dewey, if the transports are ready at that time. Troops will be sent as soon as they can be gotten transport.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The department is almost bewildered by the completeness of Commodore Dewey's victory. The officials, until they got the official dispatches, could not conceive the possibility of our not suffering the loss of any men. It seemed an impossibility. The official report is perfectly clear, however, Commodore Dewey stating that only a few of his men were hurt.

Not less remarkable than this was the fact that our vessels escaped injury. Our fleet smashed into the Spanish so quickly and with such impetuosity that he smothered the Spanish fire and had them in a bewildered and helpless condition before they could do his fleet damage. He is in possession of the island and is secure, but needs more men.

LONDON, May 9.—The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail gives the following details of the battle at Manila:

"There was an act of treachery on the part of a Spanish ship which lowered her flag and then fired at a boat's crew sent to take possession of her. She did not hit the boat, but our guns were turned on her and tore her to pieces. She went to the bottom with all on board. Several vessels close in shore behaved in the same way and shared her fate.

"The Spaniards had fought to their last gasp and now surrendered. They had been announcing that the Americans would kill every one in Cavite, and when we landed a long procession of priests and sisters of mercy met the boat from the Petrel and begged our men not to injure the wounded in the hospitals. As a matter of fact the Americans rescued some 200 Spaniards and sent them ashore. All the Spanish vessels are destroyed, with 2,000 men. The Spanish estimate gives their loss at 1,000 killed and wounded. In the Reina Maria Christina 200 men are believed to have been killed or drowned.

LONDON, May 9.—The Hong Kong correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says: "Manila is helpless and surrounded by the insurgents. The blockade is effective. The Americans have occupied Corregidor island and Commodore Dewey has exercised consummate judgment and rare ability in maintaining a distance at once safe for his fleet and deadly to the Spaniards."

The Times says: "The destruction of the Spanish fleet was complete, as complete as any achievement recorded in naval annals. Commsdore Dewey showing himself worthy alike of the great traditions of the United States navy and of his kinship with the race that produced Nelson."

The Standard remarks:

"Commodore Dewey has evidently taken as his model for dispatch writing that laconic British sailor of famous memory who reported a decisive naval victory thus: 'Engaged enemy yesterday. Captured ships as per margin.'"

FOURTEEN KILLED.

The Municipal Buildings at Linares, Spain Sacked by a Mob—The Soldiers Fire on the Crowd.

LONDON, May 9.—A special from Madrid says the municipal buildings at Linares has been sacked and the crowd fired on by soldiers, 14 were killed and 60 wounded.

TERRIFIC CANNONADING.

It is Said to Have Been Heard Off Monte Christi—A Battle is Thought to Have Been Fought.

PLATA, San Domingo, May 9.—Dominican officials report heavy cannonading off the north of Monte Christi, about 50 miles from here. It is believed here that Rr. Adm. Sampson's squadron is engaging the Spanish Cape Verde fleet. The firing began about 9 o'clock Sunday morning and was terrific.

No American fleet was due to arrive in Porto Rican waters Saturday afternoon. The Spanish fleet was expected at about the same time.

Sampson came here with orders to find the fleet and reduce it. He will, after destroying the Spanish ships, begin a strict blockade, and, if necessary, will bombard and capture Puerto Rico.

The Americans Wounded at Manila.

HONG KONG, May 9.—Following are the Americans wounded in the battle of Manila, all of the Baltimore: Lieut. F. W. Kellog, Ensign U. E. Irwin. Enlisted men: Bartlow, Budinger, Covert, O'Keefe, Recciordilla and Sullgrove. None seriously.

NAVAL BATTLE.

The Cruiser Montgomery Said to Have Been Attacked by a Spanish War Ship Off Port Au Prince, Hayti.

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti, May 9.—The United States cruiser Montgomery, Commander C. A. Converse, is supposed to have been engaged with a much larger Spanish cruiser Saturday night, northwest of Cape Haytien, a seaport town of Hayti, on its north coast, 90 miles north of Port au Prince.

The French steamer Olinde Rodrigues, from Havre, on a trip to Haytian ports, was at Cape Haytien, a Spanish warship is said to have been watching her, mistaking the steamer for an American vessel. When the Olinde Rodrigues left Cape Haytien the Spanish war ship approached her and allowed her to continue on to this port on recognizing the French flag.

The United States cruiser Montgomery left Cape Haytien soon afterwards and the Spaniard, which is presumed to have been watching for her, is said to have pursued the American cruiser, both of them putting on full steam. The Spaniard according to the story told by the crew of the French steamer, gained in the pursuit, which was witnessed from the bridge of the Olinde Rodrigues by the officers of that vessel.

The two war ships, they say, went in the same direction, with the Spaniard behind. The latter appeared to be a formidable vessel and much larger and faster than the Montgomery.

By nightfall, it is added, four discharges of cannon were heard, which were believed to be the result of the Spaniard firing upon the American war ship. Darkness, it is further said, prevented any further observations being made, though the French officers say the moon was so bright that the battle could have been continued, especially as the sea was beautifully calm, only a mild trade wind blowing from the land. Strange to say, it appears that all the passengers of the Olinde Rodrigues were below at supper while this exciting incident was occurring, but the officers of the steamer which arrived here Sunday say they are confident the Montgomery was overmatched and that her only means of escaping was to run close in to shore during the darkness.

It is Denied.

CAPE HAYTIEN, May 9.—A story sent out from here to the effect that the United States cruiser Montgomery had been in an engagement with a Spanish cruiser absolutely untrue.

AT PORTO RICO.

Matters There Grow More Serious Daily—Annexationists Anxiously Awaiting the Arrival of the American Fleet.

ST. THOMAS, Danish West Indies, April 26.—Matters at Porto Rico are growing daily more serious. Refugees who have reached here from the Spanish island say that great distress prevails there.

As no news is given out on the island, the residents of Porto Rico implore their friends to keep them posted upon current events. The Spanish government has stopped all code messages and communication of any kind is most difficult.

It is now said that the annexationists are growing daily in numbers and that the revolutionary party of Porto Rico is awaiting the arrival of the first American troops or the blockading of the ports to rise against the Spanish government.

Military activity at San Juan de Porto Rico and at other places continues unabated. Volunteers are being armed in large numbers, and it is reported some thirty thousand men have been already prepared for hostilities. But, it is added, their arms are in a great many cases falling into the hands of the revolutionists who are only awaiting the signal to commence active operations against the Spaniards.

Food prices continue to advance, less business is done each day, and the Porto Ricans are expectant, panicky and fearful, while the Spanish officials are sending troops to the seaboard to repel possible invaders, and at the same time they are compelled to send troops into the interior to hold down the people of the island.

The information concerning the coal supply at Porto Rico is vague and conflicting. There appears however to be about 10,000 tons of coal on the island owned by Spain, and probably about as much more owned by private companies, but these figures are merely estimates and are based on contradictory statements.

Since the application of martial law to Porto Rico it has been difficult for people to leave that island, though there are doubtless many who are attempting to get away. There appears to be no protection for American citizens at Porto Rico, and no way for them to escape from the island.

France has sent a war ship to San Juan, a German war ship is expected, and possibly a British war ship may visit San Juan de Porto Rico.

Miss Gould's Offer Accepted.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—The president has accepted the gift of Miss Helen Gould, of New York, to the government, of $100,000 for war purposes, and her check for that amount Saturday was received at the treasury department.

The Umbria Arrives at Queenstown.

QUEENSTOWN, May 9.—The Cunard steamer Umbria, Capt. Dutton, from New York on April 30, for Liverpool via this port, arrived here at 10:31 a. m. Saturday. The news of the brilliant victory of Commodore Dewey was loudly applauded by the passengers of the Umbria. The steamer did not sight any war ships.

Will Sail May 15 Under Sealed Orders.

LONDON, May 9.—It is reported here that the flower of the Spanish navy is being formed into a formidable squadron at Cadiz to sail May 15 under sealed orders.

AN ENGAGEMENT.

Santa Clara Water Batteries and the Vicksburg and Cutter Morrill Fight.

The Wily Spaniards Arranged a Trap for Our Vessels, and They Walked Into It—Yankee Ingenuity, However, Got Them Out.

KEY WEST, Fla., May 9.—Only poor marksmanship on the part of the Spanish gunners saved the Vicksburg and the cutter Morrill from destruction off Havana Saturday morning. For over half an hour they were under the fire of the guns of the Santa Clara water batteries, but both escaped without material injury, although shrapnel shells from eight inch guns exploded all about them and both now show the pitted scars of the Spanish bullets.

The wily Spaniards had arranged a trap to send a couple of our ships to the bottom. They baited it as a man would bait a trap. A small schooner was sent out from Havana harbor shortly before daylight Saturday morning to draw some of the Americans into the ambuscade. The ruse worked like a charm. The Vicksburg and the Morrill in the heat of the chase, and in their contempt for Spanish gunnery walked into the trap that had been set for them. Had the Spaniards possessed their souls in patience but five minutes longer not even the bad gun practice would have saved our ships, and Sunday morning two more of our vessels would lie at the bottom within two lengths of the wreck of the ill-starred Maine.

Friday evening the Vicksburg and the Morrill, cruising to the west of Morro Castle, were fired upon by the big guns of the Cojimar batteries. Two shots were fired at the Vicksburg and one at the Morrill. Both fell short and both vessels, without returning the fire, steamed out of range. It would have been folly to have done otherwise. But Saturday morning the Spaniards had better luck. The schooner they had sent out before daylight ran off to the eastward, hugging the shore with the wind on her starboard quarter. About three miles east of the entrance of the harbor she came over on the port tack. A light haze fringed the horizon and she was not discovered until three miles off shore, when the Mayflower made her out and signalled the Morrill and Vicksburg.

Capt. Smith, of the Morrill, and Commander Lilly, of the Vicksburg, immediately slapped on all steam and started in pursuit.

The schooner instantly put about and ran for Morro Castle before the wind. On doing so she would, according to the well conceived Spanish plot, lead the two American war ships directly under the guns of the Santa Clara batteries. These works are a short mile east of Morro, and are a part of the defense of the harbor. There are two batteries, one at the shore, which has been recently thrown up, of sand and mortar with wide embrasures for eight-inch guns and the other on the crest of the rocky eminence which juts out into the water of the gulf at the point. The upper battery mounts modern 10-inch and 12-inch Krupp guns behind a six-foot stone parapet in front of which are 20 feet of earthwork and a belting of railroad iron. This battery is considered the most formidable of Havana's defenses, except Morro castle. It is masked and has not been absolutely located by the American warships. It is probably due to the fact that the Spaniards did not desire to expose the position that the Vicksburg and Morrill are now afloat. The Morrill and Vicksburg were 6 miles from the schooner when the chase began. They steamer at her full speed, the Morrill leading until within a mile and a half of the Santa Clara batteries. Commander Smith, of the Vicksburg, was the first to realize the danger into which the reckless pursuit had led them. He concluded it was time to haul off and sent a shot across the bow of the schooner. The Spanish skipper instantly brought his vessel about, but while she was still rolling in the trough of the sea with her sails flapping, an eight-inch shrapnel shell came hurling through the air from the water battery a mile and a half away. It passsed over the Morrill between the pilot house and the smoke stack and exploded less than 50 feet on the port quarter. The small shot rattled against her sides. It was a close call. Two more shots followed in quick succession, both shrapnel. One burst close under the star-board quarter, filling the engine room with the smoke of the explosion of the shell and the other, like the first, passed over and exploded just beyond. The Spanish gunners had the range and their time fuses were accurately set. The crews of both ships were at their guns. Lieut. Craig, who was in charge of the bow four-inch rapid-fire gun of the Morrill, asked for and obtained permission to return the fire. At the first shot the Vicksburg, which was in the wake of the Morrill, slightly inshore, sheered off and passed to windward under the Morrill's stern.

Spanish Brig Taken.

KEY WEST, Fla., May 9.—The Spanish brig Francisca, from Barcelona to Havana, loaded with flour and wine, has been captured by the revenue cutter Hamilton. The brig was towed into this port Saturday morning.

Soap Plant Burned.

DETROIT, Mich., May 9.—The Detroit Soap Co.'s plant at Dix avenue and Twenty-fifth street was totally destroyed by fire Saturday. The loss is $100,000, insurance $80,000. Forty people were employed in the factory. Another factory will be operated temporarily and the works rebuilt. The fire originated near the engine room.

Last Chance for the Dynasty.

HENDAYE, France, near the Spanish frontier, May 9.—Madrid advices say a military dictatorship, headed by Marshal Campos is probable as the last chance to save the dynasty.

GEORGE M. BOWERS.
(United States Commissioner of Fish and Fisheries.)

CRUISER ST. PAUL,

With Capt. Sigsbee as Commander, Left Cramp's Ship Yard and Steamed Down to League Island Navy Yard.

PHILADELPHIA, May 6.—The big auxiliary cruiser St. Paul, with Capt. Sigsbee on the bridge, left Cramp's ship yard at 8:20 o'clock Thursday morning and steamed down the Delaware river to League Island navy yard, where she dropped anchor. The passage of the St. Paul down the river was the signal for a great outburst of patriotic enthusiasm, and the reception that the new cruiser and Capt. Sigsbee received was a truly magnificent one. Along the shore crowds of people were congregated wildly cheering as the St. Paul majestically sailed down. The St. Paul's stay at League island will be only long enough to allow her to take aboard her ammunition. As to the St. Paul's destination nothing is known here, but it is believed that she is to do scout duty along the middle Atlantic coast.

OUT OF ORDER.

Forty-Two Single Mines in New York Harbor Failed to Respond to Their Cables When Tested in the Firing Chamber.

NEW YORK, May 6.—The Herald says: Forty-two single mines or two "grand groups," planted in the harbor of Willets Point and Fort Schuyler, failed to respond to their cables when they were tested in the firing chambers at Willets Point. Upon closer inspection it was found that the mines were thoroughly out of order.

They will all have to be taken up and overhauled, put in order again and replanted. This means two weeks of extra work to the men, who have been working seven days a week until dark.

Mustering the Wisconsin Volunteers.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 6.—The mustering in to the United States army of the Wisconsin volunteers now quartered at Camp Harvey began Thursday, the regimental surgeons being the first to take the examination. Dr. Tilton, United States army, assisted by the surgeons of each regiment is conducting the examination. It is thought a week or 10 days will elapse before the work is completed, when orders are expected, transferring the troops either to Chickamauga or Washington.

Spain Street to Be Changed to Dewey Avenue.

NEW ORLEANS, May 6.—One of the principal streets in the older portion of New Orleans is Spain street. A petition was presented to the city council Thursday by most of its residents asking that its name be changed to Dewey avenue.

Cuban Colonial Congress.

HAVANA, May 6.—The new colonial congress held its first session at noon Thursday. Former civil governor Jose Bruzon was elected president of the senate and Senor Jose Manuel del Cueto, president of the lower house.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

First Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—SENATE—At the opening of the senate's session the chaplain offered devout thanks for the glorious victory won by Commodore Dewey's squadron. Mr. Turpie (Ind.), chairman of the committee on privileges, presented an order appointing Mr. Chilton (dem., Tex.) to fill the vacancy on the finance committee caused by the death of Senator Walthall. The order was adopted. A conference on the sundry civil bill was agreed to and Messrs. Allison, Quay and Gorman were named as the senate conferees. The final conference report on the naval appropriation bill was agreed to. A bill to amend the act to permit the use of right of way through public lands to tramways canals and reservoirs, was passed.

HOUSE—The passage of the emergency war appropriation bill was the feature of Monday's action by the house. The naval appropriation bill with the senate amendment providing for the payment of officers of the navy for the use of their inventions by the government stricken out was reported from conference and passed. It now goes to the president. Mr. Lacy (ia.) presented the conference report on the general Alaskan bill extending the homestead laws to and granting railroad rights of way in that territory. The bill to increase the number of surgeons in the army was passed. A resolution from the senate providing for the adjustment and settlement of claims and counter claims between the United States and the state of Tennessee was passed. Mr. Loud (Cal.) called up a resolution providing for the creation of a congressional commission to make an exhaustive examination into the postal service and report to congress. In support of the resolution Messrs. Loud and Fleming (Ga.) said great frauds had been perpetrated in congress and the press suggesting a bush that had grown up in the service and the field was apparently one inviting investigation. The resolution was passed.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—SENATE—No business of general importance transacted Tuesday. The senate committee on finance resumed its sitting at noon Tuesday, hearing Secretary Gage on the necessity for including in the war revenue bill authority for the issuance of bonds. The secretary supplied the committee with information in his possession as to the cost of the war up to date, and also the best estimates obtainable of future expenses. Secretary Gage told the committee that the best estimates obtainable indicate that for the next two months the war will increase the governmental expenditures about $60,000,000. By that time the entire amount in the treasury, with the exception of the gold reserve, would be exhausted, and $30,000,000 of the reserve be taken.

HOUSE—What promised to be an uneventful and uninteresting session of the house was thrown suddenly, after three hours' consideration of private bills, into a session of spirited speech-making among democratic members that savored at times much of acrimony. The storm was precipitated by Mr. Lewis (dem., Wash.), who referred in the course of a speech to a recent vote of Mr. Cummings (N. Y.) in support of the war revenue bill with its incorporated bond feature. He made reference to Mr. Cummings' assertion that this period was a time for pleasing country shore party, intimating that the New York member had served the republican party and perhaps contributed to the satisfaction of unpatriotic monopolists and capitalists. This brought an impassioned and caustic speech in reply from Mr. Cummings, interspersed with some sarcastic comments that intensified the interest and caused an outpouring of members from the cloak rooms.

WASHINGTON, May 5. SENATE—The following joint resolution was passed Wednesday: In all cases not provided for by article second, clause fifth, of the constitution where there is no person entitled to discharge the duties of president the same shall devolve upon the vice president. The congress may by law provide for the case in here there is no person entitled to hold the office of president or vice president, declaring what officer shall act as president, and such officer shall act accordingly until the disability shall be removed or a president shall be elected. The conference report on the fortifications appropriation bill was presented and agreed to.

HOUSE—The house Wednesday adopted the conference report upon the fortification bill. The remainder of the session was consumed with the consideration of the Alaskan land bill and a resolution for the repeal of an act prohibiting the passage of importations in bond through the territory of the United States into the "free zone" of Mexico. The latter was passed, but the Alaskan measure went over.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—SENATE.—During almost the entire session Thursday, the senate had under consideration the post office appropriation bill. The measure carries $89,231,800, being very much the heaviest of all the appropriation bills. The most important action taken upon the measure was the adoption of an amendment offered by Mr. Williams (S. D.), reducing the number of deliveries of mail in all cities of the country to a number not exceeding four each day. An important amendment to the bill was one which will prevent star route contractors from sub-letting their contracts. In order to get their money they must be able to swear that they performed the service themselves. Just before adjournment the senate passed an important war measure authorizing the president and general officers of the army to supply the Cuban insurgents with arms and munitions of war and empowering officers of the army serving in Cuba to supply needy inhabitants of the island with medicines and subsistence.

HOUSE—The house Thursday disposed of two important measures. The Alaskan land bill extending the homestead laws to and providing for certain railway rights of way in the district of Alaska, as amended by the senate and agreed upon in conference, was passed. The labor arbitration measure, providing for the arbitration of labor disputes between employes and their certain common carriers, a bill which had received very wide indorsement by labor organizations throughout the country received the approval of the house. A number of minor bills were also passed. The house adjourned until Monday.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—SENATE—One war measure was passed by the senate Friday. It was a bill increasing the number of assistant surgeons in the United States army and to authorize the secretary of war to employ as many contract surgeons as he might deem necessary. Consideration was given a bill authorizing the postmaster general to establish post offices in military posts and camps was sought but under objection it went over until Monday. Almost the entire session was consumed by a discussion of an amendment to the post office appropriation bill offered by Mr. Pettigrew (S. D.) providing for a reduction of 25 per cent. in the compensation of railroads for the transportation of mails. The amendment was still pending when the senate adjourned until Monday.

HOUSE—Not in session.

How to Address Letters to Your Soldier Friends.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—First Assistant Postmaster General Heath Friday said that friends and relatives of soldiers in the field in addressing letters to them should mark plainly the company and regiment to which they belong, as by doing so the distribution of the mail will be facilitated. This applies to both the regular troops and the militia volunteers.

To Use the Marine Hospitals.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The president has issued an order directing that all the hospitals of the marine hospital service be used for the reception and treatment of sailors and soldiers of the navy and army whenever a necessity therefor arises. There are about 20 of these hospitals in all and they are scattered along the Atlantic, Gulf and Pacific coasts.

An incident at the public school entertainment omitted in last communication is worth notice any time. Jim Jones' little boy, Richard by name, was doing a recitation in which occurred, several times, the exhortation, "cheer me." The youngster became confused and lost the thread of his piece. Looking over the dense array of heads he said with a faint smile, "well, now would be a very good time to cheer me." It brought down the house with a rouser. Dick recovered himself and creditably finished his piece.

Joe Gleen's imported dog, Charley, (mentioned in a former number of this paper) one evening last week collided with an express train on the Southern and that suit against the subscriber will not materialize. He was certainly a very remarkable dog. Joe took him out one day to hunt rabbits, hoping he would become so excited in chasing them that he would not run home at the crack of the gun. It stood a rabbit in its form, and when Joe was coming towards him it picked up the hypnotized animal in its mouth and ran off to a convenient place and lunched on it. Joe is very busy at present hurrying the plowing of one field to plant, and gathering corn of '97 in another one.

Dewey gave the first day of May an event that will secure for it a position on the historical calendar.

Nothing could come in uicer than a large crop of wheat with the price ranging near the $2 mark.

Riotiug continues in Madrid. The Spaniards will soon have their hands full at home unless someting is doue to reconcile the populace.

Fraues is inclined to do the growling act because the United States, through an error of somebody, prevented one of her ships from passing through the blockade to Havana. Keep cool is good advice to ber.

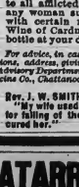
The whereabouts of the Spanish fleet which Admiral Sampson expected to engage at Puerto Reco, is unknown, and this is giving the War Department at Washington no little concern, and they fear the enemy may appear before some of the cities on the seaboard that are in a manner unprotected.

McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui

has demonstrated ten thousand times that it is almost infallible

FOR WOMAN'S PECULIAR WEAKNESSES,

Irregularities and derangements. It has become the leading remedy for this class of troubles. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence upon the menstrual organs. It cures "whites" and falling of the womb. It stops flooding and relieves suppressed and painful menstruation.



For Change of Life it is the best medicine made. It is beneficial during pregnancy, and helps to bring children into homes barren for years. It invigorates, stimulates, strengthens the whole system. This great remedy is offered to all afflicted women. Why will any woman suffer another minute with certain relief within reach? Wine of Cardui only costs $1.00 per bottle at your drug store.

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rev. J. W. SMITH, Camden, S. C., says: "My wife used Wine of Cardui at home for falling of the womb and it entirely cured her."

The receipts and offerings still continue very small in our market, and from the general outlook we can not expect them to increase very much before June, when the rehandled tobacco will commence to be placed upon the market. While the small offerings should have the effect of advancing the prices we can only report a good, steady market, with probably some advance upon red tips and leaf. With a large portion of the breaks being composed of low grades prices remained firm and some of the sellers thought it was stronger than last week. Some of our largest buyers were not as active bidders as they have been, but still it had no effect upon the market.

The agitatiou of the advanced tax on manufactured tobacco has, no douht, some effect on the leaf trade, and if it was not for this interference with the manufacturers we would probably be getting more money for the leaf at this time, but with the tax and war, and a disposition of speculators to go slow, we feel that the tobacco trade is very fortunate to keep up in so strong a position. Reports from the growing districts are favorable for the setting of a full crop, with seasonable weather.—Western Tobacco Journal.

Cincinnati, Ohio, May 5th, 1898.

Mr. G. C. Barlow, Gunpowder, Ky.

Dear Sir:—A piece appeared in your county paper some weeks ago, stating Mr. Greene of our firm had bought 20,000 lambs in the State of Kentucky, and had an option on 15,000, which would virtually corner the lamb trade, as there were only 40,000 in Central and Southern Kentucky. We wish you would have your paper deny this statement as it does our firm an injustice, for we do only a commission business. Mr. Greene or ... member of our firm has not bought or caused to be bought any lambs and we never buy any stock in the country. We would further state that instead of there only being 40,000 lambs in Central and Southern Kentucky there are over 300,000. By giving this your personal attention you will greatly oblige,

Your friends,

GREENE, EMBRY & CO.

A woman named Davis, and seven children ranging in ages from 10 to 27 years, stopped two or three days at the Martin Calvert house on the E. A. Hughes farm, last week. The old lady says she and her family moved from Catlettsburg, this State, to Tennessee, where her husband died 13 months ago; that she and her children started back to Catlettsburg three weeks ago, and while on the road one day her 18 year old son dropped dead. Two of the girls canvassed the town, last Friday, and were given considerable clothing and provisions to assist them on their tedious tramp.

The following is condensed from the game law of this State:

It is unlawful to kill squirrels, except gray squirrels, from February 1 to June 15; quail, from January 1 to November 15; doves, from February 1 to September 1:—It is unlawful to kill thrush, meadow-larks, martins, swallows, woodpeckers, red birds, blue birds, cat birds or any insectivorous bird at any time, except when destroying your fruit or crop. The penalty is a fine of from $5 to $25.

Under the old common school law the trustees of the several districts of the State were required to be elected on the first Saturday in June. Under the law passed by the last Legislature this was changed. The election takes place now on the first Saturday in October. The present boards will hold over until the new member or members are elected as now provided. The boards as are now orgauized will elect the teachers as usual.

J. M. Lassing was in Louisville, last week, and while there obtained what information he could in regard to the defunct Commercial Building Trust, and his report contains nothing calculated to encourage the stockholders, but much to the contrary. A. B. Rouse is filling J. C. Revill's position as cashier of the bank, during his sojourn in Washington.

Elzie Harper, of the Hebron neighborhood, was visiting his mother, Mrs. Cowen, of this place, Sunday.

R. D. Finnell and B. F. Norman, of the Union neighborhood, were among the visitors to Burlington, Friday.

B. H. Tanner was among the visitors to town last Friday. He does not allow weather or tide to delay his business.

John T. Marshall was in town yesterday, hunting the man who wants to invest in a tombstone or monument.

Mrs. L. W. Castleman, of Glencoe, Gallatin county, is visiting her son, Atty., D. E. Castleman, of this place.

Mr. Edward Gaines, of the Petersburg neighborhood, was the guest of his son, Atty. S. Gaines and family, yesterday.

Two of Jailer Adams' sons who are farming back of Aurora, Indiana, were visiting their father and mother here, last Sunday.

Mrs. Cora Sanders and son, Albert Jury and wife, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Conner, of the Locust Grove neighborhood.

M. T. Graves, of Bullittsville, was in town Monday. He is very much interested in the little scrap that is in progress with Spain.

Rev. Hoover moved his household goods from Erlanger here, last Monday. He will occupy W. F. McKim's new house as soon as it is completed.

Chas. Finch was examined by the Army Surgeon, last week, for enlistment, but the sergeon would not recommend him, because his heart beat too rapidly.

Mrs. Elizabeth Givan entertained her father, John G. Gaines, of Burlington, Ky., this week.—Lawrenceburg Register.

Mistake. Mrs. Givan was a Riddell; but Mr. Gaines was a father to her from her girlhood.

Clark Rouse and Robert Adams were among the road overseers who called on Judge Roberts, Monday. Mr. Adams said tobacco plants are abundant in his neighborhood, while Mr Rouse said he would commence setting as soon as there is another season.

Geo. W. Brown and daughter, of Nashville, Tennessee, were in town Monday afternoon. They came up several days ago to attend Mr. Henry Darby's funeral. Mr. Brown is looking exceedingly well, and reports business good in his city. He says the war spirit is rampant in Nashville.

During his Sunday's nap last Sunday, county clerk Adams, dreamed that he was engaged in a terrific naval battle under the command of Admiral Sampson, and when the report came that evening that the Admiral had attacked the Spanish fleet, Mr. Adams began to believe there is something in some dreams, at least.

R. C. Rice and wife have gone to Ottawa Kansas, where his brother John J. Rice resides. He will remain there some time, and then if he is favorably impressed with the country he will purchase a home there. We are sorry to have them leave our community, and trust if they do decide to make Kansas their home, prosperity will be their lot.

Spencer Tanner, of the Dry creek neighborhood, cut a tree, a few days ago, and when it hit the ground it bounced, striking one of his legs and breaking it.

All the examinations held by Supt. Voshell and his board of examiners will be held at Union, this year. Those who expect to apply for certificates to teach school in this county should bear this in mind.

Fred Drinkenburg, of the Florence neighborhood, gave the young people a delightful cotillion party, on the 30th ult. The attendance was large, the music was excellent and the refreshments abundant.

Important to Farmers.

The American Tobacco Co., a $25,000,000 concern, is trying to absorb all other manufactories of tobacco, by getting them into a new and larger trust, to be known as the Continental Tobacco Co. and capitalized at fifty millions. All the manufactories that amount to anything have signified a willingness to go into it, save the Liggett & Myers Co., of St. Louis, and a few other concerns. If that company should enter the combine, no doubt all the others would. The Liggett & Myers Co. is being offered every inducement; they have refused ten million dollars cash for their plant, and insist they will stay out of the monopoly. If this company joins the trust there will no longer be any competition. The terrible monopoly can then say we will give just so ... for your ... and no more; the farmer will be at its mercy and may have to starve. Furthermore, the monster can say to the consumer everywhere, you pay our price for plug tobacco, smoking tobacco, &c., or do without—and what the price will be will be a plenty. It will thus be seen that it is a monopoly that can exert its grinding power in two directions, with most disastrous consequences

The tobacco growers in this State are holding conventions and adopting resolutions protesting against this gigantic combine, and an organized effort will be made to secure national legislation for the growers' protection of the growers against its designs.

The farmers of this county are interested in any move calculated to defeat the consummation of this immense monopoly, and they should put their shoulders to the wheel and assist their neighbors in an effort to prevent its coming into existence. Let the farmers meet at the court house in Burlington, next county court day, and take some action in the matter. The RECORDER will be glad to hear from those who feel interested in this move.

The indications now are that there will be an abundance of plants in most Burley sections for an early planting. Growers should not miss the first favorable opportunity to set out their crop, as an early start will, in all probability be the first step to successful cultivation, says the Western Tobacco Journal.

Dr. W. H. Harrison, dentist, will be in Burlington on the first Monday and Tuesday; Union, the first Wednesday and Thursday; Florence, the first Friday and Saturday; and Petersburg the second Monday and Tuesday in each month.

THE HISTORY OF MOSES.

Practical and Inspiring Lessons for All Classes of People.

A Great Man Whose Many Deeds Should Be a Constant Inspiration to Every One—An Interesting Sermon By Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D. D.

Dr. Talmage's text Sunday was Exodus iii, 1: "Now Moses kept the flock of Jethro, his father-in-law, the priest of Midian."

In the southeastern [illegible] of Arabia a man is sitting by a [illegible] s an arid country, and water [illegible]er crop [illegible] so that a well is of great value [illegible]ir flocks and herds are driven vast [illegible]stances to have their thirst slaked. Jethro, a Midianite shiek and priest, was so fortunate as to have seven daughters; and they are practical girls, and yonder they come driving the sheep and cattle and camels of their father to the watering. They lower the buckets and then pull them up, the water plashing on the stones and chilling their feet, and the troughs are filled. Who is that man out there sitting unconcerned and looking on? Why does he not come and help the women in this hard work of drawing water? But no sooner have the dry lips and panting nostrils of the flocks begun to cool a little in the brimming trough of the well than some rough Bedouin shepherds break in upon the scene, and with clubs and shouts drive back the animals that were drinking, and affright these girls until they fly in retreat, and the flocks of these ill-mannered shepherds are driven to the troughs, taking the place of the other flocks. Now that man sitting by the well begins to color up, and his eye flashes with indignation, and all the gallantry of his natnre is aroused. It is Moses, who naturally had a quick temper anyhow, as he demonstrated on one occasion when he saw an Egyptian oppressing an Israelite and gave the Egyptian a sudden clip and buried him in the sand, and he showed afterward when he broke all the Ten Commandments at once by shattering the two granite slabs on which the law was written. But the injustice of this treatment of the seven girls sets him on fire with wrath, and he takes this shepherd by the throat, and pushes back another shepherd till he falls over the trough, and aims a stunning blow between the eyes of another, as he cries: "Begone, you villians!" and he beats and spurns at the shepherds and their flocks and camels of these invaders and drives them back; and having cleared the place of the desperadoes he told the seven girls of this Midianite sheik to gather their flocks together and bring them again to the watering.

Oh, you ought to see a fight between the shepherds at a well in the Orient, as I saw it in December, 1890. There were here a group of rough men who had driven the cattle many miles, and here another group who had driven their cattle as many miles. Who should have precedence? Such clashing of buckets! Such hooking of horns! Such kicking of hoofs! Such vehemence in a language I fortunately could not understand! Now the sheep, with a peculiar mark across their woolly backs, were at the trough, and now the sheep of another mark. It was one of the most exciting scenes I ever witnessed. An old book describes one of these contentions at an eastern well when it says: "One day the poor men, the widows and the orphans met together and were driving their flocks and their flocks to drink, and were all standing by the water side, Daji came up and [illegible] them all, and took possession of the water for his master's cattle. Just then an old woman belonging to the tribe of Abs came up and accosted him in a supplicant manner saying: "Be so good Master Daji, as to let my cattle drink. They are all the property I possess and I live by their milk. Pity my flock; have compassion on me. Grant my request and let them drink." Then came another old woman and addressed him: "Oh, Master Daji, I am a poor, weak, old woman, as you see. Time has dealt hardly with me. It has aimed its arrow at me, and its daily and nightly calamities have destroyed all my men. I have lost my children and my husband, and since then I have been in great distress. These sheep are all that I possess. Let them drink, for I live on the milk that they produce. Pity my forlorn state. I have no one to lend them. Therefore, grant my supplication and of thy kindness let them drink.' But in this case the brutal slave, so far from granting this humble request, smote the woman to the ground."

A like scrimmage has taken place at the well in the triangle of Arabia, between the Bedouin shepherds and Moses championing the cause of the seven daughters who had driven their father's flocks to the watering. One of these girls, Zipporah, her name meaning "little bird," was fascinated by this heroic behavior of Moses; for however timid womau herself may be, she always admires courage in a man. Zipporah became the bride of Moses, one of the mightiest men of all the centuries. Zipporah little thought that that morning as she helped drive her father's flock to the well she was splendidly deciding her own destiny. Had she stayed in the tent or house while the other six daughters of the sheik headed to their flocks how life would probably have been a tame and uneventful one in the solitudes. But the industry, her fidelity to her father's interest, her spirit of helpfulness, brought her into league with one of the grandest characters of all history. They met at that famous well, and while admired the courage of Moses he admired the filial behavior of Zipporah.

The fact that it took the seven daughters to drive the flocks to the well implies they were immense flocks, and that her father was a man of wealth. What was the source of Zipporah consuming herself with work when she might have reclined on the hillside near her father's tent and plucked buttercups, and dreamed ont romances, and sighed idly to the winds, and wept over imaginary songs to the brooks. No, she knew that work was honorable, and that every girl ought to have something to do, and so she starts with bleating and lowing and bellowing and neighing droves to the well for the watering.

Around every home there are flocks and droves of cares and anxieties, and every daughter of the family, though there be seven, ought to be doing her part to take care of the flocks. In many households, not only is Zipporah, but all her sisters, without practical and useful employments. Many of them are waiting for fortunate and prosperous matrimonial alliance, bnt some lounger like themselves will come along, and after counting the large number of Father Jethro's sheep and camels, will make proposal that will be accepted; and neither of them having done anything more practical than to chew chocolate caramels, the two nothings will start on the road of life together, every step more and more a failure. That daughter of the Midianitish sheik will never find her Moses.

Gifts of America, imitate Zipporah. Do something practical. Do something helpful. Do something well. Many have fathers with great flocks of absorbing duties, and such a father needs help in home, or office, or field. Go out and help him with the flocks. The reason that so many men now condemn themselves to unaffianced and solitary life is because they can not support the modern young woman, who rises at 10:30 in the morning and retires after midnight, one of the crashiest of novels in her hand most of the time between the late rising and the late retiring—a thousand of them not worth one Zipporah.

There is a question that every father and mother ought to ask the daughter at breakfast or tea table, and that all the daughters of the wealthy shiek ought to ask each other: "What would you do if the family fortune should fail, if sickness should prostrate the breadwinner, if the flocks of Jethro should be destroyed by a sudden excursion of wolves and bears and hyenas from the mountains? What would you do for a living? Could you support yourself?' Can you take care of an invalid mother, or brother or sister as well as yourself?". Yea, bring it down to what any day might come to a prosperous family. "Can you cook a dinner that is fit to eat? Or should make application for higher wages and leave that morning?" Every minute of every hour of every day of every year there are families flung from prosperity into hardship, and alas! if in such exigency the seven daughters of Jethro can do nothing but sit around and cry and wait for some one to come and hunt them up a situation for which they have no qualification. Get at something useful; get at it right away! Do not say: "If I were thrown upon my own resources I would become a music teacher." There are now more music teachers than could be supported if they were all Mozarts and Wagners and Handels. Do not say: "I will go to embroidering slippers." There are more slippers now than there are feet. Our hearts are every day wrung by the story of elegant woman who were once affluent, but through catastrophe have fallen helpless, with no ability to take care of themselves.

Our friend and Washingtonian townsman, W. W. Corcoran, did a magnificent thing when he built and endowed the "Louise Home" for the unfortunate aristocracy of the south—the people who once had everything [illegible] have come [illegible] I want another W. W. Corcoran to build a "Louise Home" for the unfortunate aristocracy of the north. But institutions like that in every city of the land could not take care of one-half the unfortnnate aristocracy of the north and south, whose large fortunes have failed, and who, through lack of acquaintance with any style of work, can not now earn their own bread.

There needs to be peaceful, yet radical revolution among most of the prosperous homes of America, by which the elegant do-nothings may be transformed into practical do-somethings. Let useless women go to work and gather the flocks. Come, Zipporah, let me introduce you to Moses. But you do not mean that this man affianced to this country girl was the great Moses of history, do you? You do not mean that he was the man who afterward wrought such wonders? Surely you do not mean the man whose staff dropped, wriggled into a serpent, and then, clutched, stiffened again into a staff? You do not mean the challenger of Egyptian thrones and palaces? You do not mean him who struck the rock so hard it wept in a stream for thirsty hosts? Surely you do not mean the man who stood alone with God on the quaking Sinaitic tanges; not him to whom the Red Sea was surrendered? Yes, the same Moses defending the seven daughters of the Midianish sheik; who after sword rescued a nation.

Why, do you not know that this is the way men and women get prepared for special work? The wilderness of Arabia was the law school, the theological seminary, the university of rock and sand, from which he graduated for a mission that would balk seas, and drown armies, and lift the lantern of illumined cloud by night, and start the workmen with bleeding backs among Egyptian brick kilns from the pasture lands that flow with milk and the trees of Canaan dripping with honey. Gracious God, teach all the people this lesson. You must go into humiliation and retirement and hiddeu closets of prayer if you are to be fitted for special usefulness.

How did John the Baptist get prepared to be a forerunner of Christ? Show me his wardrobe. It will be hung with silken socks and embroidered robes and attire of Syrian purple. Show me his dining table. On it the tankards ablush with the richest wines of the vineyards of Engedi, and rarest birds that were ever caught in net, and sweetest venison that ever dropped antlers before the hunter. No, we are distinctly told "the same John had his raiment of camel's hair"—not the fine hair of the camel which we call the camlet, but the long, coarse hair such as beggars in the east wear—and his only meat was of insects, the green locust, about two inches long, roasted, a disgusting food. These insects were caught and the wings and legs torn off, and they were stuck on wooden spits and turned before the fire. The Bedouins cook them in sacks. What a menu for John the Baptist! Through what deprivation he came to what exultation!

And you will have to go down before you go up. From the pit into which his brothers threw him and the prison in which his enemies inearcerated him Joseph rose to be Egyptian prime minister. Elijah, who was to be the greatest of all the ancient prophets, Elijah, who made King Ahab's knees knock together with the prophecy that the dogs would be his only undertakers, Elijah, whose one prayer brought more than three years of drought, and whose other prayer brought drenching showers; the man who wrapped up his cape of sheepskin into a roll and with it cut a path through raging Jordan for just two to pass over; the man who with wheel of fire rode over death and escaped into the skies without mortuary disintegration; the man who thousands of years after was called out of the uncertainties to stand beside Jesus Christ on Mt. Tabor when he was ablaze with the splendors of transfiguration—this man could look back to the time when voracious and filthy ravens were his only caterers. You see John Knox preaching the coronation sermon of James VI., and arraigning Queen Mary and Lord Darnley in a public discourse at Edinburgh, and telling the French ambassador to go home and call his king a murderer; John Knox making all Christendom feel his moral power, and at his burial the earl of Morton saying: "Here lieth a man who in his life never feared the face of man." Where did John Knox get much of his schooling for such resounding and everlasting achievements? He got it while in chains pulling at the boat's oar in French captivity. Michael Faraday, one of the greatest in the scientific world, did not begin by lecturing in the university. He began by washing bottles in the experimenting room of Humphrey Davy. "Hohenlinden," the immortal poem of Thomas Campbell, was first published in a small paper of Edinburgh, and in the notes to correspondents appeared the words: "To T. C.: The lines commencing, 'On Linden when the sun was low,' are not up to our standard. Poetry is not T. C.'s forte." Oh! it is a rough road to any kind of valuable success. So the privations and hardships of your life may on a smaller scale be the preface and introduction to usefulness and victory.

See also in this call of Moses that God has a great memory. Four hundred years before he had promised the deliverance of the oppressed Israelites of Egypt. The clock of time has struck the hour, and now Moses is called to the work of rescue. Four hundred years is a very long time, but you see God can remember a promise 400 years as well as you remember 400 minutes. Four hundred years includes all your ancestry that you know anything about, and all the promises made to them, and we may expect fulfillment in our heart and life of all the blessings predicted to our Christian ancestry centuries ago. You have a dim remembrance if any remembrance at all, of your great-grandfather, but God sees those who were on their knees in 1598 as well as those in their knees in 1898, [illegible]ing He promised the former and their descendants have arrived or will arrive.

While piety is not hereditary, it is a grand thing to have a pious ancestry. So God in this chapter calls up the pedigree of the people whom Moses was to deliver and Moses is ordered to say to them: "The Lord God of your fathers, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob hath sent me unto you." If that thonght be divinely accurate, let me ask, what are we doing by prayer and by a holy life for the redemption of the next 400 years? Our work is not only with the people of the latter part of the nineteenth century, but with those in the closing of the twentieth century, and the closing of the twenty-first century, and the closing of the twenty-second century, and the closing of the twenty-third century. For even if the world continues to swing until that time, or if it drops, then notwithstanding the influence will go on in other latitudes and longitudes of God's universe.

No one realizes how great he is for good or for evil. There are branchings out and rebounds, and reverberations, and elaborations of influence that can not be estimated. The 50 or 100 years of our earthly stay is only a small part of our sphere. The flap of the wing of the destroying angel that smote the Egyptian oppressors, the wash of the red sea over the heads of the drowned Egyptians, were all fulfillments of prophecies four centuries old. And things occur in your life and in mine that we can not account for. They may be the echoes of what was promised in the sixteenth or seventeenth century. Oh, the prolongation of the divine memory!

Do not retire too early. Like Moses, you may have your chief work to do after 80. It may not be in the high places of the field; it may not be where a strong arm and an athlete foot and a clear mind are required, but there is something for you yet to do. Perhaps it may be to round off the work you have already done; to demonstrate the the patience you have been recommending all your lifetime; perhaps to stand as a lighthouse at the mouth of the bay to light others into harbor; perhaps to show how glorious a sunset may come after a stormy day.

It is estimated that Michigan still has 10,000,000,000 standing feet of pine; Wisconsin twice as much; Minnesota, 35,000,000,000 feet. Cutting 6,000,000,000 feet annually, this supply would last only about 10 years more. The average annual cut is 40,000,000.

AUSTRALIAN EXPLORER GONE.

Ernest Giles, Who Was the Hero of Many Perilous Feats, Passes Away.

One of the greatest Australian explorers has passed away, if not "unhonored and unsung," at least in undeserved obscurity. For Ernest Giles well and truly did his share of the work of lifting the veil of mystery that so long enshrouded the interior of the island continent and his name stands high with those of such gallant and undaunted hardy pioneers of colonization as the ill-fated Burke and Wills, who perished so miserably, Sir Thomas Mitchell, Sturt, Kennedy, Dr. Leichhardt, and Sir George Gray. His contributions to our geographical knowledge of the interior of Australia were such as should have earned him substantial reward and honorable recognition; for he devoted the best years of his life to his work. Tall, muscular and commanding [illegible] horse as only a born huntsman sits, he was the beau ideal of a leader of men bent on desperate and daring enterprise—to fight with the terrors of the unknown desert and the agonies and horrors of thirst.

Twenty-five years ago he made his first success as an explorer, when he led a party through unknown country 300 miles westward from the telegraph line that traverses the center of Australia from north to south. A second journey, initiated by Baron von Muller, who had formed a high opinion of Giles' resourcefulness and daring under the most trying circumstances, resulted in his adding to the blank map of the interior a knowledge of 600 miles of new country. In this journey he was accompanied by only four other white men, some aboriginals and twenty-five horses. The hardships they endured were terrible, and before reaching the west coast (after being out nearly a year from their starting point) they had to kill and live upon the few horses that remained alive.

In 1875 the generosity of Sir Thomas Elder enabled him to start on a third expedition, which was amply equipped and provisioned for 18 months. For hundreds of miles the route of the expedition lay through a succession of fearful waterless deserts. Fortunately, on this occasion he had camels or else he and his party would never have returned. Once they traveled for 16 days over one sandy stretch of 330 miles without discovering water. Yet he brought this daring trip of 2,400 miles to a successful issue by reaching one of the outlying settlements in western Australia, and then, after resting, he struck north about 200 miles of his first route and returned to South Australia. For this feat he was rewarded with the somewhat barren honor of the gold medal of the Royal Geographical society.

Early in 1889 he published one of the most interesting of the many books written on Australian exploration, "Australia Twice Traversed." His knowledge of the wild black tribes of the interior was not excelled by any other man in Australia, and equaled only by that of Ernest Favenc, another gallant fellow who has done great work for his adopted country, and, like Giles and the rest of these devoted men, earned nothing for the benefits he has conferred upon the Australian people.

Poor Giles, a year ago, was given an official position on Coolgardie gold field by the government of western Australia. A severe cold, which developed into pneumonia, carried off, on November 14, one of the most resolute and undaunted men that ever looked across the heart-breaking expanse of an Australian desert.—Pall Mall Gazette.

THE LEITER FORTUNE.

There Is a Part of It Invested in Nearly Every Big Chicago Corporation.

Twenty-two million dollars is declared the value of the real estate owned by Levi Z. Leiter in Chicago. There is not a parcel of it with an incumbrance. He is the largest stockholder in the Chicago city railway, his block of 3,500 shares being worth about $1,000,000, and the largest stockholder in the greatest banking institution in the west, the Illinois trust and savings bank, with its shares selling around 400. The Leiters, father or son, are in the directory of the Chicago Edison company, the South Side Elevated company, the Universal Gas company and the Mutual Fuel Gas company. There is not a great local corporation in which they are not stockholders. They are in the Union Loop company, the Northwestern Road, the West Chicago Street Railway company. The Leiter name has been a synonym for ready money with the brokers for years. In street parlance, the retired dry goods merchant has been in the position to raise more cash on shorter notice than anybody else in the west, except possibly his old partner, Marshall Field, or his present opponent, Philip D. Armour. His silver mines have been the richest in the west. His ranch interests have alone been large enough to make him conspicuous. Nineteen years ago when nails were at the lowest prices ever known, he bought and stored every keg his agents could learn of. His holdings of over 1,000,000 kegs almost trebled in value within a year. The Leiter wealth for 15 years has been free from any business entanglements, most easily and rapidly convertible. That is why he has been considered the ability to raise more money and to raise it quicker than any other westerner.—Chicago Evening News.

FINANCIAL FACTS.

True Bimetallism Is the Only Sound Basis for Genuine Prosperity.

Is it the market price of gold and silver bullion, or the stamp of the government thereon, backed by the law, that fixes the value of our money? If it is the market price, then surely he who talks so long and loud about a "50-cent dollar" is right; but if the value is fixed by law, then the market price of the bullion is wholly immaterial. The market price of bullion is governed by the supply and demand. Unrestricted coinage of gold has created an unlimited demand for that metal, consequently the bullion in a gold coin has always equalled the coin's face value. Should gold become so scarce, and the demand so great, as to force the value of the bullion above that of the money stamp upon it, then the bullion and not the money would at once command a premium. Every full-weight gold coin issued by our government is an unlimited legal tender for all purposes of our country. Suppose that Pike's Peak, by some miraculous transformation, should suddenly become a mountain of pure gold, and the supply of the precious metal be thus multiplied almost beyond computation, would that change the legal tender value of our coin? Could we not lawfully pay our debts with it after as well as before such transformation? The enormous increase of the metal upon which the government stamps its money might result in such an increase in [illegible] coins as to lessen its purchasing power, but it would not affect its legal tender quality in the least. Now, suppose that silver enjoyed the privilege of free and unlimited coinage at the ratio of sixteen to one, just as gold does to-day, and that every silver dollar was a full legal tender for all purposes, just as gold coin is, does any sane person, in the face of this unlimited demand for silver, believe that 412½ grains of standard silver, the amount upon which, under the law, a dollar is stamped, would be worth in market 100 cents? But suppose that by some unknown power all the silver in the world except that stamped for money purposes should suddenly be blotted out of existence forever, and that, by reason of the scarcity of this metal should jump to $20 per ounce, would that fact enhance the legal tender quality of a silver dollar? Could we compel any person to take it for more than 100 cents? Could we not lawfully liquidate our debts, both public and private, in gold just as well as in silver coin? Would not a gold coin serve our purpose just as well as a silver coin? Could there be any lack of parity of value under such conditions between our dollars? When I speak of parity of value I don't wish to be understood as referring to silver and gold bullion, for it must be borne in mind that neither of these metals is money. They are only commodities upon which money is stamped, and without that stamp they are no more a legal tender than corn and wheat, or beef and pork would be. So it will be seen that it is the stamp, backed by the law, and not the metal, that constitutes money. Some of our gold standard friends who have probably given but little thought to the question have asked: "Why not have free coinage of iron?" The answer is threefold. First. Because our United States bonds are, at the option of the government, payable in gold and silver coin of a definite [illegible] Therefore iron could not lawfully be used to liquidate those obligations. Second. The experience of thousands of years has demonstrated the fact that under what has usually been termed free coinage, or coinage without discrimination, the supply of gold and silver upon which the civilized world has stamped its basic money, has just about kept pace with the legitimate demands of trade. There never has been, and it is not at all likely there ever will be, an overproduction of either metal. God never made a mistake. He never gave us too much gold and silver. We may fail to appreciate His blessings; we may even impoverish ourselves by demonetizing one of these metals, but if we do, it will be our own fault. Third. The enormous amount of iron in the world might, if used as a money metal under a free and unlimited coinage law, so enlarge the volume of currency as to make the supply so much greater than the demand that its purchasing power would be almost destroyed. But if the supply of iron was limited by nature, as is the supply of gold and silver, and the supply of gold and silver was as great as iron is now, and all our present debts payable in gold and silver coin were liquidated, the full legal stamp of the government on iron, would be just as good as it is on gold and silver to-day. Under present conditions our basic money is limited to the production of gold, we have wickedly destroyed the full legal tender quality of silver, and thus robbed ourselves of one-half of our primary money. This was good for the bondholders, but ruin to the poor souls who foot the bills. It is amusing and yet humiliating to every intelligent citizen to hear senators talk and members of the lower house of congress, and even our president, talk about the intrinsic value of money, just as if such a thing really existed. The truth is, money has no intrinsic value and never can have so long as its value is fixed by law. It is equally absurd to see would-be statesmen stand in high places and in thunder tones denounce fiat money when there is not an intelligent woman in the humblest dugout on the plains of the west who does not know that all money is fiat and that the full legal tender fiat of the government is just as good when stamped on paper as when stamped on gold or silver. In either case the money is just as good and not one whit better than the government that credited it. Let us bear in mind that no unrestricted legal tender dollar issued by our government was ever at a discount, and never will be for the reason that, back of each dollar, whether gold, silver or paper stands the same people, same material resources, same government and same law. So long as the government is a par its full legal tender money will never be at a discount. Restore to the people free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at a ratio of sixteen to one, and make every dollar issued by the government, whether stamped upon gold, silver or paper, a full legal tender, and we would then have prosperity not made to order by partisan press for partisan purposes, but a real genuine prosperity that would touch and bless the common people.

JOHN P. ST. JOHN.

CLAIMS OF REPUBLICANS.

The Scaly Scheme of the Goldbug Partisans to Bamboozle the People.

Congressman Grosvenor said upon the floor of the house that this was going to be a "republican war." Senator Hale, of Maine, said upon the floor of the senate that in the event of war "the country would not turn to the democratic party, and the flag of the United States would not be carried by that party, but by that gallant soldier and statesman, the president of the United States. He would conduct the war and bring it to a successful conclusion." Under such circumstances why are the republicans so anxious that the democrats in congress should vote for war measures proposed [illegible] as Dingley, Hale and Grosvenor? If this is to be a "republican war" why don't the republicans go right ahead and carry it on without asking the aid of the democrats? As a matter of fact, republican partisanship is at the bottom of all this talk. The republicans have two objects in view: They wish to make the war an excuse for passing bills in favor of the gold standard, and they desire to claim all the credit for carrying on the war because they know the people are in favor of the war. Senator Hanna said a few days ago that "only loafers and tramps wanted war." Now the republican party wants war and wants all the credit of conducting it. Hanna will have to amend his statement, or, adhering to it, characterize the republican party and all the soldiers and sailors in the service of this country as "loafers and tramps." Hanna, Hale and Grosvenor are poor politicians and worse patriots. The republican party has been forced by the people to defend the honor of this country. They are doing it with a bad grace, but, thanks to the democrats in congress, they are doing it.—Chicago Dispatch.

A COMPARISON.

The Difference Between Aristocratic "Sound Money" Soldiers and Democratic Patriots.

The Seventh regiment of New York city is a "swell" military organization that numbers among its members some of the leading "aristocrats" of the metropolis. In the year of our Lord 1896 the membership of the regiment turned out to a man in honor of the "sound money" cause. Just about that time they were mighty fearful lest the nation should "dishonor itself by electing Bryan to the presidency." "If he is elected we will not submit," they said.

Well, they didn't have to submit and their man is in the white house to-day calling for the volunteer militia to go to the front against a foreign foe. In the face of all this, they, by unanimous vote, refuse to go to the country's defense. Was there ever such an indictment of the scoundrels who were prating about "the old flag," "a sound money" and "national honor" in 1896?

There is another Seventh regiment in Illinois. It is wholly composed of Irish-American citizens of Chicago. They are a plain lot of young men, and, as a general rule, "earn their bread by the sweat of their brow." Naturally they are democrats, and all through the trying days of the campaign of 1896 faltered not in their allegiance to him who bore the standard of democracy aloft from July 9 to November 3. But their idol failed to reach the goal. They, too, have heard the chief magistrate's call to arms and unanimously they voted to go to the front to defend their country's honor. Hardly had the "bugle call" been sounded when they were in their uniforms and ready for the battle.

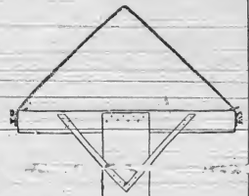
There should be no party spirit manifested in this trying time, but we cannot let these two incidents pass without remark.—National Democrat.

PARAGRAPHIC POINTERS.

——The war will be a good thing for Mr. Dingley. He can so mix up the ordinary with the extraordinary expenses that few will be able to tell how his old bill would work under normal circumstances.—Peoria Herald.

——Poor Sherman! It was an ill turn President McKinley and Mark Hanna did him when they forced him out of the senate into the cabinet. Now he is forced out of the cabinet. Poor Sherman! Another career blighted by Boss Hanna!—Albany Argus.

——True, these are war times, but that is no reason the Hanna bribery should be glossed over or ignored in an excess of patriotic emotion. The Mark Hanna methods inflict more injury on the republic than the Weyler methods. The latter can be met and blasted. The former are insidious, corrupting and perilous to the country's welfare.—Pittsburgh Post.

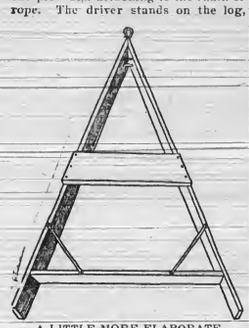


——All there is of the republican party in Ohio to-day is what Gov. Bushnell and his wing of it represent. But for him the whole party would have submitted to the corrupt dictation of the most unprincipled man who has ever risen to distinction in our country. Gov. Bushnell will leave his office with the good will of all the people, while Mark Hanna will in all probability leave his in disgrace.—Columbus Press-Post.

FARM & GARDEN.

TWO LAND LEVELERS.

Neither of Them Is Patented, Yet Both Do the Work as Well as the Most Intricate Devices.



Land should be graded down to smoothness before planting to insure profitable and uniform crops. This is necessary where irrigation is practiced, to secure proper moisture and equal distribution of water, and where the rainfall is depended on, ridges will not get enough water, while the lower places will have too much. The best plan is to plow a few acres and level as soon as possible, to move the soil easily and grade the surface to hold the moisture. I have tried patent devices, logs, planks and other leveling processes, but the most satisfactory results have been obtained from home-made graders. They cost almost nothing and can be made quickly by any man who can handle a saw, hammer and nails, and can be replaced every season if old ones are destroyed. Neither of them are patented, and no man can exact a royalty for their manufacture and use.

The cheapest device consists of a small log or pole, about five feet long and six to eight inches in diameter, notched at either end to fasten a rope or chain, and having a three-foot board nailed to the top and dragging behind. Two horses can be quickly hitched by taking the doubletree and clevis from the plow and attaching to the chain or rope. The driver stands on the log, throwing his weight on either side or stepping back on the board as required. A field may be leveled by driving round or by crossing back and forth. Furrows can be filled and ridges leveled by dragging across and over them. This is made of two-inch slabs or planks, for small pieces of land containing few clods or stones.

A LITTLE MORE ELABORATE.

The other leveler, which costs more money and requires greater skill in making, will fill the demand for larger areas, and do all that any ordinary machine will. This is made of two-inch slabs or planks, and should be bolted at the three corners. It is A-shaped, and made for rough, hard work. I use two pieces of plank, eight inches wide and two inches thick, about ten feet in length, and another board about seven feet long. The lower edges are cut down to about one-half inch by an adz or drawing knife, then bolted together, the crosspiece at the back being only six inches in width. A piece of wire or board nailed across on either side give strength to the crosspiece, which is necessary in mashing clods, digging out rocks and roots and dragging the weight of mounds and furrows of earth found too high. A short ten-inch board nailed on the center makes a suitable standing place for the driver, who shifts his position according to necessity. I use this for filling ditches and dead furrows, breaking down weeds and cornstalks and smoothing the ridges and knots of new land. The horses may be hitched to a hook or clevis bolted on the front.—Joel Shomaker, in Farm and Fireside.

LIVE-STOCK POINTERS.

Breed swine from well matured animals.

Cows should have plenty of water in summer.

Hogs should not be turned into low, wet pasture.

Feed hogs liberally, but never more than they will eat up clean.

If your hogs are not doing well perhaps they are too closely inbred.

Don't buy an inferior boar, even if you can get him for a cent a pound.

If you want to sell a horse fatten it; if you don't want to sell it, don't fatten it.

New blood every year is the way to make swine breeding the most profitable.

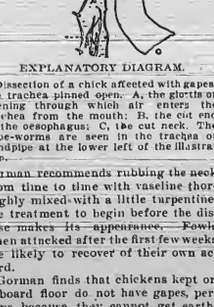
Oil meal in the spring, fed to horses, makes a glossy coat. It is a hair-making food.

Feeding oil meal requires the very best of judgment. It may be fed recklessly, to the great injury of an animal.—Western Plowman.

CORN MEAL SOMETIMES.

Good Thing for Poultry Provided It Is Given Properly and Especially in Reasonable Quantities.

Cornmeal is a good thing to feed hens if it be fed properly and in proper quantities. The writer has been very careful not to feed either corn or cornmeal to an extent to induce a too great amount of fat. This is about the only objection in feeding cornmeal to a fully developed hen. With growing chicks there is the added danger that the fowls will not get enough ash to make firm bones. When hens are laying freely it is somewhat difficult to get them fat, and at this time the feeding of cornmeal once a day seems to be a very good thing. This spring, when the hens of the writer were confined for some weeks on account of the snow, they showed that indigestion had taken hold of them, hard green droppings appearing in numerous places under the roosts. Knowing well that family physicians sometimes order the patients to eat more cornmeal food when a lax condition of the bowels is desired, we made a like change in the food of the hens. We put a small quantity in a pan and pour boiling water over it and then stir it up thoroughly. The pan is then put on top of the hot stove and allowed to cook for say five minutes, when it becomes a thickened mass. After being allowed to cool to a point where the fowls can eat it without burning their mouths this is fed before any [illegible] is given. The result was seen to enjoy this warm morning meal more than any other of the day. The result this spring has been that the signs of indigestion have already disappeared, and the hens are laying vigorously. One of the hens had shown some small signs of roup, and the feeding of the warm, soft meal has seemed to have an excellent effect on her, about all signs of the trouble having disappeared. The philosophy of this is plain. Roup is principally an affection of the mucous membrane and the warm soft meal is easy on that membrane. We do not say that she showed some symptoms of it. It may have been nothing but a slight cold. We want this understood, for we do not wish to be understood that cornmeal cooked can be regarded in any sense as a cure for roup. It might be possible that in its early stages the feeding of foods that are easy on the mucous membrane might have a tendency to retard the progress of the disease to such an extent that nature would be able to bring about normal conditions and throw off the disease.



Cornmeal so prepared is fed only in the morning, and that, too, only to an extent that can be eaten. To balance this whole oats are kept before the fowls for the rest of the day, the only other food being table scraps. At night the oat trough is taken out of reach, so that the hens cannot fill up on them in the morning before the cornmeal is given to them. Even the water is taken out at night for the same reason. We doubt if this will be found to be advisable in the summer time when the hens have all the green grass they can eat, and are also laying fewer eggs. The rest they take in the summer makes it easy for them to lay on fat, and this would be more likely to be the case in the summer than in the early spring. We have spoken of this because at this time of year many millions of birds are lost by indigestion, due entirely to improper feeding. Indigestion probably kills more fowls in the spring than any other trouble at this time of year.—Farmers' Review.

GAPES IN CHICKENS.

Birds Afflicted with This Disease Should Be Separated from Others and Kept on Board Floors.

The presence of gapes will be easily known by the drooping, feeble appearance and open, gasping mouth of the chick.

Temporary relief may be afforded by means of a looped horsehair or a partly-stripped feather introduced into the trachea; but the remedy is difficult to be applied thoroughly to young chicks.

EXPLANATORY DIAGRAM.

Dissection of a chick affected with gapes, the trachea pinned open. A, the glottis or opening through which air enters the trachea from the mouth; B, the cut end of the oesophagus; C, the cut neck. The gape-worms are seen in the trachea or windpipe at the lower left of the illustration.

Gorman recommends rubbing the neck from time to time with vaseline thoroughly mixed with a little turpentine, the treatment to begin before the disease makes its appearance. Fowls when attacked after the first few weeks are likely to recover of their own accord.

Gorman finds that chickens kept on a board floor do not have gapes, perhaps because they cannot get earthworms, which are supposed to convey the disease. Chicks which have gapes should be separated from the others and the runs should be changed if possible. Copperas should be added to the drinking water. Wherever the disease is prevalent young chicks should be kept for the first month on a board floor.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Ducks may sometimes be assisted out of the shells, but chickens, never.

NEEDED HIM IN THE HOUSE.

The Cool Retort of a Witty Girl to Her Complacent Fiancee Sets Him to Thinking.

Among weddings slated for the near future is that of a clever young lawyer who has just won for his bride a charming girl to whose heart he had long laid siege. The lawyer is not without a certain amount of good opinion regarding himself, and particularly prides himself on being rather a favorite among girls of his acquaintance. Nearly a year ago he first sought the hand of the bride to be, but she demurred. A few months later he met with a second refusal, but determined to make one more effort. By this time the young woman had come to regard him with a good deal of esteem. This feeling grew in warmth, and so, when a week or so ago, he once more urged his suit, she said the word which made him the happiest man in town.

"And you will be mine?" he asked.

"Yes."

"It seems too good to be true. When shall the wedding take place?"

"I—I don't know."

"There is no use in putting it off."

"No," she answered. "I think not."

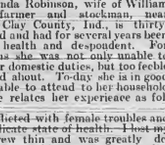
The young lawyer hummed a day preposterously close at hand, and after some hesitation his charmer agreed.

"I knew that you would realize that you would be happier with me than without me," he suggested, with just a hint of triumph in his tone.

Perhaps the girl concluded that this was as good a time as any to take him down a peg or two, for she replied very coolly:

"Yes, I do realize it now. You see, papa is out of town on business a good deal, so that mamma, aunty and I are often quite alone. I have thought it all over and have come to the conclusion that it would be ever so much safer to have a man in the house all the time."

The accepted lover gasped in astonishment for a moment, but then, seeing a twinkle in his betrothed one's eye, forgave her on the spot. [illegible] way home, he voted that his future wife would be a dangerous customer in repartee.—Chicago Chronicle.



A CHEERFUL WOMAN.

From the Democrat, Brazil, Ind.

Every woman cannot be beautiful, but a cheerful face often supplies the deficiency. But no one can be cheerful and bring joy to others unless they have perfect health. Fortunately, science has placed this priceless boon within the reach of every woman as the following incident proves:

Mrs. Amanda Robinson, wife of William Robinson, farmer and stockman, near Howesville, Clay County, Ind., is thirty-two years old and had for several years been in declining health and despondent. For three months she was not only unable to attend to her domestic duties, but too feeble to get up and about. Today she is in good health and able to attend to her household affairs. She relates her experience as follows:

"I was afflicted with female troubles and was in a delicate state of health. I lost my appetite, grew thin and was greatly depressed. After taking various remedies without any benefited I was induced by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

A Priceless Boon.

"Early in the summer of 1897 I procured five boxes of them and before finishing the second box I began to improve and by the time I had taken the five boxes I was able to go about my household duties and stopped taking the pills.

"Our daughter Anna, twelve years old, was also afflicted with decline and debility. She lost flesh, seemed to be bloodless and had no ambition. She took two boxes of the pills and they restored her appetite, aided digestion and brought color to her cheeks. She is now in the best of health. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People the best medicine we ever had in our family and recommend them to all needing a remedy for toning up and rebuilding a shattered system."

No discovery of modern times has proved such a blessing to women as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They restore strength and health to exhausted women when every effort of the physician proves unavailing. These vegetable pills are everywhere recognized as a specific for diseases of the blood and nerves.

Thrown Into the Shade.

"It's a little tough on our young Chicago," laughed the man from Saginaw, "and I wouldn't tell it in Bay City. I had some business down in Texas that required a good deal of railroad travel. One day I found myself on the parlor car with no one but the porter and the natural desire for companionship asserted itself. After we had talked for a time, during which he had the tact to address me as 'cunnel,' he ventured to inquire in an apologetic way where I was from.

"'Saginaw,' I responded.

"'Sag naw, cunnel; whar's dat, sah?'

"'In Michigan, my boy.'

"'O, yes, sah. Mich'gan. Dat's in Detroit. I had a gen'l from dar las' wintah, sah.'

"I simply went into the smoking compartment and communed with myself for the rest of the trip."—Detroit Free Press.

Bad Pay and Hard Work.

The bad pay and hard work of trained nurses has often been made the subject of benevolent remonstrance by eminent medical men and nonprofessional philanthropists. It is well for an invalid, before he gets so bad as to need a nurse or doctor, to use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters if he has chills and fever, constipation, rheumatism, dyspepsia and nervousness. Use it regularly.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE DAWN OF WOMANHOOD.

Earnest Words From Mrs. Pinkham to Mothers Who Have Daughters, and a Letter From Mrs. Dunmore, of Somerville, Mass.

The advent of womanhood is fraught with dangers which even careful mothers too often neglect.

One of the dangers to a young woman is belated menstruation. "The lily droops on its stem and dies before its beauty is unfolded;" or she may have entered into the perfection of womanhood with little apparent inconvenience or disorder of health. But suddenly the menses entirely cease.

Mother, puberic malady is taking hold of your daughter, and quick consumption may follow! Take instant steps to produce regular menstruation.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is certain to assist nature to perform her regular duties, procure it at once; there are volumes of testimony from grateful mothers who have had their daughters' health restored by its use. If personal advice is desired, write quickly to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. It will be given you without charge, and it will be the advice of abundant experience and success.

Read the following from Mrs. CHARLES DUNMORE, 102 Fremont St., Winter Hill, Somerville, Mass.:

"I was in pain day and night; my doctor did not seem to help me. I could not seem to find any relief until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had inflammation of the womb, a bearing-down pain, and the whites very badly. The pain was so intense that I could not sleep at night. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a few months, and am now all right. Before that I took morphine pills for my pains; that was a great mistake, for the relief was only momentary and the effect vile. I am so thankful to be relieved of my sufferings, for the pains I had were something terrible."

is the name to remember when buying Sarsaparilla. Dr. Ayer's Sarsaparilla has been curing people right along for nearly 50 years. That's why it is acknowledged to be the sovereign Sarsaparilla. It is the original and the standard. The record of the remedy is without a parallel. That record that is written in the blood of thousands, purified by its healing power.

"I nursed a lady who was suffering from blood poisoning and must have contracted the disease from her; for I had four large sores, or ulcers, break out on my person. I doctored for a long time, both by external application and with various blood medicines; but in spite of all that I could do, the sores would not heal. At last I purchased six bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, thinking I would give it a thorough trial. Before the six bottles had been taken, the ulcers were healed, the skin sound and natural, and my health better than it had been for years. I have been well ever since. I had rather have one bottle of Dr. J. C. Ayer's Sarsaparilla than three of any other kind."—Mrs. A. F. TAYLOR, Englevale, N. Dak.

Appropriateness.

"I took out a living picture show once," said the theatrical manager, "and I had several queer experiences.
